SENSATIONAL CHARGES HAVE BEEN MADE

Examiner Special

Red Deer, Alta., Feb. 15.— Adamson, the former official auditor, made sensational charges of bribery and misappropriation against the Alberta government at the Convention of Provincial Conservatives at Red Deer. The platform framed for appeal to the people included a plebiscite on prohibition and government construction of elevators. A C.P.R. despatch says McCarthy cannot resign from the House of Commons to be leader, because of election protest.

OLD RESIDENT OF SMITH PASSES AWAY

Mr. Andrew Miller, at the Age of 82 Years—Born in Scotland in 1826.

Young's Point—The death of Andrew Miller of Smith which occurred on Wednesday, the 10th inst., removed from this neighbourhood one of the oldest and most esteemed residents. The late Mr Miller was a Scotchman, having been born in Roxboroughshire, Scotland, in Nov. 1826 He worked at his trade as a butcher in the town of Galashiels, until 1854 when he came to Canada with his father. He followed the business in Hamilton for one year. Then he moved to Smith, lot 31, con. 10, where he has since lived. He was a trustee in the school here for a great while. His wife pre-deceased him about five years ago. The remaining members of the family who will mourn his loss are a daughter and 3 sons; Miss Aggie, James, George and Andrew.

THREE HUNDRED PEOPLE KILLED IN A THEATRE IN NEW MEXICO MOTION PICTURE FILM ON FIRE

TRAMPED TO DEATH.

Mexico City, Feb. 16.—Between 250 and 300 people were burned to death and many were injured in a fire which destroyed the Flores Theatre in the city of Acapulca Sunday night.

The news of the disaster reached this capital yesterday afternoon, telegraphic communication with Acapulca having been destroyed Sunday night owing to the fact that the telegraph office adjoining the theatre was burned and all wires put out of commission.

The Flores Theatre was a wooden structure, and Sunday night over 1,000 people crowded into it to witness a special performance given in honor of Governor Damian Flores, of the State of Guerrera, who was visiting the host at the time.

One of the numbers on the program consisted of a series of moving pictures. While the operator was exhibiting these a film caught fire and a blaze was quickly communicated to some bunting which had been used for decorative purposes.

In an incredibly short time the flames spread to all parts of the structure.

There were but three narrow exits, and the panic-stricken audience rushed to them, many falling, to be crushed to death, their bodies choking the way of escape to others.

The screams of those imprisoned were terrifying owing to the rapidity with which the fire spread, and its intense heat, it was impossible to attempt rescue work, and those imprisoned were literally roasted alive as the fire burned with little smoke and few were suffocated.

Chief Considers Peddlers Peddling Without Paying

A peddler called upon Chief Ruzzel to determine whether he had to take out a license to sell from house to house cane boards which are placed upon chairs. His accent was foreign, but he was wise enough to look for traps before walking into them. He told the chief that "another fellow" was peddling the same goods and had not secured a license. He thought the cane boards were made in Ontario although he knew there were some imported from the United States. The chief was not sure whether a license was needed or not. The peddler would have to have a paper showing that the goods were made in Ontario and that he was authorized to sell them, otherwise a license was required.

Canadian Foresters At Home To The Catholic Foresters

Examiner Special

Young's Point, Feb. 15th.—A very enjoyable evening was spent in the Canadian Order of Foresters Hall on Friday, that Court inviting the Catholic Order to a friendly game of forty fives. After playing a number of games with the usual pipe of peace refreshments were served and all returned home well pleased with the evening. It is edifying to see such harmony in two orders of this kind shows good neighborly feeling. It is expected the C. O of Foresters intend holding a return card party some evening next week

PETERBORO-COLDWATER BRANCH TO BE CONSTRUCTED THIS SUMMER

Montreal, Feb. 15.—The C. P. R.'s programme of railway construction this year east of Fort William is stated to include a branch line from Coldwater Junction to Peterborough, which will be part of the scheme for a short rail route between Montreal and Georgian Bay ports. It is anticipated also that during the coming season forty additional miles will be added to the double-tracking of the C. P. R., between Toronto and Montreal.

Peterborough Is Especially Favoured In Visit Of The Toronto Orchestra

It appears that the Toronto Symphony is the only large orchestra which is booked for this season at Peterborough, so that it affords the only opportunity to hear a grand concert such as these wonderful orchestras can give. Many people do not understand the reason for the strange uplifting power which a symphony orchestra is able to exert over an audience, nor do they know the reason for the rarity of the occasions upon which they are heard. The difficulties in the way of organizing and maintaining an orchestra are such that it was many years before Toronto succeeded in establishing one, although many attempts were made prior to the inauguration of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra. Many difficulties were overcome during the first two seasons, but there were also many successes for the orchestra which compensated for the time and effort of many hard workers in its behalf, and eventually the organization was handed over to Mr. Herbert M. Cox, under whose management it has come rapidly to the front as one of the best organizations of its kind on the continent. In fact, it may be said that the Toronto Symphony Orchestra is Canada's only orchestra, and it is a distinct compliment to Peterborough that Mr. Cox should arrange for its first appearance outside of Toronto to take place in his own native town.

There appears to be no doubt that the discerning people of Peterborough are taking advantage of this opportunity of hearing a first class concert, such as is usually available only in New York, and their interest is evidenced by the large number of subscriptions received by Mr. Walter Stocker.

YOUNG'S POINT PEOPLE TO ASSIST APSLEY FOLK

Residents Sign Petition to Get Daily Mail for Their Northern Neighbour.

Young's Point, Feb. 16th.—There is a petition here from Apsley for a daily mail for that village. It has been signed by quite a number here with the expectation of seeing our northern village get a daily mail, but we don't want to lose our daily mail on the strength of it. Our service now is satisfactory to the village, for the mail meets the noon train at Lakefield and arrives here at 4 p.m., which gives us the Toronto mail and from the west where if we had only the morning mail from Lakefield we would have to wait two days for Toronto papers etc., Now we would like to see Apsley secure a daily mail, but we are perfectly satisfied with the service we have at the present.

Some of the men working in the machine shop at the C. G. E. were out for a holiday to-day as a result of a mishap at the power house at Nassau yesterday. This accident was caused by a short circuit occurring in the generator. The damage was soon repaired and the men returned to work again this afternoon.

PRESENTATION MADE TO MR. J. A. BROWNE

Mr. J A Brown left this morning for Toronto, where he has accepted a position. On Saturday night a large number of Mr Brown's friends gathered at the Montreal House to say good-bye and wish him every success in his new position. Speeches were made by a number of those present expressing regret at Mr. Brown's departure. On behalf of the company, Mr Gene Hurtubise and Mr. James Booth presented Mr. Brown with a purse of money. Mr. Brown made a neat reply, thanking his friends for their kindness.

GOOD ROADS.

The seventh annual meeting of "The Ontario Good Roads Association" to be held in Toronto, March 3rd and 4th involves one of the most important interests of the province, locally and at large. The addresses which will be given by persons having scientific knowledge and experience as well as practical, will cover every aspect of country road construction and management. While not in any sense disparaging the value and importance of such a gathering and the attendant results, these are very like carrying coals to Newcastle. Those who speak and those who hear, are enthusiasts, because they are seized of a full sense of the supreme importance of good roads and need no conversion nor convincing. The people who should be reached and convinced will not be reached and consequently not convinced. To give the largest effectiveness to the good roads movement, which is good in every sense, friendly and even enthusiastic popular sentiment must be created and aroused. The campaign must be educative. Once convince the judgment of the public, the farming community, especially, of the supreme importance, economic as well as moral, of good roads, and enthusiasm is sure to follow. The proposal of the association to publish a full report of the proceedings of the seventh annual meetings is a step in the right way, but it is not enough. It must, to be of value be followed up by other steps. The distribution of the report should be literally broad-cast. It should reach every ratepayer in every township. This can only be done through the co-operation of the municipalities. The Association has no funds to speak of, there being no membership fees. It requests, therefore, that every county make a contribution of $10 towards the expenses of advertising and holding the meeting and printing its proceedings, and that two or more delegates be appointed to the meeting. The sum of $10 is not enough; that will not result in a fund sufficiently large to insure a thorough distribution of the report of the proceedings. The contribution, for this purpose alone, of $10 by every township in every county would be none too much and no better investment of township funds could be made; none that would insure more substantial ultimate benefits to the ratepayers.

Besides the Association is too general—too restricted in its influence. What is needed is not one Provincial Good Roads Association alone. Excellent as its aims and objects and proceedings are, they necessarily do not reach the desired spot and that is every sideline in every township. What is needed is subordinate Good Roads Associations in counties or preferably in townships. By these alone can the necessary concentration of education and practical effort and effect be secured. No doubt the Ontario Good Roads Association, as well as the Canadian Forestry Association mean well; aim high, and here is the trouble—they aim so high that they fire over the people's heads. Their amunition is expended in ways that disperse its energy and directness. Academic appeals are filtered through extremely condensed press reports with really ricochet effect. The bullet does not reach its billet direct. Township Associations effectively conducted and working in affiliation with, and inspired by, the central body, seem to be the only effective means to the greatly to be desired end—the arousing of individual interest, both as to municipality and person in a subject of such outstanding importance as good roads. Not only in rural municipalities but village, town and city municipalities, should the work of Good Roads Associations be brought to bear. In urban municipalities there is in no department, such utter and vicious lack of system, such lavish expenditure of the money of ratepayers, with such disappointing and crude results as in the expenditure upon streets. We have advanced more rapidly in almost everything else than in the art of street and road making and management. In one hundredth part of the money wasted in these ways were devoted to arousing the public to a realisation of the situation, irresistible agitation would ensue and drive municipal representatives into better ways of employing public moneys on roads.

The most expensive and difficult stretch in the 3,000 miles to the British market, is that from the farmer's barn to the railway station.

THE GOVERNANCE OF EMPIRE.

(London Advertiser.)

The Standard of Empire has begun an interesting series of articles on "the governance of empire." In the second of these, Mr. Sidney Low, an authority on constitutional subjects, opens a wide field for discussion. He describes the self-governing colonies as really separate kingdoms, but with the same king as the parent groups and not exercising full autonomy in regard to foreign affairs. The view that the colonial Parliaments are not subordinates to the Imperial body, that the latter could not pass an act which the colonial courts would be bound to enforce, and that the King governs Canada with the advice of his Canadian Ministers and Parliament, he maintains to be right in practice, although technically wrong. No more, he says, could the British House of Commons venture to pass a bill altering the Canadian tariff or the Australian marriage laws, than could the Dominion Parliament legislate on London tramways.

In the opinion of Mr. Low, the name empire is a misnomer, for the power of sovereignity over the whole Empire resides nowhere. The elector in Canada or Australia has no more control over the Government of India than has the elector in Chicago. Proceeding, the writer says:

"In the administration of the dependencies, as in the conduct of foreign policy, one part of the Empire may inflict upon the other liabilities to which they have been no consenting parties, expose them to perils and inconveniences which they themselves would have avoided. Let us assume — to put cases at present happily outside the practical sphere—that we quarrel with the United States over China or with Japan in connection with some conflagration in India that might set the whole East aflame. Here Canada and Australia would be open to the gravest dangers, though their own statesmen and peoples had never even been consulted as to the policy which produced the disasters."

With this lack of organization, Mr. Low expresses dissatisfaction, and while admitting there are difficulties in the way of improvement, he believes the question is one which sooner or later must be faced.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Superficial reasoning is not safe, as the farmers of New Zealand have found out and by which Canadian farmers should learn a lesson. At North Canterbury the birds have been destroyed in wholesale fashion by the farmers owing to the damage they do to the crops, and this year the harvest happened to be a particularly heavy one. A plague of caterpillars has now descended upon the district and practically ruined the crops. There is no doubt that the destruction of Canadian wild birds has cost our agriculturists and horticulturists millions of dollars. There is little room for doubt that if our bird life were destroyed we should starve; every green thing would be devoured by noxious insects and creeping things, which the birds keep down below the danger point. Every bird, even if it devours a few cherries or steals a little grain, amply pays his board by also devouring insects and worms which if not thus destroyed would ruin the fruits of our orchards, gardens and fields. In the economy of nature almost every created thing has a beneficent place to fill.

THE LAW OF LOVE AND THE LAW OF THE LAND COME INTO CONTACT

Chancellor Boyd Holds William Hamilton Morally Right in Snatching Legacy From Business for Children of His Sister.

THE LEGAL POINT INVOLVED.

Trusts and Guarantee Company in Discharge of its Duty Claims From Creditors Trust Money Withdrawn for Benefit of Children.

The following from the Toronto Evening Telegram of Feb. 15, refers to a matter involving much local interest. The Telegram says:

A story containing the elements of deep human interest—being a remarkable departure from the usual sordidness of similar actions, was dealt with by Chancellor Boyd to-day.

The basic facts are that when a Miss Annie Hamilton, of Peterborough, was on her deathbed, she told her mother, brother and sisters gathered about, that she wanted her estate to go to Euphemia's children. Euphemia was her favourite sister.

Soon, afterwards, in 1902, she died, leaving no will.

With no dissent, the family united in agreeing to carry out her wishes, and signed away their rights to any share in the estate. The proceeds $1,340.57, were handed to William Hamilton, Annie Hamilton's brother.

He agreed to hold it in trust for the children, and finally made a loan of these trust funds of $1,340.57 to the business his father had built up at Peterborough, known as the William Hamilton Manufacturing Company, Limited.

Time went on. The business of the company began to deteriorate.

Suspension Inevitable.

The moment came when William Hamilton saw that a crash was inevitable, and that the money given him to conserve by the dead sister for her nephews and nieces would be swept away.

He resolved to snatch this money from the wreck at any cost, and just before the company was declared insolvent, he drew from the assets, $1,969.81, and transferred it to a bank in trust for the children.

Mr. Hamilton, a comparatively young man, told the officers and directors what he proposed to do. They were chiefly his brothers and sisters, and they said he was doing right.

The situation was, that not only did the brothers and sisters originally give up their legal claim to the estate, but as some of them had shares in the failing company they faced further possible loss from this source also.

Accepted Further Loss.

Chancellor Boyd could not decide offhand whether the moral right Hamilton had to do as he did, outweighed legal considerations. He reserved judgment.

The Trusts and Guarantee Co., Ltd., liquidators of the William Hamilton Manufacturing Company, Limited, were plaintiffs against Hamilton, Munro, Willitm Hamilton, Effie Munro, Reid Munro and Allen Munro, the last three being infants. All parties reside in Peterborough. William Hamilton being president of the Hamilton Company.

Prior to December 11, 1906, the company were wholesale manufacturers of sawmill machinery, water wheels, engines, boilers, etc.

On that date the company was declared insolvent and the Trusts Company was appointed liquidator.

The plaintiffs, the Trust Company, in the interests of the faithful discharge of the trial it had assumed, claimed that on Dec. 6th the president knew the company was insolvent, but that he drew from the assets of the firm on that date $1,969.81, leaving in its place a voucher for the amount declaring the sum was in trust for the children of the late George Munro, who are defendants.

The plaintiffs claimed this reduction of the assets to be illegal and claimed $1,969.81 with interest.

Mr. Geo. H Watson, who appeared for the children interested, put Mr Hamilton on the stand, who said that when his sister, Annie Hamilton, died on May 6, 1902, she gave away on her deathbed all her estate to her nephews, Hamilton, Reid, Allan and Effie Munro, children of her sister, Euphemia.

Miss Hamilton left no will, but, following her death, her next of kin, Margaret Hamilton; her mother, Jessie Hamilton; Euphemia Munro, Margaret E. Lech and Alice Ludgate, her sisters, and her brother, William Hamilton, united by indenture, dated May 28th, 1902, agreeing to waive any claim they might have had to Miss Hamilton's estate, and assigned all their interest to William Hamilton who was to act as trustee for the Munro children. They did this in order to carry out the expressed wishes of Miss Hamilton.

Moral Right, Says Judge.

"Whether he, William Hamilton, had a legal right or not, may be questionable. He certainly had every moral right to take his money out and re-pay these children," said Chancellor Boyd.

"You knew, of course, that the company was insolvent when you took the money out?" the court asked Mr. Hamilton.

"I could not well know otherwise," said Mr. Hamilton.

"What Mr. Hamilton tried to do rightly or wrongly, was to create a preference in favor of these children," said Chancellor Boyd.

Mr. Watson contended that the children, being wards, were not in the position of creditors of the estate.

"To apply cases decided in England to this case, the principle has frequently been enunciated and maintained, that money impressed with a trust, cannot be devoted to another purpose," said Mr. Watson.

ANNIVERSARY AT MOUNT PLEASANT

Examiner Special.

Mount Pleasant, Feb. 16—The Anniversary of the Mount Pleasant Presbyterian Church will be held on the 21st and 22nd February, 1909.

The Rev. H. V. Mountaer has consented to conduct the services on Sunday. No better man could be got for the work and it gives strength to the promise of union between the three proposed bodies, "Union is Strength." Full particulars in posters.

The Temperance Hall has been refitted and made suitable to hold any meeting.

The painters and paperhangers have made good work in decorating the interior.

Business has been very good in the village this winter. Very few have found the roads through the swamp fit to travel on for want of snow.

Mr. Harry Marsh, of Richmond Hill, has returned home after visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Lewis.

'ROUND THE STORES.

The new wash goods for spring are already shown in all their beauty. The colourings are pretty, the patterns and weaves are new departures. The Rylands' English prints shown at Fair's inspire genuine thoughts of spring, and the price is influencing early sales.

There may be good reasons for economizing in your parlour and drawing room furnishings, but the dining room can't afford to look old fashioned, and unattractive. The chances are good at Clegg's February Furniture Sale for influencing housekeepers to watch the chances offered by this firm's everyother-day announcement. Handsome sideboards are just now in the price-cutting process, and savings of from eight to eighteen dollars are quite common. Watch the advertisement on Wednesday on the fourth page.

A saving of twenty dollars on a Russian pony coat or a near seal jacket is a real tempting inducement for a lady who needs the garment. Cash is certainly king just now in the eyes of the furriers, and the Lech store, which has a good fur reputation, is bidding strongly for some of it. Read their advertisement.

One grocery store has caused a run on its granulated sugar by advertising twenty pounds for a dollar.

And it is perhaps worthy of note that the sugar snap has wonderfully boosted the sales of other articles in the store. It will pay to read Dutton's advertisement.

One of our live real estate men is advertising a two storey brick dwelling in a good locality, with modern conveniences, and a lot 40x100 feet, for $2,000. This should be worth looking after. See page two.

Do Peterborough people read the advertisements in the Examiner? Read the following letter:—

Peterborough,
Feb. 16, 1909.

To the Examiner.

Gentleman:—Replying to your enquiry as to the number of pounds of Shell Brand Castile Soap sold by us last Saturday, which was advertised in the Examiner, we have to say that we limited the number of pounds of this soap thus offered for that day to two hundred pounds. The whole of this amount was sold out by 3 o'clock p.m., and no more than two pounds were sold to one person.

We might also mention that on the previous Saturday we disposed of one hundred and fifty comb and brush sets, (300 pieces) specially advertised in your paper, in about the same period of time.

Respectfully,

Palpitation of the Heart.

One of the first danger signals that announce something wrong with the heart is the irregular beat or violent throb. Often there is only a fluttering sensation, or an "all gone" sinking feeling; or again, there may be a most violent beating, with flushings of the skin and visible pulsations of the arteries. The person may experience a smothering sensation, gasp for breath and feel as though about to die. In such cases the action of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills in quieting the heart, restoring its normal beat and imparting tone to the nerve centres, is, beyond all question, marvellous. They give such prompt relief that no one need suffer.

Mr. Sylvester Smith, Hampton, N.B., writes:—"I was troubled with palpitation of the heart and tried doctor's medicines, but they only gave me temporary relief. I heard of your Heart and Nerve Pills and bought two boxes and before I had used them I was completely cured and would recommend them to all similarly affected."

Price, 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25 at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

APPLICATION TO PARLIAMENT.

An Application will be made to the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Ontario at its next session, by the Peterborough Radial Railway Company, for an Act extending the times for the completion of those sections of the Company's Railway not yet under construction.

VALENTINE SOCIAL DELIGHTFUL AFFAIR

A very pretty seasonable affair was the Valentine Social in the George St. Methodist Sunday School room last night carried out under the auspices of the Epworth League. The decorations were fanciful and arranged artistically and with pleasing effect. A large attendance of young people helped make the affair a delightful success and every feature of the evening assisted in this respect. Mr. F. C. Moore was chairman and accepted the demands of that position with credit to himself and to the delight of the assemblage. A musical programme was presented and various contests between the different sections into which by arrangement the young people were divided, provided no end of amusement and was thoroughly enjoyed. The pastor Rev. E. A Pearson was judge of the contests and also critic.

IN FULL SWING.

The annuity contest, which closes on May 31 next, in connection with which a First prize of Seven Hundred Dollars in cash and several other large cash prizes will be given by the Orange Meat Company, is now in full swing.

The winners in this contest will be the persons sending in the largest number of bottoms of Orange Meat boxes. The number of contestants is very large and they are scattered all over Canada.

Buy a package to-day and commence saving the bottoms and keep saving until the close.

Y. W. C. A. NOTES.

Dr. Greer's Class will meet to-night at 8 o'clock. This is an opportunity for new members to join this helpful class, as Dr. Greer will give a summary of the previous lectures before continuing new work.

Miss Nicholls' Class is growing in interest. Any one wishing help in working up their English subjects, also arithmetic, will be made welcome this evening at 7.30.

Both these classes free to members.

The usual Tuesday evening good time to-night: Games, bright reading, and music. All girls invited.

WHAT CONFUCIUS SAID ABOUT TEA

History of Tea—How to Account for its Flavor and Strength.

Of the millions of people in Canada who derive enjoyment from drinking tea, few know the history of the flavoury leaf. Though tea has been cultivated in China for thousands of years, and Confucius, the author of the Chinese Scriptures, speaks highly of it, saying "Tea tempers the spirit and harmonizes the mind." Botanists declare the original home of the plant was Northern India.

Tea was first cultivated in India 75 years ago, and in Ceylon 35 years ago. Indian teas are the strongest, Ceylon teas the most flavoury known. To-day India and Ceylon supply nearly all the tea consumed by the white races of the world. Machinery has superseded hand labour in the tea factories. In Canada the largest tea warehouse is T. H. Estabrooks', in St. John, N.B. It is a model of cleanliness, and there Red Rose tea is blended and packed by machinery. It is true of Red Rose tea that it is not touched by human hands between picking from the bush and the consumer's pantry.

Tea grown at high altitudes is less abundant, matures more slowly, has more juice, is stronger and of better quality than low grown tea. Red Rose tea is a blend of high grown Indian and Ceylon teas, and that accounts for its delicious combination of strength and flavour. In the sealed lead packets it holds its original strength and flavour, and gathers none of the dust and dirt that is liable to get into tea retailed in bulk. The increase in the use of Red Rose tea has been the most interesting feature of the tea trade in Canada for ten years.

Many centuries after Confucius, Sidney Smith, the greatest of English wits, said "I am glad I was not born before tea." The question now is not "tea," but "good tea." Red Rose tea in each of its grades is the best value in tea; it is the highest standard of quality. The difference in cost between "tea" and "good tea" per cup or per meal is invisible; the difference in satisfaction and enjoyment is very great. When next you buy tea try Red Rose. A package will convince you that Red Rose tea is "good tea."

Historic Sun Fire Office Enters Upon its Two Hundreth Year.

It will be a long time before any other insurance company attains the age of the ancient corporation founded in 1710 under the name of the Sun Fire Office, and which has been continuously in business since that time as an underwriter of fire risks. As far back as 1705, Charles Povey projected an "Exchange Houses Fire Office" for the insurance of goods in London, England; and it was he who then adopted the familiar sun trademark as the emblem of his enterprise. Three years later he, with twenty-three others, organized the business anew and extended its field of operation, to include English provincial towns as well as the capital city itself. In the following year the concern took the name of the Sun Fire Office, and was domiciled in a room in Paul's Coffee House, at the western end of St. Paul's Cathedral.

In 1714 the partners appointed the first fire insurance surveyor in history. It was his duty to inspect premises on which insurance was sought, and, if he approved the risk, to affix a numbered badge of metal in some conspicuous place to identify the building as one insured by the Sun people. This "fire mark" had for some time almost the value and effect of the big lithographed policies of our day, with their imposing seals and ornate lettering. Also the mark served as a guide to the firemen and salvage corps of the period, who, in those days, were hired by the insurance folk to protect the risks they assured.

It was 1836 before the Sun did any business outside of Great Britain, several agencies being established in France in that year. In 1839 the first insurance written by the office for the United States was accepted; and from that time the Sun outposts have been pushed farther and farther until practically every part of the civilized world has an agency of this historic concern, which changed its name in 1891 to the existing style of the Sun Insurance Office, and took powers to add other forms of insurance than fire risks to its underwriting.

With H. M. Blackburn as manager, the Sun founded its Canadian branch in 1892, locating the head offices for the Dominion in Toronto. The solidity of the institution is evident in its reserve fund of nearly fourteen million dollars, ranking the Sun office amongst the wealthiest concerns of its kind. Canadians seem to approve strongly of the Sun principle of underwriting, and of the way the Company meets its obligations promptly and in the fairest spirit; and these qualities certainly justify the growth each year which has been recorded since Manager Blackburn assumed his important duties here.

CAR OFF THE TRACK ON GEORGE STREET

As car No. 15 was coming along George street it had the misfortune to jump the track at the corner of George and Charlotte streets. It seems that the snow got clogged in the switch allowing the front wheels to go over, but the hind wheels went off. They tried for quite a time to get it back but at last they called out the flanger to give it a pull back. It was at last set on the tracks again and proceeded on its way.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

TENDERS FOR SHOPS EAST OF WINNIPEG.

Sealed Tenders addressed to the undersigned and marked on the envelope "Tender for Shops," will be received at the office of the Commissioners of the Transcontinental Railway at Ottawa until 12 o'clock noon of the 10th day of March, 1909, for the construction and erection complete, in accordance with the plans and specifications of the Commissioners, of shops east of Winnipeg.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied by the Commissioners, which may be had on application to Mr. Hugh D. Lumsden, chief engineer, Ottawa, Ont.

Each tender must be signed and sealed by all the parties to the tender, and witnessed, and be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank of the Dominion of Canada, payable to the order of the Commissioners of the Transcontinental Railway for the sum of one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000).

The cheque deposited by the party whose tender is accepted, will be deposited to the credit of the Receiver General of Canada, as security for the due and faithful performance of the contract according to its terms. Cheques deposited by parties whose tenders are rejected will be returned within ten days after the signing of the contract.

By order,
P. E. RYAN,
Secretary.

COMPLETELY RUN DOWN

Lost Appetite Restored by Psychine.

Mr. Geo. Pratt, of Clarkson, Ont., says: "Four years ago my son Wilbert was so run down, thin and emaciated, that we thought he was going into a decline and feared he would never pull through the severe cold of the winter months. The boy had no appetite and seemed to have lost all energy and interest in life. He was altogether in terribly bad shape. His condition caused us the gravest anxiety."

"Fortunately I procured PSYCHINE for him and this soon gave him a new lease of life. It is really remarkable how rapidly this splendid medicine brought about a change. After taking one or two bottles he was hardly recognizable as the same youth. PSYCHINE effected a speedy cure and he was soon able to work about on the farm again. To-day he is a robust young fellow, and if anything stronger than his brothers. Nothing in the way of hard work seems to affect him. I cannot speak too highly of PSYCHINE. It certainly saved our boy and made a man of him."

NO HOME SHOULD BE WITHOUT PSYCHINE.

As a builder-up of the system it is unequalled. It prevents the children taking cold, wards off that terrible malady La Grippe and completely fortifies them against disease. It should always be used for colds, la grippe, weariness, loss of appetite, etc. The proprietors offer you a TRIAL FREE. Send coupon to DR. T. A. SLOCUM, Limited, Spadina Ave., Toronto.

A PLUM FROM LAYMEN'S MISSION MOVEMENT TREE

It was given out Sunday morning in St. Paul's church that the pastor had received a letter from a member of the congregation, whose name was withheld at his request, that he had decided to contribute $25 this year to the Missionary work of the church. The pastor added that the donor was not a merchant or in business for himself, but a salaried man. The pastor expressed his pleasure at being permitted to mention this matter to his congregation, as one of the first fruits o the new Laymen's Missionary movement just introduced in to St. Pauls church.

South African War Veterans Promise Army Reserve For Canada---Before Government

Toronto, Feb. 16.—At a large gathering of Imperial South African Veterans held last week the general secretary of the association presented a full report of the interview with Sir Frederick Borden.

It was stated that when the deputation met the government last month, Sir Frederick Borden was absent in England, and as an alternative proposal in the petition presented, was a subject of military organization, a reply to the petitioners could not be given until the return of the Minister of Militia. On the arrival of the latter, Mr. Hal. B. McGiven, M.P. for Ottawa, arranged an interview and introduced the deputation to him last Thursday, which consisted of A. H. D. Hair, of Montreal; Capt. A. C. Webb and A. Parker, of Ottawa; and Shelford Grimwood, General Secretary, Toronto.

Sir Frederick Borden was informed that if the government could not see its was clear to grant our petition on the first proposal, the association was prepared, in return for 320 acres of land freehold, to form themselves into a Canadian Army Reserve for the period of ten years free of all cost. The following statistics were handed in and showed the composition of the proposed reserve:

Cavalry

Officers	18
Non-Coms	110
Rank	329
Unclassed	1118
	1575

Artillery

Officers	6
Non-Coms	39
Unclassed	95

Infantry

Officers	8
Non-Coms	97
Rank	399
	1417

R. E.

Officers	7
Non-Coms	28
Rank	33

Of this total number, 110 men are Imperial Reservists, and in the event of our scheme being adopted, it is intended to ask the Imperial Government to allow these men to be transferred. About 42 men are suffering from disabilities, such as the loss of a leg or arm, and it was suggested that these should not be debarred from the reserve, as in case of hostilities they could fill positions such as clerks or storekeepers.

The above statistics have been taken from the forms sent out, and which were filled in by those who submitted their names and were eligible.

It is anticipated that by the end of this month our strength will have reached 4,000, and it is urged in support of our proposal that all the men are war-trained soldiers; also 80 per cent. of them have seen from three to eighteen years military service, and with the fact that their ages averages 32 1-4 years makes them a force which would be a valuable adjunct to the defence force of the Dominion. It was pointed out that Canada was about the only country which could not boast of having an army reserve force, and here would be an opportunity of forming a first class reserve without entailing any expense. Under ordinary conditions the cost of such a force for ten years, on the basis of sixpence a day as in England, would amount to $2,000,000, whereas the government value of the land asked for is $640,000, a saving of $1,500,000.

Major-General Lake and General Otter, as well as other prominent members of the Militia Council and General Staff, strongly support the proposed scheme.

Replying to a question of Sir Frederick Borden, the general secretary stated that 91 per cent. of the men were prepared to settle on the land personally, and in order to offer every inducement possible for the grants to be taken up, arrangements were being made to grant loans of about $500 to each settler at a low rate of interest and to spread over a number of years, thus giving a man a fair chance of becoming a most desirable settler and his own master. Though he knew some cases where men would sell their warrants, every endeavour would be made to prevent them getting into the hands of land sharks or devils, which is their more correct name.

Sir Frederick Borden, in his reply to the deputation, stated that he regretted his recent absence from Canada prevented his expressing any definite opinion on the subject now, but he was very much interested in the proposed scheme, which was deserving and worthy of full consideration, and he could promise his most careful, closest and sympathetic consideration. He would like the scheme submitted in detail in writing as soon as possible in order that it may be considered in the Militia Council, with a view of bringing it before Parliament during the present session, if approved.

The general secretary was requested to furnish the Militia Council by the end of the month with a complete nominal roll of the members of the association.

A general conference will be held in Toronto early in March, when delegates from all over the Dominion will assemble.

Article On How The Realism Of Motion Pictures Is Achieved

Those who patronize the splendid moving picture shows given at the Crystal and the Royal Theatre may never have stopped to consider the amount of trouble necessary to the securing of these fine views. Perhaps some of those who have watched the pictures and wondered about how they were made, have contented themselves with thinking that the pictures are secured by skilful staging and that none of the events portrayed ever really happened. Such a view is far from correct. The truth is that a great deal of realism is necessary in the making of these pictures.

In one of the local houses recently there was shown a picture representing among other incidents the casting adrift of a woman and child on a slim raft on the sea. Those who watched the picture did not know how, when the scene came to portraying a real tragedy. Miss Turner, a New York actress, took a leading part in the preliminaries that were necessary to secure this picture, and it came close to costing her her life. Miss Turner is the "heroine" as well in most of the pictures shown on the Canadian circuits.

You may have seen her—that is, if you have ever seen a moving picture show. She is a young woman, barely out of her teens, with a slender, supple figure, large eyes, dark brown hair and a wonderful gift of pantomime.

Miss Turner is the leading woman of a moving picture company, the only actress in a company of thirteen. The other twelve are men.

Being leading lady for a moving picture match play and for a theatre are two entirely different lines of work. On the stage all is illusion. When the heroine far back on the stage appears to be dropping into a ravine from a third-story window, in reality she drops but a foot or so. When she floats out of sight bound to a raft you know it is a sea of painted canvas and the raft is sliding on rollers to the wings. But the moving picture machine demands realism, not painted scenery. Pictures of the sea are made on the beach, and pictures of heroines dropping from burning buildings are made in isolated country homes where artificial smoke pouring from the windows drives the leading woman to jump from the real ground. The clever stage carpenter and the producer together can create an illusion which deceives the eye of the spectator, but the moving picture machine is relentless. It shows every bit of painted scenery, every illusion uncompromisingly.

Miss Turner was a real actress before she became a picture actress, and while playing in vaudeville she had occasional weeks off, as the actors say. At one of these times she dropped into the studios of a moving picture concern in Brooklyn, and acted as "extra lady." She proved such a valuable model, so quick to seize points and bring them out in pantomime that the company eventually made her an offer sufficiently alluring to induce her to abandon her stage ambitions.

That was more than a year ago, and since October, 1907, Miss Turner has spent six days in the week acting before a moving picture machine, and to-day is considered the finest mimic of that particular sort in the country. Millions of men, women and children all over the United States and Canada have laughed at her comedy and wept over her tragedy, as they are thrown upon the giant screen.

Some few of the picture dramas are rehearsed and performed in the company's big Brooklyn studio with painted scenery and stage "properties" to help out the illusion. But the more important dramas, and especially the outdoor scenes, are given against a real background. And therein lies the danger!

For instance just before the weather turned bitingly cold someone wrote for the company a picture-drama of coast life, in which a starving castaway bound with ropes to a raft, was rescued by gallant fisher lads.

ELECTING A BISHOP FOR TORONTO DIOCESE

A special meeting of the Synod of the Diocese of Toronto will be held in Toronto on February 17th, for the election of a bishop to the See, made vacant by the death of the late Bishop Sweatman.

The sittings of the Synod will be in the School House of St. James' Cathedral, and the Venerable Archdeacon of York and Simcoe will preside.

After routine, the first order of business will be the appointment of scrutineers, two clergymen and one layman, to take the clerical vote and two laymen and one clergyman to take the lay vote.

The balloting is conducted in a very systematic manner. A list of those entitled to vote is delivered to the scrutineers, and no person shall vote whose name is not on the list.

During the process of balloting all shall keep their seats until the name of a clergyman is called, when he shall hand to the scrutineer a folded paper on the inside of which is written the name of the clergyman for whom he desires to vote, and return to his seat. The folded paper shall be dropped into the ballot box and the name of the voter marked off the list.

The lay vote, (each parish or mission is entitled to three delegates), is thus taken. When the name of any parish or mission is called the delegates, if more than one, shall severally hand his folded paper to the scrutineer, and return to his seat. The several folded papers thus received are placed in an elvelope which is sealed and dropped into the ballot box, and the name of the parish or mission is marked off the list. Thus the scrutineers or any one else will not be able to tell how any parish voted.

The clerical members for Peterborough are, Rev. Canon Davidson, Rev. Dr. Langfeldt, Rev. H. R. Trumpour.

The lay delegates are:

All Saints'—Mr. aJs. Edgar, Mr. E. L. Davis, Mr. A. E. Wilson.

St. John's—Dr. Boucher, Mr. Yokome, Mr. J. S. Bell, Mr. R. J. Devey, (Apsley).

St. Luke's—Mr. G. F. Warde, Mr. F. Adams, Mr. Wm. Maniece.

GLASSES ARE PLENTIFUL

But it is almost a certainty that they would be even more common still if everybody wore them who should. You find people doing without them just as long as they possibly can, which is a very wrong thing to do, indeed, every day makes the case harder to deal with. If you Reader, have the slightest cause to believe that your eyes need the attention of an Optician, we shall be pleased to advise you if you need glasses, and if glasses are not necessary we will tell you so. We invite you to call and ask us about your eyes.

Claims For Damages Against The City Are Rather Numerous

Mrs. Herb. Meehan Injured in a Fall—Bakery Waggon Damaged —No Action in Reference to P. C. Adams' Claim for $20 for Catching Horse Thief.

AN IMPORTANT RESOLUTION

The Legal Committee met last night with Ald. Turner in the chair; and Mayor Rush, Alds. McIntyre, Metheral and Duffus also present.

A letter from John Green regarding the accident to Mrs. Corinne Meehan was read. Dr. Maranall and Mr. Herb Meehan, her husband, were heard.

Moved by Ald. McIntyre seconded by Ald. Duffus that the City Engineer be asked for a report and the advice of the City Solicitor be obtained.

The question of John Holland's taxes which he claimed he paid in error was referred to the City Solicitor.

A letter from Dumble and Johnston in regard to an accident to W. Stock and Sons delivery wagon on Concession st. was referred to the City Solicitor for his advice and a report will be received from the engineer.

A letter was received from Mr. R. F. McWilliams regarding an accident to Mr. Alex. Kennedy on Hunter st., last winter.

A letter was also received from Mr. R. F. McWilliams regarding the claim of Constable Adams for $20 reward for the arrest of a horse thief.

Moved by Ald. McIntyre seconded by Ald. Metheral that T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P., be asked to take steps to have the municipal act amended so as not to make it compulsory for counties and cities to give a reward for the arrest of a horse thief. Carried.

Moved by Ald. Metheral and Turner that the claim of Constable Adams for a reward for the arrest of a horse thief be not entertained and if suit is brought that the City Solicitor be instructed to defend it.

Sons Of England Received Supreme Officers Last Night

A very large gathering of members of the Sons of England in Peterborough, and a large contingent from Lodge Exeter, No. 89, Lakefield, took place in the Sons of England Hall, Hunter street, last night. The occasion was the visit of Bro. James Boxall, of Lindsay, Supreme Past President; Bro. John A. Aldridge, of Toronto, Past Supreme President; and Bro. John W. Carter, of Toronto, Supreme Secretary. During the regular meeting the Supreme Officers gave a resume of the work of the Sons of England for the last twenty-five or thirty years and showed where the funds of the order had gone.

Addresses were given by Bro. Bickell and Bro. Patrick, of Lodge Exeter, Lakefield; District Deputy Frank Kitney, Bro. H. A. Beal, P.P.; Bro. Tivey, Bro. S. A. Oke, Bro. Wm. Taylor.

After the speeches a vote of thanks was passed to the Supreme Officers for their kindness in attending.

During the evening Bros. Runnett and Tivey gave recitations that were well received.

At the conclusion of the business part of the meeting a delightful banquet was held, under the direction of a committee, chairmaned by Bro. Harry Long. A very enjoyable time was spent around the festive board, the array of good things being thoroughly appreciated.

After the banquet the lodge went into a session of the White Rose Degree and conferred the mysteries of the degrees upon a number of the Lakefield and local brethren.

Results Of The Examiner Newsboys' Competition For The Past Week

The interest taken in the Examiner Newsboys' Competition is steadily increasing. The boys have made it possible for us to hold the last week's gain with some added.

The $2.00 prize for the second week of the competition was divided between Adams and O'Keefe, each having a similar gain in new customers or papers sold.

Other prizes were paid to Veeman, Saunders and Tully. The special weekly prize is the least important in the competition. Any boy who takes hold and gets an average of a customer or two, a week is sure to win one of the large prizes offered as follows:—

First Prize	$25.00
Second Prize	20.00
Third Prize	15.00
Fourth Prize	10.00
Fifth Prize	5.00
Sixth Prize	4.00
Seventh Prize	3.00
Eighth Prize	2.00
Twelve Prizes of	1.00

Just think of it! Some boy is going to get $ 00 on the first of April for getting his own customers for the Examiner, on which he makes money as well.

The second boy will get $20.00 and so on down the list that is so large that any boy who does the least bit of work and asks his friends and neighbours to buy the Examiner is reasonably sure of a prize.

Our last competition proved that the boys who added one or two new customers each week were the boys to win the prizes. They may not have had enough any particular week to earn the special prize, but they were always adding to their list, and eventually won with an increase possibly in the whole term of the competition of from 10 to 20 customers.

Boys! It pays to sell the Daily Examiner. It will pay you better than anything else you can do when a school boy, and takes very little time and trouble.

Attentive

And pleasing drugstore service is offered to every customer. No effort is overlooked, no act left undone to make buying here a pleasure and a satisfaction. This service costs nothing extra. Why not take advantage of it?

A NEW DIRECTOR HAS BEEN APPOINTED

The Mutual Life Assurance Company of Canada, has just filled the vacancy on its board occasioned by the death of its late President, Mr. Robert Melvin, by the appointment of Mr. R. O. McCulloch, Secretary Treasurer of the well known firm of Messrs. Goldie & McCulloch, Galt, Ont. The new director is not only a very successful business man, but has shown a deep interest in the welfare of his town, being an ex-President of the Board of Trade, and is at present a director of the Galt Art Metal Company. He has been chairman of the Parks board from its inception up to the present time. In the wider fields of politics he takes a public spirited interest, having filled the position of President of the Liberal - Conservative Association of South Waterloo during the past twelve years. Mr. McCulloch is in the prime of manhood, and being widely and favourably known to all sections of the community, will make a very efficient member of the Mutual Life Board. The Company is to be congratulated on his appointment.

PREPARATIONS FOR BUILDING VIAMEDE BEGUN TO-DAY

The lumber for the new Viamede has been purchased from Mr. Kelly, of Bridgenorth, and is now being hauled to Lakefield, whence it will be transmitted to Mount Julian. Mr. Graham, in speaking to a reporter this morning, said, "My thirteen years' experience in connection with Viamede is going to help me a great deal in making this building one of the best that there will be on Stony Lake for a good many years to come. The new building will have a frontage on the lake of 150 feet, and will be built on the same site that the old building was on. It will contain thirty-six large bed rooms, besides sitting rooms and dining room. This latter room will be 24 feet by 60 feet, and will have a capacity for seating one hundred and fifty people. In connection with this building there will be four bath rooms with hot and cold water, which will be greatly appreciated by all the guests.

The building of the new Viamede is in the hands of Mr. Abel Hendren, who also built the new Methodist Church in Lakefield, and the addition to the Public School. It will be open by the first of June, in lots of time to receive the many tourists who in former years made the old resort their headquarters for the summer months.

RECORD NUMBER OF IMMIGRANTS

Canada's Immigration Distances All Previous Figures.

BRITONS HAVE INCREASED

Proportion of English-Speaking Arrivals Has Gone Up In Past Few Years, According to New Bluebook of Department of Interior —Americans Brought In $1,000 Per Head During the Year.

Ottawa, Feb. 16.—That Canada has established a world's record in immigration is the boast made in the official bluebook of the Department of Interior for the year ended March 31.

During the twelve months, 262,469 immigrants arrived, an increase of 39,767. During the decade ending 1907-8, the total number was 1,166,126, of which 819,213 came from Great Britain, Ireland, and the United States, and 356,913 from other countries.

"This tremendous movement of people," says the report, "is more than one-sixth the total population of Canada."

During the past twelve years, there arrived in Canada English, Scotch, Irish and Welsh immigrants to the number of 487,720, one quarter of whom arrived last year. "It will thus be seen," comments the Deputy Minister, "that in so far as the quantity of this particular class of immigration is conceived, it has now assumed sufficiently large proportions to satisfy the widely expressed desire on the part of Canadians throughout the old and new provinces that for obvious reasons we should receive a fair share of British subjects emigrating from the old land.

"As to undesirables, some otherwise deserving immigrants who had not, on entering Canada, the necessary means to become at once self-supporting, may have been induced to come through the injudicious zeal of philanthropic societies engaged in this class of work."

It is regarded as highly satisfactory that of the total exclusions of 1,002 at various ports last year, only one-ninth were British, although the British arrivals were nearly one-half of the total immigration.

The 58,312 people who arrived from the United States during 1908, brought in money and effects to the value of about $52,000,000. The Hudson Bay Co., and the railway companies, sold 341,072 acres of land for $2,986,992, as against 1,277,759 for $7,667,930 in 1907. The average price, however, increased from $6.02 to $8.76 per acre. In 1903, the average price was $3.46 per acre. The total number of homestead entries was 30,424, a decrease of 7,364. The acreage taken up last year was 4,867,840 acres.

It is remarked that at the present rate of settlements it will soon be necessary to direct the incoming settler to the northern part of Alberta, and Saskatchewan, "where it will probably be found that the agricultural possibilities are in no way inferior to those of the regions more to the south."

Of the 30,424 entries granted last year, 7,417 were made by Canadians, 7,818 by Americans, 4,840 by English, 1,026 by Scotch, 339 by Irish, and 510 by Canadians returned from the United States, or 21,950 in all, representing a population of about 52,000 souls, leaving 8,524 entries by other nationalities, representing a population of 21,000 souls. Of the Canadians who homesteaded 3,696 were from Ontario, and 494 from Quebec. Austria-Hungarians to the number of 2,472.

The gross cash revenue for Dominion lands for the year was $1,098,219, a decrease of $127,738; from school lands $708,065, a decrease of $121,836; from export tax on gold, the revenue was $70,504, a falling off of $58,026.

The total area sold by the Government in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta during the year was 114,712 acres for $1,192,615, or an average of $10.40 per acre.

Cutting Through Wall.

Toronto, Feb. 16.—Four men, Chas. Brown, John McLeod, Ed. Scanlon and Patrick Kelly, were taken through the city yesterday on their way to Kingston penitentiary to serve a two years' sentence for an attempt to break jail at Sault Ste. Marie Wednesday last. They were awaiting removal to the Central Prison to serve seven months for robbery, and with a pair of scissors had all but driven a two-foot hole through a 16-inch brick wall when they were discovered.

WHAT IS THIS DISEASE?

Montreal, Feb. 16.—An unknown disease of a nature to baffle the local physicians has the town of Laprairie, Que., in its grip. Two deaths have resulted, another sufferer is dying and one hundred more are afflicted, or nearly ten per cent. of the town's population of 1,100.

The disease has some of the features of typhoid fever and is grippe, but has other characteristics that stamp it as a malady apart. The fever is very low, five degrees above normal being the highest recorded. An outstanding symptom is a black or dark brown covering of the tongue and with which, though removed by acid espraying, returns in two hours. Red, almost purple, patches on face and body come and go without apparent cause. Swollen tongue and lips and other symptoms.

Doctors Cannot Say.

Toronto, Feb. 16.—Supt. Brown of of the General Hospital said he was unable to offer a theory as to the disease. Dr. Alex. McPhedran, specialist, said the only way to solve the problem would be by a post-mortem to reveal the condition of the blood, and that the general secretions should be examined very carefully.

STRICKEN AT SOCIAL.

Aylmer, Ont., Feb. 16.—While delivering an address at the anniversary service in the Methodist Church last night Mayor W. E. Stevens was suddenly seized with an attack of apoplexy and, falling back into his chair unconscious, died in a few minutes.

The gathering in the church was in the nature of a social function and was largely attended. Following supper, Mayor Stevens, who was a prominent member of the church, was called upon. He collapsed soon after he had begun his speech. Doctors were summoned at once, but could give no aid.

Mr. Stevens, who was about 55 years of age, was a prominent barrister and Liberal. It was his first year as mayor and he was very popular and highly respected. Some time ago he had a slight attack of apoplexy while at a meeting of Oddfellows, to which order he belonged. He leaves a widow, two step-sons and a daughter.

New Manitoba Judges.

Winnipeg, Feb. 16.—A delegation from the benchers of the Law Society met the Attorney-General and other members of the Government yesterday to request that two new judgeships of the King's Bench Court be created, also that the Appeal Court judges be not empowered to act as trial judges with a jury.

The Government decided that only one new judgeship would be created, and that no change would be made in the jurisdiction of the Court of Appeal at present.

Ice Jam Affects Power.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Feb. 16.—In an effort to break the ice round their intakes the power companies were yesterday blasting the ice with dynamite, and maintained their services with some difficulty.

It is estimated that there is little more than one-third the normal flow in the Canadian channel, and the water in the forebays is very low. The American fall is still nearly dry.

Newspaper Prices Go Up.

Trenton, N.J., Feb. 16.—Beginning yesterday the price of the Trenton daily newspapers increased from one to two cents a copy, the publishers having found that it was impracticable to continue one cent papers in face of the great increase in the cost of production, particularly the increased price of white paper.

How Brakeman Was Killed.

North Bay, Feb. 16.—An unfortunate mistake in the C.P.R. yards at Missiable on Sunday caused an incoming freight train to pitch into another freight train standing in the yard and Brakeman H. B. Wilson, an unmarried man of Chapleau, was killed. A van and one car were burned.

Thirty Lives Lost.

Algiers, Feb. 16.—Thirty lives were lost when an unknown sailing vessel rammed the Belgian steamer Australia during a storm on Feb. 12, near Alboran Island, in the Mediterranean, 100 miles from Gibraltar, and both vessels foundered.

Hundreds of Poles Down.

Cleveland, Ohio, Feb. 16.—The damage wrought to telegraph and telephone lines in Northern Ohio by heavy sleet storm, which began on Sunday and continued during the most of Sunday night, is proving to be by far the most disastrous suffered in many years. Hundreds of poles are down.

Used Poison In Baking.

Newark, N.J., Feb. 16.—Stanislaus Sarnowski is dead and his wife critically ill because rat poison was used in mistake for baking powder. They had not been long married.

MAY FORCE DEADLOCK.

Trinity Will Support Thornloe of Algoma For Bishopric.

Toronto, Feb. 16.—The episcopal election which will commence tomorrow for a successor to the late Archbishop Sweatman as bishop of Toronto, may be a prolonged contest, as the Trinity men are now making an open campaign for the appointment of Bishop Thornloe, and it is said are prepared to force a deadlock rather than permit a Wycliffe man to receive the position.

Should the wave which appears to be rapidly rising to a commanding height threaten to swallow up the Thornloe boom, the Trinity men may attempt to avert annihilation by utilizing the well-earned popularity of Rev. Canon Welch. But the rector of St. James' Cathedral is noted for the firm adherence which he maintains to carefully consider decisions. Had he been available, he would have undoubtedly been Trinity's first choice.

Provost Macklem's circular to the Trinity graduates says:

"Among the qualifications which make Bishop Thornloe so well fitted for the important work to which he may shortly be called by the Holy Spirit, are his Canadian education and varied Canadian experiences, his fair mindedness and sense of justice, which accords sympathetic and kindly treatment to high, low and broad alike, his personal characteristics of devotion and self-sacrifice, coupled with the vision of a prophet and the strength of a disciplined worker. To this may be added his long experience in country work; he knows country conditions through and through, and his sympathies are with the church in the country parts.

The Waterways Treaty.

Washington, Feb. 16.—Senator Smith of Michigan was given a hearing yesterday by the Senate committee on foreign relations in opposition to the Canadian boundary waterways treaty. He spoke in favor of more adequate protection of territorial rights in the waters of the St. Mary's river, but did not conclude.

Another meeting of the committee will be held Wednesday, when it is expected that Senator Nelson will suggest some amendments.

Held Up Story a Fake.

Hamilton, Feb. 16.—J. B. Sponenberg, the barber who said he was held up and robbed, Saturday night made the following signed statement to the police yesterday: "I, J. B. Sponenberg, do solemnly declare that I was not robbed on Saturday night and that the whole story was a fake concocted by me. I spent $25, the property of the barbers' union, the full amount of which I owe the union."

"Don't Neglect a Cough or Cold."

It can have but one result. It leaves the throat or lungs, or both, affected.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is the medicine you need. It is without an equal as a remedy for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Sore Throat, Pain in the Chest, Asthma, Whooping Cough, Quinsy and all affections of the Throat and Lungs.

A single dose of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup will stop a cough, soothe the throat, and if the cough or cold has become settled on the lungs, the healing properties of the Norway Pine Tree will proclaim its great virtue by promptly eradicating the bad effects, and a persistent use of the remedy cannot fail to bring about a complete cure.

Do not be humbugged into buying so-called Norway Pine Syrups, but be sure and insist on having Dr. Wood's. It is put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, and price 25 cents.

Mrs. A. Ellee, Innisfail, Alta., writes: "Last spring I had Typhoid fever and Bronchitis, which left me with a terrible cough. I tried doctor's medicine but got no relief until my husband got me a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and before I had finished it my cough was cured. My husband also uses it whenever he has a cough. I would not be without it."

115 NEW SUBSCRIBERS

First Week of The Examiner's EXCITING Newsboy's Competition

A Big Success

The score in the Examiner's live Newsboys' Competition for the first week of the contest showed an addition of 115 new subscribers to the Examiner's Daily Circulation.

The Boys gave a splendid account of themselves, and our circulation manager believes he has as bright an array of hustling newsboys as ever stepped in shoe leather.

Johnny Bennett

Was the first boy to win the Examiner's Weekly Prize of $2.00. He secured 23 new subscribers during the week. This amount, added to his profits on his total sales, (46), gave him a clear profit of $3.84. Pretty good "rake off" for a few hours work after school, with a good chance to be in the winning for one of the Big Cash Prizes at the close of the contest, April 31st.

Cash Prizes

FIRST PRIZE	$25.00	FIFTH PRIZE	$5.00
SECOND PRIZE	20.00	SIXTH PRIZE	4.00
THIRD PRIZE	15.00	SEVENTH PRIZE	3.00
FOURTH PRIZE	10.00	EIGHTH PRIZE	2.00
TWELVE PRIZES OF		$1.00

Don't hang back because you didn't score the first week. If you become one of our Newsboys and start out now and secure two or more new customers a week, you are sure to get one of the cash prizes offered below. Parents who would like their boys to earn sufficient to almost keep them, should encourage them to handle the Daily Examiner after school. There are many young men now holding good positions who made thier first money by selling and delivering The Daily Examiner.

Boys, Get Into the Race!

Get in line; Make up your minds right away. Start in and canvass those who are not taking the Examiner — they will always read it if you once get them started.

This week's prize of $2.00 is going to be paid to some boy who hustles the most. The boy who gets the largest number of New Customers by Saturday will win it. Now get busy.

An Important Condition

In order that protection may be given to each boy who is entered in this competition it is a condition that no one will secure a prize who does not legitimately earn it. If a boy applies for a weekly prize and has not bought the papers for his own use and sale it will be turned over to the boy who has actually won it.

SIMPSON MAY RACE DORANDO IN NEAR FUTURE, SAYS TOM ECK

The Toronto News says: Tom Eck, the veteran trainer, called at The News sporting department while on his way through Toronto to pay a visit to his old home near Newmarket. At present he is preparing Fred Simpson, the Hiawatha Indian, way down in Georgia, for a series of races, and expects great things of him.

Eck says he has a number of engagements booked for Simpson, among them being one in Pittsburg with Dorando, which will be run off in a couple of weeks. Tom comments upon Simpson's obedience. He never becomes unruly, and does not touch liquor. The Indian has a great little wife, who writes to him quite often. Fred is the leader in a church choir at his home, and his wife says they miss him greatly, but for him to go ahead and show the world what he can do.

KNOX CHURCH TEAM BEAT GAY CATS

Manager Miller's Festive Felines Give Presbyterians Pretty Close Call.

A very interesting game of hockey was played on the Knox rink Saturday night between the "Gay Cat" seven and the coming champions of Church League. It was a game from the ding of the referee's bell, the score being in favour of Knox 3-2.

The Gay Cats challenge all comers, big bets on the side calamity. Pete Pilling made a good referee; Murphy Sullivan is trainer and Happy O'Toole manager of the Gay Cats.

The teams lined up as follows—

Gay Cats		Knox
	Goal
Longboat Paterson		Thompson
	Point
Ground Hog Conroy		Reid
	C Point
Big Noise Simons		Henderson
	Rover
Black Cloud Ryan		Bartley

Fuzzy Hillier		Galley

NORTH ENDS BEAT WEST END TEAM

Interesting Game Was Played on the River—Score 7-0.

The North End Ringers defeated the West End Midgets on Saturday by the score of 7-0 on the Otonabee River.

The puck was thrown in for the game to start, Davidson shot it back to Dineen, who shot it to Bane, who made a quick rush and scored the first goal in two minutes. Davidson passed it to Dineen, who passed it to Grady, shot it to Bane, passed it back to Dineen, who scored the second goal in three minutes. Davidson scored the third goal in three minutes. Bane another in five minutes. Davidson scored the next in seven minutes. Dineen scored the last goal, making the score 7-0 in favour of the North End Ringers.

The line-up was as follows:—

NORTH END		WEST END
V. Heanan	Goal	Donoghue
P. Young	Point	J. Carew
A. Breaux	Cover Point	P. Walker
J. Dineen	Rover	G. Halpin
V. Davidson	Centre	D. O'Hearn
G. Bane	Left	H. Long
V. Grady	Right	E. Johnston

Referee: Max Bradburn.

ALL SAINTS WON IN KEENE 6-3

Local Church League Team Won From the Junior Villagers.

The All Saints' Hockey team journeyed to Keene on Saturday and succeeded in defeating the juniors of that town. At half time the score was 5—1 in favour of All Saints', and 6—3 at full time. The Keene team were weak in the defence with the exception of Campbell in goal, who play'd a star game. Their forwards were fast, but the All Saints' men outplayed them in every respect — all playing good hockey. The visitors' defence was a stone wall and A Gilbert in goal stopped some hard ones.

The teams lined up as follows:

KEENE—
Goal—Campbell.
Point—McIntyre.
Cover—Roach.
Rover—Jillott.
Centre—Taylor.
R. Wing—Boore.
L. Wing—Edwards.

ALL SAINTS'—
Goal—A Gilbert.
Point—J Price.
Cover—F Allen.
Rover—D Layfield.
Centre—W Flower.
R. Wing—L L Dor.
L. Wing—L Smeaton.

Mr McIntyre refereed the game to the satisfaction of both teams.

FRED. DOHERTY IS MAKING GOOD ON TEAM

The Galt Reformer makes a very complimentary reference to Fred. Doherty, one of the city leaguers in last year's Peterborough race. In the last game played with the Toronto "pros," Galt won out by 7-4. The paper says:

"Doherty and Serviss were the stars on the ice and no one could catch Doherty, who is now getting into first class condition. It was in the second half that Doherty and Serviss did their grand work. The two Galt forwards would rush when they pleased and score."

THE GROVE SCHOOL TEAM WON OUT

Young's Point Juniors Defeated by 3-2 in a Close Game.

Young's Point, Feb 16—An exciting hockey match between a junior team from the Grove school, Lakefield, and the juniors here, was played on the open rink on Saturday the 13th inst. resulting in a victory for the Lakefield boys, the score being 3 2.

Lakefield		Young's Pt.
	Goal
Edwards		H Stewart
	Point
Mewburn		H Ayotte
	C Point
Cockshutt		E Kidd
	Rover
Gordon		A Brooks
	Centre

	R Wing
Perram		Wilson, H Young
	L Wing
Pearce		Victor Young

Mr. Glass from the Grove, Lakefield, refereed the game to the satisfaction of all.

The boys of the Point deserve credit for brilliant plays they made, and considering this was their first match this winter and without any combination practice did remarkably well. Mr. Harold Young played in the second half of the game as Roy Wilson was slightly injured.

THE LINDSAY TEAM TRIM THE COLLEGIATE

Locals Were Beaten in Scugogville on Saturday Night by 4 Goals to 2.

In a lightning fast game of hockey a Lindsay aggregation defeated the P.C.I. team in Lindsay on Saturday, 4-2. For Lindsay the Spratt brothers and Yarnold were always conspicuous. Of the Collegiate septette every one played a strong, consistent game, checking back faultlessly, but they were very deficient in shooting and combination. Referee Randall missed many offsides. A return game will be played in the near future.

The teams:—

LINDSAY		P.C.I.
Parkin	Goal	Anderson
Stewart	Point	Meldrum
Douggan	Cover Point	Denison
P. Spratt	Rover	Conroy
F. Denison	Centre	Geale

KEENE TEAM BEAT HASTINGS AT HOME

Hastings, Feb. 13.—Keene defeated Hastings by a score of 5 to 2 in a Trent Valley League hockey match, played here to-night. The game was inclined to be rough, and several penalties were handed out. Only six men were played on a side.

BETS MADE BY LINDSAY FANS

Someone Says They Were "Weally" Betting on Six Goals, Don't You Know!

"Lindsay sports are wagering on a win for the Midgets by a margin of six goals," said a Peterborough man who came down from Scugogville at noon. "At least that was the condition this morning." Judging from past experiences that margin was down to three goals at four o'clock, and even betting ruled at 4.30. At seven, well, there would likely be money up, but it was not Kent street cash, it was probably Rowing Club backers from Toronto. When there would be some one to accept the offers the Lindsay fans would have made a noise like Hamlet and spirited away. Oh, those million dollar bids on Kent street.

HOCKEY

Moore went back to cover for Peterborough and Quinn played on the defence. The Lakefield kid was the star of the second half and his rushes were always labelled "dangerous." This half was better contested.—Lindsay Warder.

A double header will be played to-night in the Senior Church League. George street will make a strenuous effort to beat Knox on Park street rink, and Park street will be out to win from the fast St. Andrew's team on Knox rink. Both games start at 7 o'clock and good hockey is assured.

• • • •

The following Park street players are requested to be at Knox rink at 6.45 to-night for their game with St. Andrew's, in the Senior Church League:

Goal—W Killingbeck.
Point—N Barrie.
Cover—S Gilleapie.
Rover—D Loomis.
Centre—H Reed.

The Lindsay Post has the following "hop" story. That there is nothing in it, goes without saying:

"According to a story which went the rounds on Saturday, it appears that Peterborough intended during the past week to give Lindsay Friday's game by default, and also to forward a substantial cheque to the locals. Harry Morgan, who had just arrived in the city from attending a convention, rallied the boys together and the result was the game on Friday evening.

• • •

The L.T.B. Hockey Team will play on Thursday evening, Feb. 18, from 9 to 10 in the Brock street Rink.

• • • •

The Toronto Rowing Club team is playing a second round game with the Lindsay Midgets in Lindsay to-night, and according to the Lindsay press the home team with its customary modesty is expecting an easy victory. There may be a slight mistake in their calculations as on paper the Oarsmen look like some team. They are big and fast and dish out a combination that works in the whole four forwards. Pacer McDougall the former star of the Lindsay team, is playing centre for the visitors, who also have such well known players as Kent, Bill Whale and Brown. It is likely that Roy Thomas, the Varsity man, who officiated in the last Lindsay game, here, will look after to-night's game.

• • • •

An interesting and hard fought game was played in the Mercantile League series at the Brock street rink last night, when the uQakers took the G. T. R. team into camp by a score of 4—2, the Porridge men being in front at the half by 2 goals to 1. The winners always had a little on the railway men, although the game never lagged and the interest was sustained until the last. Leo Dorocher made a very satisfactory referee and the teams were as follows:

Quakers		G. T. R.
	Goal
Callaghan		Morphet
	Point
Heaslip		Laing
	Cover Point
Moore		Currie

The Strathconas will not journey to Lakefield to-night as announced last night, as the arrangements between the two for the series of games have not yet been completed. Leo Quinn, captain of the Lakefield team, remained in Lindsay until yesterday, and therefore had not time to arrange the game in the Cement town to-night, although it is possible that Lakefield will play here on Thursday night. The Strathconas will therefore practise as usual to-night between 7 and 8 o'clock, and a full turnout of the players is expected.

The Lindsay Watchman-Warder takes the Examiner to task for mentioning the fact that the Lindsay crowd all knew Referee Hancock by his first name. It may be all right, but when an official is styled by one of the papers as Lindsay's favourite referee, and when he is greeted with the salutation "Bill" by everyone in sight it is time the O. H. A. moved him along to some other town where he is not so well known. By the way, "Lindsay's favourite referee" had a slight slump of popularity in Scugogville last year, when Eddie Gould's Terrors of the North got a prime in the Midgets' championship aspirations. Hancock was greeted with cries of dear old Bill when he came out on the ice before the game, but before half time they were calling him other things that sounded like "robber," "rotten" etc.

CURLING.

The second half of the competition for the Fitzgerald-Bottum trophy, which was presented to the Peterborough and Bobcaygeon curlers at the time of the bonspeil here, will be played off to-day in Bobcaygeon. Four rinks, skipped by Messrs. C Brown, R Neill, J. E. A. Fitzgerald and W G Morrow leave this morning for Bobcaygeon, and they hope to bring back a victory. Peterborough won the first half which was played here at the close of the bonspeil and there is no reason why the trophy should not decorate the walls of the local club house for a year. It is a very handsome shield and will be an ornament to the rooms and will be prized by the members.

• • • •

There were doings at the curling rink last night, when every ice was in use. Had there been room at least three more ices could have been put into commission. As it was fourteen rinks were playing and every end was greatly enjoyed. The skips and scores were as follows:

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL

Health Saving Explained by a Peterboro Citizen Who Knows From Experience

Many Peterborough people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help.

The reason so many use Booth's Kidney Pills is their quick relief for all Kidney weakness. Here is what a Peterborough citizen says:—

Mrs. Geo. Hawes of 857 Water street, Peterborough, Ontario, says: "I had suffered for some time with many painful and annoying symptoms of kidney trouble and although I had tried many remedies and doctors I found little or no relief. My back was weak and a dull, bearing-down pain settled across the small of it and extended into my shoulders and around my sides. I was weak and languid and the least exertion would tire me out. Dizzy spells were frequent and often I would awake with a severe headache. I tried Booth's Kidney Pills through an advertisement at McDermid & Jury's Pharmacy. I soon found them to benefit me and continued their use. In a comparatively short time I was as well and strong as ever and without a symptom of the painful and long standing disease."

Sold by dealers. Price 50 cents. The R T Booth Company, Limited, Fort Erie, Ont., Sole Canadian Agents.

POST CARD COLUMN.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Noting that Salome seems to be the subject of objection from some sources, I write to state that I have never presented to the public anything of an objectionable moral nature and shall not do so here.

The Dance of the Seven Veils in Salome, while of necessity not an evening dress affair, will not shock anyone.

Ladies will find Salome especially interesting and no one should think it an improper play to attend.

Very truly,
DANIEL B'EAN.

THE BEAVERS WERE DEFEATED IN FAST GAME

Juvenile Teams Play at the Driving Park on Natural Rink.

The following account of a game that has stirred the hockey world has been handed in for publication. It was played on a piece of ice at Driving Park by youngsters probably, in the the first or second book, but, it was a "great game."

An exciting game of hockey was played when the Shamrocks beat the Beavers by a score of 5 to 3. Kennedy, O'Brien, Donovan, O'Connell and Murray were the stars for the winners, while I. Gordon, H. Gordon and McArney were the pick of the losers. The line-ups were as follows:

Shamrocks		Beavers
	Goal
J. Donovan		H. Gordon
	Point
J. Murray		E. Ward
	Cover Point
K. Murray		C. Manly
	Rover
T. King		Lavasseur
	Centre
S. O'Brien		T. Gorfon
	Left Wing
V. O'Connell		McArney
	Right Wing
L. Kennedy		Berrett

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. John Hardill will be pleased to learn that Mrs. Hardill and her three children are rapidly recovering from their attack of scarlet fever.

Lakefield citizens have announced an "at Home" to be held on Monday evening next. Mr. A. Moore will be in charge of the floor and will bring an orchestra from Peterborough.

OBITUARY.

ALEXANDER McNAUGHTON

Young's Point, Special.—It is with deep regret we have to chronicle the death of another of our old and respected neighbours in the person of Alexander McNaughton, who passed away here on Saturday, the 13th. inst. The late Mr. McNaughton was in his seventy-sixth year. He came to this country from Argyleshire, Scotland with his parents in the year 1842. In 1855 he was married to Miss Rhoda A. Robertson. He leaves a widow and nine children; five sons and four daughters.

SPLENDID FOR THE OLD FOLKS

Prescription To Relieve Bladder Trouble Which Anyone Can Mix.

IT ACTS ON THE KIDNEYS

Cut this out and put in some safe place for it is valuable and worth more than anything else in the world if you should have an attack of rheumatism or bladder trouble or any derangement of the kidneys whatever.

The prescription is simple and can be made up by anyone at home. The ingredients can be had at any good prescription pharmacy and all that is necessary is to shake them well in a bottle.

Here it is: Fluid extract dandelion, one-half ounce; compound Kargon, one ounce; compound syrup of sarsaparilla, three ounces.

Take a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime. A few doses is said to relieve almost any case of bladder trouble, frequent urination, pain and scalding, weakness and backache, pain above the kidneys, etc. It is now claimed to be the method of curing chronic rheumatism, because of its direct and positive action upon the eliminative tissues of the kidneys. It gives them life and power to sift and strain the poisonous waste matter and uric acid from the blood, relieving the worst forms of rheumatism and kidney and bladder troubles. The extract dandelion acts upon the stomach and liver and is used also extensively for relieving constipation and indigestion. Compound sarsaparilla cleans and enriches the blood. There is nothing better than Kargon Compound for the kidneys.

This prescription is safe to use at any time.

BISHOP REEVE WILL BE AT ALL SAINTS'

Bishop Reeve, of Toronto, the assistant Bishop of the Toronto Diocese, will be the speaker at the postponed anniversary services of All Saints' church, to be held on Sunday next, Feb. 20. Bishop Reeve will remain over until Monday night, and will be one of the principal speakers at the Men's Banquet to be held on that evening. Bishop Reeve is one of the best known members of the Anglican clergy, and as a fluent and forcible speaker, whose remarks will no doubt be followed with interest and profit.

THE SPRINGVILLE YOUNG PEOPLE

Gave an Interesting Programme at Knox Church Last Evening.

MANY WERE PRESENT.

A most enjoyable evening was spent at Knox Church last evening, when the Young People's Society of the Church entertained the members of the Springville Young people's Society, a large number driving in from Springville for the occasion. A short time ago the Knox Young People were the guests of the Springville Society, and the return visit was paid last evening.

Rev. H. J. Keith occupied the chair and the following programme was given by the Springville Young People:

Instrumental duet—Miss Olive and Master Kelly.
Recitation—Marion Colen.
Duet—Misses Whitfield.
Selection—Miss Kidd and Master Tinney.
Recitation—Miss Berry.
Solo—Mr. Cartwright.

Essay—"Ideals," Miss Marsh.
Instrumental solo—J. Marsh.
Instrumental solo—Miss Morrow.
Solo—Miss Kidd.
Recitation—Miss Berry.
Duet—Misses Whitfields.
Essay—Miss Laing.

At the conclusion of the programme refreshments were served by the younggi adies of Knox Church.

A hearty vote of thanks was passed to the Springville Young People for their kindnesss in providing such an excellent proramme.

THIS WELL KNOWN ADVOCATE STATES

And He Found Them to be all They Were Advertised—How and Why Dodd's Kidney Pills Cure.

Montreal, Que., Feb 15th—Special—"Dodd's Kidney Pills were recommended to me by our family physician, and I must say they have proved to be what they were advertised."

This statement made by L. J. R. Hubert, the well known advocate, of 214 James Street, is a double tribute to Dodd's Kidney Pills. It shows that they are recognized by reputable medical men as a peerless remedy for diseases of the kidneys and also that they are now looked upon as a standard medicine by the best people in Canada.

And the reason of this is that they do just what they are advertised to do.

They cure diseased kidneys and put them in condition to clear all impurities out of the blood. They cure Bright's Disease, Diabetes and backache, because these are Kidney diseases. They cure Rheumatism, Lumbago and Heart Disease, because these are caused by impurities in the blood that the Kidneys would strain out of the blood if they were in good working order. If you have not used them yourself, ask your neighbours about Dodd's Kidney Pills.

OLD COPY OF THE EXAMINER FOUND

An old copy of the Examiner was found at the Public Library yesterday by Miss Charlotte English, the assistant librarian, while moving some old books. The date of the paper is 1882, just 27 years ago and is in a good state of preservation, not having lost its colour for a dingy brown which is generally the case with old papers. The news it contains of that time is very interesting to readers of to-day.

Mr. Peters who has been in charge of the library for 24 years, stated that it was before his time and the events mentioned in it date back to the time when our fathers were young men and the city was not as progressive as it is at present.

THE JUDGMENT IN APPEAL RESERVED

Supreme Court Heard the Argument in the West Peterborough Case.

Ottawa, Feb. 16.—The Supreme Court to-day heard argument and reserved judgment on the appeal in connection with the West Peterborough election protest, entered against Hon. J. R. Stratton, M.P. The appeal is from an order disallowing preliminary objections, on the ground that no personal service of the election petition was made; that order made after the expiration of ten days was irregular, and could not have the effect of enlarging the time for service, and that the substitutional service was irregular and not authorized by the statute. Mr. Geo. Watson, K.C., appeared for the appellant, Hon. J.R. Stratton. Mr. J E Jones appeared for the respondent, Mr. J H Burnham.

PETERBOROUGH MAN DIES IN AUSTRALIA

Mr. Chas. Hood Left at Time of Gold Craze 56 Years Ago.

Mr. Charles Hood, who left here fifty-six years ago for Australia, during the gold excitement in that far off country, died on the 7th ulto. He was a half brother of the late R. H. Green, late of this city, whom he pre-deceased by nine or ten days. He was in his eighty-third year and always enjoyed good health until within a week of his demise, when he gradually and peacefully slept his life away. He left surviving one son and two daughters, who were with him when he died. Up to the time of his leaving here Mr. Hood was well and favourably known to a large circle of friends and acquaintances, but the great majority of them, like himself, have crossed the bar.

RAILWAY COMMISSION TO CONTROL RATES CHARGED FOR POWERS THAT ARE DEVELOPED BY TRENT CANAL

Hon. Mr. Graham's Bill Was Passed Through the Committee Stage And Was Read a Third Time.

IMPORTANT PRINCIPLE

Ottawa, Feb. 16.—A quiet day in the House of Commons does not necessarily imply a barren session, a fact of which to-day's proceedings furnished an illustration. Practically without anything in the nature of a discussion two bills embodying important principles were advanced a stage, one of them, in fact, being passed. The civil service salary resolution was carried and steady progress was made with the estimates.

Control of Power Rates

By the measure which Hon. Mr. Graham succeeded in passing through the committee stage and having read a third time, the policy of the Minister of Railways looking to the increased usefulness of the Railway Commission is advanced a step. The bill places under the control of that body the rates to be charged by companies selling power developed from powers created by the construction of the Trent Canal. In all leases granted hereafter by the government to power companies operating along the canal a clause will be inserted requiring approval of rates by the Railway Commission.

Unhappier Side Of City's Life Brought To Light By Several Cases Of Distress

Ordinary Citizen Does Not Realize the Privations, Trials and Heart Throbs of Little Women in the Homes Where the Family is in Need of Money.

HUSBANDS LET THEM BEG

In the ordinary course of everyday affairs the average citizen is worried only by his own troubles, in most cases only immaterial in their nature. But the seamy side of life exists nevertheless and while the majority of people spend their evenings around cheerful fires, afterwards to seek cosy warm beds and their lives generally are of happiness and plenty, they probably do not ponder on the unwelcome fact that there are many in want and in actual privation. Last night a young woman left her home on the outskirts of the East Ward to come over under the cover of dark to seek assistance from Relief Officer Miller. Her attire was of the scantiest for a frail little mother of two children to expose herself to the weather of a Canadian winter night. Her chest was choked from a cold as she said that her husband had gone out and would not look for help, but he would allow her to go. She should have been in bed rather than struggling through the new fallen snow on a mission which her husband should have performed. Apart from the things she asked for, she received warm clothing which she needed as much as food or fuel. A hard cough that almost choked could hardly be expected to be thrown off in a home where the snow had blown through a crevice here and there to form little piles on the bed clothes. Yet this is what this woman stated was her experience and it is learned her husband would not, himself, ask for the help which she was forced to seek.

Another instance of almost the same kind was noted shortly afterwards when another woman in a delicate condition of health had to look for help herself. Her husband had gone out some time before, but would not on request look for aid—he did not mind his wife asking for it. The Relief Officer has a standing rule that the man must come to him for he then knows whom he is dealing with. These are only two examples of distress that is breaking the hearts of some women who married for better, but apparently their destiny was for the other alternative.

The Toronto Globe says:—Chancellor Boyd gave judgment in favour of plaintiffs in the action of the Trusts and Guarantee Company against Mrs. Euphemia Munro, to recover $1,969.81, withdrawn from the Wm. Hamilton Manufacturing Company Limited, of Peterborough, by defendant's brother, Mr. Hamilton.

The case was tried at the non-jury Assizes on Monday. According to the evidence, Mr. Hamilton was appointed trustee by his sister Annie, who died in 1902, leaving an estate of $1,340.57 to her sister Euphemia and her children. The money was put into th father's business, but when the latter was getting into difficulties the money, with interest, was withdrawn and placed in a bank to Mrs. Munro's credit.

"If companies," says the Chancellor," were to be at liberty to borrow trust money, and use it as floating capital of the company, and then when financial trouble thickened, were to be able, under guise of repairing the breach of trust, to take out of current funds the principal and interest to the beneficiaries (even though infants), as perpetual claimants, it would go to imperil financial credit and frustrate, to my mind, the scheme of the Winding-up Act."

Mrs. Munro's redress is against her brother, and he himself will rank as creditor of his father's business for the trust money invested therein.

Has Come To Canada To Learn All The Branches Of Farming

Mr. A. Seward is a young man from Sheffield, England, who arrived here yesterday and will go out on one of the farms near Peterborough to learn Canadian farming. He has been connected with fruit culture more particularly, having had wide experience on his father's fruit farm and having gained a knowledge of the commercial end of the business in Liverpool.

His father purchased four acres of good land near Sheffield and planted trees which built up a large fruit business. Recently it has been discovered that coal beds of great promise exist in that vicinity and rather than live in a place surrounded by collieries, Mr. Seward's father accepted the price offered for the farm.

If the son is pleased with Canada the father will join him in a year or so, when they will purchase a farm of their own. In the meantime Mr. Seward is anxious to learn the art of farming in all its branches.

KNOX CHURCH COMMITTEE TO VISIT OTHER CITIES FOR INFORMATION

A meeting of the officers of Knox church was held last night for the purpose of taking up the question of building a new church. The work was outlined but before anything definite is decided upon a committee will visit several cities and towns to get ideas for the building. The following committee was appointed—Rev. H. J. Keith, Messrs J F. Morrison, A. McKenzie, H. Buchanan, and J. W. Fennett. They will visit Toronto, Hamilton and Port Hope, and probably some other places. If they do not set away sooner, at least part of the committee will go to Toronto on Saturday.

WEDDING BELLS

GRADY—McNICHOL

Norwood, Feb. 17. — Special. — A pretty wedding was celebrated at the Catholic Church here this morning, when Miss Clara McNichol, daughter of Mr. Jas. McNichol was united in marriage to Mr. William J. Grady, son of Mr. Michael Grady, Peterborough. A large number of the bride's friends, together with a number of Peterborough people, witnessed the ceremony. The bride was attended by Miss Kate M McGrath, of Peterborough, and Mr. Godfrey Coughlin was best man. Mrs. Grady was one of the most popular young ladies of the district, and the large number of presents testified to the esteem in which she was held by a host of friends.

SPEECH FROM THE THRONE.

The legislative brief put into the mouth of Lieutenant-Governor Gibson, by the Whitney Government yesterday, foreshadows a short session if it foreshadows the constructive work of the session. It is to be noted that the chief congratulatory paragraphs are founded upon aggressive word done by the preceding government and opposed by the present dominant party when in Opposition—the Soo industries, the Provincial Railway and the mining development of New Ontario arising from it. The reference to the work of the Hydro-Electric Commission is suggestive of the attitude of Sir James Whitney when in Opposition. Speaking at Niagara Falls, on the eve of an election, he declared that power from the Falls should be "free as air," and if he ever had the power he would make it so. The only measure of legislation hinted at is the long delayed law reform bill, and that is not even given the dignity of a paragraph to itself, but is tacked as an unimportant tail upon a paragraph referring to the revision of the statutes and would escape the notice of any but the careful reader. And even this bill, after being delayed four years, is not likely to pass into law this session.

One can't understand why there is no reference in the Speech from the Throne of the Whitney Government, to the important matter of conservation of water supply or the vital question or reforestration, which is engaging the attention of both halves of the continent.

WASTING TIME.

A member of Parliament is no doubt a very important personage and most of them feel it their duty to make themselves heard in Parliament. But they should select some means to this end that is justifiable and does not involve useless waste of time and work. As a sample of how this is done it may be mentioned that Mr. Perley, Conservative member for Argenteuil, put a question on the order paper the other day, asking what buildings in Ottawa are leased by the government. Mr. Perley, no doubt, inspired by his fellow Conservatives, hoped to lay the foundation of a scandal and show that the government was favouring political friends by paying exhorbitant rentals. But, of course, there was nothing to conceal, and Mr. Perley could have got all the information he wanted from public documents. On pages 33 and 34 of the annual report of the Department of Public Works there is presented a list of all the rented buildings in Ottawa, and in another place he would find all the information he pretended to want. But that would not do. That would give no opportunity to suggest a scandal. He must put extra work on the clerks of the department, and must waste the time of Parliament in asking questions and demanding information which by consulting the index he would get in three minutes from a public report, available for any person who might want to use it.

"I remember," said Samuel Johnson, "a passage in Goldsmith's 'Vicar of Wakefield,' which he was afterwards fool enough to expunge. I do not love a man who is zealous for nothing."

RAILWAY AID.

The Weekly Sun sometimes strains a point to make a point. It is opposed to railway subsidies and it declares that every railway subsidy carries a contribution to campaign funds—that the government gets its share for giving the subsidy and the Opposition its share for not opposing it. It reasons from this that the subsidies granted last session — just before the election — were to the extent of $15,000,000 and that this session there are no subsidies, because there is no election. The Sun should shine fairly. It knows, as everybody else knows that the reason that no subsidies are to be voted this season, is that the falling off in revenue accounts from retrenchment in this as in other departments of public expenditure. We have made large expenditures for railways out of the people's money, and the people have had the benefit from most of these expenditures. Had it not been for Governments coming to the help of railway promoters, we should have been largely deprived of many of the railways that have contributed and are contributing to the development of the country, and to which we owe a very large share of our progress and prosperity. While now, with the increase of wealth and growth of capital, public assistance is not so greatly indicated, in earlier years this assistance was necessary for the purpose of providing transportation facilities in the interests of, especially, the farming community. The public in aiding railway construction have not so much been aiding the railways as helping themselves. One has only to picture the condition of the country if the railways, even only those who owe their existence to public aid, should be removed. The farmer, the industrial producer and all national interests would have access to their respective markets cut off, or their profits obliterated by clumsy and costly transportation. We have come to the stage when a cessation of subsidy granting may well be considered; but it does not seem that hard and fast lines can be absolutely drawn. The development of the country must go on and transportation is the key. While subsidies should in the main be discontinued, it would not be wise to draw a hard and fast line of action in this regard. Exceptional circumstances might make it supremely important that railway enterprises should be promoted; and if the public interest is deeply involved, and would benefit out of all proportion to any assistance proposed, would it be wise to have closed the door?

What would be the result — how would national interests, national progress and national prosperity be affected if Canada's 23,000 miles of railway should be put out of commission?

A TARIFF WALL.

The following report of the remarks of Mr. Richard Stull at the Grange meeting of Forest, shows how the farmers regard tariff walls—

"If some natural obstacle, such as a mountain, divided Canada from the United States, and it cost $35 to carry each hundred dollars worth of Canadian goods sent to the United States over that mountain, and $35 to carry each hundred dollars worth of American goods sent this way, what would happen? The Governments of the two countries would at once devote their energies, by blasting and tunneling, to the removal of the mountains. By some means no matter what the cost, the obstacle to free intercourse would be removed.'

"But what do we find? We find that millions have been spent in bridging the St. Lawrence and Niagara, and in tunnelling beneath the St. Clair, to the end that the flow of traffic backward and forward may be facilitated. Then, after having done this, a paper wall, a tariff wall, has been erected on both sides and officers have been stationed on the Canadian side to see that no American goods pass this way without first paying toll to the extent of $35 on each hundred, and other officers on the American side to see that no Canadian goods pass that way without being similarly tolled.'

"Of all the legislative follies the world has witnessed there are few which can surpass those of which the Canadian and United States Governments have been guilty in regard to trade relations between the two countries.'

TO PUT DOWN PRIVATE GRAFT.

(Mail and Empire.)

Mr. Aylesworth's bill to put an end to private graft seems to be a very good measure. It provides, first, that the agent of any firm or individual who accepts a commission or who attempts to obtain a commission from any person for doing or forbearing to do any act relating to the affairs or business of his principal, or for showing, or forbearing to show, favour or disfavour to any person, with relation to the affairs of his principal, is guilty of an indictable offence and may be punished with two years' imprisonment or with a fine not exceeding $2,500, and, upon summary conviction, to six months' imprisonment or to a fine of $100, or to both.

Suppose an agent is entrusted with the management of property, and he receives, or even seeks, commissions upon the work done upon that property, he is liable to be punished for so doing under the law as proposed by Mr. Aylesworth. Suppose, again, a person is employed as an agent to make purchases for a firm. If that person receives or seeks from the party from whom he buys a financial consideration for bringing the order to him, he is liable under the law. While the agent is punishable, the other party is also guilty and may be proceeded against. Thus the one who gives, or who offers to give, any consideration to an agent as an inducement to him to show favour in respect of the business of his principal is liable to suffer the prescribed penalties. It in order to cover up a commission or a "rake-off" doctored receipts are passed to the principal by the agent, the agent may be proceeded against, and punishment such as that ordered for the other offences may be laid on. This bill, when it becomes law, will render it impossible for an agent to accept commissions under any circumstances. A similar law in England —where it was very much needed, owing to the spread of the tipping system—has brought aout a revolution. The London Times recently gave some brilliant illustrations of the manner in which it works. Here are a few. A clerk received a bribe from a person doing business with the firm. He was fined $250. A grocer sent a present to a mess sergeant as a bribe. He was fined $50. A butcher sent meat as a gift to a cook. His fine was $10. An immigration officer offered a ship's doctor a bribe to pass unhealthy emigrants. He had to pay a fine of $250, to serve a month in jail, and to leave the country when he had completed his sentence. A sporting man offered to pay football players a certain sum if they would play badly and lose the game. He was committed to two months in jail with hard labour, without the option of a fine. The managing director of a printing company gave a bribe with a view to obtaining orders. He was fined $250.

These cases show not only that the giving of commissions is practised, but that the practice is carried on for dishonest purposes. They also prove that the law can operate as a deterrent, and thus put the unjust stewards out of business. The Aylesworth bill, if the "rake-off" system flourishes here, will do a great deal of good. If on the other hand, we are not much troubled with this kind of crookedness, the bill will not do any harm. It is gratifying to find that Mr. Aylesworth is opposed to the "rake-off." Some day, perhaps, he will try to stop it at Ottawa.

Band To-night at Jackson Park.

UPLIFTING THE STAGE.

To the Editor of the Examiner,

Sir,—The question of better plays in theatres is in the hands of the people. No one is obliged to go to the performance of a play that is below the standard of decency. It is a matter, of course, that no theatre catering to bad taste can live unless it is patronized. If a theatre lacks public support it must languish or else elevate its tone if it is to succeed as a business proposition.

It seems as if nothing could be simpler. Though the question is not of pressing interest in this city because of the general average of quality in the theatrical performances here, yet it is well to see that nothing should escape the censor of public morals.

Yours truly,
DECENCY.

THE PLAY "SALOME" IS UNOBJECTIONABLE

A deputation of ministers waited upon the Mayor this morning to try and prevent the presentation of "Salome" at the opera house to-night on the grounds of its objectionable morals. The mayor spoke to Mr. J. J. Turner proprietor of the opera house Mr. Turner to make sure of the play being unobjectionable, wired to the manager of St. Thomas' opera house where Salome was played and received the following reply.—

J. J. Turner and Sons

Salome pleased my patrons so well I played it twice. Can assure you there is nothing to offend the most fastidious.

WM. DEVINS,
Manager Grand Opera House
St. Thomas, Feb. 17th.

Mr. Turner says it would be neither his inclination or interest to put on a play that would be offensive to the patrons of his opera house.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

Mme. Emma Chatel, Valleyfield, Belleriver, Quebec, writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I want to tell you that without Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I would not be alive. For months I suffered with painful and irregular periods and inflammation of the feminine organs. Doctors could do nothing for me, and said I must submit to an operation because I had a tumor.

"One of my cousins advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as it had cured her.

"I did so and now I have no pain and am entirely cured. Your remedy is deserving of great praise."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, periodic pains, backache. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

CHARRED BODIES UNRECOGNIZABLE

Mexico City, Feb. 17.—Late despatches from Acapulco, where the Flores Theatre was burned Sunday night when the structure was crowded at a gala performance given in honor of Governor Lamian Flores, of the State of Guerrero, bring varying estimates of the loss of life from the holocaust. They agree in declaring, however, that the dead will exceed 200, mostly women and children, while some place the figures as high as 350. Most of the dead were charred and burned beyond recognition. No Americans were among them.

All business at the port has ceased, the shops having closed and the people are crowding the churches, where masses are being celebrated throughout the state of Guerrero and in Mexico City for sufferers.

The fire, which spread with incredible rapidity through the immense wooden and adobe structure, was due to the carelessness and inexperience of the operator of the moving picture machine. There was an explosion and a burst of flame communicated to the bunting. The flames started practically over the main entrance and the exits were all in the front part of the building, which was almost immediately turned into a wall of fire.

The greatest loss of life was occasioned, according to survivors, by the fall of the roof, which crashed down a short time after the blaze was discovered, striking down women and children in their efforts to escape.

The firemen and the crowds on the outside could do nothing to help. After five or ten minutes there was no noise, save that made by the spurting and crackling flames.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

The Railway Commission has issued an order forbidding railway companies to remove planking from highway crossings in winter.

Daniel Hunter, 224 West Richmond street, Toronto, slept with a broken arm all Monday night. He fell while returning home. He was attended to at St. Michael's Hospital.

William Pembroke, whose place in Cheektowaga was raided recently on the occasion of a big cock fight, pleaded guilty to witnessing a cock fight and was fined $500, which he paid.

A wireless message stating that the big turbiner Mauretania in the day's run ending at noon Monday, on her voyage from Liverpool and Queenstown to New York had made 671 knots.

Prof. Hiram Bingham of Yale University, who is in Southern Peru on a trip of historical research, writes that he has made discoveries of Inca remains near Abansay of the greatest importance.

The committee of arrangements for the National Missionary Congress of the Laymen's Movement has received the names of 463 commissioners from all parts of the Dominion. Eighty will come from Hamilton.

A bomb was dropped to the street from a passing Second avenue elevated train in New York. The explosion wrecked the windows of a number of small stores. The bomb is believed to have been intended for Joseph Arana, an enemy of the Mafia.

Chinaman Posed as Frenchman.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Feb. 17.—A unique method of evading United States customs was adopted by a Chinaman at 4 o'clock yesterday morning, when, disguised as a Frenchman, he attempted to obtain entry into the United States. He was accompanied by a white woman, who claimed to be his wife, and Toronto as his home. The man wore a silk hat, under which his pig-tail was concealed, and he was richly apparelled in furs. The pair arrived here on a Grand Trunk train and immediately secured a sleigh to convey them across the river. They were refused admission at both bridges.

Buried Stott.

Radisson, Sask., Feb. 17.—Rev. Thomas Lawson has a statement from a resident of Poplar Point, Man., which states that in the spring after the execution of Thomas Scott at Winnipeg by the rebels, he found Scott's body on the bank's of the Red River, near St. Peter's, where it was interred by the late Archdeacon Henry Cochrane. Others also identified the body, but on advice of Hudson Bay Co. officials, nothing was said.

WHY AM I ILL?

HOW TO TELL.

Does every cold affect your back, and cause a feeling of chilliness, followed by disturbance of the kidney action.

Does the use of spirits, tea or beer excite the kidneys? Are you easily worried and annoyed over trifles? Are the feet and hands cold? Circulation bad? Do the feet and legs swell? Is there puffiness under the eyes? Do you have rheumatism, poor eyesight, headaches and backaches? Is there gravel or any unnatural action of the kidneys?

If you have any of the above symptoms your kidneys are either weak or diseased, and these symptoms are warnings of more serious troubles to follow; Bright's Disease, Diabetes or Dropsy.

Whatever you do, whatever you think your disease is, look well to your kidneys at the first sign of anything wrong. Give them just the aid they require in Doan's Kidney Pills, the Great Quaker Kidney Medicine, and see how well and fit you feel after even a few doses.

Mrs. O. Warren, Radisson, Sask., writes: "I was troubled with very severe pains in my back for years. I tried everything I could think of but they did me no good. A friend told me about Doan's Kidney Pills and after taking two boxes, I have not been troubled since."

Price 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or The T. Milburn Co. Limited, Toronto.

In ordering specify "Doan's."

MINERS IMPRISONED IN PIT.

Two Hundred English Colliers Entombed by Explosion.

Newcastle, England, Feb. 17.—There were two explosions at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the West Stanley colliery, 12 miles from here, which employs 400 men. Nearly 200 of the men were in the pit at the time, and up to a late hour last night none of them have come to the surface, although rappings have been heard, and it is supposed these are from some of the miners who escaped death.

Almost immediately after the explosion flames burst through the shaft, scorching the workers at the pit head, and blowing out the fencing and apparatus at the entrance to the mine. At midnight it was still impossible to attempt a rescue.

Lad's Tragic Death.

Yorkton, Sask., Feb. 17.—Hilory Andrijavz, aged 15, left his brother's home here last November, and was never seen again until yesterday, when the lad's remains were found by his brother near his home in the bush. The body was doubled up in an agonized posture on hands and knees. The clothes were nearly all burned off and the body charred and frosen, and parts of it eaten by wolves. It is believed the lad accidentally fired his clothes.

Splendid Remedy For Stomach Trouble.

Will Regulate Digestion and Strengthen the Stomach So You Can Eat Any Food.

Miserable is the man or woman who suffers from dread indigestion or dyspepsia. There are few diseases which create such misery, long drawn out suffering, as indigestion. It pursues them before meals, after meals and between meals; they take it to bed with them. It is with them wherever they go, though indigestion is the simplest disease of all to cure.

Tell such afflicted ones, dear reader, of Pape's Diapepsin; urge the sufferer to go to any pharmacy here and give 50 cents for a case. Such a sufferer would ever bless you, because five minutes after taking there would be no more indigestion, no feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach, or heartburn, or fullness and discomfort, no belching of gas or eructations of sour food, debilitating headache, nausea, water brash and other symptoms of a sour, disordered stomach.

Pape's Diapepsin will digest anything you eat without the aid of the stomach.

Diapepsin is a wonderful stomach purifier and splendid to keep the intestines clean and fresh; then your food will not ferment and poison your breath with nauseous odours.

Diapepsin will rest the stomach and increase the gastric juices; this is what is mostly needed—more and better digestive juices—and no gas—then indigestion and all stomach trouble will go.

Arrested at 104.

Hamilton, Feb. 17.—William Atkinson, 104 years of age, was arrested on the complaint of his stepson, George Ayers, 94 Leeming street, on the charge of trespass, last evening. Deakman Hawkins notified Magistrate Jelfe, who expressed indignation at the arrest, and instructed the deakman to release the prisoner and make the best arrangements possible for his care. A couple of constables interviewed the stepson, a daughter and a son, Dougal Atkinson, a street railway conductor, but were unable to make any satisfactory arrangements. The old man was heartbroken over his arrest.

Fowler Syndicate Wins.

St. John, N.B., Feb. 17.—Judge Barker in the Equity Court yesterday gave judgment for the defendants in the case of A. B. Pugsley against George W. Fowler, Rufus H. Pope and others, in which Pugsley claimed one-twentieth share of profits in a western land deal. The contention of the defendants was that the $2,000 which Pugsley paid in was used for location and valuation purposes, and that when he was asked to pay more and become an equal member of the syndicate he withdrew.

Special Car For Lunatics.

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 17.—An especially constructed car will start to-day for New York carrying fourteen insane inmates taken from California insane asylums. On their arrival at New York, the aliens will be sent to their respective countries. The car, which will be attached to a fast overland train, is equipped with padded walls and barred windows.

CARRIED A BOMB.

Kansas City Man Tried to Get Money From Millionaire.

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 17.—Armed with a revolver in one hand and a dynamite bomb in the other, a man, apparently about 40 years of age, yesterday entered the home of Lawrence M. Jones, millionaire, president of the Jones' Brothers' drygoods company of this city, and demanded $7,000.

Mrs. Jones soon entered the library and she in turn was ordered to be seated. Chester I. Jones, secretary of the Jones company, followed his mother, and he, too, was ordered to be seated. Mr. Jones then suggested the man accompany him to the bank. This was agreed to. As the pair was passing through the lower hall Jones placed his foot in front of the visitor, hurled him to the floor and called the police.

At the police station the man said that on account of family and business troubles he had concluded that a desperate effort to get a few thousand dollars might give him still one more chance. He declared he did not intend Jones any real harm.

TANNER IS DEFEATED.

Nova Scotia Conservative Leader Beaten In Bye-Election.

Halifax, N.S., Feb. 17.—The bye-election for the seat in the Local Legislature for Pictou County, made vacant by the resignation of C. E. Tanner, to contest the county at the last Dominion elections, took place yesterday, and resulted in the return of the Liberal candidate, McKay, over Tanner (Conservative) by about 200.

Tanner was the Conservative leader in the Local House, and was elected two years ago by nearly 400. The result yesterday is a great disappointment to Conservatives.

The Liberals made a strong fight against Tanner. E. M. McDonald, M.P., has been in the county for the past two weeks, and local heavyweights, led by Premier Murray, have been in the county in large numbers.

The Local House will meet in a few days. The parties in the Legislature stand: Conservatives 4, Independents 1, Liberals 33.

Woman's Pitiful Death.

Lockwood, Sask., Feb. 17.—Andrew Avandso, a Swedish homesteader, with a family of five small children, being in straitened circumstances, his wife, aged 34, has been working at a local hotel. Saturday night she purchased about fifty pounds of provisions and started to walk home, about three miles. A search party traced her about five miles, here tracks passing twice within three hundred yards of the home she could not find. Finally she died within a hundred yards of a neighbor's home.

Directors Resign.

Montreal, Feb. 17.—To-day the present directorate of the Mexican Power Co. will resign. Their fight against the English interests has apparently been unfruitful, and they have failed to convince the English shareholders of the folly of the exchange of 14 power shares for eight shares of Tramways.

Killed Dodging Kisses.

New York, Feb. 17.—Endeavoring to elude a bevy of pretty stenographers who sought to kiss him in honor of his fifteenth birthday, George Spencer Millet was the victim of an odd and fatal accident late yesterday in the offices of the Metropolitan Insurance Co.

The lad, struggling to escape from the embraces of the girls, accidentally fell to the floor and a razor in his pocket pierced his side above his heart. He died from internal hemorrhage on the way to the hospital.

'Quake Kills Many.

Constantinople, Feb. 17.—A number of houses and Government buildings in Sivas, the capital of Vilayet, in Asiatic Turkey, collapsed yesterday, as the result of an earthquake. Reports say that 30 persons have been killed and others injured. Many of the inhabitants are without shelter. Sivas has a population of about 6,000 families.

Heavy Pipe Kills Three.

Montreal, Feb. 17.—Three laborers dead and another hurt is the result of an accident at Cote des Neiges yesterday. Another is in a serious condition, but may recover.

The men formed part of a gang working in a deep trench. A six-ton pipe, in four sections, which lay alongside the cutting, suddenly fell in.

Fell 200 Feet.

Halifax, N.S., Feb. 17.—As two men named Harty were coming to the surface at the Torbrook Iron Mine, Annapolis, Monday night, the tub tipped, throwing them out. They both fell 200 feet, and were killed instantly. In falling they struck two other men at the bottom of the slope, one of whom had his arm broken.

For Smuggling Drugs.

New York, Feb. 17.—Through the arrest of three stewards of the Kronprinzessin Cecilie and a salesman for a wholesale drug house, customs officials state they have unearthed a plot through which large quantities of codeina, a morphine drug, have been smuggled into the United States during the last few years.

HAPPY WOMEN PRAISE PE-RU-NA

It Is Works, Not Words, That Has Made Pe-ru-na Famous Throughout The Land.

The miss and the matron alike praise Peruna. Girls and women have all discovered the value of Peruna. The Miss and the Mrs. have been ill, each in her own peculiar way, and have found relief by taking Peruna.

Fair girls and beautiful women, frail daughters and ailing mothers everywhere have taken Peruna and know its value in the relief of ailments peculiar to their sex. From the grandmother to the girl babe the gentler sex are under numerous obligations to Peruna.

All this being true and the woman does not hesitate to tell it, her words win the confidence of other women, and thus the fame of Peruna spreads from household to household until millions of homes acknowledge Peruna as their favorite and reliable family medicine.

Peruna is good for many minor ills. It can be relied upon to mitigate the many disagreeable effects of colds and irregularities so common among women. All the ailments of a catarrhal nature belong within the scope of Peruna's remedial action.

Internal Catarrh.

Mrs. Fred Webber, 19 Wellington St., Brantford, Ont., Second Vice President Woman's Industrial League, writes:

"Last fall I caught a severe cold, which caused inflammation of the internal organs. I suffered excruciating pains and kept getting worse and worse until I gave up all hope.

"My attention was called to the wonderful cures produced by Peruna, and I made up my mind to try it for two months and see what it would do for me.

"Within one month I felt much better and at the close of the second I was like a new woman. I kept improving and finally was fully restored. I have advised many of my friends to try it, and all are pleased with the results."

Head, Stomach, Lungs.

Miss Olivine Perrault, 335 Davidson street, Boulevard St. Paul, Montreal, Can., writes:

"I write you a word to congratulate you on your famous remedy, Peruna. I tried other remedies, but my cold did not get any better, and I feared I was becoming consumptive.

"The condition of my head and stomach was very annoying. I had coughed day and night for three months, as the result of a cold which I had contracted from sudden change of temperature.

"My brother advised me to try Peruna, and I did so, for he was cured by Peruna. I took it regularly and improved steadily. I have now taken three bottles of it and am completely cured."

To Suffering Women.

"I feel it my duty to write and tell you of the good Peruna has done me.

"I was subject to internal weakness. For six years I suffered more or less.

"We consulted various doctors, who gave me relief, but no cure. I have suffered a great deal, and my husband had very large bills to pay.

"In my despair I decided to try Peruna, and the first bottle taken according to your directions gave me relief. I have had no backset since then.

"Since we have used Peruna, a doctor has seldom been in our house. It would take a book if I were to tell all the good Peruna has done in our family.

"Please accept my most sincere thanks.

"I have often recommended your medicine with good results, and if any suffering woman wishes to write to me or to call on me, I will give her my information in regard to Peruna at any time."—Mrs. Martha Fredrich, Central Park, L. I., N. Y.

One Woman's Experience.

"I was troubled with very serious internal weakness, which exhausted me so that I feared I would lose my mind.

"I suffered agony with my back, the pain extending down my left leg. The pain was so severe that I would have welcomed death as a relief.

"Peruna cured me of this trouble—no wonder I recommend it so highly. It will soon be two years since I found relief from the pain, and not a sign of it has returned.

"I am glad that there is a way in which I can speak of this, as many a sufferer may read my testimonial, and not only read, but believe."—Mrs. William Henderson, Craik, N. W. T., Canada.

THE CAMERA CLUB'S ENJOYABLE TRIP

Were Entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Delisle at Nassau Last Evening.

The Camera Club's sleigh ride was a very enjoyable affair. The storm interfered with the numbers that attended. The 'buses and single rigs left the city about 8.15, and reached Mr. J A Delisle's about 9.30. Progressive euchre was the first on the programme, and the interest shown in the games was very keen. The first prize was won by Miss Evelyn Doris and Mr. W McPherson. The Booby prizes were won by Mrs. A McCarthy and Mr. Jas. McNichol. Refreshments were then served and were enjoyed by all. The Mandolin Club then rendered a first-class programme, which received its full measure of praise from the large number present. Phonograph selections and dancing filled up the balance of what was one of the most pleasant gatherings which the Camera Club has had. The roads were not so bad as was at first anticipated and good time was made both ways. The party reached home in the "wee sma' hours" after having enjoyed themselves to the full.

Before leaving a vote of thanks was tendered to Mr, and Mrs. Delisle for the manner in which they entertained the large company.

The Camera Club feel very much indebted to the Mandolin Club, the Misses Doris and McCarthy and Messrs. Cranfield, McNichol and McPherson, for their assistance during the evening.

GEORGE STREET CHOIR HELD A FINE CONCERT

A splendid concert was held in the basement of the George street Methodist church Tuesday night, under the auspices of the choir of the church. Many people were present who thoroughly enjoyed the fine programme provided by the well trained musicians. Great praise is due Mr. McCann for the able way in which he conducted the entertainment and also for the making up of the programme. Mr. McCann acted as chairman for the evening and he also presided at the piano.

The following is the programme which was rendered:

Part I.

Movement For Better Roads By The Provincial Association

Meetings on March 3rd and 4th in Toronto to Which Counties are Invited to Send Representatives—Programme of Proceedings.

CEMENT IN HIGHWAY WORK.

The Ontario Provincial Good Roads Association, which meets in Toronto on March 3rd, has issued the following circular to County Councils.

Gentlemen—The annual meeting of the Provincial Good Roads Association will be held at the County of York Municipal Hall, Adelaide street, Toronto, on March 3rd and 4th next.

I enclose programme or some of the topics which will be presented to the meeting by short well considered papers, addresses from gentlemen having special knowledge of their subjects, see also the condensed report of the meeting held in March last as printed in the Municipal World for May, 1908. From these the objects, aims and range of the Association's work can be seen. Arrangements have been made for publishing a full report of this year's meeting. The meeting has been timed so that "The Cement and Concrete Exhibition" at Toronto may be visited and delegates will have an opportunity of hearing and seeing exemplified the uses of cement in municipal and highway work. Persons visiting this Cement Exhibition (concrete and its uses for municipal road and bridge work) and paying single fare, and at the same time procuring railway certificates for the said exhibition, will receive return tickets on payment of 25 cents. As there are no membership fees for our Association the Executive Committee request donations of $10 from each County Council towards the expenses of advertising and holding the meeting and printing the proceedings, and that in any event or more delegates be appointed by your Council. Invitations will be sent to the councils of many minor municipalities, but no donation will be asked from them.

PROPERTY COMMITTEE APPROVES OF PLANS PREPARED BY LOCAL MEN FOR THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

OTHER LIBRARY PLANS.

A meeting of the Property Committee was held yesterday afternoon when the following members were present: Chairman Ald. Bradburn, Ald. McIntyre, Ald. Duncan and Mayor Rush.

The first matter taken up was that of selling of the Richard Hall property on Simcoe street. The building is empty, and is an expense to the city, while the committee wants to pay for the lot for the new library out of the proceeds of the sale.

Ald. Duncan suggested that a price of $14,000 be placed on the building, and that it be placed in the hands of the real estate agents to sell.

Ald. McIntyre agreed with Ald. Duncan and put it in the form of a resolution which carried.

The Public Library

Plans were received from Mclean & Wright, of Boston, Mass., and Messrs. John Belcher and Wm. Blackwell of the city for a new public library. Both architects submitted elaborate plans, well gotten up and for modern and handsome buildings. The plan submitted by Messrs. Mclean & Wright, provided for a very handsome building, but the plans of Messrs. Belcher and Blackwell, associate architects, gave a little more room, which is a desirable feature. The majority of the committee were in favour of submitting the plans of the local architects to the council for consideration. The outside of the plan by Messrs. Mclean & Wright was the better, but the interior layout of the other was preferred.

Chairman Bradburn stated that this thing must be settled at once, if the building is to be gone on with this spring, so that it will in all probability be settled on Friday night when the Committee of the Whole Council will be held, which plan will be adopted.

The Market

The chairman introduced the question of the market, which, he said, would have to be settled very soon. The market does not pay as much money now as it used to when sold by gross office. Ald. Duncan said he thought the market should be put up at public auction, and he would strongly support that idea.

It was also suggested that instead of auctioning it off that tenders be advertised for. This was considered a good plan.

Ald. McIntyre was strongly in favour of the city keeping the market and leave Mr. Geo. Ball as the clerk. He did not like to believe that the market had gone back during the past year.

Moved by Ald. Duncan that the market be let by tender this year.

Mayor Rush was in favour of the market being conducted as at present, and he said that he had been told that the farmers were better satisfied now. He would like to give it another trial.

Ald. Duncan said he would oppose it to the last as he was convinced that the city was losing money.

Ald. McIntyre moved in amendment that the market be left as it is. Mayor Rush seconded this motion and it carried.

Ald Bradburn said he would rather have tenders called for and dispose of the clerkship to the highest bidder.

By-law Amended

In the absence of Ald. Turner, chairman of the Joint Committee with the county, City Clerk Armstrong explained that the county council had asked to have the confiscation clause cut out of the market by-law. The matter was before the Legal and Joint Committee some time ago and was fully reported in these columns.

The committee agreed to recommend the council to amend the by-law in accordance with the request of the county council, and a motion was moved by Ald McIntyre and Mayor Rush and was carried.

HIS HEART IS STILL IN THE OLD HOME

Buried in the wilds of Chicago for many years, Mr. John P. Sullivan, of 3115 Michigan avenue, Chicago, still seems to regret his youthhood:

"Home the spot on earth supremely blest;

Mr. Sullivan evidently wants to renew old associations, and selects the best medium for the purpose for putting him in communication with the congenial spirits and old familiar names of the years of his residence in the county of Peterborough. Though we have not Mr. Sullivan's permission to publish his letter, we are sure that a man with as good a heart as he evidently possesses will be forgiving. He writes:—

Gentlemen:— Enclosed find Post Office Order for $1.50, payment in advance for one year's subscription for your weekly paper.

I know it will recall many old names and familiar scenes, particularly in Ennismore and thereabouts, as I used to know or know of everyone in that renowned bailliwick, all the way from Boundry Bill's to Cook's Lane; and in a northerly direction from old Jerry McCarthy's back as far as civilization extended, orisome distance north of Bill Mahoney's old shop.

As for the Chicago end of it there is quite a band of us here; some of the most prominent are:—

Jimmy Sheehey, famous lacrosse player, now connected with the Hyland Publishing House; Pat O'Brien, brother of your Superintendent of Schools; Harry Kearns, now keeping a large grocery establishment; and I even heard that Tom Dunn, renowned singer, was present in Chicago for the last few years.

Hoping to receive the first instalment of your valued paper soon,

I am, sincerely yours,
JOHN P. SULLIVAN.

OUTDOOR CANADA.

The February number of Outdoor Canada is the first of a new volume and an issue upon which the management may well be congratulated. Another of Arthur Heming's speaking illustrations is used as a frontispiece, illustrating an Indian story which opens the magazine. In an article, vigorous and incisive, C C MacNeill handles the author of a recent English book upon Canada without gloves, handing out well merited rebuke to a man who has grossly maligned this country and its people and picturing in colours that are as they should be, The Truth About Canada. Prof. D McBarton gives the first of his talks to Outdoor Canada readers on the important subject of Outdoor Health and Exercise. Roden Kingsmill furnishes his usual interesting monthly budget of sporting gossip, and the whole field of Canadian sport and athletics is carefully covered in this and in special articles. A new feature is the monthly Calendar of Sport, which will keep the readers posted on results in every field of Canadian sport. The number contains many other articles of general interest, and a wealth of seasonable illustrations, including fine pictures of Shrubb and Longboat as they appeared in their recent race in New York. The magazine may be secured from newsdealers or from the office of publication, Spectator Building Hamilton.

MISSIONARY OFFERINGS IN THE BAY OF QUINTE CONFERENCE

On Sunday last the Rev. W. J. Crothers, D.D., of St. Catharines, preached missionary sermons in the Port Hope Methodist Church, both morning and evening. Dr. Crothers has filled some of the leading pulpits of the Bay of Quinte Conference at Napanee, Belleville (Bridge street), and Peterborough (George street). In connection with his visit to Port Hope the Guide says:—

Last year of the givings of individual churches in this Bay Conference to Missions, Home and Foreign, Port Hope Methodist Church stood fourth. Belleville (Bridge street) gave $1,429; Lindsay (Cambridge street) gave $1,337; Peterborough (George street) gave $1,161; and Port Hope gave $801. Of the givings by towns Port Hope stands sixth. Peterborough, as a city with three churches gave $2,183, an increase of $488. Belleville, three churches, gave $2,046, an increase of $357. Lindsay, two churches, gave $1,463, increase $371. Napanee, two churches, gave $1,232, increase $930. Picton, two churches, gave $947, increase $206. Port Hope, gave $801, increase $143.

The amount given by Port Hope Methodist church last year is a gratifying one, indicating as it does an increase of 22 per cent. But if Port Hope Methodism is to do its share with other leading towns of our Conference it will call forth our best efforts.

Twenty Deaf Mutes In The City According To Belleville Paper

The total population of deaf mutes in the Electric City is twenty exactly. Six small ones are bright and intelligent pupils at the Institution whose rewards are approaching at the general examination this coming summer. Most of them are showing good ability and getting good results from the valuable teaching of the Institution.

Mr. Wm. Hayes, who went to Detroit some time ago, where he was en route for Chicago, has returned. He is contemplating going back to the Windy City. He has hopes of securing work in the near future.

As a result of falling on a slippery pavement while returning home after shopping in town, Mrs. Wm. Pilling, mother of Miss Gertie Pilling, unfortunately sustained a painful accident a couple of weeks ago, and she is confined to the house with her arm fractured just above the wrist. That she will have a speedy recovery is the sincere wish of her many friends.

It is a pleasure to inform the readers of The Canadian Mute that Jack Crough has demonstrated by winning many laurels these days that he is a stalwart athlete. He is a member of the T.A.S. hockey team in the city league and played several matches in the past. The other day he was preparing to enter a hockey match with the Abstainers again, but at the last the city league officials discovered that he was not eligible. As a rule any players that played in the Senior or Intermediate O. H. A. series before 1906 are not eligible in the city league. Jack was on the H. A. Peterborough team in 1903-4.

The many friends of Mrs. Cotterill will be glad to learn that she has moved in the city and is doing exceedingly well. In conversation with the writer she says she has a good recollection of school days at the institution.

Mr. F. W. Miller's Bit Of Advice To Married Man Needing Help

Mr. F. W. Miller, whose duty it is to pass the city's aid has frequent little encounters for those men who are out of work and without means and consequently are dependent upon the city for help. This morning an undersized man applied for help, probably as he has done before this winter.

"Why do you not go out and endeavour to find work?" Mr. Miller asked.

"Well, I never thought of that," was the hesitating reply. "Of course you didn't. That's the way with fellows of your calibre. If there was any desire on your part to work you would have been out this morning with a shovel soliciting work. Why! people would have been glad to give you a job if you had told them you were hard up and needed money and you wanted to shovel it now from the front of their houses. But, no, you are contented to take things from the city as long as they are willing to give it to you and without any work on your part." A few more words addressed in this strain, and the man walked out feeling probably that he was expected to do something for a living.

Rev. W. J. Creighton's Outfit Was Destroyed In White House Fire

Examiner Special.

Lakefield, Feb. 17.—Miss May Morrell, of Peterborough, spent a few days last week in the village.

Mr. Roland Johnson spent a few days last week in Toronto.

Mr. C. Young, Inspector of the Standard Life Insurance Company, was in the village on Saturday last.

Miss E. Neiles, of Simcoe, was the guest of Rev. A. W. and Mrs. Mackenzie, at the Grove on Saturday last.

Mr. W. H. Casement, who is one of the County Auditors, was in Peterborough last week auditing the county books.

The ball given in the Town Hall by the Catholic Order of Foresters on Tuesday evening last was a decided success in every way, though owing to the inclemency of the weather a great many were prevented from attending who would otherwise have done so. There were over two hundred present, including guests from Peterborough, Toronto and Rochester. Dancing was kept up till the small hours of morning and all present returned home weary though thoroughly satisfied with the success of the evening.

Mrs. F. J. Tate gave a very enjoyable "Bridge" to a few of her friends on Tuesday evening last at "Harborne."

Miss Lancaster, who spent the week-end at her home in Peterborough, returned to Lakefield on Sunday.

Rev. W. J. Creighton went to Toronto on Thursday last, driving to Peterborough and leaving his horse and cutter at the White House while away. Early on Friday morning the stables took fire which fortunately was discovered in time to save the horses and most of the sleighs, but the cutter and robe belonging to Mr. Creighton were burnt.

A "Talent Tea" was held at the Grove on Friday afternoon last. Each person provided some article of home - made cookery, attached a price to it, and purchased something brought in the same way by others. The proceeds were given for the benefit of St. John Baptist Church.

Mrs. E. A. Tanner gave a very enjoyable progressive euchre party to a number of her friends on Tuesday evening last. The prize winners were Mrs. A. S. Butchart and Mr. C. S. Campbell.

Mr. Robert Garbutt's new residence on the west side of the canal is now completed and presents a very imposing appearance.

Mr. Tom Allen of Peterborough, was the guest of Rev. A. W. and Mrs. Mackenzie at the Grove on Sunday.

Miss Maud Clifford, of Peterborough, spent a few days last week in the village.

Mr. Chas. Fallon spent a few days last week in Toronto.

Mr. A. S. Butchart returned home on Saturday last after a few days' trip to Toronto, Guelph and London.

Mr. O. A. Langley is attending the Division Courts at Peterborough and Norwood this week.

The Home Mission Band of the Presbyterian Church will hold an oyster supper in the Town Hall on Tuesday evening, Feb. 23rd.

Mr. S. N. Jory, of Brandon, Man., is in the village on a visit to his father, Mr. Jas. Jory.

A game of hockey was played in the rink on Tuesday evening last between the Grove Junior team and the Shamrocks. The Grove was defeated by 5 goals to 3.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Evans Atwood and family were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. Atwood, at "Ashelworth," on Thursday last.

Masters Aylmer and Eric Lafroy spent Sunday at their home in Millbrook.

Mr. F. M. Dela Fosse, of Peterborough, was the guest of Mrs. F. J. Tate at "Harborne" on Sunday last.

Mr. J. Smith, who has been at Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough, for some weeks past to recuperate after his late serious illness, returned home last week greatly benefitted by his stay there.

TWO MOST SUCCESSFUL THEATRES IN CANADA

They are Both Run by the Four Members of the Family.

Two of the most successful theatres in Canada are the Grand Opera House in Brantford, and the Grand Opera House in Peterborough. In each instance the house staff consists of the manager and his three sons.

In Brantford, F. C. Johnson is manager; F. C. Johnson, jr., secretary; W. B. Johnson, musical director, and W. H. Johnson, press representative. Officially all four wear silk hats.

In Peterborough, J. J. Turner is the manager, and his three sons are treasurer, doorkeeper and usher respectively.

BRONCHITIS VICTIM.

Little Daughter of Mrs. Hastings of Fitchburg Suffered for Years —Could Not Attend School Winters.

COMPLETELY CURED BY VINOL.

"For many years my little daughter suffered from bronchitis. Every winter she was out of school more than she was in, until at last I had to take her out of school entirely. We had one of the best doctors in the city, and while he would bring her out of the acute attacks all right, they kept occurring. At last she got so very bad that it did not seem as though she could stand any more spells. Knowing that Vinol had cured my little nephew of congestion of the lungs I decided to try it for my daughter. I did so and could soon see a great difference. She took four bottles in all and it has completely cured her. That was a year ago and she has not had an attack of bronchitis since, and seems strong and well." Mrs. J. E. Hastings, Fitchburg, Mass.

The reason Vinol is so successful in such cases is because it contains iron together with all of the healing, medicinal and body-building elements of cod liver oil actually taken from fresh cods livers—but no oil to upset the stomach and retard its work. It does not taste of oil and children love it.

If Vinol fails to benefit any case for which it is recommended we will refund every cent paid us for it. That's your guarantee; we know it will do you good. McDermid & Ivey, druggists, corner George and Charlotte streets; also Payne's Drug Store, corner George and Simcoe streets.

LETTER FROM A FORTY-NINER

Here's a simple, interesting and sincere letter from a rugged pioneer of '49, who braved the dangers and hardships of the overland trail to California. It should appeal to all catarrh victims.

Santa Rosa, Cal., May 5, 1908.
Booth's Hyomei Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Dear Sirs—I was afflicted with catarrh and tried a number of remedies but received no relief. I purchased an outfit of Hyomei, and before I had used the bottle I noticed a marked relief. I used it for a month or so and thought I was cured, and stopped using it for a year or so. Thought I was getting catarrh again, and started using it again. I use it every morning, and keep myself clear of catarrh. I consider it the best catarrh medicine that is used. I have often recommended it to my friends. I am 81 years old. I came to California in 1849 and of course am not as vigorous as I was 58 years ago. My address is 241 4th Street. Yours truly, W. Mock."

Hyomei (pronounced High-o-me) is guaranteed by Wm. Madill not only for catarrh, but for grip, coughs, colds, bronchitis and croup. A complete outfit, including inhaler, costs only $1.00; extra bottles of Hyomei, if afterwards needed, cost but 50c

THREATENED WITH PARALYSIS.

BEFORE TREATMENT

AFTER TREATMENT

Peter E. Summers, of Kalamazoo, Mich., relates his experience:

"I was troubled with Nervous Debility for many years. I lay it to indiscretion and excesses in early youth. I became very despondent and didn't care whether I worked or not. I imagined everybody who looked at me guessed my secret. Imaginative dreams at night weakened me—my back ached, had pains in the back of my head, hands and feet were cold, tired in the morning, poor appetite, fingers were shaky, eyes blurred, hair loose, memory poor, etc. Numbness in the fingers set in and the doctor told me he feared paralysis. I took all kinds of medicines and tried many first-class physicians, wore an electric belt for three months, went to Mt. Clemens for baths, but received little benefit. While at Mt. Clemens I was induced to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, though I had lost all faith in doctors. Like a drowning man I commenced the New Method Treatment and it saved my life. The improvement was like magic—I could feel the vigor going through the nerves. I was cured mentally and physically. I have sent them many patients and will continue to do so."

HALF-STARVED WOMEN PARADE IN LONDON

Industrial Sufferers Mar Opening of British Parliament.

NO TROUBLE AT FUNCTION

Ceremonies of Inaugurating New Session Passes Off Quietly In London Despite Rival Demonstration by 8,000 Dependents of Unemployed—Legislation Mostly Social—Treaties Are Referred To.

London, Feb. 17.—A greater crowd than usual gathered at Westminster yesterday for the state opening of Parliament by King Edward, who was accompanied to the function by Queen Alexandra, the Prince and Princess of Wales and other members of the royal family.

A day of bright sunshine and the fact that this was the first public appearance of Their Majesties since their return from Berlin was largely responsible for the outpouring of the people, who gave the sovereigns an enthusiastic greeting as they passed in procession, with an escort of the Guards to the House of Parliament. In the neighborhood of Oxford Circus the half-starved wives and female dependents of the unemployed gathered to the number of 7,000 or 8,000 and paraded through the streets of the west end. They were led by a band playing the Marseillaise. During this procession the windows of jewelry dealers in Oxford street were smashed.

Within the chamber the members of the two Houses and a select few who had been invited to witness the actual ceremony expectantly awaited the reading of the King's speech.

"Satisfactory progress has been made in the negotiations on outstanding questions with the United States. A treaty to regulate the use of waterways adjacent to the international boundary between Canada and the United States had been arranged, and this question being one of special Canadian interest, the advice of the Dominion Government was sought and followed throughout.

"My ambassador in Washington has negotiated also, with the co-operation of the Canadian and Newfoundland Ministers of Justice, an agreement for reference to arbitration of the North American fisheries question, and I trust that this agreement will be the means of effecting a final and friendly settlement of matters which have been long under discussion between this country and the United States."

Referring to the budget His Majesty declared that "in consequence of the old-age pensions and the increase which has become necessary in the cost of my navy, the expenditures this year will be considerably in excess of the past twelve months."

Among the bills to be introduced to Parliament, the King mentioned the measure for the disestablishment and the disendowment of the church in Wales, a bill dealing with the lack of employment in the country, amendments to the old-age pension act, and other purely domestic matters.

Lord Liverpool said the Anglo-American treaty was the most important ever sent to The Hague. If ratified it would settle the dispute forever.

Lord Lansdowne noted with particular satisfaction the announcement that in regard at any rate to one or two questions the Government had been able to carry the Canadian Government with them.

Frozen to Death.

Toronto, Oct. 17.—A gentleman who has just arrived from Gowganda tells a remarkable story of the freezing to death of two men.

He declares that two bodies were sent down over the C.N.R. last week. One of them was wrapped in canvass on a toboggan and was shipped as freight to Parry Sound.

He says that the men were found frozen in prospectors' tents, and that they were lightly clad and unfit to withstand the severe spells of weather. No further information was obtainable, as the bodies were shipped down as baggage and there was no official record of their deaths obtainable.

THE LEGISLATURE OPENED YESTERDAY

CRAWFORD AGAIN SPEAKER

His Honor Reads the Speech Announcing the Satisfactory Financial Condition and Forecasting Legislation to Simplify Litigation In the Province of Ontario—Opening Is a Big Social Function.

Toronto, Feb. 17.—In a driving sleet which in no way interfered with the display in the interior of the House of the twelfth Legislature of Ontario was opened with all the formality and state traditionally due to the occasion. There has never been a more exquisitely beautiful display of apparel. The fashionable tints are all of the most delicate and subdued order and the effect was one of rare richness without any gaudy color.

The crush in the House was beyond precedent, not less than 1,500 people filling the galleries and floor of the House. Guests began to arrive as early as 1 o'clock, and by 2 o'clock there did not seem to be room for any more. A great many more kept arriving till three, when the guns of the Ninth Field Battery, under Capt. Richardson, rumbled out their salute and the band played the National Anthem as His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor drove up punctually.

The speech from the throne was, in part, as follows:

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the Legislative Assembly:—

I am pleased, indeed, to meet the representatives of the people of Ontario in the Legislative Assembly of this province. My recollection of the many years when I sat in the Legislature, during sixteen of which I was a member of the Government, is of a distinctly pleasant character, especially when I recall the good will and friendly relations which always existed between my fellow-members and myself.

Our thanks are due to Almighty God for the good harvest of the past year, and for the general prosperity of the people.

The celebration of the Tercentenary of the founding of Quebec by Champlain in connection with the steps taken for the nationalization of the celebrated battlefields of Quebec, which took place in the month of July last, was a memorable event in our speed. The presence of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, the desire of His Majesty the King, and the admirable addresses delivered by the former, contributed largely to the enthusiasm and satisfaction which were the prevailing features of the great occasion.

The Canadian Improvement Co. having made sale of its interests in the Lake Superior Corporation to English capitalists, has been enabled to pay off the remaining one million dollars of its certificates guaranteed by the Government of Ontario, and these have been cancelled, and the province has now been relieved of all further liability under the Act respecting aid to the Algoma Central & Hudson Bay Railway and Associated Industries at Sault Ste. Marie. A probable result of this sale will be the introduction of a large amount of additional capital into the province to extend these industries and to complete the building of the Algoma Central and Manitoulin and North Shore Railways.

It will afford you gratification to know that the Temiskaming & Northern Ontario Railway has been completed to the town of Cochrane, and also, that the earnings of the railway have continued to be satisfactory.

Considerable progress has been made in the development of the mining industry at and near Cobalt, and new discoveries of a valuable nature have been made.

My First Minister and the then Minister of Agriculture visited Great Britain during the past summer, and investigated carefully the situation and conditions of emigration from the British Isles to Ontario.

Among the other interesting features of the past year's record are the taking over of the Ontario Veterinary College by the Department of Agriculture, the development of the work of dairy instruction and of the Farmers' Institutes, the increasing of the usefulness of the Agricultural College throughout the province for special work in the promotion of agricultural interests. This last-mentioned departure has met with great success, and, it is hoped, may be extended in the future.

A contract has been entered into providing for the construction of an electric power transmission line 252 miles in length, all or the greater part of which will, it is expected, be completed by the end of the year. Within the last two months upwards of thirty-five municipalities have voted in favor of procuring power from the Hydro-Electric Commission—thus evidencing the interest taken in the subject by the people.

The important work of the revision of the statutes has made good progress during the year, and a large number of the revised Acts will be laid before you for your approval. Bills will also be submitted to you comprising amendments to several important statutes, and, you will be asked to consider a measure for the better administration of justice, lessening the number of appeals, reducing the cost of litigation and for other purposes.

My Ministers have arrived at the conclusion that it is advisable to change the date of the close of the financial year to the 31st day of October, thus enabling the Legislature to meet early in January in each year, and proceed with the despatch of business.

You will be glad to know that the revenues of the province are considerably in excess of the estimates and more than sufficient to meet the public expenditure during the year. The public accounts will be laid before you for your consideration at the earliest moment, and the estimates for the coming year will also be submitted to you for your approval at an early date.

The Premier then announced that the duty had devolved upon him to suggest to the members of the Legislature the choice of one of their number as Speaker. The post last session had been filled by Hon. Mr. Crawford in a way to give entire satisfaction to the members, and after expatiating on Mr. Crawford's merits he moved his election. This was carried.

Hon. Thomas Crawford then made a considerable speech of acknowledgment and promised to discharge his duties in a fair and equitable manner.

YOU CAN'T AFFORD TO FEEL "DOPEY"

—to have headaches—an easily-tired body—a stuffy-feeling brain—even for part of the time. There are too many keen alert men and women, always at their best, to give much chance of success to one thus handicapped.

These things are the direct results of a sluggish liver—constipated bowels—dry skin — overworked kidneys — in short, of a body whose sewers are clogged.

Nothing opens up these outlets of the waste, and clears the system of poison so greatly, yet so effectively, as "Fruit-a-tives" "Fruit-a-tives" are the juices of anges, apples, figs and prunes combined—by a process that greatly increases their medicinal value—with valuable tonics and internal antiseptics, and made into tablets.

Babe Falls From Buggy.

Flesherton, Feb. 17.—The eleven months old child of Mr. and Mrs. John Brown, farmers, living near this place, was almost instantly killed in a very peculiar manner.

The mother, who was busy churning, gave it a small cat to amuse itself with. The kitten jumped out of the carriage in which the child was sitting and in attempting to regain it the babe fell out upon its head upon the floor.

The neck was broken and death occurred instantly.

Essex County Game Laws.

Windsor, Feb. 17.—The Essex County Game Protective Association, which met on Monday at Kingsville, passed resolutions recommending the prohibition of the use of high power rifles in populated districts; asking that the open season for quail be confined to two weeks in November, with 50 birds as a limit, and to set back the opening of the season for ducks until Oct. 15.

Skin Diseases.

A diseased or disfigured skin will always leave its stamp on the mind of the individual. Many people suffering from disfiguring skin diseases avoid society and lose all pride in their personal appearance. When the skin breaks out in eruptions and sores it is due entirely to an impure condition of the blood.

In all such cases Burdock Blood Bitters will quickly purify the blood and drive all the impurities out of the system.

ITCHING RASH CURED.

Mrs. J. J. Magee, Jr., Kinmount, Ont., writes: "In the spring of 1906 I was troubled with a Rash that broke out all over me. It was the worst on my face and head, had a dry, scaly top, and when I would get warm it would become very itchy. I tried the doctor's medicine but it did me no good, so I then got one bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters and before it was all used the Rash was entirely gone."

SORES ON FACE.

Mrs. Harvey Barkhouse, Gold River, N.S., writes: "I was greatly troubled with Sores on my face and finally became so bad I had to go to the doctor about it, but he could do nothing to help me.

"I thought about Burdock Blood Bitters and decided to try a bottle. I cannot recommend B.B.B. enough, as I had not taken all the bottle before my face was cured."

115 NEW SUBSCRIBERS

First Week of The Examiner's EXCITING Newsboy's Competition

A Big Success

The score in the Examiner's live Newsboys' Competition for the first week of the contest showed an addition of 115 new subscribers to the Examiner's Daily Circulation.

The Boys gave a splendid account of themselves, and our circulation manager believes he has as bright an array of hustling newsboys as ever stepped in shoe leather.

Johnny Bennett

Was the first boy to win the Examiner's Weekly Prize of $2.00. He secured 23 new subscribers during the week. This amount, added to his profits on his total sales, (46), gave him a clear profit of $3.84. Pretty good "rake off" for a few hours work after school, with a good chance to be in the winning for one of the Big Cash Prizes at the close of the contest, April 31st.

Cash Prizes

FIRST PRIZE	$25.00	FIFTH PRIZE	$5.00

THIRD PRIZE	15.00	SEVENTH PRIZE	3.00
FOURTH PRIZE	10.00	EIGHTH PRIZE	2.00
TWELVE PRIZES OF	- -	$1.00

Don't hang back because you didn't score the first week. If you become one of our Newsboys and start out now and secure two or more new customers a week, you are sure to get one of the cash prizes offered below. Parents who would like their boys to earn sufficient to almost keep them, should encourage them to handle the Daily Examiner after school. There are many young men now holding good positions who made thier first money by selling and delivering The Daily Examiner.

Boys, Get Into the Race!

Get in line; Make up your minds right away. Start in and canvass those who are not taking the Examiner—they will always read it if you once get them started.

This week's prize of $2.00 is going to be paid to some boy who hustles the most. The boy who gets the largest number of New Customers by Saturday will win it. Now get busy.

An Important Condition

In order that protection may be given to each boy who is entered in this competition it is a condition that no one will secure a prize who does not legitimately earn it. If a boy applies for a weekly prize and has not bought the papers for his own use and sale it will be turned over to the boy who has actually won it.

HURTUBISE WON FROM KAISER IN LAST NIGHT'S HANDICAP MATCH EACH MAN SECURED A FALL

Oswego Grappler Got the First in 40 Minutes But Gene Returned the Compliment After 10 Minutes —Great Bout all the Way.

PRELIMINARIES WERE GOOD

Eugene Hurtubise, Peterborough's big wrestler, won his handicap bout in the roller rink last night from Charlie Kaiser, the Oswego, N. Y., middle weight, after fifty minutes of about as speedy and exciting wrestling as has been seen in Peterborough for some time. The conditions were that Kaiser was to throw Hurtubise twice in an hour, while a fall for the local man ended the bout. That was what happened. Kaiser took the first fall in 39 minutes 50 seconds, but Gene surprised the visitor from across the line by taking the next fall ten minutes afterbringing the bout to an end.

It was a great exhibition all the way and thoroughly pleased the big bunch of fans who had gathered at the rink for the event, the first that has been held since the Burridge-Fitzpatrick bout last fall. It was fast, hard and not too clean wrestling all the way, and the crowd was kept upon its tip toes throughout, the clever work of the two men bringing forth round after round of applause.

Last night's match was the case of speed versus strength, and it resulted in a very pretty battle, in which the crowd certainly got it's money's worth. Kaiser weighed in at about 165 pounds, while Hurtubise tipped the scales at 203 pounds, so that the local man had it on his opponent in weight and also in strength, while the quickness was on the side of Kaiser, who moved around the mat with lightning rapidity. The visitor was well sciences and lived up to his advance notices as a clever, speedy wrestler, who can take and give bumps cheerfully. He uses his legs to great advantage after the style of Yankee Rogers and demonstrated that he was possessed of great strength, as well as science and quickness. His speed made it possible for him to spin out of many dangerous holds and his quick moves on such occasions were greatly admired.

Hurtubise was in excellent condition and gave a splendid account of himself. He seemed improved, if anything since his last time out and made things decidedly interesting for the American grappler, who had figured on an easy victory and who speedily found out that his calculations had gone astray. Gene showed that he was not lacking in speed either, while he seemed to have it on Kaiser in the matter of strength.

It was a great go all the way and no better exhibition of wrestling has ever been given by Hurtubise whose work on the defensive was splendid; Kaiser using the scissors hold with great effect had the local grappler in danger on several occasions, but Gene managed to break the hold just when it seemed to the spectators that a fall was unavoidable. His clever work was warmly applauded by the crowd.

Mr. A. C. Yokome refereed the bout and did his work faultlessly, although Kaiser and his manager did considerable kicking about the last fall claiming that the Oswego man was off the mat when he was downed. His arm was off the mat it is true but his two shoulders were down squarely on the canvas and that is sufficient to warrant the decision of a fall.

When the two were introduced to the crowd it was seen that Hurtubise towered over the muscular Yankee, although the latter was splendidly developed. When the signal was given to start the pair circled around each other cautiously looking for an opening and it was several minutes before they were off their feet with Kaiser on the aggressive. Gene however came back at him and the crowd saw some lively wrestling with little to choose between the two men. Gene did not content himself with staying on the defensive and several times went out after Kaiser in a manner that brought the crowd to its feet. The Oshman showed himself decidedly clever at spinning and getting out of danger frequently.

At times the bout was rough, Kaiser seemed nettled at his inability to floor Gene quickly and several times rose to his feet and tried to turn the local man off the mat, but Gene gave him as good as he got. Soon after this episode Hurtubise all but downed his man with a scissors hold but the men rolled off the mat. Gene was given the same hold in the centre but Kaiser broke out of it. Soon after Kaiser secured a beautiful head scissors on Gene and pinned his shoulders to the mat after almost forty minutes of wrestling.

After the ten minute rest the pair came back as fresh as at the beginning and they made things lively for each other right off the reel. Kaiser came back with the determination to end things quickly but he soon found out that he was up against a tougher proposition than any of his opponents in this city. Hurtubise was in the best of condition and was not to be denied. He was going to be able to carry out the programme he intended. Gene went right at him and had the Kaiser on the defensive the greater part of the next bout. Finally Gene got a further arm hold and scissors with which he floored Kaiser after eleven minutes wrestling. The fall was gained near the edge of the mat but Kaisers shoulders were on the carpet although his arm was off. There was great cheering when Referee Yokome gave Gene the fall and Kaiser and his manager did not again

GENE HURTUBISE,

Kaiser mounted a chair and spoke to the crowd, saying that he was going out of his class to meet a man of Hurtubise a weight and that he thought that he ought to be given a fair sized mat to wrestle on. "To show you that I am sure that I can beat Hurtubise I will wrestle him Friday night here or any other place he may name and will bet $500 to $100 that I can beat him two out of three falls."

Gene quickly stopped his complaint, however. Climbing upon another chair he said that if Kaiser wasn't satisfied with the fall he would go back on the mat and throw him again, at which statement the crowd cheered wildly.

Kaiser, however scratched his head a little and then climbed down off the chair and headed for his dressing room, without making any reply to the offer.

The young preliminaries were interesting and provided the crowd with plenty of amusement. Bobby Chandler of Toronto and Geo. Lillie of Peterborough went six lively rounds in which no damage was done to either party. Chandler although about 15 pounds lighter was very clever and amused the spectators by the manner in which he escaped Lillie's wild swings. The kid had a good punch with his left too, and used it to advantage although the blows did no seem to bother Lillie in the least. It was a good exhibition and the crowd enjoyed the mill. Referee G. N. Graham called the bout a draw.

Corney Burns and Jack Seymour, formerly of London, Eng., went on for three rounds; Burns was far too clever for his opponent and landed when ever he wanted, although he was just tapping his man. Burns was given the decision.

Jack McDonough gave a clever exhibition of big punching and the crowd applauded his efforts heartily. He has lost none of his old cleverness and his stunt was much enjoyed.

STRATHCONAS AND LAKEFIELD TO CLASH AT BROCK ST. TO-MORROW NIGHT FOUR GAMES ON THE BILL OF FARE

The Strathconas and Lakefield will come together at Brock street rink to-morrow night in the first of a series of home and home games goals to count. The games have been arranged in order to settle the question of which is the better team of the two and the local fans who have also been arguing over the matter since the final city league game between the two will welcome the announcement that the two will come together again this season. The last game between the Straths and Lakefield was one of the best seen here this season and there is every reason to expect a great game tomorrow night. Word was received from Leo Quinn, captain of the Lakefield team that the Cementville seven would line-up the same as in the last city league game. The Straths will have on a strong seven and it should prove a great exhibition The date of the return game in Lakefield has not yet been decided upon.

To-morrow night's game will be played between 8 and 9 o'clock and will be the last big game of the season so that there should be a big crowd on hand for the battle. In addition there will be three other games to-morrow night so that the crowd should get its money's worth. The G.T.R. and C.P.R. will play between 7 and 8 o'clock, the Lock Works and Loyal True Blues between 9 and 10 and the Bell Telephone and Machine Telephone between 10 and 11 o'clock. City League prices will prevail, the admission to all four games being 15c. for gentlemen and 10c for ladies. It will be a great evening's sport about the last hockey of the season and a big crowd will be present.

$50,000 Bet On Hockey Match Between Haileybury And Cobalt

According to an Ottawa press report $50,000 was bet on the Cobalt-Haileybury game, in which the latter team won. Besides, some of the bettors shared up their winnings with the Haileybury team. The following gives the figures:

At first sight it looked as if the betting, while enormous, would drop below the figures of the last big game between these two teams, but definite figures show that seven bets alone running from $1,000 to $4,000, total $17,500, and from another quarter $2,500, which makes $ 20,000, outside of hundreds of bets ranging between $50 and $500, so that the total amount of bets was easily within the $25,000 mark. When one begins to think that Cobalt, with a population of about 5,000 people, backs its hockey team with $25,000, there is surely great interest in the game. Haileybury, of course, wagered the same amount on the result, making the total of $50,000 or over.

Charlie Keeley, who discovered the Keeley mine, in South Lorrain was very much in evidence in the betting and, it is said, paid over $1,500 of his winnings to the players of the Haileybury team.

WHITTY'S TEAM WON GREAT GAME FROM LESTER PATRICK'S NELSON SEVEN

Nelson, B.C., Feb. 16.— The Edmonton hockey team, champions of Western Canada, last night defeated Nelson, champions of British Columbia, by a score of 6 to 5.

The game was the best ever seen in British Columbia and the score tells how close the play was. This was further shown by the fact that the score was tied no less than five times, the winning tally for Edmonton being put in just three minutes before the call of time.

The game was witnessed by close on 2,000 people, even standing room being at a premium. Among those present were hockey enthusiasts from all parts of the interior of British Columbia within a hundred miles of Nelson. The second game of the series will be played on Wednesday night. For this game excursions are being run to Nelson from the boundary country and Rossland.

LINDSAY TEAM HAS A LEAD OF 5 GOALS OVER TORONTO ROWING CLUB

Lindsay, Feb. 16.— In the fastest game of hockey played on the local rink this year the local intermediates defeated the Toronto Rowing Club by the score of 6 goals to 1. The locals are winners of No. 1 district, and the T.R.C. are winners of district 2 and 3. Lindsay, therefore, have a lead of 5 goals when they play the return game in Toronto on Friday night, and bid fair as winners on the round.

The game did not start till 9.15, owing to the train being delayed, and it was after 11 p.m. when the final gong rang. Both teams played with a vim and determination, and both showed fine speed and good combination. It would be difficult to particularize any player on either team, but the work of Randall and Cotey cannot be passed over, as they were in the thick of the struggle all the time. Kohl played his usual fine game on the defence. For the T. R.C., "Pacer" McDougall, a former Lindsay Midget, played a fine game at centre, and was ably assisted by Kent, Heal and Curtis. The only goal scored by the Rowing Club was scored from a face-off near centre ice, and caught Newton napping. The work of Roy Thomas, of Barrie, gave fair satisfaction many offsides missing his notice. Hancock and Moxon, two O.H.A. referees who have an interest in the Toronto Rowing Club, were interested spectators. The Toronto team came up by special train, accompanied by 100 supporters. The score at half-time was 3 to 1.

TWO GAMES IN BOWLING LEAGUE

There will be two games in the Peterborough Bowling League at the P.B.C. alleys to-night, when the Examiner Ba hook up with the Hams and the Midgets take on the Lock Works. Gene Hurtubise, fresh from his victory over Charlie Kaiser, will bowl for the Hams, and will endeavour to get a strangle hold on the king pin, while Bruce Hickey says that his experience in "My Valet" should enable him to "clean up" without any trouble.

Band To-night at Jackson Park.

ST. JOHN'S TO JOIN TENNIS LEAGUE

Replying to the letter addressed to the secretaries of the different tennis clubs of the city, sent out this week by Mr. W. H. Cluxton, Miss C. B. Morse, secretary of the St. John's Tennis Club, writes regarding the feeling of members of that club in the matter.

"All the members of St. John's Club are very willing, and even anxious that a City Tennis League shall be organized in Peterborough, for the purpose of developing the game in the city, and for first place in the league. There are even more than four members, the number suggested by Mr. Cluxton, who would be very willing to join such a league, from the St. John's Tennis Club.

It has been suggested by some of the members of the St. John's Club that a series of games be also played for the lady members of each club, if such could be satisfactorily arranged. It is hoped that the suggestion set forth in the Examiner of Monday evening, by Mr. Cluxton, will not be allowed to drop, and that the various clubs appoint representatives and take steps for the organization of such a league at an early date.

Signed
(MISS) C. B. MORSE,
Secretary St. John's Tennis Club.

CHURCH LEAGUE GAMES POSTPONED

There were no games in the Church League last night, owing to the blizzard raging, which made it impossible to keep the open rinks free of snow. George street were to have played Knox while the tailenders from Park street were to have hooked up with the leaders, the St. Andrew's team. The dates for the games are not yet known.

EARL GREY IS TO GIVE HOCKEY CUP

Calgary, Feb. 16.— J. A. McCullough is in communication with Earl Grey, making arrangements with the Governor-General to provide a handsome hockey trophy to be competed for by the three Provinces: Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. The trophy will be known as the Grey Cup, and will resemble, in Western hockey, what the Minto Cup does in lacrosse, or the Stanley Cup in Eastern hockey circles. The Grey Cup will be competed for by championship clubs on rules similar to those which govern the Stanley Cup competitions.

TORONTO BALL CLUB'S PROBABLE LINE-UP

MOTHERLESS TWINS MAKE APPEAL TO THE KIND-HEARTED

Pair of Eighteen-day Twins With Mother in Hospital Require $6 a week to Pay for Their Nursing.

A pair of twins, eighteen days' old, are left practically motherless, through the illness of the mother, Mrs. Nash, who is confined to the hospital, where she is likely to remain six weeks or two months.

She leaves behind twin babies and the father and mother are little better than babies themselves—in age and otherwise—the combined ages of the two, including that of the children, being under forty years.

The illness of the mother, of course, puts it out of her power to minister to her children and the King's Daughters came to the rescue and hereby appeal to the public for their practical sympathy and help. The city authorities find that they are not in a position to be responsible, the Children's Aid Society, which has taken a warm interest in the matter, is not in possession of available funds sufficient, and the King's Daughters are also short of funds. They have, however, taken practical steps. They have found a comfortable home for the twins at an expense of $6 per week. This will involve a total expenditure of between $25 and $30, depending upon the time the mother remains in the hospital.

The father, whose employment is uncertain, is certainly not in a position to provide for the care of the infants, which, thanks to the temporary homes provided by the King's Daughters, will be well looked after, that is if the necessary $6 per week is forthcoming.

An appeal is made to the charitably disposed, for small contributions. If all who can will give only a little the object will be gained.

Contributions may be left with the Children's Aid Society, the King's Daughters or at the Examiner Office, and all donations will, if the donor consent, be publicly acknowledged.

ECZEMA OF THE SCALP.

Now and again mothers find that sores or ulcers on the heads of children refuse to heal, despite all ordinary treatment. Then is the time to prove Zam-Buk's healing power. For three long years the son of Mrs. Grummitt, of 114 Morse street, Toronto, had eczema of the scalp. She says:—"It broke out behind his ears, and was so painful he was unable to sleep at night. I used almost every ointment known, and called in the doctor, but all of no avail. A friend recommended me to try Zam-Buk, and I procured a supply. After using three boxes, my little boy was completely cured."

Another case which mothers will read with interest occurred recently at Winnipeg. Mrs. C. Keep, of 592 Alexander avenue, Winnipeg, says:—'A year ago my little girl contracted eczema of the scalp, and notwithstanding all I did the sores spread until the child's scalp was completely covered. I took her to hospital, but none of the lotions and ointments applied had any effect on the disease. By degrees the child's hair came out, until she was quite bald. We were at this stage strongly advised to try Zam-Buk, and did so. From first commencing with this wonderful balm the child got relief from the itching and pain. The sores were quickly banished, and in a remarkably short space of time the child was cured. The hair soon grew again, and is now quite long and in a healthy condition."

All who have care of children should know that Zam-Buk is particularly adapted, because of its purity, to the tender skin of children. It cures with equal dispatch ringworm, blood-poisoning, ulcers, cold-cracks, chapped hands, frost-bite, piles, bad leg, etc. Used as an embrocation it eases the pain of sprains, and cures rheumatism, sciatica and neuralgia. All druggists and stores sell at 50 cents a box; or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for 2price.

SOME APSLEY ITEMS OF INTEREST HERE

Apsley, Feb. 16—Our roads have been almost bare for the last few days, so that the wheels had again to be brought into use.

This has been a grand winter for lumbermen and the cut north of here is large, and the Peterborough Lumber Co. will take down the largest drive that has ever run below Creek.

A big days work was done by the teamsters employed in the Peterborough Lumber Co's camps last Tuesday 4000 logs being landed on the ice that day.

The ice is splendid on the lakes this year, being 18 to 20 inches thick; many of our citizens have stored a supply for use next summer.

Skating is largely indulged in at present. Silver Lake near the village is like glass and affords a splendid rink of half a mile long.

Our old friend Mr. Joseph Yellan of Peterborough who has been putting in a dam at the foot of Long Lake to conserve the waters has finished his job and left for home last week. The new dam will raise the water some 3 feet over high water levels.

Now we have a telephone service a move is on foot to try and get a daily mail; petitions to that effect to the Postmaster General are now in circulation along the line from Lakefield north.

LEARN DRESS CUTTING and MAKING

Class to Commence at Y. W.C.A., March 8th

Wanted, ladies to learn dress cutting, dress making and coat making. No accomplishment you can acquire will prove to you of such everyday life-long value as a practical knowledge of dress making. We teach you everything from the plainest shirt waist to the most elaborate toilet, and guarantee perfect satisfaction. We stand prepared to forfeit $25 to any lady, who, after taking our course can show us an article in dress making she cannot cut, fit and put together. Not only the lining, but all the outer goods in coats, skirts, waists, sleeves, wrappers, girdles, children's clothes, etc.

Charge for full course is now only $10, including one of the most perfect systems in use. A few days' trial are given. If the student then finds the course not all we have advertised it to be, she has the privilege to stop, as there is no pay in advance.

A day and also an evening class will be taught.

All wishing to learn or for full particulars, be sure to meet me on

Chinamen In Freight Car.

New York, Feb. 18.—The attention of the Federal immigration officials in this city was called yesterday to the case of seven Chinese who were found in a freight car of the Lackawanna Railroad, which arrived at Fort Morris, N.J., from Canada on Tuesday.

The car had brought a load of lead ore and was said to have passed through Black Rock, an international transfer point, near Buffalo. The Chinese would give no account of their journeyings and were suffering from hunger.

It is believed that the agents in this city, who were to free the men, must have lost the car en route and failed to perform their portion of a smuggling compact.

Can't Average Demurrage.

Ottawa, Feb. 18.—The Railway Commission has decided not to grant an application made some time ago on behalf of the Wallaceburg Sugar Co. for an averaging of demurrage on freight cars.

The time allowed for the unloading of a car without payment of demurrage is forty-eight hours after arrival. The application asked that where a car was unloaded in less than forty-eight hours, the time margin should be recorded to the credit of the firm as an offset against excess time taken in unloading other cars.

The board refused the application on the ground that it would work an injustice to smaller shippers.

Natal Act Disallowed.

Ottawa, Feb. 18.—An extra number of The Canada Gazette has been issued, containing notice that His Excellency the Governor-General-in-Council has disallowed the act passed by the British Columbia Legislature on Feb. 11, 1908, entitled "An Act to regulate immigration into British Columbia."

The effect of the disallowance of the act by the Federal Government will be to prevent an appeal being taken from the judgment of the Supreme Court of British Columbia.

Appeal Is Dismissed.

London, Feb. 18.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The judgment of the Privy Council in the case brought by W. N. Robertson of Toronto in connection with W. F. Maclean's campaign to have it declared that the Grand Trunk's charter requires it to give a two-cent rate on third-class cars between Toronto and Montreal, was given yesterday by Lord Loreburn.

Lord Loreburn said the section imposing third-class fares at two cents a mile was still in force.

THE BALLOTING AT THE SYNOD

SIGNS ARE FOR DEADLOCK

Two Ballots Are Taken In Contest For Bishopric of Toronto, Left Vacant by the Late Archbishop Sweatman—Algoma Bishop Has 40 Majority In Clerical Vote—Voting to Resume To-Day.

Toronto, Feb. 18.—After two ineffectual ballots the Synod of Toronto adjourned at 10 o'clock last night, without electing a bishop for the diocese in succession to the late Archbishop Sweatman. The Synod will meet again in St. James' Cathedral to-day to take the third and probably several other ballots before a choice is made. The constitution of the Synod requires that the successful candidate shall have a majority of the clerical votes as well as of the lay or parish votes, and whilst Bishop Thornloe of Algoma, who is the nominee of the high churchmen, had a large majority of the clerical vote on each ballot, he failed to secure a majority of the lay vote. On the other hand, Rev. Canon Cody had a majority on each ballot of the lay vote, but was considerably behind in the clerical vote. It will also be observed that the second ballot showed no material change in the votes cast for each can-

The result of the first ballot, which began at 4.30, and lated until 6.30, was announced at 8 o'clock by Archdeacon Sweeny, who read the report of the scrutineers as follows: Total vote of clergy, 177. Necessary to a choice, 89. Total vote of laity, 128. Necessary to a choice, 65.

The first vote gave Bishop Thornloe 109 clerical votes and 51 lay votes, and Canon Cody 60 clerical and 67 lay; Canon Sweeny 4 clerical, and Reeve, Sprague, Tricker and Powell one clerical each.

The second ballot, finished at 9.36, gave Thornloe 108 clerical and 49 lay; Cody 60 and 65, Sweeny 3 and 1, and Reeve 1 and 0.

Sowed Rye In Wheat.

Woodstock, Feb. 18.—The culmination of one of the most remarkable cases ever heard in the Police Court here came yesterday morning when Wesley West paid into court on behalf of Herman Beare and Thomas Howard, two young men from Blenheim Township, the sum of $43.88.

Beare and Howard had previously been found guilty by Magistrate Ball of sowing rye in fifteen acres of wheat on the farm of Wm. Forman of Blenheim. Howard told how they went at midnight with a bag of rye and how Beare carried the bag several times around the field and distributed the grain.

Strange Poisoning Case.

Montreal, Feb. 18.—A mysterious poisoning case was reported to the police yesterday, when Thomas Green was found dead in a restaurant at 84 Cathedral street, and the proprietor, C. F. Hill, and Edward Dallow and Edward McConnell were found suffering from poison. The men claim they did nothing but drink some coffee.

Analysis of the coffee, it is said, shows that there was a large quantity of strychnine in it, but the detective department say they think it is a case of gas poisoning.

POLICY FRAMED FOR LEVEL CROSSINGS

Hon. Mr. Graham Has a Plan to Abolish Them.

WOULD DIVIDE THE COST

Minister In Reply to Haughton Lennox Says He Has a Comprehensive Measure — McAvity and Mayes Tender Again — Publication of Waterways Treaty Comes Up—Stock Issues and Rates.

Ottawa, Feb. 18.—That Hon. Mr. Graham has practically framed a policy for the systematic protection of level crossings, which only requires a little further consideration in regard to its financial obligations, was the important fact that emerged from a discussion in the House yesterday afternoon on Mr. Lennox's resolution dealing with the subject. "I have a policy in my mind," declared the Minister of Railways, "and I intend to lay it before my colleagues in a few days." Before making any declaration, however, he desired to consult the Minister of Finance on certain details.

Dealing in a comprehensive way with the question of the adoption of safety devices at level crossings, Haughton Lennox (South Simcoe) moved a resolution calling upon the Government to make an exhaustive enquiry into the matter and to deal with it with a view to "eliminating, as far as reasonably possible, the level crossings from our system of railways, and where this cannot be done, the adoption of such methods and devices as will secure the safety of the people using the highways."

In his reply Hon. Mr. Graham favored the idea of a division of the cost. The debate went over at six o'clock, the Minister promising that in the unexpected event of his not being able to introduce his bill, opportunity would be given for renewal of discussion of Mr. Lennox's resolution.

Mr. R. L. Borden asked the Minister of Railways whether or not there had been any ruling of the Railway Commission which would indicate that the amount of stock capitalization of any company, whether excessive or otherwise, was taken into consideration in the regulation of fixing of rates.

"I know of no case," replied the Minister of Railways, "in which the board in fixing the tolls has regard to the capitalization or stock issue of the company, rather than to the cost of construction, etc. You will remember that in the Klondyke Mines Railway Co.'s application for approval of its proposed standard freight tariff, after a hearing and upon the the report and recommendation of the chief traffic officer, the board approved the tariffs of the company up to the distance of 30 miles from Dawson and directed that the company should be notified that before applying for approval of further standard tariffs, it should furnish the board with returns showing the cost of construction and equipment of the company up to that time, and its running and operating expenses, to enable the board to determine the rates that should be allowed for further distances."

Mr. Borden asked the Prime Minister if his attention had been called to the publication of what purported to be a copy of the recent waterways treaty in The Toronto Telegram, and whether there was any special reason why the treaty should not be laid on the table.

Sir Wilfrid replied that he had not seen the publication, but if it was an absolutely accurate form, he was quite sure that it had not reached the public by the permission of the United States authorities.

"I can only say to my honorable friend," added Sir Wilfrid, "that I quite agree with him and that I see no reason why the treaty should not be made public immediately."

Hon. Mr. Pugsley, replying to Mr. Lennox, gave further particulars of the Mayes dredging contract.

As the contract was awarded to the lowest tenderer it did not appear to the Government that there would be any public advantage in making further enquiry into the matter, and the Government had no present intention of doing so.

The Government was not of opinion that they could and should recover the $35,933 paid to Mayes in excess of his first tender.

The Government had not consulted the legal department in the matter "for the reason that if there was no collusion between an then Minister of Publ. Works or other officials of the Department, and Mayes and McAvity in connection with the tenders which had not been alleged, and the contract was awarded in good faith to Mayes as being the lowest tenderer, any person of ordinary business knowledge and without having a legal training would know that no right of action would exist to recover back any portion of the amount paid under the contract so awarded."

Mr. Borden was told by Mr. Paterson that $26,101,547 has been expended by the Government on the construction of the N.T.R. during the twelve months ending Jan. 31, 1909. The total amount expended up to Feb. 15, 1909, was $43,265,129.

Mr. Graham, replying to Mr. Borden, said 667 miles of the N.T.R. was completed and in operation.

Norwood, Feb. 16.—Miss Ruby Buck, who has been visiting friends in Peterborough, returned to her home on Tuesday.

Mr. Harold Dancey, of Picton, spent a week at the home of his aunt, Mrs. McLachlin.

Miss Mary Knox and her niece, Miss Elsie Knox, have gone to Picton to visit the former's brother.

Messrs. Birdsall, Hawthorne and Roxburgh went to Toronto at attend the annual convention of the Ontario Association, which is being held this week.

At the meeting of the trustees of the Methodist Church on Monday, Mrs. Garlick was appointed organist, to succeed Mrs. Callander, who is leaving Norwood.

Mrs. E. P. Caffe returned on Saturday from visiting friends in Peterborough.

Mr. J. L. Squire was in Peterborough this week on business.

Miss O'Brien, of Havelock, was in town on Wednesday attending the carnival.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Graham, of Westwood, were in town on Wednesday, attending the wedding of Miss Edith McMillan.

Mr. Mitchell, of Frankville, is visiting his daughter, Mrs. Leverette.

Mr. C. T. Thompson, of West Toronto, is visiting the home of his sister Mrs. (Rev.) E. W. Pickford.

Mr. A. S. Harrison is in Toronto this week on business.

The annual meeting of the Board of Education was held in the High School on Wednesday, February 3rd.

The secretary called for nominations for chairman.

Moved and seconded by Mr. Brackenridge and Mr. Doherty, that Mr. Squire be re-appointed chairman, which was unanimously carried.

On assuming the duties to which he had been elected, Mr. Squire expressed his grateful appreciation of the honour thus conferred upon him. He hoped that the harmony which had characterized the proceedings of the board in the past would continue to prevail and that the members would strive, as he believed they had always endeavoured to do, to promote the best interests of the schools.

The standing committees were then elected as follows:

Executive—Messrs. Squire, Anderson, Niebel, Finlay, Caffe, Webster, Waters, Pakenham and Doherty.

The first named on each committee to be the chairman thereof.

The special committee appointed at a previous meeting of the board asked that the matter of re-arrangement of seats and lighting in the principal's room in the High School, and the changing of the black boards be left over until after the visit of the inspector; that the black boards be procured and had on hand at the time of the inspector's visit.

Moed by Mr. Caffe, seconded by Mr. Waters, that the request of the committee be complied with; that the committee procure the amount of black boards required, and have the seats revarnished, so that the work may be proceeded with immediately after the visit of the inspector; also that the chairman of the several committees arrange to meet the inspector, in conjunction with the Special Committee.—Carried.

A matter affecting the discipline of the High School was brought before the board by the chairman, which he proceeded to explain. The principal was also present and addressed the board in reference to the matter, explaining the method adopted by him.

The board were a unit in upholding the principal and intimated that if it were necessary to adopt stronger measures they would stand by him.

This matter being disposed of the chairman brought before the board the question of the establishment of an Agricultural School, as outlined in a plan introduced last year by the government, also stating that the Agricultural Society had appointed a committee to confer with the board and recommending that a special committee be appointed to consider the question.

On motion of Mr. Brackenridge, seconded by Mr. Waters, a committee composed of Messrs. Squire, Caffe, Doherty and Elliott, with power to add to their number, were appointed to confer with the committee appointed by the Agricultural Society in regard to the establishment of such a school.

The report of the principal of the Public School was read by the chairman, and, on motion of Messrs. Pakenham and Elliott, same was received and ordered to be fyled.

A communication from the principal of the Public School, asking that he be paid his salary monthly, was read. The matter was left in the hands of the chairman.

Moved by Mr. Caffe, seconded by Mr. Elliott, that the secretary request the village council to see that loads of dynamite are not allowed to be left in the school play grounds at any time.—Carried.

Mr. Caffe, chairman of the Supplies Committee, submitted figures showing that the equipment necessary to meet the requirements for the school to be place on the approved list would cost $109.81 besides freight cartage. The matter was left in the hands of the Supply Committee with power to act.

Accounts were presented as follows: Sol. Clarke, joist, $2.00; H. H. Fife, work on woodshed, $5.00; erecting black boards, $11.00; building book cases, $20.00.

Moved by Messrs. Caffe and Anderson, that Mr. Clarke's account be paid, and that Mr. Fife's account be referred to the Special Committee for ratification and if correct that same be paid.

An account of C. J. Searight, $2.75, for stools and repairing, and K. G. Thomson, supplies, $8.20, on motion of Messrs. Elliott and Webster, were referred to the respective committees to which they belong, to be paid if found correct.

The auditors' report of the High School and Public School accounts, certified to by the Finance Committee, was submitted for examination.

A copy of the Public School report was filled out and on motion same was received, and the secretary was instructed to procure a fyle on which such reports may be kept.

The carnival which was held here way a success In spite of the stormy weather during the day there was a good attendance The band furnished music during the evening

The marriage was solemnized on Wednesday evening at the home of The bride's parents, of Miss Edith L McMillen, to Mr. Wilbert R Scott. The bride entered the parlour leaning on the arm of her father, to the strains of the wedding march, the ceremony being performed by Rev. W If Adams, pastor of the Methodist church. The bride was attired in a gown of white organdie, trimmed with lace and insertion. The groom's gift to the bride was a gold watch and fob. Mr. and Mrs. Scott, who will reside near Norwood, have the best wishes of a host of friends for their future happiness.

WAS IN BED FOR THREE MONTHS.
PEOPLE SAID SHE HAD CONSUMPTION.

Read how Mrs. T. G. Buck, Bracebridge, Ont., was cured (and also her little boy) by the use of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

She writes: "I thought I would write and let you know the benefit I have received through the use of your Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. A few years ago I was so badly troubled with my lungs people said I had Consumption and that I would not live through the Fall. I had two doctors attending me and they were very much alarmed about me. I was in bed three months and when I got up I could not walk, so had to go on my hands and knees for three weeks, and my limbs seemed of no use to me. I gave up all hopes of ever getting better when I happened to see in B.B.B. Almanac that Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup was good for weak lungs. I thought I would try a bottle and by the time I had used it I was a lot better, so got more and it made a complete cure. My little boy was also troubled with weak lungs and it cured him. I keep it in the house all the time and would not be without it for anything."

Price 25 cents at all dealers. Beware of imitations of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. Ask for it and insist on getting the original. Put up in a yellow wrapper and three pine trees the trade mark.

THE WARSAW CARNIVAL WAS A GREAT SUCCESS

Interesting Event Held in the Dummer Capital Last Week.

Examiner Special.

Warsaw, Feb. 15.— The special feature of last week's events was the Masquerade Carnival held by the Warsaw Skating Rink Co. on Friday evening. The weather was favourable for open air skating, and a large number of spectators witnessed the proceedings. The costumes, of which there were some fifty exhibited, were in some cases of elaborate design and gave evidence of much taste and originality in their construction. The scene was a brilliant one, the many hued costumes of the skaters flitting to and fro gave the onlooker a glimpse of Fairyland.

Mrs. David Miller, Mrs. Arthur Edwards, and Mr. E. J. Glenney acted in the capacity of judges.

The able assistance of Dr. Munro as master of ceremonies, was greatly appreciated.

The following were in costume:—

LADIES

Miss Annie Watson — Starlight.
Miss Pearl Darling — Hockey Girl.
Miss Bessie Crowe — Eastern Night.
Miss Maud Watson — Biddy from Cork.
Miss Ruby Crowe — Frost.

FIREMEN PAID FOR LOST TIME

Hastings Brigade Will Receive Remuneration for the Time They Lose at a Fire-

Examiner Special.

Mr. John Dorsee, of Saginaw, Mich., is renewing old acquaintances in town, after an absence of nineteen years. He is the guest of Messrs. B. F. and R. C. Dorsee.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Stevenson, of Percy, spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Stevenson, Sr., town.

Mr. Myles has been visiting friends in Warsaw.

Mr. A. Knight has moved to Colborne, where he intends engaging in the tailor business. We are sorry to lose him from our midst.

We regret to chronicle the death of Mr. Matthew McCarthy, of this town, whose demise took place on Friday morning, the 5th, after a two weeks' illness of pneumonia. The funeral took place on Sunday morning and was under the auspices of the local Court of the Catholic Order of Foresters. Mr. McCarthy leaves to mourn his loss besides his widow, three sons and two daughters, who have the sympathy of the whole community.

A very pretty house wedding was solemnized on Wednesday evening, the 10th inst., at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. McColl, when their daughter, Mary Laura, became the bride of Mr Geo. Oakman, of Melfort, Sask. The bride was assisted by Miss Maggie Hore, while Mr. Reid, of Peterborough, supported the groom. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. A. Ffrost, in Westwood, in the presence of about seventy-five guests. After the customary congratulations the company repaired to the dining room when a delicious "luncheon" was served and much enjoyed by those present. Mr. and Mrs. Oakman intend leaving in a short time for their future home in Saskatchewan, and will be followed by the best wishes of a host of friends who join in wishing them "bon voyage" through life.

At the regular meeting of the council on Friday, the 5th, it was decided that all firemen who lose time from their work attending to their duty at fires, be paid for said loss in proportion to pay they earn, on condition that they are docked for the pay by employer when at said fire.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. S. Beamish was the scene of a very pretty wedding on the 3rd, when their eldest daughter, Mary, was married to Mr. Harold Morrow, of Percy, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Mr. Burns, of town. The bride looked very pretty in a dress of brown ladies' cloth and entered the parlour leaning on the arm of her father. After the ceremony the guests sat down to a bountiful repast served in first class style. The happy couple left on the evening train for a short honeymoon trip and on their return will reside in Percy.

Mr. H. Collette spent a few days in Toronto last week.

MISS SCOTT WON THE SCHOLARSHIP

Miss Muriel Scott, daughter of Warden R. N. Scott has been quite successful in the prize cartoon contest conducted by the Correspondence Institute of America, Scranton, Pa. The talented young lady succeeded in winning first prize and the scholarship offered by the Institute and is being warmly congratulated by her many friends.

TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY

The Luckiest Day of My Life.

Mr. Thomas Wylie (Box 384), Galt, says:—"It was the luckiest day of my life when I struck PSYCHINE, for I truly believe I should not be alive now but for that."

"A neglected cold was the beginning of my trouble, and what seemed to be a simple ailment, soon developed into a serious and dangerous condition. I got so low that it was scarcely possible for me to walk around, and I lost so much flesh that I looked like a skeleton. I was just about ready to "hand in my checks," although only 20 years of age. The medicine the doctor gave me made me worse and I got disgusted and hopeless. Then I struck PSYCHINE."

"PSYCHINE did miracles for me. The first bottle gave me new life and courage, and in less than no time I began to put on flesh rapidly, and felt I was on the high road to recovery. My appetite returned and "ate like a hunter," as the saying goes. My friends were surprised, and hardly knew me. In three months I was as strong and well as ever, and returned to work in the mill. I have not had a days' illness since. Nobody could wish for better health than I enjoy, and it is all owing to PSYCHINE. It should be in everybody's hands."

USE PSYCHINE EARLY
Too often PSYCHINE is used as a last resort, when doctors have failed to relieve or cure, and frequently when they have abandoned all hope. Under these unfavorable conditions, let hope be not abandoned, for PSYCHINE will prove an unfailing friend. How much better and surer would be the results if PSYCHINE were used in the early stages of the illness!
Use PSYCHINE for COUGHS, COLDS, WEAK LUNGS, LOSS OF APPETITE, WEARINESS and that TERRIBLY RUN DOWN FEELING. All Druggists and Stores sell at 50c, $1.00, and $2.00 Bottle.

USE YOUR OWN JUDGMENT!
There are times when a choice has to be made between following the advice of a physician and taking the responsibility of using PSYCHINE without or in opposition to his advice. You have the fullest assurance that you will be perfectly safe and justifiable in taking PSYCHINE, irrespective of any physician's advice, and even contrary to it. The physician that opposes its use is either out of date and not in touch with the most successful systems of treatment, or his own interests are put before those of his patient. The best physicians, who have, without prejudice, looked into the great work PSYCHINE is doing for humanity, are recommending it to many of their patients, and are unstinted in their praise of this remedy, the equal of which the world has never seen.

Havelock, Feb. 16.—The Valentine Party given by a number of the young ladies of town, on Thursday evening in the opera house, proved to be a most delightful event. About 50 couples were present including a number of out-of-town guests, and all spoke in high appreciation of the evening's enjoyment. Dancing commenced at 8.30 o'clock, music being supplied by Spragg's Orchestra, Belleville, which added much to its success, as it was all that could be desired, and they can rest assured of again coming back to Havelock at some future date. At twelve o'clock the guests adjourned to the lunch room where a most dainty lunch was served. Among the out of town guests were as follows:—Mr. and Mrs. Goulding, Miss McWilliams, Messrs. Ed. Gladney and Smythe, of Marmora; Miss Jarman, of Bancroft; Miss Clara Dorricott, of Toronto; Miss Hunter, of Lakefield, and Miss Smith and Mrs. Lonergan, of Norwood.

Misses E Lancaster and F Campbell, and Messrs. T Dineen and P. Lancaster, attended a dance at Marmora on Friday evening, given by Miss MacDonald of that village.

A. E. Barrett & Co., will open up their new general store on Wednesday of next week.

Mr. Jno. A. Sexsmith, who is attending the session of Parliament at Ottawa, spent Sunday at his home.

Donald, the three-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Wood, passed out of this life on Monday night last after a very brief illness. The funeral took place to the Maple Grove Cemetery on Tuesday, Rev. Mr. Balfour conducting services at the house. The sympathy of all is extended to the bereaved father and mother in the loss of their little one.

Interest is somewhat livening as the time grows closer in which it will be decided what team will hold the handsome cup donated by Mr. Pearce, M.P.P., of Marmora, for the next year. Havelock was to have played at Sterling on the 10th inst., but the weather caused a postponement. The following shows the standing of the teams in Division No. 1:—

	Won.	Lost.	To Play.
Stirling	3	1	2
Marmora	2	2	2
Havelock	0	3	3

Miss Parcels, daughter of Mr. Josh. Parcels of town, was married to Mr. David Rogers, of Belmont, at Norwood on Wednesday last.

Mr. Thos. Quinn, of Parry Sound attended the funeral of his cousin, the late Mrs. Francis Butters, on Sunday last.

The town assessors, Messrs. Jas. Scott and Jesse Campney, started on their rounds last week.

The Women's Auxiliary of St. John's church will hold a social at the residence of Mrs. Jas. Black, on Thursday evening next, Feb. 18th. Music and refreshments.

Mrs. G Mills, of Chatterton, was the guest of her twin brother, Mr. J W Holcombe, last week.

Mr. Leclaire, of Govenor, N.Y., was the guest of Mrs. Chas. Herrington last week.

We regret to announce the serious illness of Mrs. Dan Begley.

Editor Kingston and Mrs. Kingston, of Campbellford, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. A E McGuire last week.

The Ladies' of the Presbyterian church will hold a concert in the opera house on Monday evening, Feb. 22. The chief entertainer of the evening will be Miss Tovit, of Belleville, a lady possessing remarkable powers of elocution, and gold medalist and honour graduate of Albert College.

Mr. Murray Anderson, of Delora, spent Sunday last with friends in town.

Mr. and Mrs. M Reiley spent a few days at Cordova last week, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis.

Mr. Jas. B Scriver, of Keene, was in town on Tuesday last on business.

Mr. and Mrs. E J Taylor, of Belmont, left last week for Madoc where in future they will reside.

Mr. Daniel Youmans, of Cordova, aged 72 years, passed peacefully away on Friday last. The funeral took place on Sunday to the family burying ground, and was attended by a large number of friends.

The citizens were aroused shortly after six o'clock, Tuesday morning by the ringing of the fire bell. The blaze was only a small one, being only the sand-house in the C.P.R. yards, which was quickly extinguished.

So strong was the gale of wind on Saturday morning last, that part of the south wall in Squire's block was blown down. The damage will amount to about $200.00.

Mr. and Mrs. William Tobin and children, and Miss Caroline Shanks, of St. Paul, Minn., are visiting Mr. Maurice Tobin.

The members of the Snowshoe Club are delighted with the heavy fall of snow which has again improved the tramping and added much pleasure to the sport. Arrangements are being made to hold a tramp to Peterborough in the near future.

The Messrs. Selkirk are making arrangements in anticipation of a very busy season. Sawing has been going on for some time, and judging from the number of logs being hauled, an immense amount of lumber will be turned out.

A SPLENDID RECORD IN WOOD SAWING

In the Weekly Examiner of Jan. 21st, an item in the letter from the correspondent at Indian River stated that Messrs. Jos Manley and John O'Leary, with their new sawing machine, cut 30 cords of wood in two feet lengths in three and one half hours.

This record is claimed to have been beaten.

Mr. T. Webster, of Lakefield, formerly a County Councillor, stated to the Examiner this week, that, two weeks ago, on his farm on Lot 7, Con. 6, Dummer, his sons cut no fewer than thirty cords into stove wood lengths, the actual running time including three stoppages, being 2 hours and 55 minutes. This wonderful feat was performed with an old saw.

Those who were employed on the task did not know that they were being timed, so that no strenuous effort to break any records was made by the party.

This is certainly a fine achievment and looks as if it would stand as a record for some time to come.

PATRONS OF INDIAN RIVER CHEESE FACTORY

A largely attended meeting of the patrons of the Indian River Cheese Factory was held in the factory on Tuesday, February 9th.

Mr. J. T. Andrews has purchased the factory from Mr. Wm. O'Leary and gave them his terms to manufacture for the season.

Mr. Andrews is no stranger to the patrons of Indian River, as he made cheese there the first year it was manufactured, and gave the very best of satisfaction.

Mr. Andrews has called upon nearly all of the patrons who sent milk to Indian River in 1907, and wishes them to patronize him, as he has to go to considerable expense on the factory as the machinery is out of it.

Mr. Andrews is moving here in March from Bensfort Factory, where he has been cheese making for the past nine years.

The officers appointed for the year are:

President—Richard Cavanagh.
Secretary-Treasurer and Salesman—Frank Moher.
Auditor—Walter H. Kidd.

The whey went to Fred Kidd at $1.11 per standard. This is encouraging to the patrons, as whey in other factories only brings about 50 cents per standard, with but few exceptions.

Mr. Frank Devlin has the contract of drawing the cheese to the station at 47 cents per ton.

Correct Use of Mallet.

WHEN, with refreshing prodigality, a young society woman of New York presented a half dozen fall brides with trousseau chests, richly sculptured, the work of her own hands, she little realized how popular the work was destined to become. The novelty of the thing started such a craze in the ranks of young girls as to monopolize all their leisure moments, even serious pursuits being temporarily abandoned in order to give time to the work.

Once undertaken, the charm of the craft is its own stimulus, for, besides carrying one into the realm of really good art, no other expenditure of labor offers more abundant opportunity for making beautiful and enduring things for the home. Moreover, it is work in which the question of age does not enter, for, according to an expert woodcarver, whose studio is the rendezvous for the devotees of the craft, a girl of twelve can become quite as proficient as a woman of forty.

Not all the young girls have started in at once carrying such ambitious things as bridal chests, though, according to Karl von Rydingsvard, whose pupils are to be found the world over, it is quite as possible to begin with a chest as anything else, for there are innumerable designs, those from the Norseland, for example, in which the broad lines and sweeping scrolls typical of this style are wonderfully effective, even though crudely done. A linen chest, decorated with a design of this sort, has just been completed by a young girl, though she has no expectation of immediately utilizing it for that purpose. In following that quaint old custom of providing herself with a linen dowry she is simply proving herself particularly forehanded.

WITH the true spirit of the craftsman scores of these young girls, enveloped in their long work aprons, work daily over their benches, handling the mallet with as much skill and dexterity as seasoned woodworkers. One great beauty of the work is that much of it can be done at home, where the fitting up of a workshop need not necessarily interfere with the comfort or convenience of other members of the family.

"To do wood sculpturing at home is by no means such an undertaking as some would have us believe," explained Karl von Rydingsvard. "It is wholesome work and clean, for, though the shavings do litter up a room a bit, they are easily removed without injury to the carpet. Or if desired, it is an easy matter to lay down a sheet beneath the bench, which, when the work is over, can be gathered up and emptied.

"It is quite necessary that the home worker have a bench, as an ordinary deal table is quite too low. A bench of any rough wood, say 38 or 39 inches high and 24 inches long by 18 wide, can be knocked together by a carpenter for $2 or $3.

"Of course, you want to know about the tools with which a beginner should start. Twelve are quite sufficient, for, though there are more than one hundred in use by an expert woodcarver, beginners, doing simple work, require only simple tools.

"It is of the greatest importance to have the tools well chosen, and no one who has not carved before can make the best selection. It perhaps may be wisest for the instructor to take this responsibility at first. Afterward the worker will know better what she wants. One important thing to remember is that a woodcarver's tools must be sharpened quite differently from those of a carpenter. Furthermore, they are never properly sharpened when they come from the shop.

"BESIDES the twelve tools mentioned, which can be bought in a shop for about $5 or $6, there should be two carriage clamps for fastening the work to the bench, and a wooden mallet. A wooden potato masher will answer very well in lieu of the regular article if desired. It has been said that a good workman always takes care of his tools. This is a point to be borne in mind by the woodcarver. Given good tools, she should see to it that they are whetted up when need be and otherwise kept in good condition. When not in use, the tools should be kept in a case which is made for the purpose, of heavy brown linen, strongly bound with tape. Pockets are stitched with places for each tool, which when filled can be rolled and tied securely, making a not unwieldy package.

"Now we come to the woods used. You have heard, perhaps, that unique story of the Woodcarver of Olympus, who, a confirmed invalid, lay on his bed while he carved the most ravishing things from branches cut off of the trees from out his window. Now, don't get an idea that when one wants wood for carving all that is necessary is to go out in the back yard and cut a branch off. That is a beautiful fallacy.

"Every bit of wood used in sculpturing must be perfectly seasoned for the purpose. There are very few woods used for this purpose. Oak and mahogany are perhaps those most suitable and best liked. First, find out what you are going to make, then decide on the wood, after that pick out the design. If oak is selected, the ordinary quartered wood is the best, as it is softer and more porous. This can be bought for from eighteen to twenty cents a square foot.

"Mexican mahogany, which comes at twenty-five cents a square foot, works up beautifully, though the San Domingo, which is best liked on account of its grain and color, is still more expensive on account of its rarity. This costs in the neighborhood of thirty cents a square foot.

"Some surprise is expressed by amateurs at the color of mahogany in its raw state, as the commercially finished product is generally quite dark. It is stained to insure a more uniform color. This is not to be said of the Colonial mahogany, which has turned dark from age, not from the application of any coloring matter.

"Once the wood is decided upon and the sort of article one wants to make, the next step is to go to the cabinet maker to have it made up. Both ends and sides must be fitted and grooved, but neither nailed nor glued, for the parts must be carved separately, the final assembling being done after the carving is finished.

"THIS is one thing that I insist upon in my pupils, that they shall keep their eyes open. It takes but a short while after one begins to carve to see the many beautiful specimens of wood sculpturing here in New York. From such observations I urge beginners in the craft to draw their own designs. This suggestion usually meets with opposition at first. Experience, though, soon shows them it is quite possible. An original design is of so much more value than one drawn for them.

"I do not mean to mix styles; that, of course, is unpardonable. In wood carving there are designs of certain periods that are used more than others, that are better adapted to the craft. The Elizabethan designs, for instance, are particularly adaptable to bridal chests. Those of Norse design, for instance, with their broad sweeps and scrolls, are charming, for even though crudely done the work may still be effective. After these the Flemish, the sixteenth century designs, are delightful, as are also both the German and Italian Renaissance and the Gothic of both countries.

"Next, of course, the beginner will want to know how to proceed once the design has been drawn. There is a certain trick about this. In the paper pattern the design, usually divided in four parts, has one motif, which is used four times in different positions. One quarter of the design, say, has been drawn in. Fold a sheet of carbon paper so that one side will lie against the wood, the other beneath the design. With a pencil trace the design carefully, bearing on with sufficient force to make the tracing. It will be found that not only has the impression been made on the wood but on the wrong side of the paper. Turn the paper over and from that impression made transfer the design to the opposite quarter, continuing the lines of the design closely. This leaves standing a series of promontories, peninsulas and the like, which constitute the unit of the design. Upon these the real sculpturing is done.

"It is best to set the work bench against the window not only to get the light, but to prevent the work from moving. One should always bend from the hips with the shoulders well thrown back in working. This develops the chest and arms.

"ONE question that is invariably put to me is, 'How long will it take?' Naturally this is a rather trying question, for it all depends upon the amount of home work the pupil is willing to do, how fast she improves. By taking two lessons of three hours each a week, in addition to doing an hour of home work, it shouldn't take a girl long to become very clever in the art of wood carving. One girl with six lessons and home work carved a bridal chest in eight days. Another who worked spasmodically might take as many months. It all depends upon the girl herself, her aptitude and persistence.

"Another point of interest is the cost of the article to be carved. The cabinet work, say on a photograph frame, with the wood included, would not be more than $1. A bridal chest five feet long of some ordinary wood, with the dovetailing and panelling, would cost in the neighborhood of $25. Of oak or mahogany it would be $3 or $4 more.

"Wood carving differs from almost any other art or craft in that the raw materials on which the work is done has a grain. Neither marble, leather, nor, indeed, any other art material has this characteristic, while in one square foot of wood the grain will sometimes run as many as fifty ways. It is impossible to explain inch by inch the handling of the tools. One must gain that knowledge as she goes along."

PRACTICAL TALKS BY THE APRIL GRANDMOTHER

"FAIRY Tact must have presided at that girl's birth." The April Grandmother's voice was expressive of unqualified approval as she waved farewell to the youngest of her departing guests. "She has a gift which, from a social viewpoint, is of more value than beauty or wit and one which, like true courtesy, is based upon a sympathetic, unprejudiced and unselfish nature. I would like to have her at all of my house parties. During the course of this visit she confided to me that several years ago, when her mirror and her nearest relatives had convinced her that she could never hope to be pretty, she determined to cultivate her manners. The result is that she now has so many charming ways that no one ever thinks of her as plain looking. One of her chief attractions, a desire to acquire information and to broaden her mental horizon, impels her to unconsciously flatter elderly men and women by asking for their opinions, a form of flattery always appreciated and one which in her case never degenerates into toadyism.

"Whatever may be the woes and disappointments of Miss Tact, she is invariably cheerful, and if it sometimes seems to her that the whole universe is indigo tinted and this mortal coil a burden to be speedily shuffled off she has the grace to temporarily avoid society, realizing that if she cannot present a smiling face to the world she would best present none at all. In no circumstances is she ever seen going about with a frowning brow, for she knows that no expression is more repellant or more certain to reap a harvest of social curses in the shape of unflattering criticism. She never broods publicly. If she is feeling depressed she takes a long, brisk walk, even if rain is falling, for she realizes that anything is better than wandering about the house looking as though one had just buried a lifelong friend.

"To cultivate the bright side of life is a rule which little Miss Tact made because she not only wishes to keep cheery herself, but to make other people happy by force of example. As you know, her reward is a host of friends of all ages, scores of flattering invitations and a countenance that reflects a sunny nature and a sweet soul. Such an expression would render the most irregular set of features attractive.

"Never have I seen her sullen or pouting, but occasionally she remarks that she is feeling 'so cross' from overfatigue or overeating that she is going to tell her troubles to the family doctor, who probably gives her a strong dose of advice and a weak prescription. But her chief claim to admiration is her placidity. She remains calm under the minor annoyances which seem to be so upsetting to the temper of the average young girl, that she will be quite likely to degenerate into a state of chronic irritability by the time she is forty. I assure you that Miss Tact can wait several minutes for a delayed street car without wrinkling her brows, biting her lips or otherwise distorting her features. Convinced that peace of mind does not emanate from strife, she steadfastly refrains from taking part in argument and gossip, and is accordingly careful not to say or do anything for which she may be forced to apologize. Nothing is more trying than such excuses are embarrassing to listen to and frequently are not believed."

Brown Paper for Kitchen Use

From here I made for cooking and like to go into the kitchen now and then to make some fancy thing you can save the cook no end of trouble by the use of brown paper while you are at work. Before you begin with your labors lay out things spread a large piece of paper on the table and then put all your cooking utensils down on it and keep them on it. If you bleed or grease the sheet, put the paper in fact, the paper becomes the repository for all the messiness, using it as a natural part of preparing things to be cooked. When you have made your dish, or arranged your salad, or finished the thing you are doing, the edges can be gathered up, the paper and things inside tossed into the stove and—behold! you have not been at work.

SOCIAL AMENITIES FOR THE SCHOOL GIRL

IN all forms of social life courtesy should be so instinctive as to be automatic, and nowhere is the opportunity greater to exercise this charming quality than in one's attitude to one's chaperon. A chaperon's post is not a sinecure, but the difficulties of the position are greatly ameliorated when young people under her charge show her the little attentions and the general consideration it is her right to expect.

There was a time when the chaperon did not play so important a part as she now does in social life, where her presence has become as established a custom as it is in the European world, and those young people who are sometimes inclined to resent the duenna idea and to regard her as a superfluity are sadly wanting in knowledge of propriety and the elegancies of life.

Girls should always try to remember that the chaperon, her own pleasures at heart, is constantly studying ways to contribute to their enjoyment, and so if at times she finds it necessary to chide this or that one for some trifling indiscretion it should be taken in good part. There is no way in which a girl's good breeding makes itself more manifest than in her generous adaptability to what is expected of her.

Some girls have a most discourteous way of endeavoring to elude the chaperon of the party. They seem to think it very clever to sit as far away from her as possible, to sneak out of her sight whenever occasion permits and to show a general spirit of independence which expresses their defiance of her authority. Such conduct not only indicates a deplorable lack of breeding but it betrays a selfishness and thoughtlessness of a nature which are sure to make a girl unpopular.

It is your place to defer to your chaperon in all things. If any little dispute arises turn to her to settle it, and never pout or otherwise display dissatisfaction over her decision. If you wish to separate yourself for a few moments from the rest of the party, to stroll about, always ask her permission to do so. When it falls to your lot to sit beside her or otherwise be her particular companion, as at a matinee theatre party, do not ignore her, as some bad mannered girls are seen to do, but respond companionably to her conversation and make her a part of whatever merriment is going on.

If you are giving a matinee party and your mother does not chaperon, the older woman asked to take the mother's place has a particular claim to your courtesy. Etiquette requires that a carriage be sent for her to bring her to your home, where your party assembles to start for the theatre. Under no circumstances is it permissible to assemble a party in the foyer of a theatre. Whether you give your party in the afternoon or in the evening, the proper mode of conveyance is an omnibus which holds the entire party, the custom of having several carriages to [illegible] fashion.

The chaperon, of course, carries the tickets, and under her protecting wing she conveys you all into the theatre ahead of her. When you get inside you must not go on in an independent fashion, but wait together until she finds the usher, when she conducts you down the aisle. Even though you are the hostess, it is not proper for you to attempt in any way to lead the party. That is the duty of your duenna. She walks down the aisle first and stands at your row of seats, assigning each of you to your proper places. The seating of a theatre party is all arranged by you beforehand at home, and your chaperon has familiarized herself with the matter so that she knows, precisely where to put each one of you.

Bank of Montreal

Established 1817

Capital Paid Up, - $14,400,000
Reserve Fund, - - $12,000,000
$26,400,000

The Bank of Montreal at the end of its fiscal year, October 31st, 1908, added another $1,000,000 to its Reserve Fund, thus further emphasizing its great strength and stability.

With a Saving Department at every one of its many Branches, it offers the opportunity for all, who so desire, to avail themselves of its many advantages by opening a Savings Account.

A Savings Bank account is the best safeguard against misfortune, being always ready and available, and earning interest all the time.

Consideration for one's family demands that all heads of households should provide against the day of adverse conditions, and there is no simpler way than by paying systematically from time to time a portion of income or earnings in a Savings account.

Deposits can be made from One Dollar up, and withdrawals can be made at any time, without notice or delay.

115 NEW SUBSCRIBERS

First Week of The Examiner's EXCITING Newsboy's Competition

A Big Success

The score in the Examiner's live Newsboys' Competition for the first week of the contest showed an addition of 115 new subscribers to the Examiner's Daily Circulation.

The Boys gave a splendid account of themselves, and our circulation manager believes he has as bright an array of hustling newsboys as ever stepped in shoe leather.

Johnny Bennett

Was the first boy to win the Examiner's Weekly Prize of $2.00. He secured 23 new subscribers during the week. This amount, added to his profits on his total sales, (46), gave him a clear profit of $3.84. Pretty good "rake off" for a few hours work after school, with a good chance to be in the winning for one of the Big Cash Prizes at the close of the contest, April 31st.

Cash Prizes

FIRST PRIZE	$25.00	FIFTH PRIZE	$5.00
SECOND PRIZE	20.00	SIXTH PRIZE	4.00
THIRD PRIZE	15.00	SEVENTH PRIZE	3.00
FOURTH PRIZE	10.00	EIGHTH PRIZE	2.00
TWELVE PRIZES OF	- -	$1.00

Don't hang back because you didn't score the first week. If you become one of our Newsboys and start out now and secure two or more new customers a week, you are sure to get one of the cash prizes offered below. Parents who would like their boys to earn sufficient to almost keep them, should encourage them to handle the Daily Examiner after school. These are many young men now holding good positions who made thier first money by selling and delivering The Daily Examiner.

Boys, Get Into the Race!

Get in line; Make up your minds right away. Start in and canvass those who are not taking the Examiner — they will always read it it you once get them started.

This week's prize of $2.00 is going to be paid to some boy who hustles the most. The boy who gets the largest number of New Customers by Saturday will win it. Now get busy.

An Important Condition

In order that protection may be given to each boy who is entered in this competition it is a condition that no one will secure a prize who does not legitimately earn it. If a boy applies for a weekly prize and has not bought the papers for his own use and sale it will be turned over to the boy who has actually won it.

WARSAW.

The sun had gone down 'neath Warsaw's horizon,
The stars were appearing to preside o'er the scene,
When lonely I strayed in the calm summer evening,
To muse o'er the scenes of my childhood again.

By the old Scottish Kirk my footsteps would linger
To greet my old classmates assembled within,
Where oft Mr. Fleming in reverent devotion
Would preach true repentance for remission of sin.

And firm as the rock on which she is founded,
The world's ample garner for the tares and the wheat,
On the hillside reposing, by Nature surrounded,
Stands the church of the nation, the haven so sweet.

And now I ascend to the church on the hilltop,
Which time has transformed to a Foresters' Hall,
Where each Sabbath so thoughtless our teacher provoking,
Our names we inscribed on the seats and the wall.

As down from this high elevation descending,
The home of my girlhood appears to my view,
Where hope, joy and pleasure with sorrow oft blended,
And the home ties that bound us were loyal and true.

But severed and parted in lands far and foreign
Are the sisters and brothers that there often played,
And gone is the mother that watched o'er our childhood,

But leaving these sad recollections behind me,
And returning once more to prosperity's height,
I gaze on the village as in slumber reclining
And think how contented and calm is the sight.

Once the fiend of intemperance held sway o'er the village,
And polluted her streets with foul language and breath,
But now joy and peace chant their requiem o'er him.
For the blow that the ratepayers dealt him was death.

Where once on the pond we by bonfires skated,
Or lit up the village on November's fifth night.
Times are changed. Guy's effigy long lies forgotten,

The hand sleigh and sled down the hill quickly sending
They steered free of danger with hand or with toe;
Now the ski and toboggan more graceful descending
Leave a mark on the hill where they measure their woe!

The store on the corner is also remodelled,
With telephone fixtures, and all up-to-date;
The clerks are obliging and without malaver
Upon customers entering are ready to wait.

Methinks I hear again from out those portals
The sweetest strains of music rise and fall,
Where boys and girls, night after night assembled
And Warsaw's aged singer taught them all.

At last, the old school house I must revisit.
But here my pencil fails; my memory looks beyond;
I listen for the voice of school mates once familiar
But these around me I cannot recall!

Mrs. G. Clements.

DR. McCULLOCH TO GIVE A LECTURE

The third of the Historical Society's series of lectures will be given on Tuesday, February 23rd, when Dr. Malcolm McCulloch will speak on "Beginnings in Medicne."

The ordinary individual, who has heard in a vague way of the times when the barber and the physician were one and the same person, and when bleeding was the panacea for all human ills, will be ready to hear in a more definite way of the beginnings in medicine.

This meeting will be held in the Collegiate Institute. It has been stated before that these meetings are not held for revenue, but are absolutely free to the public, as well as to the members of the society. At the same time it is hoped that those who appreciate the work which the Historical Society is doing in providing for these lectures, as well as in maintaining the best museum in Ontario outside of the large cities, will become memmbers of the society.

"WOMEN!" "Are You Nervous?"

The results of modern civilization are evidenced in an increase of nervous disorders. It could not be otherwise with the way we eat, drink, lose sleep, and keep up a continual round of excitement. The work, the worry, the excitement, all tell upon the nerves till they cry out in revolt, and will not be placated till a remedy such as come along with their nerve-strengthening and energizing properties, and restore them to their normal condition.

Mrs. Wm. Levi, Markdale, Ont., writes: "I had for several years been troubled with nervousness, and, like many others, spent lots of money on medicine that did me no good. I was so bad that the least noise would make me jump and my heart would thump so you could hear it plainly and I could not lie on my left side at night. I saw a few testimonials of others and decided to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and to my great joy and surprise they completely cured me and it only took six boxes to do it. I have a neighbor, Mrs. Rickett, and I induced her to try them and they effected a cure. I can endorse their use for anyone afflicted as I was."

Price, 50 cents a box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at alldealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Successful Annual Tea Of The Lakevale Presbyterians

The annual tea in connection with the Lakevale charge of the Presbyterian Church, held in the Temperance Hall, 4th Line of Smith, on Monday evening, Feb. 8th, was a very pleasant success. There was a large attendance, to whom an excellent tea was served from 6 to 8 o'clock, when the following excellent and enjoyable programme was introduced by the chairman, Mr. T. D. Young.

Chairman's address.
1. Solo, Miss Parsons.

Napoleon's Bible.

An Italian journalist has the copy of the Bible which Napoleon used during his compulsory sojourn in the Isle of Elba. It is a copy of a cheap popular edition, illustrated with rough wood cuts, with the initial N. and the imperial crown stamped upon its back. A number of texts are underlined, and the inference is that the exiled emperor searched the Scriptures for passages appropriate to his misfortune and his hopes. "I will smite the shepherd, and the sheep shall be scattered," is perhaps the most significant of them. The Bible was discovered in the sanctuary of the Madonna del Monte, in Elba.

Strategy.

Rodrick—Great Scott! Has Bilkins lost his mind?

Van Albert—I don't think so. Why?

Rodrick—Just look at the illumination in his house. He has had every gas jet burning all day long.

Van Albert—Oh, that's just a little scheme Bilkins has to increase his gas bill this month. His wife is coming back to-morrow, and he told her he had been remaining at home and reading every night since she went away. If she looked at the gas bill and found it to be only 32 cents, he would be cornered for an explanation.—Chicago News.

Eternal Fitness.

"I see a retired knockabout comedian is going to buy a title and have a coat of arms."

"Has he decided on anything?"

Thackeray's "Jeames"

The "fashionable reporter" (Mr. R. F. of the Post was a familiar figure at weddings and receptions in the forties and fifties, and Thackeray always spoke of him as "Jeames" and voided the vials of ridicule on him and his works. "Jeames" avenged himself by carefully leaving Thackeray's name out of all his lists. "Jeames" had one direful experience. When Prince Albert went to the Isle of Wight to inspect Osborne the "fashionable reporter" managed to get on board the royal yacht before she left Cowes. When the boat was halfway across the Solent the presence of a stranger on board was detected, and he was interrogated by one of the suit. Jeames announced his professional position and was informed that he had been guilty of an unwarrantable intrusion. He was forthwith bundled into a small boat which was attached to the yacht, and as the sea was rough he was drenched to the skin in a few minutes. When the yacht arrived at Portsmouth the tide was low, and Jeames was pulled out of the boat and compelled to wade to the shore through the mud as best he could.—London Truth.

He Paid.

A well known actor was leaving a small Illinois town, near which he had spent the summer, for Chicago to attend rehearsals. The actor was driven up to the rural railroad station and deposited on the platform, together with his two trunks. As the train was about to start he approached a stranger near by and said:

"Are you going to Chicago on this train?"

"I am."

"Have you any baggage?"

"No."

"Well, friend, you can do me a favor and it won't cost you a cent. I've got two good sized trunks here, and they always make me pay excess for one. You can get one checked on your ticket and save me some money."

"Yes, but I haven't any ticket."

"But you just said you were going on this train."

"So I am. I'm the conductor."

The actor paid the excess, as usual.

Balloon Tennis.

Either two or four players are needed in this game. A string is stretched across the lawn, which supplies the place of the net in ordinary tennis. An air ball should be provided. The players arrange themselves on either side of the string, one side against the other. The hand is used in batting the ball from one side to the other, each side attempting to keep the ball from alighting on the ground on their side of the string, at the same time each trying to bat it in such manner that it will strike the ground on the side of the opponent.

Sharp and Blunt.

Cora—She has such keen perceptions. Dora—And such a blunt way of conveying them.—Puck.

"I have taken Scott's Emulsion for six weeks and have found it a wonderful remedy. Before I took the Emulsion I had no appetite; was weak; had lost nearly fifty pounds of flesh, and now I eat well and am gaining every day. I find Scott's Emulsion to be very easily digested and a good food for all weak people."—FLORENCE BLEEKER, No. 1 Myrtle Avenue, Bridgeton, N. J.

has given an appetite. It's so easily digested that it doesn't tax the digestive organs and they rest; yet the body is wonderfully nourished and built up. The digestion is improved—then ordinary food is sufficient.

Growing boys and girls, who need so much food to keep them well and strong, and also growing, should be given a bottle of SCOTT'S EMULSION every few weeks. It does wonders for them. It prevents their getting run down and spindly. Nothing does them so much good.

ALL DRUGGISTS

Let us send you some letters and literature on this subject. A Post Card, giving your address and the name of this paper, is sufficient.

LEARN DRESS CUTTING and MAKING

Class to Commence at Y. W.C.A., March 8th

Wanted, ladies to learn dress cutting, dress making and coat making. No accomplishment you can acquire will prove to you of such everyday life-long value as a practical knowledge of dress making. We teach you everything from the plainest shirt waist to the most elaborate toilet, and guarantee perfect satisfaction. We stand prepared to forfeit $25 to any lady, who, after taking our course can show us an article in dress making she cannot cut, fit and put together. Not only the lining, but all the outer goods in coats, skirts, waists, sleeves, wrappers, girdles, children's clothes, etc.

Charge for full course is now only $10, including one of the most perfect systems in use. A few days' trial are given. If the student then finds the course not all we have advertised it to be, she has the privilege to stop, as there is no pay in advance.

A day and also an evening class will be taught.

All wishing to learn or for full particulars, be sure to meet me on Saturday, March 6th, at the Y.W.C.A., Peterborough

MISS VALENS
Instructor, Hamilton, Ont., P.O. Box 381

This course is also successfully taught by mail. Write for full particulars.

Swept Through a Sewer.

New York, Feb. 18.—Falling into a rapidly flowing sewer after a tumble down an open manhole and later shooting through a narrow pipe for a distance of 250 feet, to be finally fished out of the East river at the end of a cleverly thrown lasso, was the unusual experience here yesterday of Rocco Tonsoni, an Italian laborer engaged in repairing a bulkhead at 110th street and the East river.

United States Naval Bill.

Washington, Feb. 18.—The naval bill carrying total appropriations of about $236,000, was yesterday passed by the United States Senate after having been under consideration for three days.

The bill was yesterday changed by the restoration of the House provision for two battleships of 26,000 tons displacement, to cost $6,000,000 each.

Freights in Collision.

Guelph, Feb. 18.—Two freight trains ran foul of each other Tuesday night about 11 o'clock at the junction, with the result that a cattle car was so badly smashed that it had to be burned. There were no cattle in the car.

The wreckage was burned up so promptly that yesterday morning there was nothing to indicate what had happened.

Civil War Nurse Dead.

Washington, Feb. 18.—Miss Emily Virginia Mason of a famous Virginia family, who won fame during the civil war as a nurse of confederate soldiers and who ministered to union soldiers at Libbey prison, is dead in this city, aged 94.

Arrest Alleged Forger.

Niagara Falls, Feb. 18.—Emil Breber, alleged forger, came before the magistrate yesterday on a charge of forging Ald. W. J. Homan's name to a $350 check. His attorney asked that he be remanded, in order that an examination as to the man's sanity might be made.

Sues For $20,000.

Kingston, Feb. 18.—Mrs. Agnes Spooner, wife of the late William Spooner, killed along with his son at the Montreal street crossing of the Grand Trunk Railway, is suing for $20,000 damages for the loss of her husband and son, and also $1,000 for her own injuries.

Dies at 115.

Brantford, Feb. 18.—The death has been reported to the Indian authorities here of John Silversmith, a resident of Tuscorara Township, in his 115th year.

Deceased retained all his faculties until recently. He was a basket maker.

Smallpox at Cobourg.

Port Hope, Feb. 18.—The town of Cobourg has several cases of smallpox and strict measures will be taken to stamp out the disease. Tents will be erected as isolation hospitals. Already the Albion Hotel has been closed and a quarantine established.

Two Boys in Trouble.

Niagara Falls, Feb. 18.—Harold Teris and George McFadden, two G.N.W. Telegraph messengers from Toronto, are detained here on information from the G.N.W. manager in Toronto. They were taken back by their mothers last night.

Sir James Whitney Pleads For Dispatch in Legislature.

DEBATE ON SPEECH BEGINS

W. H. Hearst and J. W. Johnson Move and Second Address From Throne—Premier Wants to Close the Session by Good Friday, If Possible—Number of Bills Are Given Their First Reading.

Toronto, Feb. 18.—In opening the debate on the speech from the throne, W. H. Hearst and J. W. Johnson occupied the chief positions in the legislative procedure yesterday. Both delivered excellent speeches.

Sir James Whitney spoke at some length on the procedure in the House and foreshadowed the close of the session by Good Friday. The procedure was as perfect as experience could suggest, but they had fallen into a loose, happy-go-lucky way of doing business. A great number of the members lived a long distance from Toronto. Was it fair for members who lived 50 to 125 miles away to ask the others to spend all their time in Toronto, when they only spent three days a week here, as they had been doing? Any ordinary session could be got through in seven weeks if they worked four days instead of three. He suggested that members do not leave the city till Saturday morning, and sit every other evening. He also thought that a motion which was allowed to pass on the order paper twice should be struck off.

Hon. Mr. Mackay said that if the week end was to be of any use Monday should be cut out entirely. Sir James said he would be glad to confer with Mr. MacKay on the matter, and would undertake that no divisions would be taken on Monday.

Allan Studholme was sorry the Premier did not suggest a fine for absence. If any lawyer or doctor then preferred his profession to the Legislature he should resign his seat. He himself had to work ten hours a day when he worked, and was fined an hour if he was five minutes late.

"Men coming lobbying ought to be tagged so that we can know them," declared the Labor member. One man had shaken his fist in a member's face last year.

D. J. McDougall suggested that the adoption of the Ottawa rules in dealing with private bills assisted the despatch of business.

Preliminary estimates were passed for $750,000.

Hon. Mr. Matheson said there were several millions on hand, but they could not pay out any.

Albert Grigg, the new member for Algoma, instead of W. R. Smyth, M.P., was introduced by the Premier and Hon. Frank Cochrane.

Hon. A. G. MacKay asked if any action had been taken under subsection 4, ch. 6, of last session dealing with cinematographs.

Hon. A. J. Matheson replied that the legislation had been insufficient, and that further legislation was intended this session, and regulations would be passed at once.

The speech from the throne was then taken up. The debate will be continued to-day by James McKwing for the Opposition, Joseph Downey for the Government and R. J. McCormack and D. J. McDougall for the Opposition. No other Government speakers have yet been arranged. It is possible the debate may be closed this week.

Hon. A. G. MacKay will ask to-day:

1. When was a branch or subdepartment of forestry established under the Government of Ontario; when was the said branch or subdepartment abolished and why?

2. Is there now any official of the Government of Ontario whose duty it is to deal with forest conservation or reforestration or either of them?

3. Does the Government intend to re-establish a sub-department of forestry?

4. Have any forest reserves been established or set aside since the beginning of the year 1905?

5. Have any lands been set aside for reforestration since the beginning of the year 1905?

Mr. Carnegie will introduce a bill to amend the Municipal Act, and Mr. Boyer one to amend the Pharmacy Act.

First readings were given the following bills, arising out of the statutory revision, introduced by Hon. J. J. Foy. Discussion on these will be confined to committee. Premier Whitney promised that the changes would be shown in specially prepared copies for the Opposition. The bills were: Respecting arbitration and references; to amend Judicature Act; respecting public officers; respecting witnesses and evidence; respecting juries and jurors; to provide prompt punishment for personation at elections of Legislative Assembly; respecting counties and district judges and local courts; respecting courts of general sessions of the peace; respecting county court judges and criminal courts; respecting estates and forfeitures; enabling boards of trade in certain cities to appoint arbitration for certain purposes; for expediting decisons of constitutional and other provincial questions; respecting absconding debtors; for more effectually securing the liberty of the subject; respecting the enforcement of judge's orders; respecting the costs in distress for seizure of chattels; respecting crown attorneys; respecting commissioners for taking affidavits; respecting notaries public; respecting dower, respecting executions.

LONDON, Feb. 17.—London cables for cattle are steady, at 12½c to 13½c per pound, dressed weight; refrigerator beef is quoted at 10½c to 10¾c per pound.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Feb. 17.—(Special.)—At the Canadian Live Stock Market this morning, the offerings were 600 cattle, 100 sheep and lambs, 150 hogs and 150 calves. Owing to the stormy weather, trains were late in arriving, and in consequence some live stock had to be carried over for another market. There was a good attendance of buyers, and, as they all wanted some cattle, the demand was much better than was anticipated, and an active trade was done. The undertone to the market was strong, and especially for all the best grades, as the supply of such was rather limited, but prices showed no actual change as compared with Monday. Choice steers sold at 5½c; good at 5c to 5¼c; fair at 4½c to 4¾c, and lower grades at 3½c to 4½c; good cows at 3½c to 4½c; common cows at 2½c to 3½c, and bulls at 2½c to 4½c per pound.

Supplies of sheep and lambs were small, for which there was an active demand, and prices were very firm at the recent advance. Lambs sold at 5½c to 6½c, and sheep at 3½c to 4c per lb.

There was an active demand for calves, and sales were made at from $3 to $10 each, as to size and quality. Very much stronger feeling developed in the market for hogs to-day, and prices advanced 25c to 25c per 100 pounds. The supply was small, for which there was an improved demand, and sales of selected lots were made at $7.50 per 100 lbs., weighed off cars.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

Veals—Receipts, 200 head; active and 25c higher, $7 to $10.

Hogs—Receipts, 4800 head; fairly active and steady; heavy, $6.80 to $6.90; mixed, $6.75 to $6.85; pigs, $6.50 to $6.65; dairies, $6.50 to $6.75.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 6000 head; active; sheep steady; lambs 15c to 20c higher; lambs, $5 to $8; a few, $8.05.

New York Live Stock.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Beeves—Receipts, 1742; steers very dull and 10c to 15c lower; bulls and cows generally 10c to 15c higher; steers, $4 to $6.63½; bulls, $3.50 to $4.50; cows, $2 to $4. Exports to-day, 4275 quarters of beef.

Calves—Receipts, 684; veals 25c to 50c higher; barnyard and western calves nominal; veals, $5 to $10.50; culls, $5 to $5.50.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 7571; sheep almost nominal but firm; lambs 10c to 15c higher, quality considered; sheep, all common, $4.50; fair to prime lambs, $7.50 to $8.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO, Feb. 17.—Cattle—Receipts, estimated at 21,000; market 10c to 15c lower; steers, $5 to $7.15; cows, $3.00 to $6.50; heifers, $3.85 to $6; bulls, $3.40 to $5.25; calves, $3.50 to $7.50; stockers and feeders, $3.25 to $5.50.

Hogs—Receipts estimated at 45,000; market 10c to 15c lower; choice heavy shipping, $6.40 to $6.50; butchers, $6.40 to $6.45; light, mixed, $6.2 5to $6.35; choice, light, $6.35 to $6.40; packing, $6.20 to $6.45; pigs, $5.35 to $6.30; bulk of sales, $6.30 to $6.45.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts estimtaed at 15,000; market for sheep steady, but medium lambs were 10c to 15c lower; sheep, $5.75; lambs, $6.25 to $7.25; yearlings, $5 to $7.

Watched Doctors Cut Out Appendix.

New York, Feb. 18.—Dr. Edward J. Robbins, a veterinary surgeon of Baysmore, Long Island, refused to take ether when he had his appendix removed last week. He remained quiet throughout the operation and just four days after it he drove five miles to his home.

The following day he was attending to his practice. The case is believed to be without a parallel.

Morse Free During Day.

New York, Feb. 18.—Charles W. Morse, under an order of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, given on Tuesday, though technically a prisoner in the Tombs, may now go round the city and attend to his private business affairs like any other citizen.

But he will have to sleep in the Tombs every night.

Blow to Turkish Government.

London, Feb. 18.—A despatch to The Times from Constantinople says that the refusal of Nazim Pasha to return to his command in Adrianople or accept any post in the new Government is a serious blow. In addition to the prestige of his name, he would greatly strengthened the new Ministry.

Congress Meets March 15.

Washington, Feb. 18.—The extra session of Congress will be convened on March 15.

Out of Port.

Old Timer—The worst experience I ever had was when we ran out of port in a gale of wind. The Amateur—Gracious! I thought sailors always drank rum.

Burglar Caught Red-Handed.

Hamilton, Feb. 18.—About 10.30 last night the police nabbed a burglar red-handed in the residence of Mrs. Edmonstone, 76 Napier street. All the members of the family went out to spend the evening, and when they returned they found John Douglas in the house. He had ransacked the place and several purses were found on him. He was under the influence of liquor. He had got into the house by smashing a rear window.

Four Trainmen Sent For Trial.

Guelph, Feb. 18.—Four men served in Stratford on the manslaughter charge were before Magistrate Saunders yesterday morning at the Police Court, and were committed for trial at the spring Assizes this month, with Engineer Kennedy and Conductor Fleming, already committed. The men are Firemen Frank T. Lane, Front Brakeman W. J. Alexander, Rear Brakeman A. B. Burgman and Flagman Harvey Jackson.

Convicted of Usury.

Ottawa, Feb. 18.—A. Foibes, J. H. Dube, M. J. Harty and Mrs. A. Labaise were found guilty of usury yesterday, and were allowed to go on suspended sentence. The case against Walter Hatch was dismissed.

Those found guilty will give $1,000 security for good conduct.

The magistrate ruled that they had been trying to live up to the letter, if not the spirit, of the law.

Must Be Represented.

London, Feb. 18.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Standard demands direct representation of the overseas states on the committee of imperial defence as a condition prior to any rational organization of imperial naval and military forces.

Poor Richard's Almanac.

Dr. Franklin himself in one of the last numbers of the almanac gathered together all the best sayings of Poor Richard, which for twenty-five years had amused and edified the country. These sayings are in constant use at this day. For example, "Early to bed and early to rise makes a man healthy, wealthy and wise;" "Drive thy business—let it not drive thee;" "Help hands, for I have no lands;" "No gains without pains;" "Constant dropping wears away stones;" "Three removes are as bad as a fire;" "He that by the plow would thrive must himself either hold or drive;" "A fat kitchen makes a lean will;" "Experience keeps a dear school, but fools will learn in no other." It was such homely maxims as these inserted in all the little gaps of the almanac that made it so popular. Franklin said he sometimes sold 10,000 copies in a year, a wonderful sale for that day. The first number of Poor Richard's Almanac appeared in 1732.

Not Well to Butt In.

"After the crash," imparted the first hospital surgeon to the second, "I ran over to where it lay on the pavement, and when I raised it up I saw at once that its ribs were smashed, while a gaping hole was torn in its"—

"Pardon me, doctor," broke in the medical student, who had caught these words as he was about to pass by into the consumptive ward, "but if you have no objections I'd like to take a few notes on that accident case." He pulled his notebook from his pocket. "Was the case a child?"

"No," the surgeon informed him to his embarrassment. "I was speaking of my umbrella."—Judge.

A Needed Change.

The navy department once received from the commander in chief of the fleet an official communication relative to certain changes recommended by him to be made in the uniform shirt of the enlisted men. In accordance with custom this letter was forwarded to various officials for comment or expression of opinion, the remarks of each officer being appended on an indorsement slip. Each indorsement introduces the subject matter of the letter in a brief, and one of them thus tersely explained the contents: "Commander in chief desires to change shirt."—Lippincott's.

Rhythm in Rowing.

Rowing means much more than mere exercise of muscles. Over it all lies the strong spell of ordered movement, the delight of pure rhythm, which the rowing man is perfectly justified in claiming must be experienced to be understood.—Field.

GLASSES ARE PLENTIFUL

But it is almost a certainty that they would be even more common still if everybody were those who should. You find people doing without them just as long as they possibly can, which is a very wrong thing to do, indeed, every day makes the case harder to deal with. If you, Reader, have the slightest cause to believe that your eyes need the attention of an Optician, we shall be pleased to advise you if you need glasses, and if glasses are not necessary we will tell you so. We invite you to call and ask us about your eyes.

WAS HOMELESS AND THEY TOOK HIM IN, WAS ILL AND THEY ATTENDED HIM—WHAT DID HE DO?

Armenians Have a Lively Time in Division Court at Norwood Yesterday—Wild Gestures and Loud Language From the Ten Foreigners Who Were Examined—A Busy Session for a Time.

JUDGE WELLER PRESIDED

Judge Weller was in Norwood on Wednesday afternoon hearing a case in which all concerned were Armenians and from all accounts he had his hands full in preserving order and trying to catch the meaning of the endless patter they maintained. About a dozen of the foreigners were examined and a report says that the session was a spirited one. Wild gesticulations, stormy passages at one another, rapid fire broken English mixed with straight Armenian, threats made at one another all combined to present a very difficult case to handle. The Old Land people are exceedingly excitable, easily perturbed and wordy and dramatic in their spontaneous oratory.

The Case

Edna Isaacs and her husband, Thos. Isaacs, claimed separate accounts from George Mike. The woman asked for $90 for attending the defendant during an illness of three months. Her better half is looking for three months board at the rate of three dollars a week, amounting to about $30 or $40. Owing to the evidence, Mike, the defendant, went to the Isaac home on the 21st of May, last. He was ill and required attendance and care. He was ill until August 29th, requiring constant attendance. He left his benefactors' home on September 18th without having made any settlement. Such is a statement of the claims. Ten Syrian witnesses were examined, but all the evidence was not then in. Accordingly an adjournment was called until the next session of the Division Court. Mr. Geo. Sherry, of Norwood, appeared for the plaintiffs, and Mike's interests were in the hands of Mr. O A Eagley, of Lakefield.

A large number of the residents of Norwood attended the court and were greatly amused by the words and actions of the Armenians. Some of them at times did not understand the questions put to them, particularly, if the answer would not be in their favour. However, if it would advance their cause, their powers of comprehension showed signs of sudden revival. Eloquence abounded, the Armenians showing many of the qualities of natural orators.

His Honour's sitting for the evidence of importance required perseverance and it is safe to say that it is some time since he has heard a case in which there was as much talk to the second as that of yesterday.

MESSRS. LANG & MAHER ARE GIVING UP THEIR STORE IN LINDSAY

The Lindsay Whitchman-Warden says: Messrs Lang and Maher, who opened up a new clothing and furnishings store in town about a year ago, have decided to withdraw their interests in Lindsay, and combine their forces at their Peterborough store.

While getting a good fair share of the trade (considering the quiet times that have been general) they feel their interests will be better served by devoting all of their time to their Peterborough store, where they have a large and growing business, and a reputation for handling a grade of clothing that few houses in Ontario handle.

CASE OF MURDER AND SUICIDE IN TAXICAB AT READING

Examiner Special.

Reading, Eng., Feb. 18.—While speeding along in a taxicab here early today, Stella Rock, 18 years old, was shot and killed, and her companion, George S. Kraut, 20 years old, after directing the chauffeur to hurry to a hospital, turned the revolver that killed the girl upon himself and sent a bullet into his own heart; dying almost instantly. The couple engaged the taxicab shortly before 1 o'clock this morning, and when the vicinity of the young women's home was reached, the chauffeur, Louis Becker, was startled by the report of a shot inside the cab. A moment later, Becker declared, the man in the cab yelled to him excitedly to drive to the hospital. Having reached the hospital door, Miss Rock was taken in a heap out of the seat, with a bullet in her head. Kraut was a telephone inspector. The authorities believe it is a case of murder and suicide.

RUSSIAN PEOPLE ARE ATTRACTED BY VERY STRANGE MANIA FOR SUICIDE

London, Feb. 17.—The Daily Mail's St. Petersburg correspondent declares that neurasthenia is claiming an ever increasing number of victims in all sections of St. Petersburg society. A surprising number of people, tired of life, seek death by various methods. Persons of fashionable society journey to Finland and fling themselves into the romantic Imatra Rapids. Strange clubs and societies are in existence. One of these is styled "Tiger and Hunter." Two members draw lots to decide who will be the tiger and who the hunter. A silver bell is hung around the tiger's neck and the hunter is given a loaded revolver. Both enter large darkened rooms and the spectators take refuge in safe corners.

The hunt begins. The hunter's eyes are bound; he is allowed six shots, guided by the sound of the bell. If he fails to hit the tiger, the roles are reversed and the hunter becomes the tiger. This continues until blood flows.

Another society has "champagne evenings," where one among twenty bottles is drugged with morphia. Some times in a single night there are numerous secret suicides, for which there is no plausible explanation, giving rise, says the Mail's correspondent to the suspicion that the victims belong to the same league of self destruction.

A RIFLE RANGE FOR PETERBORO IS SUGGESTED BY LOCAL MARKSMAN

FACILITIES ARE NEEDED.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir—I have always had a keen interest in military matters, and rifle shooting especially, having put in 22 years service in the Canadian militia, and have been twice on teams who have won the British Challenge Shield at the D. R. A. meeting at Ottawa, and have won other team and individual prizes, so speak whereof I know.

Since coming to Peterborough I have been much surprised at the apathy shown in regard to this most necessary part of a militiaman's training through lack of necessary ranges.

The new armouries are now complete and are a credit to all concerned in their erection, but to complete equipment for proper training new ranges are now more imperatively required.

Peterborough has a fine body of men in the 57th but owing to lack of facilities for practice few of the members know anything about the use of the main tool they would use in active service. All riflemen know that the rifles issued by the government are not properly adjusted as to their sights; at 600 yards one rifle might be accurate and another shoot ten feet to one side; even when found to be right with one man, difference in eye sight or holding may cause a variation of some feet at long ranges.

Then there is the effect of wind and changes of light and other things to take into account, things that cannot be learned except on the ranges and under a good instructor.

How many Sergeants could direct rifle fire accurately and teach their men to shoot to hit? They and their men might know their drills and all the regulations issued by the war office, but if they cannot shoot, they are only so much food for bullets. It would be more than murder to send men out to active service who did not know how to protect themselves.

Although there are no signs of war and we hope there never will be, still when it does come it will be at short notice and we should be prepared.

I do not know who is responsible for the state of things here but whoever is should make an effort to provide adequate range accommodation.

I am not trying to discourage any non-com. or man in the 57th. They are a good battalion and if they had a chance would only be too glad to perfect themselves in this necessary accomplishment.

There are a few good shots still left and they would be only too glad to help beginners. Then as a sport there is no more clean and manly sport than shooting and I think that every boy should be taught to handle a rifle and shoot. He can be taught to drill on the field in a short time, but it requires time to make a good shot.

Thanking you for this insertion I remain,

RIFLESHOT

UNUSUAL FATALITY

Child Broke Its Neck While Reaching Out to Pick Up a Pet Kitten.

FELL FROM THE CRADLE.

Examiner Special.

Flesherton, Ont., Feb. 18. — The child of Mr. John Brown, a farmer living near this village, fell out of its carriage and dislocated its neck.

The mother, who was churning, gave it a small kitten to play with. The kitten jumped away from the child, and in attempting to get it again the accident occurred. The babe was eleven months old and was an only child.

THE MESSINA EARTHQUAKE PICTURES AT ROYAL THEATRE

The announcement is made in another column of this issue that the calamitous scenes in the recent great earthquake in Messina and other portions of Italy will be shown in the moving picture series at the Royal Theatre tomorrow. It is said that these are the first films of the original pictures of this calamity shown in Canada. They come direct from Europe and were secured at great expense. Mr. Pappas, of the Royal Theatre, was determined that he should be the first to reproduce these sensationally stirring pictures, and has been working patiently towards that result regardless of expense. The public will no doubt eagerly take advantage of the opportunity which Mr. Pappas' entreprise has thus put within their reach, and crowded houses are expected at the Royal Theatre while the earthquake pictures are running.

Concealed Tragedy in North Prospector Frozen To Death Body Strangely Disappears

Second Case of a Similar Nature Reported From the Gowganda Silver Field—Case is Somewhat of a Mystery.

DEAD MAN'S KIT OBSCURED THE BODY—FOUND IN HIS HUT.

Examiner Special.

Toronto, Feb. 18.—A pathetic story of the Gowganda silver fields was told yesterday in a local railway office by a man but lately returned from the district.

It goes to show the dangers confronting those who in the mad rush for riches go unprepared into the cold north land.

During the last week a prospector going through the district between Burwash Lake and Sellwood came upon the dead body of a man in a little hut. All the circumstances pointed to death by freezing.

Owing to the depth of the snow and the hardness of the ground it was impossible to bury the man where he was found, so the corpse was loaded upon a toboggan. The little tent and supplies belonging to the unfortunate man were piled up upon him and the whole tightly wrapped in, completely obscuring the grim contents beneath.

Down at Sellwood Junction, the terminus of the C. N. O. Railway line, the whole was shipped on the train with a live prospector's effects. On arriving at Sudbury the police were notified and the body later claimed.

The prospector was unknown and has not since been seen.

This was the second parcel of a like nature shipped down with other effects and the railway conducted an inquiry, with the result that the above circumstances came to light. The second body was also claimed.

Previous to this two men had been reported missing and this probably clears up the mystery.

Mr. Jas. R. Bell Begins His Sixth Year In Business To-day

To-day Mr Jas. R. Bell commenced his sixth year in the grocery business which he established and has successfully conducted in his store on Hunter street. During the past five years he has diligently applied himself to his work, gradually increasing the number of his customers with each succeeding year. Enterprise and application have been two of the key notes to his success, which should in the future increase proportionately to that attained during the past five years.

He also has a store in East City having purchased the business and good will of Mr J. Malan, Hunter street east. In both establishments Mr. Bell carries a complete line of choice groceries and assures prompt delivery. Mr. Bell is one of the grocers of the younger set, but he has already displayed business ability worthy of more advanced years.

Must Pay For Damage To G. T. R. Coach On Hockey Excursion

Examiner Special.

Port Hope, Feb. 18.—Mr. H. C. Brundrett has received a notice from the Grand Trunk Railway Co., claiming 7 dollars for damages to the car on the excursion train from Whitby a couple of weeks ago. Of course Mr. Brundrett or the hockey team were not responsible in any way for the damage and naturally do not feel like bearing the expense. Mr. Brundrett has the names of the unruly ones on that evening, and if they do not come along with the necessary amount, he will hand their names over to the G.T.R., and let that Company carry on the prosecution.

It seems strange that young men cannot go out for an evening's pleasure without smashing and defacing property, and the Grand Trunk should be given every assistance in bringing the guilty ones to justice.

St. Peter's T. A. S. Entertained By The Society At Ennismore

A party of the members of St. Peter's T. A. S. made a pleasant trip to Ennismore last night and were the guests of St. Martin's T. A. S. Sleighs left the city at 7.30 arriving at Ennismore about nine o'clock. The gathering at the hall was a happy one and a very pleasant time was the result. Euchre was the pastime which served to occupy the first part of the evening, and Ennismore players managed to win out by six points.

A delightful luncheon was afterwards provided and was succeeded by a short musical programme during which speeches were made by Rev. Father Fitzpatrick, Rev. Father McFadden, Ald. Duffus, Mr. P. J. Stollard, Nicholas Bibby, Principal O'Donoghue.

The members of St. Peter's T. A. S. state that they were most hospitably entertained. Before the season is concluded it is expected that Ennismore will be the guests of the local society.

Taking Care Of Children Is Truest Possible Economy

Regina, Sask., Feb. 16.—Mr. J. J. Kelso, superintendent of Neglected Children under the Ontario Government, is in Saskatchewan spending two weeks touring the Province at the request of the local Government for the purpose of explaining modern methods of dealing with child delinquents. He has also been requested to visit British Columbia before returning home.

"The truest economy," said Mr. Kelso, "is the taking care of children and seeing that they grow up to be respectable men and women. In Ontario last year we had 11,000 persons in prison, costing for their maintenance $340,000. In addition to this the neglect of children had led to the growth of a very expensive charitable system. Last year the charities of Toronto cost $320,000 for maintenance. In addition to the large sums of money contributed by the municipality, churches, and benevolent organizations in the form of outdoor relief. If the children are brought up in clean moral surroundings and given a fair amount of education, the reasonable expectation is that they will become industrious, self-sustaining men and women, and charity would almost be done away with."

ARRESTED ON OLD OFFENCE FROM 1901 WHILE ANSWERING A RECENT CHARGE

Walter and Edward Herron, who live on an island in Mud Lake, near Bridgenorth, came into the city this morning to answer to the charge of illegal fishing on Sunday, February 7th. They appeared before Magistrate Edmison this morning, but the case was not settled at that. They went out to find the inspector, but this afternoon P. C. Newhall crossed their path with a warrant for the arrest of Walter on an old charge, which had been preferred against him in August, of 1901. He was to have appeared before Mr. Jas. Stevenson, acting for Magistrate Dumble, on the charge of having ove driven a horse so that it had to be killed. Walter did not answer the charge, but he will probably have to go through the workings of the police court to-morrow morning, even if they have been delayed eight years. The result of the county court case was that a mild fine of $2 each was imposed by Magistrate Edmison.

BOOKS AND THE DRAMA.

Periodically the conscience of the public receives a shock by the announcement of the production of some startling book or drama. The latest "arouser" has been a play, a presentation of which was given in this city on Wednesday evening. There was absolutely nothing deleterious to morals in its presentation, and doubtless the same may be said of its production elsewhere in Canada. But the play has received a bad name in other lands, and, going on the principle that eternal vigilance is the price of safety, the Ministerial Association is to be commended for the protest entered against its production in Peterborough. Without, however, going into the question of the good or bad effect of plays, of whatever description, it seems strange that whilst so much concern is evinced over those of a suggestive nature, so little thought is given to the harm occasioned by the publication of vicious literature. There is a wide field for the moral reformer in this regard. The amount of licentious "rot" bound up in the volumes of so-called classic authors, is tremendous. It is preserved from putrefaction and oblivion solely by the literary style in which it is embalmed, and we have seen volume upon volume helping to fill the shelves even of the clergy. There is many a poet, many a prose writer, whose productions, beautifully written though they may be would leave the world richer for their destruction. But one never hears of a protest being raised against reprints of such books, whose ideas and illustrations, however suited they may have been to the tastes of the period in which they were written, are certainly somewhat out of keeping with the elevated ideas of the present.

AN EQUIVALENT.

The bill which Hon. G P Graham, Minister of Railways and Canals has introduced and is guiding through the various legislative stages, bears upon the Government policy of making the Railway Commission increasingly useful, and also has a bearing upon a large question, that of public ownership and operation of public utilities. The enlarged powers or increased range of functions that have been conferred upon the Railway Commission since its organization, go a long way towards representing an equivalent of public ownership. The control it exercises over railway rates and other matters in which the protection of the purse and rights of the public are concerned, eliminates any peril of monopolistic or injurious exercise of corporate authority, hostile to the public interests and assures all the benefits which the most optimistic advocate could fairly claim for government operation, without the immense attendant expense involved in the freehold acquirement of public utilities and with no responsibilities in the matter of profits or otherwise, the latter of which generally obtains under Government management. The Intercolonial Railway built as a condition of Confederation, has under successive Governments been conducted with an eye to at least equalizing expense and revenue, but only by spasms has this desideratum been temporarily reached. Is it a reasonable assumption that if this railway had been under private management it would have met with a success in operation that seems to be, from the very nature of things forbidden under Government management? A Commission which gives all the advantages of public ownership in respect of railways, express companies, telegraph and telephone lines and new water powers on government waterways seems to assure all the advantages of public ownership, without the disadvantages of the financial responsibility, of cost of acquirement and operation, not to speak of the discouragement of private enterprise in promotion of great enterprises and the establishment of depressing patern-alism.

PULP AND PAPER DUTIES.

With the conservation of national natural resources so much to the fore in both Canada and the United States, the following from the Ottawa Free Press in regard to paper and pulp duties will be found both timely and of interest:

The intimation from Washington that the forthcoming measure of tariff reform will include the placing of both news paper and pulp upon the free list, will, if true, mark a new era in the relations between Canada and the United States. It will be a significant appreciation by our neighbours to the south of the natural wealth of Canada, and it will be a justification of the policy of the Canadian Government in declining to accede to the demands for the imposition of an export duty on pulpwood.

It is to be hoped that the continental conference which is to meet at Washington this week to consider the conservation of the natural resources of the continent will be able to suggest some modus vivendi by which the forest wealth of the continent may be preserved without injury to the commercial interests of both Canada and the United States.

In this connection, Mr. J. R. Barber, of the Georgetown, Ont., paper mills, makes an interesting suggestion through the columns of the "Pulp and Paper Magazine of Canada." Mr. Barber is not a believer in the export of Canadian pulpwood to the United States, because he believes that the time has come when the United States is ready and willing to make a "square deal" with Canada. What Mr. Barber would recommend, and what he believes would meet the requirements of the great majority of the pulp and paper manufacturers of the United States with the least disorganization of the industry on both sides, is an agreement whereby the United States would admit Canadian pulp free of duty, in return for an agreement on our part not to prohibit nor put any export duty on wood for pulp making.

"To make such an agreement of value to Canadian manufacturers and acceptable to American interests, Canada and the United States would require to have a common policy as regards the outside world. The present duty on bleached sulphite pulp coming into the United States is $6 a ton, on unbleached two-thirds of that, and on ground wood, one third of $5. The Canadian duty is 25 per cent. ad valorem, and on high grade pulps, the only kind we import, it works to the serious disadvantage of the Canadian paper maker. The Canadian mills buy at, say, $32.50 in Boston in bond. He pays 70c. duty and 20c. per 100 freight to his mill. The United States fine paper mill pays 25c. duty and an average freight of 15c., making the cost at his mill $3.20 as against $3.70 which the Canadian mill would have to pay. The English paper mill gets the same pulp at $2.65 ex dock, which, with the freight of 15c., makes the cost $2.80 to the British manufacturer, $3.20 to the United States manufacturer, but $3.70 to the Canadian manufacturer. The English paper manufacturer is favoured with cheap capital, cheap coal and cheap labour, and is thus under our present tariff permitted to bring paper into Canada, paying only 15 per cent. on the manufactured goods, while the Canadian manufacturer has to pay 25 per cent. on the raw material. Therefore, to benefit the Canadian and the United States paper manufacturer without injury to the pulp producer in either country, Canada should adopt the American specific duty as against all the world excepting the United States, conditional, of course, upon the United States taking the duty off Canadian made pulp."

The Dominion Government at present neither levies an export duty on pulpwood nor prohibits its exportation. Of course it must always be borne in mind that the Provincial Governments have the right to sell the products of their Crown lands under any conditions which they think it wise to impose, but Mr. Barber feels satisfied that they would confer with the Federal Government and unite on a policy that would ensure the condition for a settled national policy in this question.

Such a policy would, it is claimed, create the least disturbance of existing conditions in business, and would lead to a natural and healthy development of the pulp and paper industries in Canada for a while to come.

But granting all this, there is the future has furnished us with enormous water powers and we suppose the people of the United States—at least, those directly engaged in these industries—now recognize that Canada holds the key of the position as regards the possession of raw materials.

But granting all this there is the greater question of conserving our forests for their influence on the flow of streams, the maintenance of water powers, the prevention of soil denudation, etc., which the people of Canada should consider, and that problem is graver than even the fate of the pulp and paper mills, important though these industries are. A generation of men, with their passing material interests soon dies, but a nation should live for ages, and can the Canadian nation, seeing the crisis in which a carnival of waste of forest products has brought the American nation, remain blind to this picture of staggering folly? A wider patriotism must pause to consider whether the interests of America are wisely studied—even if Canadians could detach themselves from the consideration of their own patrimony—when they consent to an arrangement which concentrates the process of desolation on the northern half of the continent ere after it has eaten up so much of the vitality of the southern half.

And it is one of the most gratifying signs of the times to note how the public men, from the Governor-General down, including members of both political parties in the Dominion Parliament and the Ontario and Quebec Legislatures, are now devoting consideration to this important question of the conservation of our natural resources.

USEFUL AND LOYAL.

The Hon. Mr. Templeman, Minister of Inland Revenue in the Laurier Government, was defeated for Victoria, B. C., in the general elections of last October by one of the most brazen political tricks ever perpetrated. That he was not defeated on his merits or, rather, demerits, is shown by the fact that a leading Conservative journal, referring to his unopposed return in a bye election gives him a good name in the following, from the Vancouver Province Conservative:

On the whole little or no disappointment will be experienced in the province at large, even by Conservatives, at the return of Mr. Templeman. No principle was involved in the election, the disagreement of the people of British Columbia with the Federal Government on the questions of Asiatic immigration, better terms, and control by the province of its local assets having been abundantly marked by the elections in the other constituencies. Mr. Templeman's attitude on these questions during the general election campaign could not have been other than it was, since he was a member of the Dominion Cabinet. And the people of British Columbia have had no reason to take issue with Mr. Templeman on any other ground. He has been a useful and loyal friend of this province as Minister of the Crown, and his opportunities of being still more useful will be larger in the future than they have been in the past.

DIGNITY OF OWNERSHIP.

The Feeling of Pride That Is Born of Paying Taxes.

"Many a time," said a policeman in the southern part of the city, "when arresting men, especially intoxicated men, I have been told by my prisoner that he was a taxpayer and that he helped pay my wages.

"I always regarded this sort of back talk as merely drunken insolence and never paid much attention to it until about a year ago, when I bought a house and lot and became myself a taxpayer. I had always rented before and never gave a thought to taxes, but as soon as I moved into my own house I began to appreciate the feelings of men who resented arrest because they paid taxes.

"There is certainly a considerable addition to the dignity of the man who helps support the government. He feels a degree of responsibility that a renter or roomer never understands, and my idea is that every man in the country ought to become a taxpayer as soon as he can. And the mere fact that he does help support the government and bears his share of the expense makes him a better citizen. Habitual criminals are rarely taxpayers. They know they may have to run any day and perhaps never come back, so they do not buy real estate, but are roomers and lodgers all their lives."

A WHISTLER DINNER.

In the Pennells' "Life of James MacNeill Whistler" is the story of a dinner given by the eccentric artist in which he was assisted by Mr. Luke Lonides, who describes the banquet:

"I remember calling one early afternoon, when Jimmy was busy putting things straight. He asked me if I had any money. I told him I had 12 shillings. He said that was enough. We went out together, and he bought three chairs at two and sixpence each and three bottles of claret at eighteenpence each and three sticks of sealing wax of different colors at twopence each. On our return he sealed the top of each bottle with a different colored wax. He then told me he expected a possible buyer to dinner and two other friends. When we had taken our seats at the table he very solemnly told the maid to go down and bring up a bottle of wine, one of those with the red seal. The maid could hardly suppress a grin, but I alone saw it. Then, after the meal, he told her to fetch a bottle with the blue seal, and with dessert the one with the yellow seal was brought, and all were drunk in perfect innocence and delight. He sold his picture, and he said he was sure the sealing wax had done it."

A Queer Trunk Problem.

One of the minor problems that present themselves to managers of homes for elderly persons is the accumulation of trunks. Each new arrival brings one or more trunks, often several, and it is not expected that these ever will be taken away, as the inmates are to remain permanently. It is not, however, considered safe to sell the trunks or give them away, as they are the private property of the inmates, and there is a possibility that the trunks may be needed again through some change in affairs or fortunes. The trunks therefore pile up until they become the despair of managers, and it is a relief when some of the older or least substantial boxes break apart from mere decrepitude and can conscientiously be consigned to the scrap heap.—New York Press.

THE UNPOPULAR MOTHER.

Sad Policy to Trumpet Her Own Children as Prodigies.

She who takes sides in children's fights. The mother hen may fight for her brood, but if the human mother tries it even her youngsters are not grateful for the interference.

The mother who trumpets her children as prodigies. They may be wonders, but perfection palls when always in evidence. Besides, what a store of trouble for the children to live up to their mother's boasting!

She who thinks it clever for her little ones to be brutally frank and cannot distinguish between rudeness and witticism.

The mother who is such a poor disciplinarian that her sole conversation is, "Johnny, don't do that!" "Mamie, didn't I tell you to behave?" It pays to make children obey, both for their own popularity and that of the mother.

She who enjoys herself at the expense of the neighborhood. Some mothers play bridge all day, while their children run wild, nor are the Mrs. Jellybys extinct.

The mother who is sure you are dying to hear Arabelle's latest effort on the piano or Willie's newest recitation. The sufferer hates the mother for the forced fibs as much as for inflicted eardrums.

She who thinks dirt is healthy and does not bother much what sticky fingers touch. Mothers of fingerers generally come under the social ban.

The doting mother, who not only flatters her own offspring, but expects all her friends to back her up in admiration.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

In massaging wrinkles use the tips of the fingers and thumb, always working across the line. Never follow the lines of the creases.

For the baggy appearance under the eyes rub gently with the tips of the fingers dipped in alcohol. Afterward massage in the same way with cold cream.

A pallid skin indicates an anaemic condition of the blood, the lack of the red corpuscles. A good iron tonic is a necessity to improve such a complexion.

When shampooing never rub the soap directly on the hair, as it gums and is almost impossible to rub or rinse off. Always have the soap in some liquid form.

For falling hair try massaging the scalp nightly with a lotion made of three drams of pure glycerin, four ounces of limewater and half an ounce of tincture of cantharides.

Bushy, irregular eyebrows should be brushed lightly with a camel's hair brush dipped in olive oil. The same treatment is good for stiff and harsh eyebrows and is said to make them grow.

Pork should not be attempted as a food except with those who have constitutions and stomachs of iron, and then it should be thoroughly cooked. Children should never be allowed to touch it or veal.

A lotion recommended to whiten a red nose is made of seven and a half grains of tannic acid and two and a half ounces of camphor water. After the acid is dissolved the nose is moistened several times a day and at night, the liquid drying on.

A Deliberate Nation.

In a certain section of the country, where the natives take life easy, a young man and his sister were one day sitting on the porch when a funeral passed. The boy, who was whittling in a chair tilted comfortably back against the side of the house on its hind legs, remarked:

"I reckon ol' man Johnson's got about the biggest funeral that's ever been held around hyear."

"You betcher!" the boy answered.

"I would like to see it," replied the girl. "What a pity I ain't facin' that way!"

A Change of Tune.

"Mamma, I'm tired of going to school."

"What's the matter, Willie?"

"The teacher"—

"Now, don't you say a word against your teacher, Willie. I've no doubt you annoy her dreadfully, and she seems like a very nice sort of person."

"Well, she said this mornin' that she didn't think I had much of a bringin' up at home, an' "—

"Wait! Did she say that? Well, of all the coarse impudence! You shan't go back there another day!"

Exit Willie, grinning.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

GREAT INTEREST IN THE STRATHCONA-LAKEFIELD GAME HERE TO-NIGHT

There is a great sheet of ice ready for the big Strathcona — Lakefield game to-night and the fans should see another contest such as marked the meeting of the two teams two weeks ago. It will be a battle from the drop of the hat as the Strathconas will try and prove to the enthusiasts that they are a better team than the Cementville seven and should have won the city league title while on the other hand Leo Quinn's bunch state that they will prove that their victory in the city league final was no fluke by trimming the High Commissioners again. Both teams have kept in shape for the games and are determined to do their best to-night. The fans are taking great interest in the battle and know that it will practically the last big hockey match of the season will turn out in large numbers. The game will commence sharp at eight o'clock.

The Local Option seven will have the same line up that defeated the Strathconas in the city league finals, while the Strathcona will be without the services of Dotson, who is ill and unable to play. His place will be taken by Pete Weatherstone and the line will be shifted around some.

The line up will be as follows—

Lakefield		Strathconas

TORONTO VIEW OF THE MIDGETS AS GAINED FROM TUESDAY'S GAME

The Toronto Star has the following to say of the Lindsay - Toronto Rowing Club game :—

The Midgets beat the Oarsmen good, and made them like it, too, in the first half, but for twenty minutes of the second period the T.R.C. gave the lively crew of Midgets a merry struggle for the honours.

An excursion of 200 people went up from Toronto to see the game. While they were quite prepared to see the Rowing Club beaten, they looked for a closer score. The speed and ginger of the Lindsay lads made them sit up and take notice. Contrary to expectations, the Rowing Club team was almost matched in weight, and when it came to the hard bumps the oarsmen were iced more frequently than their opponents.

Some Close Checking

It was a close, hard checking, but clean game. Two men were hurt, but both were the result of accidents. Bill Whale, the Rowing Club's aggressive point player, met Leon Koyl, the husky, hard rushing point of the Midgets, when Koyl was coming down under full press of canvas. Whale stopped Koyl all right, but almost broke his shoulder in the bump. He was forced to retire for the remainder of the first half, but came back after half-time. Though badly damaged he was game enough to mix it again with Koyl. In fact, his little argument with Koyl was the spunky feature of the game. Whale pelted into Koyl pretty hard, but failed to stop Koyl's rushing. The other injured man was Stoddart. He bumped Curtis and damaged the shoulder, but came back in the second half, so that both teams were playing a cripple.

T. R. C. Were Strange

Lindsay's rink, while well lighted, is shorter and narrower than Mutual street Rink. The result was that the players bunched a good deal. The T. R. C. men were certainly hot at home on the cramped ice, and very seldom really got going, but at the same time the Lindsay lads cut loose so much speed that it was doubtful if the Rowing Club will be able to overcome that five-goal lead on the round Lindsay now has.

The Lindsay team were speedier all around than the Oarsmen. The way in which Koyl, Sullivan, Randall and Stoddart cut loose made the Rowing Club think that they had bumped into a team of Dissettes, Kyles and Timmins, with a few Bruce Ridpaths slipped in for good measure.

Koyl the Star

To pick out Lindsay's stars is a difficult task. They all shone. Newton in goal had an easy night, but he handled himself nicely. Koyl was always in the limelight. He sets sail very quickly, and once under way the T.R.C. forwards could not catch him, and he crashed into the Toronto defence like a wild thing. He didn't score, but he worried the life out of the oarsmen all night.

Sullivan at cover is somewhat of a rusher, too, and the way he lays on the tamarac, as they say in Lindsay, is enough to make a player wear a suit of mail. Stoddart at rover is a very nifty stick handler, and was good till he hurt himself.

Randall at centre is a peach. He had everything except weight. Even the Rowing Club rooters had to hand it to Randall.

Taylor and Cote on the wings put up a pretty good game, though at that Cote did not shine as was expected.

SPITBALL ARTIST IS LUMBERING

The largest part of the season he has spent logging in the woods adjoining the farm, and he has enjoyed this immensely. He has already cleared one section of timber on his farm and has enough thousands of feet of lumber ready for the market so that he does not have to worry whether he wears a baseball uniform next season or is wearing the overall uniform of the independent farmer.

"Yes, George Stallings has ordered me to report and go South, but I am not going South this year," says "Jack." "Really, while I know that my arm is now in much better shape than it has been in years, I do not care much whether I play ball or not. If Stallings wants me to join the team after the spring trip I may do so, but I have work enough to keep me busy right here on my farm, where I can get into better condition than by going South, and I am going to look after that work. "Stallings is all right. He is as good a manager to work for as any one can ask for, and if I decide to do any pitching this season, I will be with George and good old New York."

THE EAST CITY TEAM BEAT THE ORANGEMEN

The East City team defeated the L.O.L. team in an interesting game at Brock street rink last night by four goals to one. The Orangemen worked hard but could not find the nets, while the bunch from across the river gathered in four counters and won without trouble.

J. Gillespie made a very satisfactory referee and the teams were as follows:

East City.		L. O. L.

EXAM. B'S WON THREE BY DEFAULT

The Examiner B team won three games by default from the Hams in the Peterborough Bowling League at the P. B. C. alleys last night. The newspaper men were on hand but the Hams failed to put in an appearance and the scribes were given three counters which will boost their standing some making five out of six games won in the second round of the competition and fourteen out of the last twenty-four games played.

HOCKEY

A picked team from the Park Street Church, B. Garside, captain, challenges the All Saints' Junior Church League team to a game of hockey, to be played as soon as possible.

• • •

Mr. Geo. Lynch is in Midoc tonight refereeing a game of hockey between Marmora and the home team.

• • • •

St. Peter's T.A.S. hockey team will go to Bobcaygeon on Saturday afternoon to play seven of that town. The game had been arranged for last Saturday, but was called off at the last moment. Manager Deannard still expects the team to make the trip unless something else intervenes to call this latter arrangement off.

The Rough Riders challenge the Collegiate Institute hockey team to a game of hockey to be played at Brock street rink as soon as possible. The Riders state that they wish to give the Collegiate Institute a chance to beat them at hockey, as they have been claiming in "Collegiate Echoes" the official organ of the school, that the victory gained by the Rough Riders in the City Rugby League was a fluke.

• • • •

In addition to the Stratuconas-Lakefield game at the Brock street rink to-night commencing at 8 o'clock sharp, there will be three other games, The G. T. R. and C. P. R. play between 7 and 8, the Rock Works and L. T. R's between 9 and 10; and the Machine and Bell Telephone between 10 and 11. The admission for all four games will be 15 cents for gentlemen and 15 cts. for ladies. Bill Rose has been agreed upon as referee for the big game as both teams were satisfied with his work in the City League final.

RUNNING.

Fred Simpson, the Ojibway Indian, who looks to us like the real thing in the line of a professional runner, is out after scalps, and he does not care whether it is a white scalp or a red one that he lifts. Simpson, it will be remembered, created a great surprise a week ago by running fifteen miles in record time at Savannah, Ga.—New York Globe.

BASKET-BALL.

The Port Hope intermediate basket ball team will be here on Wednesday night next to meet the Y. M. C. A. intermediates in a game for the intermediate championship of the district. It should be an interesting game, as the Port Hope team have shown great improvement in their playing recently and will take a lot of beating, while the locals are in the best of condition and expect to win.

CURLING.

Best's "Happy Thoughts" Curling Club have hurled a general challenge to clubs representing the following hardware stores: Peterborough Hardware, Kingan Hardware, Higgins' Hardware, Adamson & Dobbin, and Adam Hall. They will meet any or all these teams and relying on the "Happy Thought" hockey prowess they are confident that in curling they can maintain their pristine unsullied reputation. Early replies are eagerly awaited.

BOWLING

There will be a double header in the bowling league at the P. B. C. alleys, when the bankers will be called upon to play two games in the league series. They will start with the Grays at seven o'clock and will book up with the Examiner A team immediately after. As the Bankers need all the games in order to keep around the top of the ladder two interesting struggles may be expected.

Game of References.

In this game each writes replies to the following questions, and when all have written the leader reads the papers aloud, and each one tries to guess the name of the writer:

Who is your favorite author?
Who is your favorite character in fiction?
Who is your favorite character in history?
What is your favorite flower?
What is your favorite color?
What is your greatest pleasure?
What candy do you most prefer?
What is your favorite dinner dish?
And any other questions you care to ask.

A Wonderful Chick.

It was the first time Stewart had seen any very small chickens, and he did not understand that the smooth patches on the sides were wings. When one of the chicks tried to spread his wings Stewart cried:

"See! He's opening his pockets, and there isn't anything in them."

Holidays.

The little folks of China land
Have holidays as strange and grand.
When comes the feast of lanterns, all
The people walk about and call
With gorgeous lanterns shining bright.
It must be such a pretty sight!
The feast of dragon boats they hold
Beside the water. Young and old
Come out to see the dragon boats—
Such odd and curious looking floats—
Race for a prize. Another date
For celebrating is the fete
Called Feast Day of the Moon, on which Folks everywhere, both poor and rich,
Eat little round cakes colored red.
How queer! I'm glad we have instead
Our good old days of Christmas cheer,
Thanksgiving, Easter and New Year.
The Fourth and all the fun they bring.
I wouldn't change for anything!

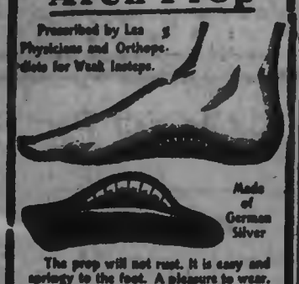
Prescribed by Leading Physicians and Orthopedists for Weak Instep.



Made of German Silver

The prop will not rust. It is easy and springy to the foot. A pleasure to wear. It can be gradually heightened as the condition of the foot improves. The fingers of the Prop can be brought against the side of the arch with the desired pressure. Unlike the ordinary rigid steel insole, it does not occupy the entire inner sole of the shoe, but extends only to the ball of the foot, being held in place by the pressure of the heel.

SATAN AND SOUL MATES

The Rev. John Wesley Hill, D.D., pastor of the Metropolitan Temple, M. E. Church, 7th avenue New York City, believes that there is a close connection between mental telepathy and soul mates and affinities. He believes still further that Satan makes use of telepathy in promoting affinity cases and in guiding short-sighted soul mates to the rocks of unhappiness and destruction.

"When a married man," said Dr. Hill, "finds a woman whose mental vibrations apparently attune better than those of his own wife, that is the devil using telepathy for his own dark purposes. A man should not listen to such vibrations.

"We know that there must be harmony between the two communicating minds — just as in the wireless instruments the sender and receiver must be attuned to the same pitch. Above all, I believe that the telepathic vibrations are stronger and communication easier between kindred souls which sympathy and love unite in bonds of affinity. This should be always the case between husband and wife.

"I believe in a real and personal devil, and I have no doubt that many of the remarkable experiments reported with mediums are nothing less than the result of Satanic influence. For that reason I do not believe in encouraging experiments with mediums.

"Mental telepathy is a definitely proven psychological fact. Just as the past century has been one of marvellous development in material things, I believe that we are now entering on a new era of psychological discovery and that we shall soon be able to scientifically demonstrate spiritual beliefs that have up to now been matters of faith. But all these questions are being scientifically worked out, and I have no doubt that within the present century we shall learn that there are more things in heaven and earth than are now dreamed of in our psychologies."

THE MID-WEEK MARKET HAD MANY FARMERS

The mid-weekly market this morning was very largely attended compared with former days. Outside, particularly, a long line of loads of hay and wood were selling at fair prices, the good sleighing having encouraged the farmers to make the trip under favourable conditions. There was also a showing of butter and eggs, and meat at prices practically the same as last Saturday. There was not a large number of buyers present.

Rev. R. Pogue Of St. Paul's Church Condemns Production Of Such Plays As Wilde's "Salome"

Local Minister Takes Strong Position in the Matter—Should Not Be Permitted in Canada, He Says, in a Letter to Examiner.

REASONS ARE GIVEN.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Now that the Christian feeling of the people of Peterborough has been insulted by the production in our midst of the vile opera Salome, permit me through the columns of your paper, to say a word on the character of that play in the hope that its production here again will be forever impossible. It is only about two years ago since it was first given before a New York audience. It created such a stench in the nostrils of the principal patrons of the Metropolitan, that it was thrown out as a vile and disgusting thing. Its production in Britain was attempted, but thanks to the spirit of reverence for things sacred which has not altogether died out there, and for the much higher moral tone that seems to prevail, the play was not permitted. It was received with much enthusiasm by a degenerate Parisian society, and it is going its filthy rounds throughout the continent, where a decadent morality makes its barbaric lewdness a financial success, however much it may outrage artistic feeling.

It has just been given in Philadelphia against the protest of its ministers and leading laymen. The operatic critic of the North American tells us how it was received in the following words:

"First of American cities outside the metropolis to hear Richard Strauss' operatic setting of Oscar Wilde's degenerate drama, "Salome," Philadelphia by a packed house at Mr. Hammerstein's new opera house, gazed at the swift-passing scenes, open-mouthed, awe-struck and smitten with mental paralysis.

"Neither dramatic genius nor musical inspiration could avail to cloak the hideous moral deformity and sinister, demoniac suggestion of this one act music drama—an inspiration that might have proceeded from the dread seventh circle of Dante's Inferno. The fashionable throng looked and listened aghast—luckily the French diction of the artists was unintelligible to the masses.

"And at the end, as in New York, men and women hastily gathered their belongings and departed, silent and perturbed. As Herodias' page had predicted at the outset, something terrible had happened.

"They had heard the greatest and most famous tone-poet of his time, the most puissant and o'ertowering personality in music since Wagner, bending his mighty genius to the task of forcing upon world opera-goers a spectacle meretricious, revolting and abhorrent, malign in artistic influence and reeking with sadism."

I uttered my protest against this play last Sabbath evening. I went to the Chief Executive in the hope that it was in his power to prevent it being given. "Salome" is a vile opera which only a degenerate mind like Oscar Wilde's could produce. It takes one of the Holiest characters in the New Testament, the forerunner of our Lord, of whom the Master said, "There hath not arisen a greater than John the Baptist," and brings him into an atmosphere of vileness and sin. It falsely portrays a great and Holy man as the object of the impious love of a lewd woman. That, in itself, is sufficient to condemn it in the minds of all true Christians, apart altogether from the immoral effects of the indecent attire, or the want of it, of Salome.

We hear of persons who defend its lecherous plot by asserting that other plays which are sometimes given are just as vile and that the nudity upon the Salome stage is not as immorally suggestive as some costumes that are seen on other occasions. By this kind of logic some persons are trying to defend filth with filth, nad obscenity with obscenity, and moral turpitude with moral turpitude. "Salome" is a vile play and has been so declared by all decent people wherever it has been billed.

It is a terrible commentary on the degeneracy of our society when such a play can be tolerated. And if the public wants to pay the price in moral debauchery for the exhibition of such gross barbaric lewdness as that which is exhibited in the average theatre, why that is their concern. And to quote the words of a distinguished Episcopal Minister of Philadelphia: "People who want to go to the devil, will go, but at least I shall give them the opportunity of going with their eyes open."

Yours truly,
ROBERT POGUE.

Jealous Husband Wanted To Fight Duel---Is Arrested And Bound Over To Keep Peace

His Wife Gave Skating Instructor a Diamond Ring—Says it Was for Instructions—Wife Says She Still Loves Her Husband.

THE RING IS RETURNED.

Atlantic City, Feb. 18.—Jealous because of reports that his handsome wife had given a diamond ring to George Matthews, jr., an athletic skating instructor, Oresto Vessella, leader of steel pier orchestra, who married Miss Egan, a daughter of a wealthy Cincinnati man, made a boardwalk sensation by insisting on a duel with Matthews. His heroics vanished when Matthews had him arrested and put under bonds to keep the peace. The hearing was secret, Matthews returned the ring.

Vessella is still excited, and friends of Matthews are on guard to prevent reopening of hostilities.

According to the story told on the arrest of Vessella, the charming young wife has been visiting the roller skating rink daily and gave the instructor a ring worth several hundred dollars, she says to pay for her instruction. She left her parents' home in Cincinnati several days ago. Late last night Vessella called at the rink and demanded that Matthews be sent out to him to settle the details of a duel. Friends of Matthews persuaded him to leave, and on their advice Matthews swore out the warrant.

The romance of the young husband and wife was a nine-days' wonder of the Boardwalk about three years ago. Miss Egan, here with her family from Cincinnati, fell in love with Vessella, and the infatuated pair attracted general attention on the pier. Objections of the girl's family were overcome and the marriage was a social event.

Mrs. Vessella has denied that her love for her husband has lessened and insists that she went West only for a brief visit. The husband refused to make any statement regarding the affair with Matthews.

"Grubstaked" Prospector With $20 And Received Thousands

Gowganda, Feb. 18.—With $75,000 in the treasury with which to commence and get under way actual mining operations, the prospects of the "Silvers Limited" Company appear exceedingly bright in the Gowganda silver fields.

This company have 174 acres located in the heart of the district, which is, so to speak, in and about the O'Kelley claims, the Mann, the Morgan Milne, the Bloom Mines, Boyd-Gordon, Pinder and others.

One fraction, called the Armstrong, is especially worthy of notice, possessing as it does one-half of its area, covered with diabase formation containing a liberal supply of silver.

One of the first moves of Engineer Bates will be to sink a shaft on this property. The story of his Armstrong fraction is known to every man in the north country.

Ten men invested $20 each and "grubstaked" Bob Armstrong. He found the country staked for miles around, but stumbled across a fraction, which is now recorded as 1991. Right down its centre is a silver vein, from which one nugget was taken weighing 30 lbs.

This claim sold for $100,000, and $10,000 was returned for each $20 of the original investment.

On one of the claims that go to compose the whole 174 acres there are five veins that carry exceptional values, which will be worked just as soon as a force of men can be housed.

IMPORTANCE OF FORT CHURCHILL AS A HARBOUR IS POINTED OUT

Winnipeg, Man., Feb. 18.— The picturesque days of the Indian chase and the buffalo hunt — phases of early life in Western Canada now rapidly passing into memory — were recalled this week by the arrival in Winnipeg of William Beech, the pioneer settler of Fort Churchill.

Mr. Beech arrived from the far North with two dog trains which carried his supplies, and the furs he had taken during the early part of the winter. He is most optimistic over the feasibility of Hudson's Bay as a short wheat route to Europe and says it will be the greatest thing possible for Western Canada when the first train steams into Fort Churchill.

Premier Roblin, of Manitoba, has already been in communication with a steamship company, and arrangements are practically completed for a line of steamers to run between Fort Churchill and some British port as soon as the first railway is completed to the bay.

Recognizing the importance of this northern route, the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway is losing no time in making surveys, etc., for a line to Fort Churchill, which will connect with the main line of the company at Melville, the chief divisional point on the main line of the company's system. From Melville a branch will be built south to the international boundary at North Portal, where it will connect with several American lines. The Canadian Northern is contemplating the construction of a line from Regina northwards, so Melville will become a distributing point for European traffic via the Hudson's Bay.

Mr. Beech laughs at the suggestion that the Hudson's Bay is only navigable for a short period each year and says that with the assistance of ice breakers the route can be kept open as long as the St. Lawrence route, but the heavy freight rates via rail to Montreal will be eliminated. All that Western Canada needs to make it the greatest wheat producing country in the world is the opening of the short route to Europe, via Hudson's Bay, according to a statement made here by Mr. Beech.

OBITUARY

MRS. FREDERICK PAYNE

The death occurred on Thursday morning Feb 11th, at 8 o'clock, of Ruth, relict of the late Frederick Payne, of Dummer, death resulting from burns caused by the overturning of a lamp.

Her maiden name was Ruth White being the youngest daughter of the late Wm. White of North Monaghan.

She was born in the Township of Douro, near Lacey's Pond, July 28th, 1850. She was married in January 1875 to her late husband, who predeceased her not quite six months ago. There are left to mourn her loss, four sons—Herbert of Delorraine Man., David of South Dummer, Fred and Harry at home; two daughters in-law and three grandchildren. The brothers and sisters of the deceased are Jacob of North Dummer; Benjamin of Peterborough; Mrs. Alex. Watts Warsaw; and Mrs. Lazarus Payne, North Dummer.

The pastor Rev. Dr. Marvin preached a very earnest sermon from the text. "The living know that they shall die," Eccl. 9; 5. Hymns "There's a land that is fairer than day" and "One by One." Rev. Mr. Anderson led in prayer.

The pall bearers were the four sons Herbert, David, Fred and Harry and two nephews, Herman Payne and Clarence Watts.

A large concourse of friends and acquaintances assembled to pay last tribute of respect to one who had been a good neighbour, a kind and devoted mother.

She was retiring in disposition, but brave in danger, although suffering untold agony from the terrible burns she still sought to extinguish the fire, that the little ones and home might be saved.

The deepest sympathy of the community is extended the bereaved family.

"Friend after friend, who hath not lost a friend,
There is no union here of hearts, that finds not here an end."

MR. BAILEY WRITES

To the Editor of the Examiner,—

Sir—I have been asked to write, drawing your attention to the inefficient manner in which the snow is cleared from the streets. Personally I would rather let it stay where it falls, it looks nice and soft and no doubt conceals a lot of microbes.

Yours, etc.
W. A. BAILEY.

Bankers' Dance One Of Most Pleasing Events Of Season

A most pleasing success was achieved by the bankers of the city in their annual "At Home" in the Conservatory of Music Hall last night, which was one of the most enjoyable affairs of its kind held this season. The committee in charge had made every arrangement for the comfort and enjoyment of the guests and the result was a delightful evening that will be remembered for some time by those present. About 100 couples were in attendance and the floor was in excellent condition while that well known organization, Fralick's Orchestra from Toronto, provided splendid music. Refreshments were served by Mr. T H Hooper, who catered for the occasion in his usual efficient manner. The affair broke up at an early hour this morning. The Patronesses were Mrs. F Campbell, Mrs. D Hughes, Charles, Mrs. V Eastwood, Mrs. A Montgambert, Mrs. J Crane and Mrs. J H Ferguson, while the committee in charge of the dance consisted of Messrs. W B Snow, L F Cross, W G Ferguson, J J McGrail, R B Morley, L T H Ardiel, Geo. Clark, A H Mulhern and C A Barber, Hon. Secretary.

The Life Of Frances Willard Subject Of Interesting Address

The W C. T. U. of the city held a most interesting meeting yesterday Feb. 17th, in the green drawing room of the Y. W. C. A., kindly granted for the afternoon. The president, Mrs. A. R. Campbell and the Hon. Pres Mrs Kenner occupied seats upon the platform. The 17th of Feb. is known among White Ribbon Women as Crusade Day, and is kept in memory of the late Frances Willard, founder of the World's W. C. T. U

The room was filled with members and their friends; after a short musical programme, Mrs. Kenner gave an address upon the life of Miss Willard. She began by saying that Miss Willard came of good stock, the daughter of a teacher and grand daughter of Rev. Elijah Willard, for forty years a clergyman. While she received careful training from her parents she did not know they were training her for a career of teacher, author, orator, philanthropist and social reformer.

Beginning as a teacher in a small school, she soon became Dean of the Northwestern University at Evanston Illinois. It seems as if the eternal forces had her life plan in their mighty onward sweep. It was the year of the Womens Temperance Crusade, when as if by magic, armies of women, delicate, cultured, home women, filled the streets of the cities and towns of Ohio going from the door of the home to the door of the saloon pleading, praying with the rumsellers with all the eloquence of their mother Hearts. The wave reached Chicago. Miss Willard in reading the reports of the Crusade became interested and aroused, soon began to speak, declaring that "this is everybody's war" and assuring the temperance women that she was with them, "heart and mind and hand".

A short time after being fired from her position in the university, she visited New York, Boston and Portland. It was in the slums of New York that the fire of pity was kindled in her soul, for the physical and mental misery that intemperance causes among the poor.

The crisis in the life of Miss Willard came while she was still in the east. Two letters the same day, one offering her a position in a lady's school with a salary of $2400, the other a call to the Presidency of the Chicago branch of the W. C. T. U.

She accepted the call to the W. C. T. U. work. This was her choice of a career. She said afterwards "I have felt that great promotion came to me when I was counted worthy to be a worker in the organized cause for God, Home and Native land."

Not long after Frances Willard saw for the first time the inside of a bar room. She describes it — the sickening odor—the bottles—the reading of a Psalm, the singing of "Rock of Ages" then one of the women asked her to pray. She said "I felt not the least reluctance—kneeling on the floor among a crowd of ill kept, unwashed hard looking drinking men—I was conscious that perhaps never but once before had I prayed as I did then". So Miss Willard's wonderful work began, and continued till the end of her life.

She spoke in every city and town of 10,000 inhabitants in the United States, for twelve years she averaged one meeting a day.

The famous 'Polyglot Petition" addressed to the governments of the world signed by seven and a half millions, in fifty different nationalities, was circulated by the World's W. C. T. U.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served in the reading room.

The W C T U meets regularly the last Friday in each month in the Y. M. C. A.

Men Not Allowed To Send Their Wives To Ask For City's Help

From 7.30 o'clock in the morning until eight or nine o'clock at night is the length of the business day for the relief officer This is not a general condition, but a few days ago the first petitioner made his appearance at 7.30 a. m. Men have to come, the sending of women while the husband remains at home, will not be tolerated by the relief officer. The latter, referring to the people he has to deal with, said, that some of the men last year sent their wives for the Saturday share of meat, etc., which was given out. It was, however, emphasized that this unmanly practice would not be tolerated. If a man could not get work enough to provide for his family he must not send his wife out to suffer the humiliation, if such they looked upon it, which he himself should bear. Extreme cases were made exceptions.

Comic Valentine Brings A Strange Situation To Hight

St. Joseph, Mo., Feb. 18.—In the probably fatal shooting of Wm. Smith, a carpenter, over a comic valentine, came to light a strange domestic entanglement.

Mrs. Cora Smith, who fired the shot at Smith, told the police that she was married to Smith, knowing that her mother was already his wife. The three have lived together for years, the woman posing as the husband of both mother and daughter. The daughter, who is 22 years of age, sent Smith a comic valentine. Smith became angry when he received it, packed up his clothes and started to leave the house. Thinking he was going to desert her, the daughter-wife shot him.

The mother-wife says she was married to Smith secretly in 1902 and took her fifteen-year-old daughter by a former husband to live with her and Smith. A year after her marriage, she says, her daughter and Smith fell in love with each other, and the mother made her husband marry her daughter without getting a divorce, thinking that no one knew of the former marriage. Both daughter and husband bear out this story, the police say.

"SALOME" TO BE REPEATED ON FRIDAY

At the request of a large number of people it has been decided to repeat the production of "Salome" at the Grand Opera House to-morrow (Friday) night, in order to give Peterborough people another chance of seeing the famous play. The Merchant of Venice which was to have been played by Mr. Ryan's company to-morrow night will be played on Saturday night instead, and people who have purchased tickets for the "Merchant of Venice" may change them for tickets for "Salome" or else keep them until Saturday night when they will be honoured.

CONTRIBUTIONS ARE ALREADY COMING IN

The citizens are showing a material sympathy for the twins of two weeks, whose mother is confined to the hospital. Mrs. Rawbie, of the King's Daughters, reports the following contributions:

For the twins..... $6 00
Anonymous..... 5 00

The Examiner has also been handed 75 cents. The charitably inclined seldom miss any opportunities to assist in a worthy cause, especially if it is a case of this character. The encouragement that the King's Daughters have already received is almost an assurance that the required amount will be donated.

Dialogue—Country Cousins.
Recitation—Mr. Nugent.
Mouth organ solo—Master Smith.
Solo—Master A. Horsfield.
Comic song—Johnny Smoker, Mr. A. Thompson.
Duet—Misses Georgie and Prudence Long.
Solo—Miss Barclay.
Recitation—Miss May Smith.
Song—Mr. Kennedy.
Recitation—Miss Maud Smith.
Song—Miss Marion Kennedy.
Recitation—Little Missy Walsh.
Song—Mr. Chas. Coleman.
Recitation—Mr. J. John.
Song—Mr. Asa Huycke.
Song—Master Cyril Devey.
Song—Mr. Pratt.

After the programme had been concluded it was moved by Mr. Hamilton, seconded by Mr. Adlam that a hearty vote of thanks be tendered all those who took part in the evening's entertainment. Companions then supplied light refreshments and all present spend a most enjoyable evening.

Woman's World

THE LATEST RECRUIT.

Mme. Melba, the Famous Singer, Joins Ranks of Suffragettes.

Mme. Nellie Melba is the last distinguished recruit to the suffragette army. The famous singer became enthusiastic over the cause at the great rally of the woman's rights party held recently at Carnegie hall, New York city. At this meeting Mrs. Philip Snowden of England made a wonderful and rousing speech that completely won over Mme. Melba to the cause. Mrs. George Gould and Mrs. Clarence Mackay both figured prominently in the movement.

Mme. Melba is a very interesting personality aside from her great gift of song. She is one of the richest prima donnas—probably the richest, barring Patti—in the world. Every time she sings at the Manhattan Opera House, New York, Mme. Melba receives $4,000. The highest price ever paid a singer for a single performance was given this songstress in her native city of Melbourne, Australia, the sum being $13,000.

Mme. Melba's jewels alone are worth a king's ransom, and she is the owner of a superb pearl necklace that belonged to Marie Antoinette. This fortunate lady is very generous, and one of her pleasures in life is helping struggling genius, especially those endowed with musical talents. Mme. Melba has a magnificent home in London, and for nine weeks when this establishment was open recently her secretary, Miss Murphy, said the expenses were $50,000. During the opera season in America it costs the diva $1,000 a week to run her apartment. Her worst personal extravagances are flowers and special messengers. Nothing very alarmingly rash in this expenditure, certainly. Mme. Melba, as everybody knows, owes her professional name to the happy inspiration of her teacher, Mme. Marchesi. When the training of her beautiful voice was reaching completion, a question arose as to the name under which the young Australian was to make her debut. Nellie Mitchell, her maiden name, or Mrs. Armstrong, her married appellation, being obviously impossible for a prima donna. After various suggestions had been considered and dismissed Mme. Marchesi exclaimed, "Why not pay a compliment to your native city, Melbourne, by calling yourself after it? Melba would make a capital name." The proposal was adopted.

They Camp Out to Grow Skinny.

But, oh, how many women suffer to follow the directoire fashion! "Reduction" classes now are as common in social circles as classes in bridge. Certain teachers take groups of women into the Adirondacks in relays of twenty for a course of six weeks. Those who wish to don the sheath gown when the season opens are getting rid of flesh at the rate of eight or ten pounds a week. They live in a lodge, and their day begins at 7 a. m., when they have black coffee, black bread and a salad or fruit. With knapsacks on backs they walk and climb as rapidly as possible until noon, when they again eat a meager cold luncheon. Then they rest for two hours and walk again until 6. The evening meal is hearty, but devoid of sweet or fattening things. In the evening those who are in earnest go through additional physical exercises. All retire at 10. Hundreds of fashionable women are going through this work. They even chop wood, skip rope and jump over chairs and boxes. They seem to think the sheath gown worth the pains taken to fit oneself for wearing it.

To Improve the Mouth.

All of us cannot have good looking mouths, but we could make more of what nature gave us than we do.

The expression of the mouth can be utterly changed by mannerisms which if taken in time can be easily overcome.

Mothers can play an important part in mouth formation. Children should not be allowed to form habits that ruin the contour of the lips.

The childish trick of holding the lips apart causes them to sag loosely and

HOUSEWIFE SUGGESTIONS.

Try cleaning white cloth trimmings with salt and flour, hot. This is very effective, while not injuring the material in any way.

A quick and easy method to peel onions for frying or stewing is to cut off the top and bottom of the onion, quarter it, and the outside skin is easily removed.

When starching holland pinafores, if a little tea is put into the starch used they will keep their color instead of getting that faded appearance we all know so well.

If a small quantity of cream turns sour in the icebox, do not throw it out, but with a fork beat it a few minutes, and a tiny pat of fresh butter and a little glass of buttermilk will be the reward.

To clean kid shoes put in a saucer a half ounce of strong ammonia, dip in a clean flannel and rub it on castile soap. Then rub the shoes with this, changing the flannel when it becomes soiled.

A cake which has been removed from the oven should be placed on a wire stand on the stove and the steam allowed to thoroughly escape from it, so as to obviate any chance of its becoming heavy.

In Case of Fire.

If the alcohol lamp under the chafing dish comes to grief and sets the table cover on fire, as so frequently happens, suffocate the flames by covering them with flour. This is better than water or blankets or any of the other means seized upon to extinguish a sudden fire and not only quicker but less injurious than water.

A Chicago Idea.

"Have you any more figures in marble?" asked the old lady in the art gallery.

"Not any," replied the attendant. "Any particular one you wanted to see?"

"Yes, I wanted to see the statue of limitations my husband was telling about."—Chicago Journal.

HAS THORNELOE QUIT?

Telegram From North Looks Like Bishop's Withdrawal.

Toronto, Feb. 19.—Another day's balloting in the election of a bishop for the diocese of Toronto has brought the conclusion of the matter appreciably nearer. A telegram received from Bishop Thorneloe during the day stating that he had just emerged from the woods and seen the newspapers, concluded with the words: "Have neither authorized nor approved what is being done." While some ambiguity may be allowed for, this was interpreted by most of those present as a withdrawal, taking the "unauthorized" to refer to his candidature, and the "nor approved" to the campaign on his behalf. In the succeeding ballot the clerical vote to Bishop Thorneloe dropped by 13, and it was generally admitted that Bishop Thorneloe was voted for by the others because they could unite on no one else.

Both parties finally agreed to a conference to-day, Provost Macklem and Dr. Hayes to choose representatives for the purpose from the clerical and lay majorities.

Four ballots were taken yesterday, at 10.30 a.m., 2 p.m., 4.15 and 8.30, making six in all so far cast. There was no appreciable difference recorded, until the reading of Bishop Thorneloe's telegram when there was a noticeable dismay among his clerical adherents.

HAMMOND WILL FILED.

Financier's Fortune Amounted to Million and a Quarter.

Toronto, Feb. 19.—The will and four codicils of the late H. C. Hammond have been filed for probate by the National Trust Co., the executors and trustees.

Household goods and personal effects, $9,651; book debts and promissory notes, $12,793.06; mortgages, $1,-809.85; real estate, $32,000; stocks, $431,170.69; bonds and debentures, $107,115; miscellaneous assets, $611,-315.40; total, $1,205,944.91.

The item "miscellaneous assets, $611,315.40," includes the interest in the firms of Osler & Hammond of Toronto, and Osler, Hammond & Nanton of Winnipeg.

The bequests to public charities are: Toronto Free Hospital for Consumptives, $20,000; Sick Children's Hospital, $5,000; Home for Incurables, Toronto, $5,000; the Children's Aid Society of Toronto, $5,000. There are a number of legacies to relatives and others, after payment of which special provisions are made as to income and principal for the benefit of the mother, wife and children.

The succession duty will be between $75,000 and $100,000.

Fisheries Agreement Ratified.

Washington, Feb. 19.—The Senate yesterday ratified and made public the special agreement with Great Britain known as the Newfoundland fisheries treaty.

In ratifying the agreement the Senate adopted a resolution declaring as a part of ratification "that the Senate understands that it is agreed by both parties that the treaty does not include any question as to the Bay of Fundy or the innocent passage of American fishing vessels through the Gulf of Canso and that the respective views or contention of the United States and Great Britain on either subject shall be in nowise prejudiced by anything in the present arbitration. The special agreement provides for the submission to the permanent court of arbitration at The Hague of questions relating to fisheries on the North Atlantic coast.

Impossible, Says Hays.

Stratford, Feb. 19.—In direct opposition to the anti-level crossing legislation before the House of Commons was the attitude of Chas. M. Hays, second vice-president and general manager of the Grand Trunk Railway, at a banquet tendered him by the city last night.

Railway commissioners, courts and parliaments, could order the railways to make such changes as they see fit, he said, and insofar as possible the company would try and carry out these mandates, but an expenditure of $50,000,000, which would be required in separating the grades or the level crossing on the Grand Trunk system, was too stupendous and an impossible suggestion.

The dinner marked the opening of the new Grand Trunk shops. Many prominent citizens and railroaders were present.

Another Hill Road.

Winnipeg, Feb. 19.—A bill introduced into the Legislature foreshadows the construction of another transcontinental railroad by the Hill interests, from Winnipeg west to Brandon thence to Elkhorn, and to the westerly boundary of the province.

Got Liquor For "Indian."

MAY ARRANGE WORLD CONFERENCE

Roosevelt Looks For One on Conservation of Resources.

HON. MR. FISHER PRESENT

President at Opening of North American Conservation Congress Pleads For Co-operation in Preserving Natural Wealth — Canada Is Keenly Alert to Work in Progress, Says Hon. Mr. Fisher.

Washington, Feb. 19.—Conservation co-operation of world-wide scope was the keynote of an address of President Roosevelt, made at the White House yesterday before the delegates in attendance upon the North American Conservation Conference.

This sentiment, which was first voiced by the President, gathered considerable momentum during the day's proceedings and was reflected in the addresses of those who participated.

Characterizing the movement as of utmost importance to the world at large, President Roosevelt impressed the representatives of this Government, Canada and Mexico with the momentous possibilities of the work which has brought about this assemblage.

After the opening of yesterday's session President Roosevelt expressed the hope to Secretary of State Bacon that a universal conservation congress, in which all nations should be invited to participate, should become a reality in the not distant future.

"In international relations I think that the great features of the growth of the last century has been the mutual recognition of the fact that instead of being normally to the interest of one nation to see another depressed," said he, "it is normally to the interests of each nation to see the others uplifted. I believe that the movement which you to-day initiate is one of the utmost importance to this hemisphere and may be of the utmost importance to the world at large."

"Canada," said Hon. Sydney Fisher, "has watched with the closest attention and interest the conservation movement in the United States," and expressed the conviction that his country can learn much of benefit from the United States. He declared that President Roosevelt struck the keynote of high constructive statesmanship when he spoke in favor of harmonious co-operation of all countries for the advancement of all.

Permanent organization of the North American Conservation Conference was perfected at the first regular session with the selection of Gifford Pinchot, a member of the American delegation, as chairman, no other name being presented. H was placed in nomination by Hon. Sydney Fisher of the Canadian delegation. Forestry formed the theme of discussion.

Drops Dead on Street.

London, Feb. 19.—Capt. A. W. Porte of Oakville, former managing director of the Toronto Biscuit Co., dropped dead in front of the residence of his sister, Mrs. Geo. Brickenden, Queens avenue, at 6 o'clock last evening.

Mr. Porte was walking with a young lady and was apologizing for walking slowly. "My heart is bad, and it is dangerous for me to walk rapidly," he said. With these words he pitched forward dead. Capt. Porte, who was attending the Scottish rite reunion in this city, was one of the best known citizens of London before his removal to Toronto 12 years ago. He was manager of the McCormick Biscuit Co., and an expresident of Western Fair board.

He was about 60 years of age.

Treaty Goes Over.

New York, Feb. 19.—A special to The Tribune from Washington says:

It is formally announced in executive session of the Senate that the Canadian boundary waters treaty would be permitted to remain on the calendar until next session. This is due to the opposition of Senator Smith of Michigan, and to the feeling not only that no time remains for a protracted debate on the convention, but that Senator Root will be able to defend it against amendment better than anyone now in the Senate.

Negro Prefers Hanging.

Windsor, Feb. 19.—Jeremiah Jackson (colored) was convicted yesterday on three serious charges, and when sentenced by Judge Smith broke down completely.

He was given two years for assault, three years for bringing stolen goods into Canada, and five years for arson, sentences to run concurrently. When he heard his fate Jackson cried like a child, and begged the judge to sentence him to be hanged, saying he would prefer to die than go to the penitentiary.

Drawn Into Machinery.

Guelph, Feb. 19.—Oswald Bahn, 18 years of age, who operates a four-spindle tapping machine in the Standard Fitting & Valve Co.'s factory here, was drawn into the machine and found in a frightfully mangled condition. His right arm has been amputated.

Bank President Convicted.

Pittsburg, Pa., Feb. 19.—W. W. Ramsey, former president of the German National Bank, yesterday was found guilty of bribing Councilman John F. Klein, by giving him $17,500 to procure the passage of an ordinance making the bank a depository for the city funds.

ONTARIO HOUSE BEGINS WORK

Ontario House Covers a Lot of Routine Business.

DEBATE WILL END TO-DAY

Messrs. McEwing, Downey, McCormack and Musgrove Discuss Speech From the Throne—Premier Warns Against Delay With Private Bills This Session — Several New Measures Introduced.

Toronto, Feb. 19.—Never before has the Legislature settled down so promptly to business. Yesterday after doing a considerable amount of routine business, the debate on the address was carried on by James McEwing, Joseph Downey, R. J. McCormack, and A. H. Musgrove. The last mentioned, though nervous, proved to be an excellent speaker. Mr. McCormack made friends with the House immediately. Allan Studholme moved the adjournment of the debate. The debate will be closed before six this evening by Hon. A. G. MacKay and the Premier.

D. J. McDougal, one of the Ottawa members, has created a situation by sitting in the House and taking part in the proceedings without taking the oath. Penalties of $2,500, disfranchisement, a new election and other extremities are mooted, but the clerk of the House disclaimed any knowledge of the matter last night. Mr. McDougal was not present in the House yesterday.

"There cannot be the usual elasticity allowed during this session," he declared. Not for years had private legislation been so backward, he was informed. The standing orders committee had nothing to do, and as bills had to be advertised for some weeks in The Gazette members must look sharp.

To Hon. Mr. MacKay, the Premier explained that the law reforms bill to be brought down would supply any omissions and provide for any changes in the statutory revision bills.

A bridge across the Bay of Quinte was the subject of a petition presented by J. W. Johnson.

Premier Whitney pointed out that the petition presented by J. McEwing asking for a money grant for police officers was out of order, no money petition being admissible.

Bills were read a first time introduced by Hon. J. J. Foy respecting the administration by the crown of the estates of intestates; to prevent priority among executive creditors; respecting actions of replevin; respecting law stamps; respecting the office of sheriff. Also respecting public revenues, Hon. Mr. Matheson; respecting damages by land flooding in new districts, Hon. Mr. Cochrane; respecting municipal debentures issued for drainage works, Hon. Mr. Matheson; respecting tile, stone and timber drainage, Hon. Mr. Matheson; respecting the fiscal year, Hon. Mr. Matheson; respecting ferries, Hon. Mr. Reaume.

J. McEwing, West Wellington, continued the debate, and recalled the pessimistic outlook of the former Opposition when the Ross Government began to build the T. & N.O. Railway. The profits arising out of this railway should be an object lesson. He condemned the three-fifths clause, but commended Hon. Mr. Hanna for his declaration that mere technicalities would not be allowed to defeat the will of the people. He charged that license inspectors consulted together as to who should be prosecuted, and that charges were entered before the election, held over the hotel men's heads and withdrawn afterwards.

Objections has been raised, proceeded Mr. McEwing, against the remodeled Assessment Act, and the time had arrived when something should be done towards remedying those difficulties. Farm lands were sometimes taxed two and one-half to three times their relative value. Railway taxation has not been equitably settled.

Joseph Downey said, in replying for the Government, that Mr. McEwing was absurd in declaring he would not assist railway development in New Ontario, which would benefit the whole province, while he defended the assistance given to a private enterprise like the Soo company.

R. J. McCormack, East Lambton, received hearty applause for his brief and sensible speech. He desired the restoration of the model schools and would have condemned the Liberal party had they abolished them. In law reform he wanted less appeals.

A. H. Musgrove, North Huron, discussed the function of the model school in training teachers. The high school teachers should be trained in the university, and the public school teachers at the high school. He would hold up both hands for anything of benefit to the university and the schools. Speaking of the license law he recalled the description of the Conservative party as the straight whisky party, and the Liberals as the crooked whisky party. If there was anything in the statements made by Mr. McEwing he should make a charge and have it investigated.

Won't Leave Jail.

Ottawa, Feb. 19.—A Frenchman named Jules Higelin, who awaited in Bryson Jail 23 months for a trial on a charge of attempted murder at Ville Marie, was sentenced to two years' imprisonment there. He thus had only a month to serve, and that time ended three months ago. He is still in jail and will not leave. He does menial work and is occasionally coachman to D. R. Barry, K.C., crown prosecutor.

SOME QUEER PRAYERS

Curious Mistakes That Have Been Made by Preachers.

A CAUTIOUS SCOTCH ELDER.

The Way He Qualified in His Petition His Praise of the Pastor's Wife. The Blunt Appeal of Father Taylor, the Boston Preacher.

The most frequent cause of inappropriate petitions is no doubt the persistence of habit. Certain phrases are used again and again until they come to be repeated without any thought of their immediate application, says the Christian World. We may similarly explain the stories of the workhouse chaplain who prayed that those present might not trust in uncertain riches and the prison chaplain who besought the Lord that he conduct the worshipers in safety to their respective places of abode.

The sense of humor must surely have been lacking in the old man of eighty, supported by crutches, who regularly included among his petitions at the weekly prayer meeting the request that he might be kept from running with the giddy multitude to do evil. Familiarity with conventional phraseology was the undoing of the minister who, after the sermon on the Pharisee and the publican, asked that there might be poured out upon his hearers a double portion of the publican's spirit. Not very complimentary was the use of a well known Scripture passage made by a minister at a wedding:

"May these persons live together in such harmony in this life that they may finally attain unto that state of felicity where they neither marry nor are given in marriage." As a concluding example of the thoughtless use of familiar language one may quote this remarkable amalgam: "O Lord, we praise thee that we are thine; we feel that we are thine; we know that we are thine; Lord, make us thine."

As in a sermon, so in a prayer, the attempt to correct a hasty utterance sometimes leads to surprising results. A cautious Scotch elder, it is said, had taken supper at his pastor's house and in returning thanks after the meal entered upon a detailed exposition of various causes of gratitude. He concluded by invoking the divine blessing upon the pastor's wife as his godly helpmeet, who had always upheld his hands in every good work—"at least," he added in a saving clause, "as far as we know." It is related of a compatriot that in a moment of forgetfulness he once thanked God for "the salvation of all men," but immediately redeemed himself from heterodoxy by the qualification, "which, O Lord, as thou knowest, is true in one sense, but not in another."

There are some men who seem to think that an indirect manner of expression is especially suited to sacred things, as the Scotchman quoted by Dr. Boyd as saying, "For, as thou knowest, men do not gather grapes of thorns nor figs of the national emblem," and the Englishman who thus pledged himself, "And, O Lord, if thou wilt move the heart of any young man to enter thy service, we will show our approval in a way which thou wilt appreciate."

Father Taylor, the Boston sailor-preacher, was one of the most direct of men and on the one recorded occasion when he essayed a roundabout style nature triumphed over artifice. It was the Sunday before the state elections, and he was praying fervently that a man might be chosen for governor who would rule in the fear of God, who would never be afraid of the face of clay, who would defeat the ringleaders of corruption, who would defy his own party if it yielded to wire pullers, who—suddenly Father Taylor paused and then exclaimed: "O Lord, what's the use of boxing the compass in this way? Give us George N. Briggs for governor. Amen!"

The temptation to use public prayer as a vehicle for the conveying of information has sometimes been too strong to resist. In his lively reminiscences published some years ago in the Wesleyan Methodist Magazine the late Dr. Benjamin Gregory recalled how a certain Methodist minister of an earlier generation was accustomed "to convey all necessary directions to his younger colleagues through the medium of the throne of grace." Here is an example: "O Lord, bless thy dear young servant. Thou knowest his appointment for tomorrow is at ——, and he will have to stop at Brother ——'s, who keeps a little shop opposite the church. Oh, grant that thy dear young servant may not forget to let the people have the magazines and to bring home the moneys."

The famous Dr. McCosh of Princeton was accustomed to meet the students in the college chapel every morning, when he would make any necessary announcements as well as conduct devotions. One morning in the prayer with which the service concluded he prayed for the president of the United States, the cabinet, the members of both houses of congress, the governor of New Jersey, the mayor and other officials of Princeton, and he then came to the professors and instructors in the college. At this point there flashed into his mind a notice which had been communicated to him orally and which he had omitted to include in the announcements made just before. To the surprise of the assembled students President McCosh continued, "And, O Lord, bless Professor Karge, whose French class will be held this morning at 9 o'clock instead of 9:30, as usual."

KITCHEN DANGERS

WHY EVERY HOME NEEDS ZAM-BUK.

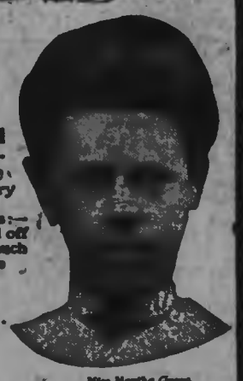
Burns, scalds, cuts, abrasions and scratches, are every-day occurrences in the kitchen, and a box of Zam-Buk kept handy & used immediately such injury is sustained will be found to save hours of suffering. For severe burns and scalds this balm is wonderfully effective.

Mrs. Davis, of Earlsden Street, Coventry, says:—"I was cooking one day when my clothes caught fire and I was badly burned about the legs. Zam-Buk relieved the agony, and although the burns were very deep, in a few days it healed them nicely."

Miss Martha Green, of Claremont Street, Toronto, in taking a pan of boiling fat from the oven spilt it over her right hand. "The boiling fat ran into the palm of my hand," she says, "and over all my fingers. You may well imagine the agony I suffered in consequence. I was almost wild with the pain. The hand became swollen, and large blisters formed all over the palm and along the fingers. For over a month I was unable to use the hand at all. I tried several kinds of salves and ointments, but the wound seemed apparently no better.

"About this time I was advised to try Zam-Buk. I stopped using all other preparations, and applied Zam-Buk instead. The very first application soothed my hand and seemed to draw out the fire and inflammation; and as I kept on using Zam-Buk, the blisters gradually dried up and disappeared. In a very short time the scald was healed completely."

Mrs. R. Brown, of Calumet Avenue, Montreal, says:—"While busy in the kitchen one day my oven door fell off inflicting a nasty scratch on my leg. I didn't think much of it, once the first sharp pain had gone; but the dye in my stocking got into the wound and set up blood-poisoning. I had a bad leg for weeks and I believe that had it not been for Zam-Buk it would have been bad yet. As soon as, acting upon the advice of a friend I put on Zam-Buk, I got relief, and the inflammation began to subside. In a few weeks the wound was healed. In my opinion Zam-Buk should be in every home."



Miss Martha Green.

The above are but a few instances of the varied uses to which Zam-Buk can be so advantageously applied. It is equally effective for cuts, bruises, abrasions, sprains and stiffness. It also cures eczema, ulcers, sores, blood-poisoning, ringworm, scalp sores, chronic wounds, acne, blackheads, pimples, chafed places, chapped hands, cold sores, and all skin diseases and injuries. Rubbed well on the chest in cases of cold, it relieves the aching and tightness, and applied as an embrocation it cures rheumatism, sciatica, neuralgia, etc. All druggists and stores sell Zam-Buk at 50 cents a box, or from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, upon receipt of price. Three boxes for $1.25.

Was Troubled With Weak Back For Years.

Could Not Perform Household Duties. Doctors Attended Without Avail.

Mrs. Arch. Schnare, Black Point, N.B., writes: "For years I was troubled with weak back. Oftentimes I have lain in bed for days, being scarcely able to turn myself, and I have also been a great sufferer while trying to perform my household duties. I had doctors attending me without avail and tried liniments and plasters, but nothing seemed to do me any good. I was about to give up in despair when my husband induced me to try Doan's Kidney Pills, and after using two boxes I am now well and able to do my work. I am positive Doan's Kidney Pills are all that you claim for them, and I would advise all kidney sufferers to give them a fair trial."

Doan's Kidney Pills are a purely vegetable medicine, realizing quick, permanent relief, without any after ill effects. A medicine that will absolutely cure Backache and all forms of Kidney and Bladder Disease.

A medicine that strengthens the kidneys so that they are enabled to extract the poisonous uric acid from the blood and prevent the chief cause of Rheumatism.

A VISION ON THE VELDT.

The Form on the Rocks That Confronted the Soldier.

I thought I saw a form of some kind between the bowlders. I jumped to the conclusion that it was a soldier. In one second it had vanished. I challenged, but got no answer. Those pieces of rock seemed to terrify me.

I advanced toward them, but saw nothing. I retired back and took up my position, leaning on my rifle. My eyes went again to the same place, and there, standing between the two bowlders, was the outline of a woman. I brought my rifle to the present, covering the form which stood before me. I saw her walk from one piece of rock to the other.

I watched and saw her repeat her action. She then stopped and leaned up against one of the bowlders with her back toward me. I again advanced to where she stood. When I had got to within forty or fifty yards of her I saw her turn round and look straight at me with a careworn and sorrowful face.

Then I saw and knew who she was. It was my own mother. I was not mistaken, for she walked within a few yards of me, at the same time looking me dead in the face. She then turned about and walked to the two pieces of rock, and I saw no more of her. About three weeks after I received a letter from home telling me of her death and burial.—"A Grenadier's South African Reminiscence" in Occult Review.

Gambling For Maids.

"Many queer reasons are advanced by servant girls for losing a place," said the manager of the employment bureau, "but the queerest I have ever heard was given by a girl who blew in here last week. Her late mistress was a bridge fiend. One day for the want of money to bet she and her friends played with their maids for stakes. At the end of the game each woman considered herself in honor bound to stick to her agreement, and an attempt was really made to swap servants according to the ups and downs of the game. Some of the girls thus raffled off changed places willingly enough, but that client of mine refused to be swapped and hustled around hunting a new job."

Rough on His Lordship.

A carpenter in an English town having neglected to make a gibbet that had been ordered by the hangman on the ground that he had not been paid for the last one he had erected gave so much offense that the next time the judge came to the circuit he was sent for.

"Fellow," said the judge in a stern tone, "how came you to neglect making the gibbet that was ordered on my account?"

"I humbly beg your pardon," replied the carpenter. "Had I known it was for your lordship it would have been done immediately."

ODD EPITAPHS.

At Attica in the little burying ground is the grave of Nathaniel Grigsby. He died in 1890 and was a man of much force. He had a war record, serving as second lieutenant in Company G, Tenth Indiana cavalry. Grigsby was an ardent Republican. He stood by the G. O. P. at all times and even in death. This epitaph is on his tombstone:

> Through this inscription I wish to enter my dying protest against what is called the Democratic party. I have watched it closely since the days of Jackson and know that all the misfortunes of our nation have come to it through this so called party. Therefore beware of this party of treason.

Grigsby's heirs did not want this inscription to go on the tombstone, but the lawyer declared that the will provided that it must be used, and the family had to agree. But the inscription is headed with a line that Grigsby's will made the epitaph mandatory.

At Lincoln is a very odd tombstone. A traveling man of that town, who had been on the road many years and was quite eccentric, framed an epitaph that is decidedly original. He died several years ago, and a traveling bag hewn out of marble stands at the head of his grave. On one side of the bag is this line:

The Eternal Feminine.

A photographer was called upon not long ago to make some pictures of an old lady of seventy years or so, but of surprising agility and quickness of perception. The picture man was therefore somewhat surprised to find that no words of address could induce the old lady to speak until after the operation was completed. Then she put her fingers into her mouth, whence she withdrew several wads of paper.

"You wouldn't have me photographed with my cheeks falling in, would you?" she asked the photographer. "I just stuffed some paper in my mouth to fill out."

Suspicious.

The person who, on examining a homemade henhouse, remarked that "it looked as if some fellow had built it himself" has a kindred spirit in a delightfully simple old lady, noted for her naive comments. In a street car not long ago she noticed a man carrying a shotgun and a blanket roll.

"Look at him," she whispered to her companion. "He looks as if he were going to spend the night somewhere."

The Contrast.

The elderly bride regarded in the mirror her wreath of orange blossoms, her gown of ivory satin and old valenciennes and her long rope of perfect pearls.

"There's only one trouble about fine clothes," she murmured. "They make one's face look so shabby."

His Proof.

Judge—You have not yet established the prisoner's insanity. Attorney—But, your honor, we mean to introduce witnesses to show that the prisoner habitually argues politics with women.—Puck.

The Call of Companionship.

You often hear a lonesome child say, "I want some one to play with!" Elderly people often become lonesome and want some one to play with, but are afraid to say so.

The Wave of Indulgence.

Indulgence nowadays is very much exaggerated. We have even come to admire clever thieves, and as long as we are not the victims of the theft we are quite enthusiastic for the rogue who shows great cunning and daring in his crimes. He is almost a hero in our eyes, and we call him a genius.—Paris Figaro.

Cricket Fighting.

Cricket fighting, a national sport in the Celestial Kingdom, is odd to see. Crickets are trained. They are exercised and dieted, and daily, before a match, smaller, weaker crickets are opposed to them that they may work out for themselves good fighting systems. In matches the betting is very high. The Chinese, who are tremendous gamblers, often lose fortunes over crickets, as American millionaires lose fortunes over race horses. A good cricket fight will last half an hour. The opposing crickets, each in a tube like a box stall, are dropped into a ring with a wall around it about six inches high. A combatant to win must throw his rival over this wall clean out of the ring. Tiny bells are rung by the seconds. These bells have a peculiar timbre and excite the crickets to a very frenzy of fighting. A cricket with a good record will sell for $5 or $10, while champions often fetch $50.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

A Gentle Hint.

A lady who suffered from a neighbor's fowls that overran and spoiled her garden politely asked her neighbor several times to keep his pets at home, but no attention was paid to her grievance. Finally she hit upon an ingenious method of protecting herself. She prepared grains of corn by tying to them with a strong thread small cards bearing the words, "Please keep your chickens at home," and distributed the grains about her flower beds. The chickens came to feast as usual and greedily swallowed the corn, not perceiving the thread until the card was against their beaks. Then they could neither swallow the card nor rid themselves of the swallowed corn. Twenty or thirty of the marauders ran home, bearing the polite request to their culpable owner, who, struck with the method of the hint, promptly cut the threads and cooped up his fowls.—Bombay Times.

He who hesitates much will accomplish little.—Von Moltke.

At the Minstrels.

"What," asked Mistah Bones of Mistah Tambo at the conclusion of the justly celebrated silver sand clog dance by Professor Slinghele—"what am de diffunce atween a red headed brakeman dat gits offen a freight train an' lets it run in on de sidin' at a small town at midnight an' a man dat has a whole lot o' work to do an' keeps gittin' somebody else ter do it because he loafs all de time?"

"What am de diffunce, anyway?"

Before the applause had subsided Mr. Squeekin de Throte, the celebrated contra tenor, stepped to the footlights and began the rendition of the pathetic ballad, "It Would Have Been All the Same Today if You Hadn't Done What You Did."—St. Paul Pioneer-Press.

He Was Under Oath.

The late Professor Rowland of Johns Hopkins university was the most eminent physicist since the days of Joseph Henry. Among his notable achievements in the realm of pure science was the calculation of the mechanical equivalent of heat and the use of gratings in spectrum analysis, for which purpose he devised a machine that could cut 40,000 lines to the inch on a plate of polished metal. In the practical application of his knowledge he was noted as the inventor of the multiplex telegraph apparatus.

Some years ago, testifying in a case involving the Cataract Power company, in answer to a question on cross examination as to who, in his opinion, was the greatest American scientist, he replied, "I am."

After leaving the courtroom one of the lawyers ventured to criticize this answer for its effect upon the jury, whereupon Rowland exclaimed:

"Well, what else could I say? Wasn't I under oath?"—New York Globe.

HIS INHERITANCE.

By CLINTON DANGERFIELD.

The tones of the elder man's voice ceased, and to John Ringwood, standing before him, it seemed that the whole world was suddenly enveloped in a mist of red shame. When Ringwood spoke his accents were curiously quiet and constrained, for was he not addressing Molly's father?

"And so," he said, wondering vaguely if he were the same John Ringwood who ten minutes ago had asked so hopefully for the girl's hand—"and so, sir, this is your objection to me—because my father was a—a—coward"—the word came out with a gasping sound—"you think I must be one also!"

"Blood tells," returned Henry Morris hoarsely.—"But, remember, lad: I would never have forced this painful knowledge of mine on you if you had not compelled me to say why I could not trust my girl to you. Your father's shame, known only to you and me, would have slept with him in his grave, but—you would know."

"That will do," said Ringwood thickly. "I am my father's son, as you say. There is no chance here, or I might prove to you that God does not always make us mere copies of those who go before. But that is idle. There is one thing—when I am gone tell Molly that I loved her; that I asked for her hand, but that there was a—a barrier between us. She shall not think I was making summer love to her. She shall not hate me for that."

"Very well," said the elder man grimly. "But if I had known the girl would interest herself in the first good looking stranger thrown at my gates by a broken ankle I would have taken preventive measures long ago."

"I will take the stage tomorrow," pursued Ringwood. "Until then I must trespass on your hospitality."

"And welcome," said Morris heartily. "You've met what I said like a man. Here's my hand."

"Is that necessary?" returned the other briefly. "You may as well avoid contamination when you have condemned another into hereditary leprosy."

"Everything's gone to sleep on the ranch," he said pettishly. "When's Markham and Molly coming home?"

"Your brother said he would bring your sister home by 8 o'clock," returned Morris.

"Gracious! I hope he will," said the boy. "But she said they might cut across to Denham's. She wanted to see old Aunt Hannah or some such nonsense. I told her she was going after one of Hannah's love charms, and she turned as red as you please."

"Try to talk sense," said his father irritably, and Ringwood crossed to the west window and stood watching the sunset fires die to an ashen gray.

"So rose the fire of my hopes," he thought. "Like this, it died in bitter ashes—flung to my father's level! The son, oh, mercy, of—a coward!"

Eight o'clock came, but neither the elder son nor Molly Morris had returned. At 9 a negro groom brought a note saying they would sleep that night at the Denhams', some fifteen miles away. A thrill, half anguish, half relief, shot through Ringwood. Best indeed that they should never meet again. He would take the stage early next morning.

Then on the heels of the negro stumbled in Lee Hung, the cook, who had been granted an afternoon off. Blanched to the palest of yellows, he stammered out a tale in his almost incomprehensible lingo which, translated, ran as follows:

Coming home on foot, he was aware of a tiny fire at the foot of Sevier's canyon. Inspired by ancestral deities, he had crept up to overhear the strangers converse. Developed, they had learned of Markham Morris' deposit that day with the express agent at Ravanshood; that they resolved that this money would circulate better at home and had shot the unfortunate express agent through his window, dead men being proverbially close mouthed; had seized the packet, which waited the midnight express, and now only tarried the rising of the moon.

Young Morris went white with rage and despair. That package stood between his family and financial ruin. His eyes flashed.

"Yes, lad. Lee Hung, how many men were there?"

"Allee samee fingers one hand—no thumb."

"Four! I'm sorry your brother isn't here, Stanley. You are a bit young for such work. The foot of Sevier canyon. Let's see. We can be on them in half an hour."

"Take the short cut through the canyon, dad, and we can be at 'em in twenty-five minutes."

"No," said his father decisively. "To ride through that canyon trail at full speed means almost certain death. Quick, Lee Hung, and you, boy," to the negro, "saddle Prince and Firebrand. Stanley, help me get the pistols and a rifle for each."

Only two horses! Young Morris flashed an astounded look on their guest. Was that dogged indifference real? Of course nothing was expected from Lee or the negro, but this handsome Saxon, with frank gray eyes—could he fail them in such need?

But Morris understood. This holding back was Ringwood's bitter revenge for the stinging taunt put on him. Morris checked Stanley when he would have addressed Ringwood, and presently father and son swung into their saddles and galloped down the road.

As they vanished in the faint light Ringwood rushed for the barn, loosening his pistols in his belt as he ran. The two servants watched him scornfully as he saddled his gray with incredible swiftness.

"Marse Ringwood scared de fight run down dis way," muttered Sam. "He des nuttin' but trash, fo' all he so good lookin'. Good a'mighty, I wish all de boys wasn't gone! Whar ebberybody, Lee?"

"Allee samee time off 'cept hunt hills," was the brief return, which meant that some of the men had an afternoon and the rest were after some refractory cattle in the hills.

"Marse Ringwood gone like de debble after him," growled Sam. And indeed the gray was flying at terrible speed.

The far, dim starlight sifted reluctantly down, and the horse's feet reached the ground more by instinct than sight. Ringwood bent over his neck, jockey fashion. For a scant two miles they kept to a badly marked road; then before them yawned the mouth of Sevier canyon, the broken trail merely a gray pencil mark among jagged bowlders and treacherous wave washed stones, rounded by old world floods.

A second the gray hesitated, and in that second Ringwood distinctly heard again Morris' voice.

"To ride through that trail at speed means almost certain death!" And he exulted that the words flowed in his soul like wine. Then he drove the rowels in his horse's flanks, and the gray in generous anger plunged down the canyon way at top speed, every beat of his steel shod hoofs striking fire from the rocks. Now they crossed a bed of clay worn slimily smooth by the soft lapping of the low stream, and here a goat might have fallen and taken no shame to himself, but the gray had that superb and rare quality which carries through everything—he believed in himself. Presently nine-tenths of the canyon was behind them, though the frowning walls yet hung above. Once a panther hissed like an infuriated cat in their way, but the oncoming might of the two daunted her, and she fled ignominiously to the recesses of the cliff sides and mouthed resentfully after them, dragging behind her a tail twice its natural size.

But now open woods; the canyon was in the rear, and before Ringwood a tiny fire, with a crude half tent hugging it, and in its shelter four men. Thanks to the half mile of soft earth between them and the canyon, thanks to a quarrel already bred among them, they did not hear Ringwood until he was bearing down upon them, not fifty yards away.

Then they acted in unison. Four rifles were cocked—a challenge rang out:

"Stop or"—

It might be a harmless passing stranger, and they did not care for the noise of a fusillade just now.

The answer came clearly on the wind, "D—n you—throw up your hands!" a command they thought unnecessary, as their hands were up and their rifles in them. They answered with a fourfold volley of shots. In the next instant the gray was on them, and in the chaos that ensued Ringwood was only conscious that he got in several shots, that the butt of his pistol had proved quite useful, that two forms had clung to his knees and had gone down, that the badly scattered fire was catching the edge of the tent, and then he and the gray went down in their turn together, Ringwood oddly thankful in spite of the fact that sparks (perhaps from the tent fire) swam before his eyes, that the nearest robber made a soft cushion. Then fire and sparks went out blackly.

* * * * * * *

When light came again the moon was pouring down her full splendor. Over him bent two anxious faces, while his own reeked of the whisky used to bathe his forehead and temples. A sigh of relief hailed his open eyes.

"Thank God!" sobbed Stanley. "I thought he was gone! And after settling the four of them!"

"No, only stunned," returned their patient, rising obstinately to his feet, but glad to cling to the nearest saddle to steady himself, the earth whirled round so strangely. "I am all right, Mr. Morris. Don't trouble yourself any further by coddling—the son of a coward."

Stanley stared, then said nervously: "By Jove, he's off his head!" But his father answered by taking the tall figure in his arms.

"Lad," he said brokenly, "I've learned my lesson. A man is just himself, after all—not his father or his grandfather—and I'm hoping my boys may be cowards some day like you."

Bad and Good.

Miss Sue Brette—And you say he took aim and threw an egg at you?

Foote Lights—He did.

"Was it bad?"

"The egg was, but the aim was not."

VAGARIES OF WEIGHT.

Here are two personal experiences of my own that are equally striking. After having put on rather too much weight, probably through excess and other mistakes of food and drink, I played a severe tennis match and lost seven pounds in weight. Then I took a glass of wine and at once by this put on two pounds. Then I took a meal slightly larger than usual and put on another two and a half pounds, though the meal itself weighed only one pound.

On another occasion when I had fasted for a day or two and had naturally lost two or three pounds a day I ate a meal weighing about one pound and went up in weight not one pound, but three pounds.

How, in the case of other people, can three pounds—a day's food and drink—add nothing at all?

In my own case one principle appears, and this is that my nature is at any rate rapid in getting toward the normal, but comparatively slow in getting far below or far above the normal.

A not uncommon but very striking phenomenon is that of the shampooer in a Turkish bath in London. He finds that after his day's work, which involves copious sweating and hard physical exercise and scarcely anything to eat or drink, he goes up in weight some two or three pounds merely by resting.—Eustace Miles in Metropolitan Magazine.

STRANGER THAN FICTION.

Romance writers are often blamed for making the plots of their stories turn upon slight chances and improbable incidents, but here is an incident in real life stranger than fiction.

In 1790 the cutter Sparrow brought the brig Nancy into harbor at Kingston, Jamaica, under suspicion that she was engaged in the slave trade. But, although many circumstances pointed to this fact, no clear proof could be obtained, as the brig had no papers from which the charge could be substantiated. The suspected vessel was therefore discharged, but the day before she left the harbor a man-of-war arrived, bringing some documents that clearly proved her guilt.

These papers had been obtained in a "highly improbable manner." While cruising off the coast of Santo Domingo the crew of the man-of-war had amused themselves by fishing for sharks. One monster was captured and cut up on deck, and in its stomach was found a bundle of ship's papers, the very documents flung overboard by the captain of the Nancy when he was boarded by the Sparrow.

Curiosity led the captain of the man-of-war to clean and examine the papers, and the result was that he brought them before the authorities at the nearest port. The unlucky brig was condemned on this romantically acquired evidence.

A Lame Excuse.

"A French sentinel in Algeria," said a playwright, "had for his colonel a very tall, lanky, round shouldered man. This round shouldered colonel one night was making a quiet inspection. Passing the sentinel, he found, to his rage and indignation, that he was not challenged. So he returned to the man and roared:

"'You didn't challenge me!'

"'N-no, sir,' faltered the sentinel, saluting.

"'Well, why didn't you?' the colonel demanded.

"'Excuse me, sir,' said the sentinel, 'but I thought—I beg your pardon, sir—I thought you was a camel.'"

His Denomination.

A man who had been playing golf with a clergyman heard him swear two or three times under his breath. Suspecting the lapse, he could not be sure of it until one monosyllable came out with unmistakable clearness. After he had finished the match a friend of his said: "I saw you playing just now with the Rev. Mr. Dash. Of what denomination is he?" "Some people say he is a Congregationalist," replied his late opponent, "but I should call him a Profanitarian."—Argonaut.

An Air Loving World Wanted.

Once get a nation into inviting fresh air instead of barring it out, and not only is that nation going to repel consumption, but it is going to better itself physically in such a measure as to be practically immune from other diseases. An air loving world is what the scientists are aiming at.

All Provided.

Mrs. X. (away from home)—John, did you leave out anything for the cat before you started? Mr. X. (who dislikes the beast)—Yes, I left a can of condensed milk on the table, with the can opener beside it.

He Discovered Why.

Mr. Oldboy—Why do you bring so much water, Tommy? I merely asked for a drink.

Tommy—I thought you'd need more than a glassful, 'cause sister said you was the driest old stick she ever knew.—Illustrated Bits.

Mostly Down.

Brown (expatiating on the merits of his latest bargain in motors)—I don't say she's much to look at, but you should see the way she takes a hill! Friend (callously)—Up or down?—London Punch.

Nature never did betray the heart that loved her.—Barrow.

REGULATING THE COOK.

The Good Housewife's Experience and Its Abrupt Ending.

"Maggie," said Mrs. Hartford sharply, "this meat is not properly cooked. My husband says it is not fit for a pig."

"But, Mrs. Hartford"—

"Now, do not answer back, Maggie. I do not care to argue with you. I went to the butcher myself yesterday and bought the steak, so I knew it is all right."

"If you"—

"Do not be impudent with me. I have warned you several times about trying to correct me. You have made a dismal failure of today's dinner. Mr. Hartford is thoroughly disgusted with your cooking and just left for the cafe to get something to quiet his appetite."

By this time poor Maggie was in tears.

"There is no use crying about it," continued Mrs. Hartford without the least display of sympathy. "I have remonstrated with you about your neglect of duty long enough. Remember, now, if this occurs again I shall certainly discharge you without a moment's notice."

But Mrs. Hartford awoke with a sudden start and, shaking her husband violently, said:

"George, I have just had the most impossible dream."

TRAINING WILD BEASTS.

Whips, Sticks and Iron Rods Are the Methods That Win.

"Kindness and argymint," said the backwoods father of five husky sons, "is great things, but whenever I wanter persuade one o' my boys to do suthin' in a hurry thet he don't wanter do I use a bale stick."

In laying down this rule for the government of his offspring the old backwoodsman hit the principle of wild animal training straight in the nose. The only use an animal trainer has for the word "kindness" may be found in its employment when he discusses his professional methods with an interviewer.

Many pounds of good white paper have been wasted in describing instances of mutual affection between animal and trainer, but when it comes right down to actual cases the sole bond between the domestic man and the wild beast is a good strong stick, and the fiercer the beast the bigger and tougher the stick. Of the great army of nature fakers certainly the professional animal trainer is commander in chief.

Whips, sticks and iron rods are the accepted instruments of persuasion, and trainers constantly employ them. When a wild animal is to be broken the first thing to break is his spirit. It is done with a club.—Everybody's Magazine.

The Cause of the Delay.

Our small boy, Arthur, had long believed that a baby in the family was desirable, since most of his playmates came from homes provided with this adjunct. In good time his mother told him confidentially that his oft expressed wish for a family baby would probably be gratified. The news was too good to keep, and Arthur was promptly boasting to his nearest chum.

"But when are you going to have it?" demanded the friend.

"Oh, I don't know—'fore long, I guess," answered Arthur.

"Huh," sniffed the other, "what's the use of waiting? What good's a baby if you can't have it when you want it? Why don't you get it right away?"

"Well, you see, it's this way," explained Arthur, driven to his wits' end; "we've ordered the baby, but we haven't paid for it yet!"

Pleasant While It Lasted.

He listened intently. It was his wife and her mother talking.

"No, my dear," the latter was saying, "I must go tomorrow. I do not believe in a mother-in-law making long visits. But, before I go, I want to tell you what a treasure I think you have gained in your husband. He seems to me to be near perfection. Are you sure, however, that you are not too strict with him? Do not be quick to chide him when he stays out late. Men need a little latitude, you know—say two or three times a week."

The man stirred uneasily in his sleep. It seemed so real; but, alas, it was a dream!

A Light Diet.

A certain father who is fond of putting his boys through natural history examinations is often surprised by their mental agility. He recently asked them to tell him "what animal is satisfied with the least nourishment."

"The moth!" one of them shouted confidently. "It eats nothing but holes."

Cordial and Confidential.

"How did you get along with Mamie's father?"

"Fine. He said it was all right before I asked him. And then he asked me if I didn't know a few more likely young fellows who would take the rest of his girls."

Made His Mark.

"Well, young Dr. Slicer has made his mark already, hasn't he?"

"Yes; did it on his first case."

"Great work! What did he do?"

"Vaccinated him."

Ambiguous.

Dobber—I don't know whether that critic meant to praise or blame my work. Cutter—What did he say? Dobber—Well, I had a picture of "The Dead Sea," and he said it was full of life.

The hand can never execute anything higher than the character can conceive.—Emerson.

A LITTLE FISH'S TRICK.

How the Puffer Discomfits His Enemy and Saves Himself.

All the little sea folk have their own clever way of protecting themselves from their enemies, but the spiny boxfish has about the cleverest way of all.

He belongs to the great family called puffer, and you will see in a moment how well the name fits him.

Just imagine the little puffer swimming around in the water looking like a small round box with a head on. A big fish comes along, sees the little puffer and thinks: "There's just a good mouthful for me!" But just as he darts toward him the little puffer blows himself up like a ball, turns over on his back and floats around with all his sharp prickers sticking out toward his enemy.

The big fish is dazed; he stares at the puffer and thinks, "Can that great prickly thing be the same little fish I tried to swallow?" He can't understand it, but he sees there is no use trying, so he goes sadly on his way, and when the little puffer is sure he is gone he just empties the water out of his skin and goes back to his usual size.

Now, isn't that a pretty clever trick for a little fish to play? But, you see, Mother Nature gave the little puffer just that kind of a body that he might escape from his enemies.—St. Nicholas.

A SCOTCH RING.

One of the Royal Jewels, It Had a Melancholy History.

The traditional history of the Scotch regalia ring is of the most tragic, not to say melancholy, character. It is believed that it was the favorite ring of Mary Stuart and that after her judicial murder in Fotheringay castle it was transmitted to her son. From James it descended to Charles I., at whose coronation at Scone in 1633 it played a distinct part. Once more did this ill fated ring figure at an untimely and ill merited death, for, with almost his last breath upon the scaffold at Whitehall, Charles bequeathed it to Bishop Juxon in trust for his son.

In due course of time the ring came into the possession of James II. and was carried away with him on his flight to the continent. When, however, he was detained by the fishermen at Sheerness, the ring, which had been secreted in the king's underclothing, only escaped robbery by the luckiest of mistakes on the part of the sailor who searched him. Thus the ring was passed on uninjured to James' descendants till by bequest of Cardinal York it became the property of the reigning dynasty once more and was by them replaced among the royal jewels of Scotland, from which it had been separated for many a long year.—St. James' Gazette.

A Penalty of Genius.

It seems to be the frequent penalty of genius that it is denied the privilege of perpetuating its name and kind beyond a few generations at most. Thus it is said that there is not now living a single descendant in the male line of Chaucer, Shakespeare, Spenser, Milton, Cowley, Butler, Dryden, Pope, Cowper, Goldsmith, Byron or Moore; not one of Sir Philip Sidney or of Sir Walter Raleigh; not one of Drake, Cromwell, Hampden, Monk, Marlborough, Peterborough or Nelson; not one of Bolingbroke, Walpole, Chatham, Pitt, Fox, Burke, Graham or Channing; not one of Bacon, Locke, Newton or Davy; not one of Hume, Gibbon or Macaulay; not one of Hogarth, Sir Joshua Reynolds or Sir Thomas Lawrence; not one of David Garrick, John Kemble or Edmund Kean.—London Standard.

SEED OF THE VIOLET.

The Flower Is Aggressive In Spite of Its Boasted Modesty.

The common wild violet affords one of the most remarkable illustrations of the care and apparent forethought of nature in preserving a species. As everybody knows, the violet grows in the shade, in pastures, woods and fields where the grass is abundant and long. It comes up early in the spring and flowers at a time when the grass is most abundant and succulent. Of course it is liable to be cut down by the scythe, but much more likely is it to be bitten off by grazing animals.

The violets that come in the spring either do not seed at all or very sparingly, so that if the plant relied on its spring flowers for seed it would probably perish off the earth in a very few years.

But in the late fall the plant bears another crop of blossoms that are never seen save by the professional botanist. They are very small, utterly insignificant in appearance, and grow either just at or below the surface of the ground. These are the flowers which produce the seeds for the next season. The flowers on long stems blooming in spring are only for show; the hidden flowers are for use, and the number of seeds they bear may be judged from the ease with which a wild violet bed spreads.

When the seeds are ripe the pod explodes, scattering them to a considerable distance, often to ten or twelve feet from the parent plant, so that in spite of its boasted modesty the violet not only takes care of itself, but becomes a troublesome aggressor.

SWOONED AT THE BELL.

A very well known oculist tells of one case where healing through the subliminal consciousness was really a source of embarrassment to the physician who was responsible for it. Several years ago when the eye specialist—he knows about ears and throats, too—was studying in Vienna a young girl was brought to the hospital to be treated for some nervous disorder. Hypnotism—or suggestion, as one is asked to call it these days—was used, and she was brought under his influence by the ringing of a bell. After a few treatments she went to sleep, or into the unconscious and receptive state, as soon as she heard the bell. She was speedily cured and left the hospital. Next day she was brought unconscious, roused and sent away. The day after that she was brought in again. Indeed, for some time scarcely a day passed when she wasn't carried in limp and unconscious. She became a positive nuisance to the great neurologist that had hypnotized her, and he finally sent persons to watch her. It was found that on her way to work she passed a certain church and usually was at the door at the moment during the celebration of the mass when the bell rang. At its tinkle she calmly curled up and wept to sleep. It was necessary to suggest to her the next time she was brought to the hospital that no bell in the world could have any effect on her except the one rung in the hospital by the neurologist. After that she went about the city quite unaffected by the bells, and the neurologist drew a breath of relief.

Just a Way They Have.

Inhabitants of the isle of Wight speak of "going to England" when they leave their own fragment of the kingdom. A patriotic Cornishman also "goes to England" when he crosses the Tamar. Similarly inhabitants of the Balkan peninsula talk of "going to Europe" when they leave their own corner of the continent, in curious contrast with the people of Great Britain, who regard themselves as both of and in "Europe," and it is only "the continent" that they visit. There is an old story of a Scottish minister who prayed for a blessing upon "the inhabitants of Great and Little Cumbrae (islands in the Firth of Clyde) and the adjacent islands of Great Britain and Ireland." Massachusetts people speak of going "down east" when they start for the Maine coast.

"Sherlock Holmes" as a Witness.

The recent death of Major Hambrough curiously coincides with the anniversary of the trial of the celebrated Ardlamont case, in December, 1893. One of the principal witnesses was Dr. Joseph Bell of Edinburgh, the original of "Sherlock Holmes"; and his closely-reasoned evidence, quite in character with Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's hero, was largely responsible for the verdict.

BREAKFAST IN LORDS.

Famous British Function Was Instituted by Lord Brougham.

The customary breakfast given at the opening of the legal term by the Lord Chancellor in the House of Lords to about 300 guests is an institution which goes back to the days of the versatile Brougham. For the last 40 years it has been held in the House of Lords, but at an earlier date it was given in the Lord Chancellor's residence. It is a relic of the times when breakfast was a great social function.

Many other great men had what may be termed the breakfast habit. Thus Mr. Gladstone was a regular giver of breakfasts and a constant attendant at them when given by others. Of recent years, however, the breakfast has fallen into desuetude as a social function, except at the universities, where young men are still found who are capable of consuming three or four courses and the while maintaining a genial flow of elegant conversation.

Recently an attempt has been made to revive the breakfast. Thus the King in 1907, at Newmarket, issued several invitations to breakfast parties. To our ancestors the meal was a solid one, of many dishes of meat, qualified by sack posset or small beer, the ancient equivalent of soda water. Tea was not known, and coffee was only to be found in the mediaeval analogue of the modern museum.

NOMADS OF THE VELD.

South African Masarwa Are Disappearing—Origin Cannot Be Explained.

Rapidly diminishing, with their origin still unknown, the Masarwa, or bushmen of the Khalahari Desert, would appear to be a people well worthy of study by the ethnologist. A contribution to their life story appears in the new number of The African Monthly," from the pen of Mr. C. C. Clements Vialls, who has been trading for some years past on the Bechuana border, and has often come into contact with these strange dwellers on the waterless plain. Closely resembling the Hottentot in color and features, the bushmen are gifted with an abnormal amount of instinct, but with very little intellect. Their vocabulary is confined to some three hundred words, and is a series of "clicks," like that of the Hottentot; but not even the Hottentot can understand them. They have no rites or ceremonies, use no pots or cooking utensils, and possess no weapons beyond a bow and a sheaf of poisoned arrows. Their powers of endurance are amazing: they can run down giraffe, eland, wildebeeste, and duiker until their quarry drops from sheer exhaustion. When short of other food they eat rats, reptiles, and insects of all sorts with a relish; but they refuse to touch monkeys, saying they are "people," like themselves.

Platypus Is Part Snake.

It seems, on the authority of an Australian naturalist, that the duck-billed ornithorhynchus, not content with outraging most of the fixed laws of natural history, has to be classed in one respect with the order of venomous snakes. In a case at Kempsey, where a platypus was caught by a small boy and promptly clawed his captor, Dr. Casement held that the poison which entered the boy's arm was identical with snake poison. Unfortunately, however, there is no poison sac in the vicinity of the claw, nor is there any ejection orifice. But may not the platypus, asks the naturalist already referred to, be able to transfer poison from its bill to its claw? That is the explanation some bushmen give of the intense virulence of a platypus wound. The saliva of enraged animals or birds is often poisonous. It is not retained in a sac, or carried along a duct, as the snake's poison is, but when it mingles with human blood it produces many of the effects of snake bite.

Black and White.

"There was a quaint strike at Mungindi recently," writes a Sydney (N. S.W.) correspondent to The Standard of Empire. "Acting on the instructions of the Aborigines' Protection Board, a local police officer visited the aborigines' camp, and seven youthful blacks of both sexes were transferred to the public school, where they proudly took their places among three or four score of white children. In a few moments the school was in an uproar, and as soon as it was realized that the new pupils had come to stay the white children, deaf to the master's protests, left the building in a body. On the following day the aborigines were in sole possession, and on the day after that the authorities concluded that the experiment gave no promise of success, so the aborigines were sent back to their camp.

The Doctor's Prescription.

An amusing story is told of a visit which Sir Samuel Wilks, the distinguished physician, who has recovered from a serious illness, once paid to a friend with a small suburban practice. He sat with his friend while he received his patients, and noticed on a shelf behind several bottles of physic, all but one of which he recognized by their technical names as harmless concoctions. The bottle which puzzled him was labelled "A.O.T." Sir Samuel took it down and smelt the colorless fluid contained in it. "What, in the name of goodness, is this?" he asked. "Oh, that," replied the friend, carelessly, "is 'Any Old Thing' warranted to cure imaginary complaints.

Parcel Wrappers.

"The hardest thing to wrap up," said a shipping clerk, "is a violin. A department store will often test a new wrapper by giving him a violin to do up. If he passes that test he is all right.

"Abroad bags and string, being expensive, are rarely used, and the young groceryman must be able to wrap potatoes, flour and all sorts of things in sheets of paper alone. He gets a kind of knack. He lays his flour or beans in a square of paper, doubles the paper over and, with an end in each hand, swings the parcel round and round. Like magic then, it is done up, and you can carry it safely quite a hundred [illegible]

BEAUTY HINTS.

To improve the contour of the face try filling the cheeks with air and letting it explode with a soft explosive sound. Do this fifteen or twenty times a day.

Very hot water externally applied will stop dangerous bleeding.

It is as important not to get too thin as too fat, as either condition makes even a young girl look several years older than her actual age. A girl who considers herself fully grown should ascertain what is the correct weight for her height and then try to attain and maintain that standard.

Peroxide of hydrogen is a harmless bleach when used in moderation. Pour a little in a saucer and apply with a soft linen cloth. It may be used several times a week without injury.

Overplump girls should carefully study their figures and decide wherein they are faulty. Usually the waist line is too high. The waist may be lengthened by touching the floor with the finger tips twenty times every morning. This practice is better than wearing shape making corsets, for when the waist is too tightly confined the figure loses its natural grace and ease of movement.

Somersaults are not dignified, but they are one of the best of all weight reducing exercises. They will take off fat rapidly and safely—barring a few bruises—unless one has a tendency to heart weakness.

Weakness of the heart is indicated by breathlessness after any slight exertion and by such evidences of imperfect circulation as pale finger nails and cold extremities.

The harder the toothbrush the more effectually it cleans the teeth.

Alcohol or ether will dry the hair quickly, but it will turn the hair gray.

One cannot have a pretty hand if the fingers are broad at the tips. Pressing down on the ends of the fingers from the first joint to the tip will, if done many times a day, remedy this defect.

To get the full value of cold cream it must be let dry on the face. It takes time for the skin to absorb it.

Raikes' Ragged Regiment.

"Bobby Wild Goose and his ragged regiment" was the name booted after Robert Raikes, the first modern Sunday school advocate, and his scholars. The thoroughfare was Sooty alley, and the scholars were the ragged boys who toiled in the pin factories of Gloucester, England. Robert Raikes paid Mrs. Brandon, a poor woman, a shilling each Sunday to teach the boys the Bible. That was in 1780. Four years later there were 250,000 boys and girls attending Sunday school in the kingdom.—Delineator.

Wearing Work.

"How's your husband doing?" said the pale woman.

"'Bout the same," answered the thin woman.

"Hasn't he got any regular work yet?"

"Yes. He said he felt the need of some steady occupation. So he thought he'd make it his business to wind the clock."

"Did he stick to it?"

"For awhile, but now he's kicking for an eight day clock."

The Bank of Montreal at the end of its fiscal year, October 31st, 1908, added another $1,000,000 to its Reserve Fund, thus further emphasizing its great strength and stability.

With a Saving Department at every one of its many Branches, it offers the opportunity for all, who so desire, to avail themselves of its many advantages by opening a Savings Account.

A Savings Bank account is the best safeguard against misfortune, being always ready and available, and earning interest all the time.

Consideration for one's family demands that all heads of households should provide against the day of adverse conditions, and there is no simpler way than by laying systematically from time to time a portion of income or earnings in a Savings account.

Deposits can be made from One Dollar up, and withdrawals can be made at any time, without notice or delay.

115 NEW SUBSCRIBERS

First Week of The Examiner's EXCITING Newsboy's Competition

A Big Success

The score in the Examiner's live Newsboys' Competition for the first week of the contest showed an addition of 115 new subscribers to the Examiner's Daily Circulation.

The Boys gave a splendid account of themselves, and our circulation manager believes he has as bright an array of hustling newsboys as ever stepped in shoe leather.

Johnny Bennett

Was the first boy to win the Examiner's Weekly Prize of $2.00. He secured 23 new subscribers during the week. This amount, added to his profits on his total sales, (46), gave him a clear profit of $3.84. Pretty good "rake off" for a few hours work after school, with a good chance to be in the winning for one of the Big Cash Prizes at the close of the contest, April 31st.

Cash Prizes

FIRST PRIZE	$25.00	FIFTH PRIZE	$5.00
SECOND PRIZE	20.00	SIXTH PRIZE	4.00
THIRD PRIZE	15.00	SEVENTH PRIZE	3.00
FOURTH PRIZE	10.00	EIGHTH PRIZE	2.00
TWELVE PRIZES OF	- -	$1.00

Don't hang back because you didn't score the first week. If you become one of our Newsboys and start out now and secure two or more new customers a week, you are sure to get one of the cash prizes offered below. Parents who would like their boys to earn sufficient to almost keep them, should encourage them to handle the Daily Examiner after school. There are many young men now holding good positions who made thier first money by selling and delivering The Daily Examiner.

Boys, Get Into the Race!

Get in line; Make up your minds right away. Start in and canvass those who are not taking the Examiner — they will always read it if you once get them started.

This week's prize of $2.00 is going to be paid to some boy who hustles the most. The boy who gets the largest number of New Customers by Saturday will win it. Now get busy.

An Important Condition

In order that protection may be given to each boy who is entered in this competition it is a condition that no one will secure a prize who does not legitimately earn it. If a boy applies for a weekly prize and has not bought the papers for his own use and sale it will be turned over to the boy who has actually won it.

KING'S CLOSE SHAVES

HIS MAJESTY HAS OFTEN NARROWLY ESCAPED DEATH.

Although He Has Only Once Been Shot at by a Would-Be Assassin, Edward VII. Has Come Near Being Killed by Accident—Windlass on Ship Broke Just After He Moved Away—Close Call From Typhoid.

The King has had quite an alarming number of narrow escapes from death; so often has he been in dire peril that one begins to believe that the sovereign bears a charmed existence!

Only one attempt at assassination has been made upon His Majesty, and that, luckily, proved unsuccessful. The dastardly assassin was a youth named Sipido, whose half imbecile mind had become imbued with the idea that he had been ordained to "set things right," as the times were "out of joint." The unfortunate young fellow had read much pernicious literature containing libels upon our royal family and upon the naval and military authorities. It was in the memorable year 1900, when England was at war with the Boers. The King, who was at that time Prince of Wales and heir to the throne, was passing through Brussels on his way to Denmark, and the fanatical Sipido contrived, through the carelessness of the station authorities, to gain access to the platform. As the royal train began to move out from the station the young assassin leapt on to the footboard and, drawing a revolver, levelled it at the head of the Prince of Wales, firing two shots in rapid succession. Both bullets miraculously missed the prince, embedding themselves in the woodwork of the saloon. The shots were fired at so short a range that the escape of the prince can only be regarded as miraculous.

The King, while lunching aboard H.M.S. Sultan, was one day watching with much interest the proceedings of the sailors in connection with the trial of a new gun. After regarding the proceedings for some time the King casually stepped back a few paces. The very second that the King moved the windless broke away, the handle revolving with tremendous rapidity in the exact spot where His Majesty had been standing. Sir Claude de Crespigny, who witnessed the affair, says, "Had the King not moved away a second earlier he would certainly have been struck and killed by that murderous handle!"

No man ever had a narrower escape from death by typhoid than His Majesty, in the latter part of the year 1871. For days the prince lay unconscious, stricken by the terrible disease, and Queen Victoria journeyed post-haste from Scotland to Sandringham to be present at what was feared would be her son's death-bed. The most skilful doctors could give no hope, and a cloud of awful uncertainty hung like a pall over the country. On the first day of December the prince rallied, and the hopes of the nation brightened, only to be dashed to the ground by the news of a serious relapse, on which occasion hope was finally abandoned, the whole of the royal family being summoned to the bedside. To the astonishment of the eminent physicians the prince still lingered on, and ultimately, to the joy of the nation, he completely recovered.

The serious illness of the King previous to his coronation will be remembered by all, and no one will ever forget the deep sympathy and anxiety that pervaded the whole Empire.

As is well known, King Edward is an ardent sportsman. While tiger and elephant-hunting in India His Majesty had many hairbreadth escapes. On one occasion the King was making his way through the thick undergrowth of a Ceylon jungle, when he was startled by a tremendous crashing of branches close at hand. Almost before he could cock his rifle an elephant burst through the dense trees and charged thunderously down upon the King. Instead of endeavoring to escape, our sovereign coolly pointed his piece at the head of the monster and took deliberate aim. The shot struck the elephant, and, although it did not immediately kill the animal, it caused the great creature to swerve aside within a few feet of His Majesty. Had it not been for that cool shot the King must have been mangled beyond recognition by those ponderous feet and deadly gleaming tusks!

On another occasion a large tiger sprang suddenly from a thicket on to the back of the elephant which the King was riding, and made frantic efforts to get at His Majesty. The cloth on which the howdah rested was completely torn away, the tiger thus slipping to the ground with the tattered cloth. Had the ferocious animal succeeded in getting into that howdah there would have been very little left of our sporting King.

Perhaps the most recent escape of King Edward was on the occasion of his visit to Sir Thomas Lipton aboard one of the famous Shamrocks. The great steel mast suddenly snapped under the tremendous strain of the canvas, falling within a foot of His Majesty, who was strolling on deck at the time. It was perhaps the narrowest escape from instant death that he ever experienced.

To Be Dyspeptic Is To Be Miserable.

Dyspepsia is the prevailing malady of civilized life. It is largely due to gross errors in diet, over-eating, too free indulgence in stimulants and over-taxing the stomach with indigestible food, eating too rapidly without chewing the food sufficiently, indulging in hot biscuits, pastry, pickles, confectionery, etc.

Constipation, headache, heartburn, sour stomach, distress after eating, belching of wind, faintness, and fullness and distention of the stomach are a few of the many distressing symptoms of the poor, weary dyspeptic. Burdock Blood Bitters regulates the stomach, stimulates the secretion of the saliva and gastric juice to facilitate digestion, removes acidity, purifies the blood, and tones up the system to full health and vigor, and thereby cures dyspepsia and all its tributary diseases.

Mr. Amos Sawler, Gold River, N.S., writes:—"I was greatly troubled with dyspepsia, and after trying several doctors to no effect, I commenced taking Burdock Blood Bitters and I think it is the best medicine there is for that complaint."

Sharks For Profit.

The Standard of Empire's Wellington, New Zealand, correspondent says the shark fishing industry which has recently been started at Parengarenga bids fair to prove a very successful enterprise, though its range, at the first blush, does not seem to be particularly extensive. It seems that the liver of the shark is very rich in an oil which, when added to skim-milk, proves an ideal food for calves. The fishery is very largely worked by the Maoris, and one tribe engaged in fishing with lines secured no fewer than 500 sharks in two days. They cut up the fish, extract the livers, and then dry the flesh, which is considered a great delicacy, in the usual Maori fashion.

The Starboard Light.

"Twice a day for a week I have been harassed by doubt as to how far a man should go in correcting the glaring mistakes of strangers," said the man who enjoys looking in shop windows. "There is an art store downtown, where the present window collection includes the picture of a ship. It is elaborately framed and has a lighthouse carved on the wooden strip at one side, but the artist should never have tried marine work, for he has got the red side light of that vessel on the starboard side. Two or three times I've been on the point of going into the store and asking the proprietor either to remove that picture or put a patch of green paint over that red, and each time my nerve has failed me.

"I am half hoping that the false side light will cause a collision in that window which will smash the picture, and then my anxiety will be relieved."—New York Post.

Protective Coloring of Insects.

A well known little moth with pale green mottled wings is the only case in which I have myself watched the protection afforded by colour at work. It was on a summer's evening when I saw this little moth zigzagging up and down with the most extraordinarily irregular flight and a bird pursuing it. Twice the bird swooped and just missed his prey owing to a sudden turn and drop on the part of the moth. And then to my great delight the moth flopped against the stem of a tree on which was growing a greenish gray lichen. The bird swooped again close to the tree, but failed to see the insect and quitted the chase. It took me an appreciable time to detect the little moth resting against the lichen and closely matching it in color.—Sir E. Ray Lankester in London Telegraph.

Hard to Believe.

"When I was a young man," said he, "I once did as you are doing—I told the superintendent of the line I was then working on what you have told me. He refused my demand, and I left, and—would you believe it?—that railway line is running yet."—London Tit-Bits.

Not Encouraging.

A pastor in a rural church not far from Milwaukee announced the wedding in his church during the following week of two of his parishioners.

He followed the announcement with the title of the hymn which was then to be sung. It was "Mistaken Souls That Dream of Heaven!"—Milwaukee Free Press.

ANCIENT SURVEYORS.

Their Methods Depicted on the Old Tombs of Egypt.

In an address delivered before the Royal Geographical society Captain H. G. Lyons, director general of the survey department of Egypt, told of the work of ancient Egyptian surveyors. "At every period of ancient Egyptian history," he said, "the land was measured and recorded with considerable accuracy. Property was dealt in regularly, and an elaborate system of registration was maintained. No map of landed property in ancient Egypt has come down to us, but on the tomb walls we meet with representations of land measurers at work. Their methods of land measurement are represented on the walls of the tomb of one Menna at Sheik Abd el Qurna, in Thebes, a land overseer and inspector of the boundary stones of Amen.

"In the scene depicted are shown two chainmen measuring a field of corn with a long cord, on which are knots or marks at intervals which seem to be about four or five cubits in length. Each also carries a spare cord coiled upon his arm. Beside them walk three officials, who carry writing materials and who are accompanied by a small boy carrying writing materials and a bag in which are probably documents and plans referring to the property. An old man and two boys also accompany the surveyors, and a peasant brings a loaf of bread and a bunch of green corn.

"A similar scene is pictured on the walls of a tomb belonging to a certain Amenhotep, also at Sheik Abd el Qurna. Here only one man accompanies the chainmen, each of whom, as usual, carries a spare cord. The figures are larger than in the tomb of Menna, and, though they are now much damaged, it is possible to see clearly that the cord terminated in a ram's head."

A MAN OF ACTION.

He Got Out of His Tight Corner With Flying Colors.

He was a husband who, when he left home for a week or so on a business trip, invariably took with him a photo of his wife, and in the letters that he wrote to her he always made a great point of this portrait and dwelt upon the fact that the sight of it was the only thing that kept his spirits up when he was far away from her.

One day, however, he left the home and forgot to take the portrait with him. But he was not going to let a little thing like that worry him.

Down he sat and penned his customary amorous epistle, in which the portrait played its usual part. It was not until the letter was posted that he remembered that the portrait had been left at home in a conspicuous place where his wife could not fail to discover it.

The fat was indeed in the fire, but he was a man of action and determined to get out of his tight corner somehow. He remembered the shop where the photo had been taken and promptly wired there for another copy, which he had put into a beautiful frame especially adapted for traveling.

On his return home his wife "handed out the freezing mixture" to begin with and then dissolved in unquenchable tears. When under cross examination she admitted that the cause of her grief was his cruel deception, he produced the newly acquired photo and then asked her, in a hurt voice, how she could possibly have suspected him of working off mere tarradiddle on his little wife.

Song For Suffragette Sisters.

Canada's Allegiance.

London, Feb. 19.—(C.A.P. Cable)—C. H. Macintosh has a contribution in The Standard dealing with preference within the Empire, and says it is an historic fact that Canadians have never wavered in their allegiance and why should they do so now? To be sure, there is a feeling that policy procrastination upon the part of British statesmen is endangering the whole fabric, still, all reasonable Canadians appreciate the position of the United Kingdom.

Boy Killed.

Syracuse, N.Y., Feb. 19.—Matthew Dwyer, 13 years of age, died yesterday from injuries received in a coasting accident Wednesday night. The lad was unable to steer on the glassy surface of a steep hill and his sled struck a tree. His arm was broken, chest crushed and he received internal injuries.

Will Sue For Excess Interest.

Ottawa, Feb. 19.—The civil servants of Ottawa are to join together and institute proceedings against the usurers, in order to recover the excess of interest charged some members contrary to the law. The retaliatory measures are likely to cause some interesting movements.

May Act as Umpire.

London, Feb. 19.—Dr. Heinrich Lammasch, an eminent Austrian jurist and professor in the University of Vienna, has been proposed as umpire of the arbitration court, to which it is intended to submit the Newfoundland fisheries questions.

Marriage Among the Aztecs.

The Aztecs, the most civilized people of the new world at the time of its discovery, had a curious marriage custom. The ceremony was performed by a priest, who took the hands of the bride and bridegroom, asking them if they would marry.

He then took a corner of the woman's veil and the man's robe and knotted them together, and so they were led to the bridegroom's house. A fresh fire was then kindled on the hearth, and around this fire the priest caused the bride to go seven times. The wedded couple then sat down together, and so was the marriage contracted. An inventory was also made, which the father of the bride afterward retained, of all the man and wife brought together, of furniture for the house, of land, of jewels, ornaments and clothes. Then if it chanced that the couple were divorced (as was common among the Aztecs when man and wife did not agree) they divided the goods according to the portion each had brought to the other, both man and wife having liberty to marry again whom they pleased. Of the children of the marriage the daughters were given to the wife and the sons to the husband. It was enacted upon pain of death that the divorced couple were not again to remarry.

MR. FOSTER'S LACK OF KNOWLEDGE

Reveals Lack of Knowledge of Fisheries Treaty.

DR. SPROULE'S AMENDMENT

Wants Addition to Lands Bill Stipulating That It Is Public Schools That Benefit—Mr. Turriff Introduces His Bill to Amend Railway Act — Col. Sam Hughes and British Beef Contracts.

Ottawa, Feb. 19.—If the Conservative critics who are endeavoring to pick flaws in the fisheries treaty had been present in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon they would have been appalled at the ignorance of the terms of that document displayed by their party friends. Not only was a series of questions fired at the head of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries which clearly showed that the members seeking information had not read the treaty, but Mr. Foster by a singular faux pas so far gave himself away as to acknowledge that he was not even aware that the terms of the treaty had been made public.

Dr. Daniel (St. John) raised the question of the proposed fisheries regulations, quoting a statement in a New Brunswick paper. He asked if the regulations permitted United States fishermen to enjoy the privileges of fishing in St. John harbor and river.

Mr. Brodeur replied that the boundary waters would be under the jurisdiction of a joint commission, which was now preparing regulations. A draft of the regulations had been prepared by the American commission, but was the subject of negotiations. The exclusive rights of Canadians in Canada waters had been maintained.

"The two Governments," replied Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

"Does it come into force without ratification by Parliament?"

"I think it does."

Impressed by the lack of knowledge of the treaty which seemed to prevail on his own side of the House, he thought he saw an opportunity of scoring a point at the expense of the Government on the ground of unnecessary secrecy. "I think it is about time," he said, "that we on this side of the House had some of the information which is in the hands of the Government."

"I ask," continued the member for North Toronto, "that the treaty be laid on the table."

The House gasped in astonishment, and then, amid a roar of laughter, came the reply from Mr. Brodeur: "Why, the treaty was laid on the table last session."

A. K. MacLean (Lunenburg) said there was bound to be friction over the question of jurisdiction as between Federal and Provincial authorities. Nova Scotia was willing to surrender her jurisdiction to the Federal authorities.

Two amendments to bills were introduced yesterday and what looks like a new school question is within the sections of Dr. Sproule's bill to amend the Dominion Lands Act passed last year. It was designed, the doctor explained, to correct an omission, and provided that the moneys realised from the sale of school lands in Alberta and Saskatchewan be funded for the purposes of the public schools. In the bill of last session the word "public" disappeared in some manner.

In the old Dominion Lands Act there was a provision by which certain lands were set aside for school purposes, and that the proceeds from the sale of such lands should be available for "public" school purposes in the north territories. By the amendment to the Dominion Lands Act of 1907 the same expression was retained with the change rendered necessary by the conversion of the Northwest Territories into the Provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan, but in amendment to the Dominion Lands Act of last session the word "public" was omitted, thereby enabling schools of all denominations to participate in the proceeds of the land sales if the Provincial Governments saw fit.

When the bill was before the Senate, attention was drawn to this change, and the bill was amended by the restoring the word "public." The bill was returned to the House three days before prorogation, but the amendment made by the Senate was not noticed.

Mr. Turriff submitted a railway act amendment. This was passed last year by the Commons and returned from the Senate, where it was amended, but in its amended shape it was again not reached in the Commons.

Replying to Col. Sam Hughes the Prime Minister said the attention of the Government had not been drawn to the fact that the British Government had contracted for large quantities of canned meats for the army and navy with firms in foreign countries.

"This Government has no doubt that in any business relations the British Government would, wherever possible, favor British countries, in preference to foreign countries," said the Premier.

In the Railway Committee.

Ottawa, Feb. 19.—At the Railway Commission yesterday morning the Winnipeg & Northwestern Railway Co., asked for an extension of time and the right to construct several branches. Glen Campbell of Dauphin opposed the extension of time. All the municipalities had petitioned against it.

Glen Campbell moved to require the railway to build 25 miles within one year. The amendment was carried by 36 to 32. The bill finally stood over for consideration of the clause regarding guarantee of securities of other companies.

Hon. H. R. Emmerson appeared for a bill to transfer to another group of owners, including Premier Hazen, the Salisbury & Harvey Railway of New Brunswick. An extension of time for branches was granted without conditions. A proposal to give the railway power to amalgamate with the I.C.R. was dropped.

During the evening the House passed items amounting to about $1,250,000, mainly for public buildings in Quebec, and the Maritime Provinces.

POLICE BALK SUFFRAGETTES.

Englishwomen Fail to Reach Asquith With Resolution.

London, Feb. 19.—The suffragettes failed yesterday in their attempt to present to Premier Asquith the resolution adopted at Wednesday's meeting of the Women's Freedom League, which declared for a continuation of the militant propaganda for suffrage.

They first attempted to march in procession, but their lines being broken up by the police, they mingled with a crowd of the curious, who had gathered to witness the scene, and scattered singly toward Downing street.

The police, however, had completely blocked all entrances to the thoroughfares, and 20 of the most militant suffragettes, who tried to break through the lines, were arrested, charged with interfering with the police.

For a time there was a scene of great disorder, women time and again throwing themselves valiantly against the double line of police, only to be thrown back, or if they were unusually persistent, to be handed over to constables, who marched them off to the police station amid cheers, Boos and hisses from the throng.

Finally the policemen became exasperated at the persistence of the struggling women, and they were none too tender in the way they handled their assailants. Hats, furs and blouses came away in the scrimmage. Several big Scotch women were observed actively using their fists on the police, but the unequal battle could not last long, and the women who had not fallen into the hands of the constables eventually retreated to Caxton Hall.

The women who were taken into custody were later arraigned in a police court. They refused to pay the fines imposed, and all were sent to prison for terms varying from a fortnight to a month.

They met again yesterday afternoon in Caxton Hall. Carrie Nation was among those present.

A DANGEROUS COUGH.

RESTORED TO HEALTH BY VINOL.

"For two years I had a severe cough accompanied by spitting of blood. I was discouraged for I had tried different physicians and medicines, obtaining only temporary relief. Hearing of Vinol I decided to give it a trial. The first bottle did me so much good that I made up my mind to continue for several bottles if necessary, but by the time I had finished the third bottle the cough and the spitting of blood had both entirely disappeared.

"Allen & Cochrane, The Rexall Cross Druggists, from whom I procured the Vinol, can vouch for the correctness of this statement." Percy E. Smith, 179 Bank street, Ottawa, Ontario.

The reason that Vinol is so successful in such cases is because it is the only preparation that contains tonic iron together with all the healing, body-building elements of cod liver oil, actually taken from fresh cods' livers, but no oil.

Without hesitation we proclaim our faith in Vinol for chronic coughs, colds or bronchitis and as a body-builder and strength creator for old people.

Anyway, if you try it and it does no good we will refund your money on demand. McDermid & Jury, druggists, corner George and Charlotte streets, also Payne's drug store, corner George and Simcoe streets.

CATTLE MARKETS.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—London cables for cattle are steady, at 12½c to 13½c per pound, dressed weight; refrigerator beef is quoted at 10½c to 11c per pound.

Toronto Live Stock.

TORONTO, Feb. 18.—The railways reported 95 carloads of live stock for Wednesday and Thursday, consisting of 1518 cattle, 1750 hogs, 594 sheep and lambs and 108 calves.

Exporters.

Not many shipping cattle were offered, and certainly none of choice quality. The top price quoted was $5.25 and down to $5.10. But there were not enough exporters to make a market. Bulls were quoted about the same at $4 to $4.35 for the bulk, with a few of better quality as high as $4.60.

Butchers.

George Rawntree bought nearly 400 cattle, mostly all to kill, for the Harris Abattoir Company, and his quotations were as follows: Exporters, $5.10 to $5.25; picked butchers, $4.60 to $4.85; loads of good, $4.15 to $4.50; cows, $3.25 to $4.25; canners and common cows, $1.50 to $2.60; bulls, $3 to $4.25.

Feeders and Stockers.

H. & W. Murby report a fair trade, considering the numbers offered. There was little change in prices from last week. The Messrs. Murby report having handled over 300 cattle at the following quotations: Best feeders, 950 to 1050 lbs. each, at $3.75 to $4.15 per cwt.; medium, from $3.60 to $4; stockers, 35 to 37, and $2.75 to $3. Flashy steers sold too high for butcher purposes and weren't dealt in for stockers.

Milkers and Springers.

There have been a large number of milkers and springers during the week. Choice quality cows met a strong market. Today prices ranged from $35 to $55, a very few during the week brought more money. Common light cows are slow sale at figures around $30.

Veal Calves.

About 140 calves sold at firmer prices for best vealers. Prices ranged from $3 to $7 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Lambs were slow sale at $5.50 to $6.75 per cwt., with prospects of lower prices; export ewes, $4 to $4.50; rams, $3 to $3.75 per cwt.

Hogs.

Prices about steady. Mr. Harris and all the other dealers report $6.00 for selects fed and watered, and $5.75 to $5.90 at country points f.o.b. cars.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, Feb. 18.—Cattle—Steady; prime steers, $5.75 to $6.75.

Veals—Receipts, 300 head; active and 25c higher; $7 to $10.50.

Hogs—Receipts, 3000 head; active and 10c to 15c lower; heavy, $6.75 to $6.80; mixed, $6.70 to $6.75; yorkers, $6.60 to $6.70; pigs, $6.40 to $6.50; roughs, $5.50 to $5.60; dairies, $6.40 to $6.65.

Sheep and lambs—Receipts, 2200 head; sheep, active and steady; lambs, slow and 10c lower; lambs, $5 to $7.20.

New York Live Stock.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—Beeves—Receipts, 918; none on sale; feeling nominally steady. Calves—Receipts, 287; none on sale; feeling nominally firm.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO, Feb. 18.—Cattle—Receipts estimated at 7000; market 15c to 25c lower; steers, $5 to $7; cows, $3.60 to $5.50; heifers, $3.25 to $6; bulls, $3.60 to $5.25; calves, $3.50 to $8.50; stockers and feeders, $3.25 to $5.50.

Hogs—Receipts estimated at 45,000; market 10c to 15c lower; choice heavy shipping, $6.60 to $6.65; butchers', $6.55 to $6.60; light mixed, $6.30 to $6.50; choice light, $6.35 to $6.40; packing, $6.25 to $6.30; pigs, $4.25 to $6.15; bulk of sales, $6.35 to $6.55.

St. Kitts' Council Unseated.

Toronto, Feb. 19.—Justice Anglin yesterday unseated the entire St. Catharines Council, with the exception of the mayor, who was elected by acclamation, on the ground that the voters' lists were not completed till after the nominations, and were not certified to till Jan. 3, the day before the election.

Action was instituted on behalf of a license-holder to prevent the reduction bylaw being passed.

Cadet's Jaw Broken.

Kingston, Ont., Feb. 19.—H. P. Crerar of Royal Military College, had his lower jaw broken yesterday while testing a new jump on the toboggan slides on the hill at Fort Henry. R. C. Morgan of Ormsbruck Centre had his face badly cut and his nose smashed. N. O. Reiff, Enstein of Ottawa had a miraculous escape. The three were thrown off together. Crerar belongs to Hamilton.

Strike Gas Near Cookaville.

Cookaville, Feb. 19.—A steady flow of natural gas was struck yesterday on the Roumegous farm, at a depth of 500 feet. The strike was made by Expert Cox of the Toronto Oil and Gas Syndicate, who reports that the well is perfectly dry and the gas of commercial value. It is intended to drill to a depth of 1,000 feet.

Two Hotelmen Fined.

Windsor, Feb. 19.—In the Police Court yesterday the proprietors of the British American and Walkerville Exchange Hotels pleaded guilty to selling liquor during prohibited hours, and were fined $50 each. Complaints against three other hotelmen were dismissed.

Two Villages Obliterated.

Teheran, Feb. 19.—The governor of Burujurd, a town in southwestern Persia, has sent out agents to investigate the damage wrought by the earthquake of Jan. 23. Fifteen villages are known to have been wholly or partially destroyed, and it is estimated that the total number will undoubtedly be more than fifty.

Some villages disappeared completely, and no trace can be found of the hamlets of Bahrem and Leben. It appears that not a single soul belonging to these communities was left alive.

Slipping While Getting Pail Of Water From The Lake An Eight Year Coboconk Girl Is Drowned

Examiner Special.

Coboconk, Feb. 18.— A sad drowning accident occurred here to-day, by means of which the eight year old daughter of Mr. Henry Bradford lost her life.

It seems the little one went down to the river about noon to get a pail of water, when she slipped on the ice and fell into the hole and was drowned. She was missed almost immediately and a search was made for her, but it was not till an hour and a half afterwards that her body was found about half a mile down the river under the ice.

Mr. B. T. Huston One Of Those Who Spoke At Banquet In London

Mr. B. T. Huston, late city editor of the Examiner, delivered an address on Wednesday evening at the second annual banquet of the Retail Grocers' Association of London. The "Advertiser," in referring to his speech, has the following:—

In speaking to the toast of "Our Trade Journal," Mr. B. T. Huston, an old newspaperman, conveyed greetings from Col. MacLean and Mr. W. Siler, Manager of the Canadian Grocer. "Grocers' associations, he had found in his experience, brought many benefits to all who belong to them. Many of London's grocers, he had found, were in favour of a provincial grocers' organization. This would be a good move and would result in the grocers becoming a powerful force. In a few years, if the grocers got together they would have one of the strongest organizations in the country. The grocers' Association in the United States now has become a national association and has 350,000 members all over the country. There are many grocers in Ontario who believe the division court act is not correct. If the grocers got together and presented their case at Ottawa, they could have it amended. Mr. Huston read a motion passed by Toronto grocers favouring a provincial organization, and asking the London grocers to aid in forming it. He was pleased to see that the formation of an association had resulted in such a close union of wholesale and retail grocers."

Plan To Frustrate Bailiff's Attempt To Take Possession Of Four Cows

John Fusty pleaded not guilty this morning to having taken from the possession of Mr. John McDonald, bailiff, four head of cattle. He was arrested last night at the home of his employer, Mr. Geo Semmith, a farmer in North Monaghan, by P. C. Newhall and Meharry, who drove down after dark.

Fusty pleaded not guilty to the charge, stating that he had followed out his employer's instructions. The case was enlarged until to-morrow morning, when if the cattle have been returned, the magistrate said it would make a difference to the prisoner.

It was learned that the bailiff was to seize the cattle for overdue rent, but they were sent to a neighbour's farm, and Fusty said he was told to say that they had been sold to a butcher for $65.00 for his wages. The bailiff made his call but the cattle had been sold, of course, as per arrangement. But the police were communicated with and gradually the story was brought out with the above consequences. Mr. McDonald stated that he would be satisfied with getting the cattle.

Teamsters Got More Money From City Than From Others

The matter of teamsters' wages for the coming year was brought up by the chief engineer at last night's meeting. Last year the teamsters asked for $4 per day but accepted $3.65, and that price was paid all last year. But it was stated that the same teamsters after finishing with the city went to work for the Street Railway Company, and for the Government on the new wharf at $3 per day. This was not a square deal and the city cannot stand for being held up.

The matter was allowed to stand over until the next meeting. In the meantime the members of the board will enquire into what the teamsters have been doing and to ascertain what the ruling prices of teaming is in the city.

Horse Falls On Blacksmith Kicks Him, Tearing Long Gash

While nailing a shoe on a mare belonging to Mr. Andrew Pickens, Mr. Bert Gillespie met with a painful accident which has left him rather bruised up and it is a wonder that he is not confined to his bed from it.

Bert had pulled the front shoes off the mare which was standing in a stall, and sharpened up the corks. He then proceeded to nail one of the shoes on in the usual manner, driving one nail through and clinching it, and then a nail on the other side. He had just driven the second nail through with the point sticking out of the hoof, when the mare lost her balance and raised her hoof, driving the sharp point of the nail into his leg below the knee, and tearing a gash above it. The horse then fell over on top of Bert, who grabbed the sides of the stall to extricate himself from the animal, which was struggling to rise. Both got up about the same time, and the frightened beast commenced lashing out with her heels, kicking Mr. Gillespie in the back three times before he was clear.

Notwithstanding the pummelling and sore leg, Bert was in town the next day and to all appearances not much the worse.—Hastings Star.

A PRETTY YOUNG CHICAGO LACE MAKER IS FOUND STRAPPED TO BATH TUB IN HOTEL

Brutal Torture Was Inflicted Upon Ella Gingles in the Wellington House—Mysterious Case.

CLOTH FORCED IN MOUTH.

Examiner Special.

Chicago, Feb. 18. — A mysterious case that has put the police at sea developed to-day when the unconscious form of Miss Ella Gingles was found lashed to the supports of a bath tub in the Wellington hotel, a standard hostelry in the heart of the city. Whether she was the victim of a plot, as she incoherently alleged in her few conscious moments, or chose fantastic means to retaliate on a woman whom she believed to have been her enemy, is the question that the police set about to solve.

When a chambermaid at the Wellington hotel on her rounds today reached the public bath room on the fourth floor she found the door bolted from the inside. The house carpenter, removing the transom, crawled into the room, which was dimly lighted by a candle which had nearly burned out. He opened the door and discovered Miss Gingles, clad only in a night gown, bound to the bath tub which was half filled with blood coloured water. A waste sink was in the same condition. The girl's head was tied with a light binding cord and fastened to the legs at the head of the tub. A second cord, drawn tightly about her knees, held the lower portion of her body to the lower legs of the tub. Her face showed cuts and bruises, and it was later determined that she had been mistreated.

The girl was also apparently suffering of laudanum poisoning. A two ounce bottle, which had contained laudanum, was found in the room, and near it an empty claret bottle. A towel was tied tightly under the girl's jaws. When the cords which bound her to the tub were severed, the girl rolled over on her back and a wet towel was found stuffed in her mouth. Her clothes, including her outer wraps, were found in a corner of the room.

The senseless girl was removed to a bedroom and restoratives were administered by Dr. Watson, the house physician, but she recovered only sufficiently to babble hysterically:

"Don't let her come nearer. Don't let her make me drink any more; it will kill me."

PITCHFORK PIERCES SMALL BOY'S NECK

Two young sons of Mr. South were in the barn doing some chores. The younger boy, Brown, aged nine, was in the loft, when he called to his brother to pass up a fork. This was done, prongs first. In some manner young South fell on the fork, one of the prongs piercing the neck, close to the jugular vein, and passing completely through without touching the tongue, palate or any vital part. The fork was withdrawn and Dr. Kyle of this town was summoned. The doctor states the case is a most peculiar one, the curve on the fork being the sole reason why the injury was not fatal.

As it is, the lad will rapidly recover if tetanus does not intervene.

DECIDES TO GIVE MR. WM. LOGAN $50 FOR BUSINESS HE LOST

Board of Works Considers This a Fair Settlement of His Claim for Loss Which New Bridge at Brock Street Brought Upon Him While in Course of Construction.

HAD ASKED FOR $60.00.

The Board of Works decided to give Mr. Wm. Logan $50 in consideration for the loss he sustained by the construction of the bridge over the creek at Brock street interfering with his business. At a previous meeting it was decided to allow him $30 although he had asked for $60, but he refused to accept that amount. In the discussion last night it was pointed out that on different occasions he had repaired the old wooden bridge, without receiving anything from the city. Mr. Logan conducts a blacksmith shop and carriage factory at the corner of Brock and Aylmer streets and in the construction of the new bridge access to his shop was cut off for a time, resulting in a loss of business. The motion that he be given $50 was moved by Ald. Gillespie and McIntyre.

BOARD OF WORKS START TO PRUNE EXPENSES BUT HAVE INDEFINITE PLAN

Nothing Settled Upon Yet Excepting the Fact That a Curtailment is Necessary — Ways and Means Were Fully "Discussed"—Committee of Whole Will Have to Deal With the Matter.

APPROPRIATION REDUCED

"Let us consider how the Board of Works can assist in curting down expenses" Ald. Phelan remarked at the meeting of the Board last night, and thereupon here was a marked silence. The Finance Committee had given out that curtailing the city's expenses was to be the byword in order that the different committees might remember it. But Ald. McIntyre, Buller, Gillespie, Bradburn, and Co. were not quite sure where the Board would begin. Finally Ald. McIntyre enquired "Where are we going to start, Mr. Chairman."

"Anywhere we can cut down expenses" the chairman responded. Yes, there had to be a certain amount of sewers and sidewalks built, but not on the large scale as last year. The appropriation to the Board was $4,000 less than last year. Ald. Bradburn explained what the Finance Committee had done in regard to the appropriations. If the council wanted to give the people a 26 or 21 mill rate there would be no need of curtailing, but if it was preferable to have a rate of 19 or 19 1-2 mills then the pruning knife would have to be kept busy in all the city's departments. This lead the discussion into other channels, salaries, and officials, being on the carpet, but the Board of Works decided that this was a matter for the Committee of the Whole Council.

TWO OUT OF THE FIVE WITNESSES OF A 1901 CASE WERE IN ANOTHER WORLD WHEN CALLED UPON TO-DAY

In reading over the names of the witnesses who were to have appeared in the case against Walter Herron, August 28th, 1901, Chief Roszel found that two out of the original five were dead. Herron had not appeared in court to answer to that charge of overdriving a horse over seven years ago, but he and his brother Edward had come to the city yesterday, having been summoned to present themselves before Magistrate Edmison in the county court on the charge of illegal fishing on Sunday, February 7th, near their home on Birch Island, Chemong Lake. A light fine of two dollars each was imposed. In the afternoon they crossed P. C. Newhall's horizon and Walter was arrested on the old charge.

In the police court this morning Magistrate Dumble recognized Herron instantly. "That face is strangely familiar to me," he remarked. "Chief has not this man been before me on previous occasions?" he asked, and the chief replied that he had. The circumstances of the old charge of over seven years ago were explained that the court was at a loss for a short time to decide what to do with Herron.

"It has been some compensation, Chief, that this man has kept away from the city since 1901."

Herron stated that if he were let go he would not come back again. The prisoner started to cry and blubbered that he had a wife and several children, and he would like his liberty. Magistrate Dumble was inclined to discharge Herron, and Chief Roszel did not offer much objection to the suggestion and Walter was allowed to go free.

Edward or "Tidy," as the police know him, had been standing beside the prisoner's box and started to follow his brother to the door, when he suddenly stopped near P. C. Newhall and turned towards the crowd with a curtain speech. "I wish to thank the congregation——" he just managed to say, when the constable grabbed off his hat and had him half way down the stairs before Edward knew what happened. Everybody had a hearty laught at this unusual incident and the railbird straggled into the street with something out of the ordinary to talk about.

CONTRIBUTIONS FOR TERRESTRIAL TWINS

That the people of Peterborough are never backward when a case that is deserving of their charity comes to their notice, is shown by the way in which contributions are coming in to the assistance of the two weeks old twins who have been left practically motherless by the illness of their mother. The appeal was made on Wednesday and yesterday $12.75 was received. This morning Messrs. White & Gillespie contributed $3 to the fund through the Childdren's Aid Society, and Mr. J. J. Lundy contributed $5.00 through the King's Daughters for the same purpoe, making a total of $20.75 in two days.

The list is as follows:—

Mr. J. H. Ferguson	$5.00
Mr. J. J. Lundy	5.00
Mrs. Campbell	1.00
A Friend (per Mrs. Ritchie)	6.00

Have You Read Our Free Accident Insurance Policy Costs Only A Subscription

The average man about town carries very little or any accident insurance. Some consider the cost more than they can afford, others fancy they will never require it, having been lucky enough to escape injury so far; but is it worth while taking these chances when you can carry a policy such as is outlined in the Examiner to day and the cost is absolutely nothing! The company carrying the insurance is one of the strongest in Canada and have assets sufficient to guarantee any offer made by them.

This is what we give you. If you are not now a subscriber to the Daily Examiner have your order for a year's subscription and we will hand you a Policy for $1000.00 good for one year.

Or if you get a subscriber to the Daily Examiner for one year, we will give you the Policy good fotr one year for $1000.00.

If you are now a subscriber and will pay your subscription one year in advance we make you the same offer.

Comply with any of the above conditions and secure a policy without delay. Read the Policy in the paper and enquire at the Examiner office for any particulars.

Anglican Synod To Compromise On Election Of New Bishop

Examiner Special (2.45 p. m.)

Toronto, Ont., Feb. 19 — At this morning's session of the Toronto Anglican Synod action was taken which probably will lead to a compromise selection for Bishop of the diocese. Chancellor Worrell, seconded by Dr. N. W. Hoyles, presented a resolution authorizing the Rev. Provost Macklem and Dr. Hoyles to nominate seven clericals and seven lay delegates respectively and with them meet to consider, with a view of submitting the name of some clergyman who might receive the votes of each order necessary for an election. The resolution was carried unanimously. After each committee has made a decision, there will be a meeting of the joint committee which will report to the Synod at 2 P.M.

Engineer Hay Prepares Plans For The Smith Street Bridge Less Elaborate, Costing $28,000

The Smith street bridge question was again discussed by the Board of Works at their meeting last night. Engineer Hay stated that he had prepared plans for a structure which would cost $28,000 without the approaches and the land damages. With these included $30,000 would easily cover the entire cost. This bridge is 18 feet wide and has a walk on each side of the roadway. The plans provide for two piers and two abutments. The engineer stated that the construction of the piers would not require the preparation of a foundation below the bed of the river as was intended in his original plans. A road roller could pass over it without causing any damage. The Engineer had written to many companies asking for quotations for steel and had received an answer from only one of these as yet. The cost of the steel might be more or less than was at present known and this fact might cause a variation in the total.

The design was a good one, serviceable, but not like that at first intended. It would be a little higher than the present structure and the roadway on the east side would have to be raised. It is not known whether the bridge will be built this year or not. In answer to a question from one of the aldermen Mr. Hay stated that the roadway of the present bridge is in fair repair, but the piers are in a more or less dangerous condition, and it is this which may make the building of the new bridge imperative this year.

Presentation Made To Popular Young Lady Departing For West

A very pleasant time was spent at the residence of Mr. F Brisbin, Burnham street last night when the teacher and members of Miss Carrie Brisbin's Sunday School class gathered to say farewell to that young lady, who with the other members of the family, will leave for Pilot Mound, Man., the first of next month. The evening was an enjoyable one and will long be remembered by those present. During the evening Miss Brisbin was presented with a beautiful gold jewel case by the members of the class, Miss Effie Fowler making the presentation while Miss Florence Dormer read the following address;

Dear Miss Brisbin,—On hearing of your intended departure from our midst, we, the members and teacher of your Sunday school class, of which you have been a valued member for over ten years, cannot let this opportunity pass of showing our love and appreciation of your kindly manner, and faithful attendance at our class. We shall miss you as we gather Sabbath after Sabbath, but we shall not forget you. As a slight expression of our feelings we would ask you to accept this small present. And as you are about to cast your lot among strangers, we pray that the blessing of God may attend you and that wherever you may be situated we hope that you may be loved and appreciated as you are with us at Mark street Sunday school. Wishing you every success in your new home.

Signed. MRS. J SPEER, Teacher.

Afterwards refreshments were served and a pleasant social time spent.

No Legislation For The City First Time In Many Years

The City of Peterborough will not have any private legislation before the legislature this year for the first time in several years. There is nothing to attract the members of the civic governors to the Parliament Buildings, except the application of the Street Railway Company for an extension of time in which to build their line to Lakefield. There will be a deputation go to Toronto in that connection to represent the city.

Salvation Army Band's Trip To Montreal Is Cancelled

It was learned to-day that the trip which had been arranged for the band of the local corps of Salvation Army to Montreal at Easter has been called off. The reason is that the rate which was expected could not be secured and the cost at single fare would be too heavy. It was thought that a cent a mile could be obtained, but this is only allowed to the Territorial staff band of Toronto, and the local organization would have to pay the ordinary single fare which is allowed at holiday time. However, the band will likely have a trip of some kind and it is now stated that they will go to Kingston and Perth, spending from Good Friday until Easter Monday in the west. The band is making good progress in its practising and should acquit itself in its best manner if it takes the expected trip at Easter.

TRANSPORTATION AND PROGRESS.

The hinterland of Ontario and the hinterland of Canada in regard to development owe their present progressive, flourishing and promising condition to the initiative of energy of Liberal Governments. The exploration by the Ross Government of, especially the eastern part of New Ontario, and the revelation of its mineral, agricultural and other resources, led to the same Government originating and constructing the Temiscamingue and Northern Railway, which has not only been justified by results, its promotion and construction by the great development it has made possible, but has thereby created the necessity of other railways, in addition to the Grand Trunk Transcontinental if the fuller measure of development is to be reached.

In regard to the latter railway the persistent plaint of the Conservative Opposition, representing the Little Canadian party, has been that the Grand Trunk Pacific, in Ontario, passes through a barren country which will yield no traffic. It passes through a country greatly similar to that opened up by Ontario's Provincial railway, which serves the development of perhaps the richest silver belt in the world, and one that is still extending and expanding and may not stop short of Hudson's Bay. If the railway follows the silver streak thus far, we shall get further advantages. The salt water fisheries wealth of this great inland sea will be brought into operation, and the results will find a way to Ontario markets and through Ontario to other parts of the world.

Similar objection was urged to the construction of the Canadian Pacific Railway, but with more excuse, it not justification. Then the C.P.R. was an experiment; the treasures of our north country in the east, and of the indescribable resources and possibilities of our great west were mere matters of faith. Now they are matters of demonstration. Canadian Pacific construction and operation have established a precedent which justifies the construction of a new railway which will open up an area of country of as great, if not greater, possibilities and resources.

To emphasize the growth of the country, and illustrate the share the C.P.R. has had in this growth, a few figures, used by Sir Thomas Shaughnessy when applying for authority to increase the capital of the company by fifty million for extension contion, may be submitted. These figures, put in tabulated form show the increase of rolling stock in the interval from 1902 to 1908.

Locomotives	745	1,404	659
Passgr. Coaches	842	1,648	806

This means the addition of an equivalent of one passenger coach added for every three working days and fourteen freight cars every day during the entire period of six years, from 1902 to 1908, and the immense total cost was thirty-seven millions of dollars. The application for leave to increase capital by fifty million shows that another period of railway activity representing as great or even greater development is in sight of this great clear-eyed and level-headed railway corporation.

This expansion was only made necessary by the growth and development of the Great West and of the traffic coming to a line which was in the doubting days of the not long ago regarded as a reckless experiment.

With this enormous increase in one line as above indicated, the transportation companies of the Dominion were hard pressed last season to move the wheat from the West and the freight from the East.

When one considers that the Grand Trunk Pacific had 1,000 miles of line in operation in the West last season, and that the Canadian Northern did its share of haulage, some conception can be gained of the enormous development which the West has made in the last few years. When the Liberal Government came into power the West was unpopulated and unknown, and this is only thirteen years ago. It gives an impression of the strides made in progress during the past few years. Those pessimists who expressed the opinion that the Canadian Pacific would not pay for its axle grease, have had opportunity to revise their opinion. They did not calculate upon the intelligent and aggressive policy of the Laurier Government.

Within reasonable limits the more we improve the transportation services and conveniences of the country the more we contribute to the progress of Canada.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The selection of Mr. D J McDougall, of Ottawa, to lead the Opposition attack in the Ontario Legislature, is, the Ottawa Free Press says, a compliment which Ottawa Liberals will much appreciate. Ottawa is proud both of its spokesman and of the party to which he belongs.

MAYES' BUBBLE QUITE PRICKED

A question by Mr. Lennox, in the House of Commons yesterday, gave the Minister of Public Works an opportunity to throw more light upon the now famous contract for dredging at St. John, N. B., entered into by G. S. Mayes, and which was the basis of the sensational affidavit read by Premier Hazen in St. John on the eve of the last election.

Mr. Lennox asked whether Mayes' first tender for dredging was at fifty cents a yard, and the answer was "No, it was $8.90 per cubic yard for material described in the specification as class I and 49 cents per cubic yard for material of class II, being all other material than was embraced in class I." This tender was refused because Mayes was unable to comply with the condition as to his dredges being registered in Canada.

Why New Tenders Were Asked

Mr. Lennox asked, "Was the condition removed at the instance of Mayes or parties acting for him?" and the Minister replied: The information in the department is that the condition was not removed at the instance of Mayes or parties acting for him, but that it was removed because the next tender, that of M. J. Haney and Roger Miller, of Toronto, who were prepared to comply with the condition, named a price of $3.50 per cubic yard for material described as class I and $1.25 per cubic yard for material described as class II, and as most of the material to be excavated was of class II, it was considered that the tender of Messrs. Haney and Miller was too high and more than the department would be justified in paying for the work. It was made evident by the first call for tenders that there were very few Canadian registered dredges available to do the work and it was considered most probable that by striking out the restriction and calling again for tenders more competition would be secured."

The Lowest Tenderer

In answer to the question, "Was the contract without this condition awarded to Mayes at 55 cents per cubic yard?" the reply was: "At $8.60 per cubic yard for material of class I, being 30 cents per cubic yard less than his previous tender, and 55 cents per cubic yard for material of class II, being 6 cents per cubic yard more than his previous tender. It was so awarded to him as being the lowest tenderer, the other tenderer being again Haney and Miller of Toronto, whose tender was $3.25 per cubic yard for material of class I and $1.00 per cubic yard for material of class II." The Minister stated that tenders were called for again by public advertisement between the time of Mayes' first and second tender.

No Enquiry Needed

Then Mr. Lennox asked: "Having regard to statements made and documents read by Mr. Hazen at a public meeting at St. John during the last general election, the discussion of the Mayes-McAvity incident by the press during and since the month of October last, and the allegations recently made upon the floors of this House, all to the effect that the condition above mentioned being removed, Mayes was about to repeat his tender at 50 cents a cubic yard, but was induced by George McAvity not to do so, but instead to tender at 55 cents a cubic yard, the extra five cents per yard to go to McAvity as a rake-off or reward to him for exerting his influence with the Government to increase the number of yards to be dredged and to secure the contract for Mayes, and the allegation that McAvity actually received the extra five cents a yard, amounting to the sum of $35,933, and having regard to the exceptional importance and gravity of the matters charged, will the Government take measures to have this matter of the Mayes tender and contract, and the alleged transactions and dealings in connection therewith fully enquired into and ascertained. If so, when and how?"

To this Mr. Pugsley replied: "The Government, through the Department of Public Works, has already fully enquired into the awarding of said contract, with the result that it appears to have been awarded to the lowest tenderer in the usual and proper manner, after public advertisement calling for tenders, Mr. Mayes' tender being $8.60 per cubic yard for material of class I as against $3.25 per cubic yard by Haney and Miller, and 55 cents per cubic yard for material of class II, consisting of silt, sand, etc., as against $1.00 per cubic yard by Haney and Miller. It does not appear to the Government that there would be any public advantage in making further enquiry into the matter, and the Government has no further intention of making further enquiry."

No Collusion

Asked whether the Government was of the opinion that they could and should recover this $35,933, Hon. Dr. Pugsley replied in the negative, for the reason that if there were no collusion between the Minister of Public Works or other officials of the department and Mayes and McAvity in connection with the tenders, which had not been alleged, and the contract was awarded in good faith to Mayes, the lowest tenderer, any person of ordinary business knowledge, without having a legal training, would know that no right of action would exist to recover back any portion of the money paid under the contract so awarded."

Before answering the question, Mr. Pugsley protested that there had not been any allegation against him in any quarter in regard to any "alleged connection of the Minister of Public Works," with the Mayes-McAvity transaction, and that portion of the question was ruled out of order by the speaker.

THE METROPOLITAN LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY

For the information of its army of policy holders, the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, of New York, has issued a statement of its standing at the end of the year 1908. The facts set forth show that this great insurance organization continues to carry more policies and to distribute greater benefits among the whole people than any other like institution, while its own resources gain steadily in proper ratio to its increasing volume of business.

The magnitude of the Company's operations is astounding. To fully understand the meaning of the figures dealing in totals for the year, it is necessary to bring them down to the smallest division of time. For example, the mind can scarcely comprehend the significance of the statement that the total amount of outstanding policies at the end of the year was $1,861,890,803, but we can easily grasp the no less astonishing fact that during the business hours of every day in the year an average of 6,343 new policies were issued and paid for. Every day — taking the average for the year — 441 persons received from the Company the full value in cash of policies which had been carried for their benefit. Every day the Company paid out to its policy holders and added to the policy paying fund (reserve fund) more than $166,000. The value of property owned and acquired by the Metropolitan Life during 1908 increased at the rate of $127,000 per day. A policy holder of the Company dies every six minutes, and the Company pays during business hours a death claim on the average every sixty-two seconds.

The Company owns nearly one hundred million dollars' worth of United States bonds, city bonds, and railroad bonds and stocks; more than ninety millions of bonds and mortgages; more than twenty-two millions of real estate, and much other tangible property, all held as assets available for the payment of its obligations. Nearly ten million policies (9,960,106) are carried by individuals in the Metropolitan Life. If these policy holders were gathered into one community they would constitute a city of more than the combined population of the twelve largest cities in the United States.

Perhaps nothing brought out in this report is more wonderful to contemplate than the fact that one force of executive officers and office employees transact a business of this complicated nature with so vast a number of people.

It is obvious that the Metropolitan Life is managed and controlled by men of consummate ability, but so are thousands of business organizations that never approach this Company in magnitude of operations. It is not merely executive ability, but the ability to inspire and hold public confidence that has counted most in building up this greatest of all insurance companies. The Metropolitan Life deals directly with the people. Its policy from the beginning has been one of entire frankness with the people. No man, however unused to the making of business contracts, can fail to understand exactly what are the terms of his contract with the Metropolitan Life. Every promise of the Company is set down in terms as definite and clear as the English language permits; every obligation of the policy holder to the Company is equally plain. No inflated premiums are collected for "estimated" benefits; every payment to the Company represents the lowest cost of bona fide insurance.

Instead of leading its policy holders to hope for more than they eventually receive, the Company has voluntarily taken a directly opposite course. Within the past few years it has distributed sums amounting to nearly eighteen millions of dollars among its policy holders in bonuses in addition to what the policies promised. This has been done under no other obligation than a moral conviction that the Company should share its prosperity with those who contribute toward its success.

The confidence and good-will secured under this enlightened policy account for the fact that for fifteen consecutive years, including 1908, the Metropolitan Life has received more new business than any other insurance company in the world.

MRS. TOM THUMB VISITS TEDDY

Mrs. Tom Thumb, who appeared at Lubin's theatre, Philadelphia, last week, went to Washington with manager Earle, and was received by appointment by President Roosevelt. The chief executive of the country was much interested and was impressed by the anecdotes of the famous little woman, who has appeared before most of the crowned heads of the world. The President was particularly interested in her anecdotes of the time she was received by President Lincoln.

Mr. Daniel Ryan Defends The Production Of "Salome"

Replies to the Letter of Rev. Robt. Pogue in Connection With the Play Put on by Mr. Ryan's Company.

NOTHING OBJECTIONABLE

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—An article from a reverend gentleman of Peterborough, appeared in last evening's Examiner relative to the much discussed "Salome." While appreciating fully that you must be thoroughly tired of the subject, I think this last article should be answered, inasmuch, as it presumes to say MUCH with a self-confessed lack of knowledge of the subject in point.

To wind up with a peroration from another religious gentleman apropos of "sending the willing public to hell with their eyes open," serves only to make one wonder if it is absolutely certain that the "sender to hell" may not be himself possessed of "blinders" in a greater or lesser degree. If the reverend gentleman had had the courage of some of his parishioners, he would have seen the much discussed (and I must say, too often ignorantly discussed) drama and after having seen it, he might be able to say harsh things about it in an intelligent manner. Not having seen it, he certainly is not entitled to go against the unanimous opinion of those who actually saw it, heard it, press and public, and who pronounce it unobjectionable. I am, who is some and in fact a reason in the triumph of righteousness over the very "spirit of evil" itself.

Some people seem not to be aware of the fact that "Salome" was first brought into disrepute by a woman who had no regard for the ethics of the stage. It was then hashed and rehashed on the vaudeville and burlesque boards, by a score of vaudeville dancers who electrified the public with a lewd dance, which they attempted to dignify by calling it "The Salome Dance." The two most prominent, although there were scores of others, were Eva Tanguay and Gertrude Hoffman. The "Salome" dance of these vaudeville performers was a combination of anything they saw fit and varied in lewd qualities according to seeming public desire.

The last performance of Mary Garden in New York, despite the opinion of the Philadelphia Ledger or the North American Review must have been wonderful. Miss Garden is a woman of high tastes, of a splendid moral character, undoubtedly an artist, and I can only presume that articles in the newspapers speaking on her performances of "Salome" as being over licentious, can only have been brought about by Mr. Hammerstein's quarrel with the press writers, which was (at the time of the performance) in its very ascendency and is by no means over yet.

The general public and the reverend gentleman may not be aware that in all the large cities of the U.S. there exists an organization of newspaper men called 'The Friars,' that stand shoulder to shoulder when they deem any of their prerogatives usurped.

I think to witness a performance of "Salome" by any decent and capable dramatic organization, one is spending an evening in the holy manner, and is absolutely moral atmosphere, as if they listened to a hundred sermons on the subject from as many able preachers and in as many sacred tabernacles.

The reverend gentleman would do well to "see and then speak himself," for "he who speaketh without seeing—" and "thereby hangs a tale."

Yours truly,
DANIEL RYAN.
Peterborough, Feb. 19, 1909.

"AT HOME" WAS GREAT SUCCESS

A very enjoyable and successful 'at home' was held at the residence of Mrs. M. Cox, Wolfe street, yesterday, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of Knox church. A large number of ladies were present and the occasion was a most pleasant one. The proceeds amounted to $19.45. The ladies of the Society wish to express their thanks to Mrs Cox who has always been of splendid assistance in the work of the organization.

POULTRY RAISING.

From Farm and Dairy.

Poultry raising can be carried on successfully and with profit without resorting to artificial incubation. It is, however, much more easily carried on where the incubator is made use of. A 200-egg incubator will set as many eggs at once as 14 hens can cover. The incubator can be attended with much less trouble than is necessary with the hens. With the incubator one can hatch chicks at any time when fertile eggs can be had; with hens one has to wait until "Biddy" takes a notion to set, which unfortunately, is sometimes not very often when her services are required most.

Where chickens for the early broiler market are wanted it is almost impossible to hatch them in any number worth while with hens, as the hens seldom set until the end of March or well on in April, though an exceptional one will get broody during the winter months. An incubator can be set up in the house or cellar and can be attended without running out three or four times a day to see if the hens are on their right nests, not fighting with other hens and breaking eggs, thus giving what few that may be left a poor chance to hatch.

An incubator, set with good hatchable eggs and operated according to directions furnished with the machine, will hatch as large a percentage of the eggs set, as will the average hen. Sometimes hens will hatch every egg given them. Others again will break half their eggs and by the time the hatch is out there are only two or three chicks left for our trouble. Where incubators are used the hens can be kept laying instead of setting and afterwards running around all summer with a brood of chicks.

The hatch from an incubator depends greatly upon where the machine is set. It should be placed where the temperature is not subjected to any severe change. A good dry cellar is a splendid place in which to operate an incubator, as the temperature there is generally fairly uniform. When kept in the kitchen, there is heat from the stove during the day and none at night, thus there is sure to be difficulty in regulating the machine and obtaining an even heat. Therefore place the incubator in the cellar, or in some other room in the house where a fairly uniform temperature can be kept.

Instructions for running the machine are always sent out with the incubator from the factory. Most instructions for different machines differ in some points. The man that made the incubator ought to know how to operate it, therefore it is well to follow his directions as near as possible.

Before setting the machine, heat it up for at least 24 hours so as to be sure that everything is in good running order. After setting do not move the eggs until the second or third day, after which they should be turned morning and evening up to the 19th day. Then leave them strictly alone until after the hatch is completed. Keep the lamp well trimmed, see that you always have a good steady blaze. The temperature in the egg chamber should be kept as near as possible at 103 when the thermometer is resting on "live" eggs. The eggs must be cooled regularly. They require more cooling as the hatch progresses.

When the chicks begin to hatch the incubator must not be opened until after all the chicks are out of the shell, and quite dry. Leave them in the incubator for several hours after the hatch is complete, after which they may safely be removed to a brooder that has been previously heated up to from 95 to 100 degrees and made ready to receive them.

FARMERS' CLUBS.

From Farm and Dairy.

At the banquet held recently in Toronto by the members of the Canadian Holstein-Friesian Cattle Breeders' Association, Mr. G. A. Putnam, Superintendent of Farmers' Institutes, made the important announcement that the department has been organizing farmers' clubs at the rate of six or seven a day for some months past and that the number of clubs already formed is about 250. This shows plainly how anxious the farmers of Ontario are to organize. The Department of Agriculture deserves credit for recognising this fact and for having arranged to assist the farmers to organize.

There is, however, one fundamental weakness about these farmers' clubs. Because they are organised by the department, the department has found it necessary to stipulate that members of the clubs must not discuss certain questions, including political subjects. In taking this stand, the department is acting wisely. At the same time, why should farmers have to wait for the department to help them to organize. Farmers' clubs to be truly successful, should be absolutely independent of every government. Their members should be free to discuss any subject that they consider to have an important bearing on farm matters. For instance, if farmers think that railways are not sufficiently taxed, they should be at liberty to discuss any proposed legislation dealing with such a subject.

What would we think if the members of the Labor Unions in the cities, in order that they might get a small government grant, amounting to only a few dollars a year, agreed not to discuss certain subjects stipulated by the government. The members of the Labor Unions value the liberty of speech too much to consent to any such restrictions. They prefer to be free and to raise the funds they require to finance their own organizations. We, as farmers, should be equally independent of every government. We should have our farmers' clubs and we should finance them ourselves. We would like to see the members of the farmers' clubs that have been organized already, affiliate with the Dominion Grange. Their usefulness would then be greatly extended and they would then have the priceless boon of freedom of speech and the benefit of being connected with an organization that, for many years, has represented the best interests of the farmers of Canada.

IMPROVEMENT OF FARM CROPS

From Farm and Dairy.

The Ontario Department of Agriculture has launched a commendable scheme for the improvement of farm crops in the province in the inauguration of standing field crop competitions. The interest taken and the results to date, as shown by the exhibits of the prize-winning grain at the Winter Fairs at Guelph and at Ottawa are ample proof of the great value of this work. One draw-back to the work in the past has been that the competitors, through their agricultural societies, have not been informed about the competitions early enough in the year to enable them to prepare seed specially for these competitions. The competition was announced so late last year that it was necessary to enter fields already sown.

The Department should let agricultural societies know early in the year whether or not they are going to be able to hold the standing crops competition. Unless they know at an early date the competitors are unable to select their seed and give the attention to the preparation of the land that they otherwise would.

Many that took part in the competition last year, simply entered fields that they had sown without any thought of competition. Their crops were of necessity not nearly as good as they might have been. The East Peterboro Society was one of those thus handicapped last year. This society is willing to enter the competition again but as yet this society as well as others, does not know whether the department will allow the same societies to hold a competition this year as well as last. Thus they are unable to warn would-be competitors to prepare for the competition.

The advisability of holding these competitions has already reached a point beyond discussion. Let us have them by all means and let the members of all agricultural societies know of their opportunity in time, that they may arrange to make the best use of it by preparing their seed and their land especially for this competition, and thus raise even the high standard that has already been reached.

MATTER OF FEEDING COWS.

From Farm and Dairy.

The matter of feeding cows is well suggested in the following from bulletin 22 of the Department of Agriculture. It says:

The milk contains water, fat, protein (casein, or curd), sugar, and ash and these are all made from the constituents of the food. If sufficient protein fat, and carbohydrates are not contained in the food given her, the cow supplies this deficiency for a time by drawing on her own body, and gradually begins to shrink in quantity and quality of milk, or both. The stingy feeder cheats himself as well as the cow. She may suffer from hunger, although her belly is full of swale hay, but she also becomes poor and does not yield the milk and butter she should. Her milk glands are a wonderful machine, but they can not make milk casein (curd) out of the constituents in coarse, unappetizing, indigestible swale hay or sawdust any more than the farmer himself can make butter from skim milk.

The cow must not only have a generous supply of good food, but it must contain sufficient amounts of the nutrients needed for making milk. Until this fact is understood and appreciated, successful, profitable dairying is out of the question. Many forcible illustrations of its truthfulness have been furnished by the agricultural experiment stations.

KIDNEY AND BLADDER TROUBLE

Readily Relieved by Mixture Which Any One Can Prepare at Home.

SIMPLE RECIPE GIVEN

Here is a prescription that anyone can mix at home. Any good prescription pharmacy can supply the ingredients named at little cost; being composed of vegetable extracts, it is harmless and inexpensive. Best of all it does its work well, relieving even the worst forms of bladder trouble, frequent urination, backache, kidney complaint, and by its direct action upon the eliminative tissue of the kidneys makes those most vital organs rid the system of waste matter and uric acid which causes rheumatism.

Shake well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime.

Former sufferers often state that one week's use shows curative results in nearly every instance, and such symptoms as lame back, frequent desire to urinate, pain in bladder and even chronic rheumatism are generally relieved within a few days, the pain and swelling diminishing with each dose.

MEETING OF ONTARIO FAIRS ASSOCIATION

From Farm and Dairy.

The Ontario Fairs Association held one of the most successful conventions in its history last week in Toronto. Supt. J. W. Lockie Wilson's report showed that the progress made by the fall fairs last year had been most marked. It was, he stated the most successful year in the history of the agricultural societies of Ontario. Gate receipts showed an increase of 50 per cent., and the number of exhibits showed an increase of 40 per cent. over any previous year. The secretaries were doing better work and forwarding their reports more promptly.

Educational work was being kept to the front. Forty-seven societies took part in the field crop competitions last year, 650 farmers entered, and 6000 acres of land were under cultivation in producing these crops. There was a larger demand for the seed from the prize winning crops than could be met. Oat seed sold as high as $1.00 a bushel. The competitions would be continued and we would try to secure an increased grant.

WARNING TO SOCIETIES

Mr. Wilson took occasion to warn some societies that had been allowing gambling devices on their grounds, that they would lose their grant if such practices were allowed to continue. Besides, the directors responsible were liable to a heavy fine. Departmental judges to the number of 224 were sent out last year and the reports from these were on the whole very satisfactory. The number of seed fairs held last year had increased by 400 per cent. Next fall the Canadian National Exhibition will give prizes for grain in the sheaf from these competitons and the Department will pay all transportation charges incurred in bringing these exhibits to Toronto. He advised societies to take up the plowing match as an educational feature. Mr Wilson thought that something should be done towards providing insurance against wet weather at fairs. A fee of $5.00 from each society would form a sufficient fund to make up losses in receipts from this cause in any ordinary year. The executive will take the matter up and report upon it at a future meeting.

WANT INCREASED GRANT

The convention was unanimous in asking for an increased grant for agricultural societies, and waited upon the Government in a body to present their claims. Some difference of opinion was expressed at the convention as to how an increased grant should be apportioned. Societies which have gone to the expense of erecting suitable buildings for exhibition purposes, ask that a large portion of any increased grant be given to societies which have expended money in buildings etc. Naturally the societies which have no buildings objected. It was pointed out that any increase to societies for building purposes, would not lessen the grant which societies that have not gone to any expense in this regard, are now receiving. The Association is asking that the grant to agricultural societies be increased from $70,000 to $100,000 a year.

The meeting passed unanimously resolutions urging upon the Dominion Parliament the need for protecting level crossings on railways and upon the Provincial Government the need for better police protection in rural districts. It also expressed its approval of the proposal for law reform now under consideration by the Attorney-General for Ontario.

OFFICERS ELECTED

Officers were elected as follows: president, H. J. Gould, Uxbridge; 1st vice-pres., Dr. J. U. Simmons, Frankford; 2nd vice-pres., Geo. E. Lee, Highgate; treasurer, Alex. McFarlane, Otterville; secretary and editor, J. Lockie Wilson, Toronto.

Executive: Wm. Laidlaw, Guelph; J. T. Murphy, Simcoe; Robt. E. Cowan, Galt; J. W. Sheppard, Cayuga; John Farrels, Forest; R. H. Leary, Peterboro; and John D. Orr, Meadowvale.

Auditors: R. Agnew, Meaford; Wm. Collins, Peterboro.

THE ANNUAL BANQUET OF BELLEVILLE CHEESE BOARD

From Farm and Dairy.

"Some dairymen seem to be alarmed," said Dairy Commissioner J. A. Ruddick, while speaking at the annual banquet of the Belleville cheese board, "over the decrease in our exports of cheese and butter. Our exports appear to have reached their maximum in 1893, and the decline that has taken place since this, has caused some apprehension. These people, apparently do not take into consideration the fact that our home consumption of cheese and butter has increased greatly during the last few years, due in part, to our increased population and in part to the enlarged buying capacity of our people.

"The fact that New Zealand has greatly increased her exports of cheese to Great Britain, has also created a fear that it may weaken the position of our Canadian cheese in the British market. While the dairymen of New Zealand have a great natural advantage in their climate, which is very uniform, I do not believe that they will ever be serious competitors of Canadian cheese in Great Britain. There is no danger of our trade being seriously injured by outside competition, as long as we furnish a good product. There has been a great deal of talk in Canada about our methods of selling cheese, but there is only one really important point, and that is that our cheese must be of the finest quality.

"Few realize how important our home trade is. We produced in one year, thirty-six million dollars worth of creamery butter and cheese, twenty-two million dollars worth of dairy butter, one million dollars worth of condensed milk, and about thirty-five million dollars worth of milk that goes into direct consumption. The fact that we export only about one-third of the dairy products we produce, shows how important is our home market. We should pay more attention to catering to our home markets. We have been in the habit of exporting our best cheese and selling our poorer cheese in Canada, and the result is that it is difficult to get good cheese in the average grocery store. Were we to give our Canadian consumers good cheese, we could greatly increase the consumption of cheese in Canada."

PRICE OF EGGS GOING UP

From Farm and Dairy.

When eggs are soaring round the half-dollar mark in the city, then it is only sensible that we economize in their use in the country. Be as careful as we may, there will be frozen eggs discovered now and then, and I was recently surprised to hear a neighbor declare that she had just chopped up a dozen frozen eggs in her chicken feed. Since this woman was one of our most excellent cooks, she believed it impossible to thaw them out so they would be palatable. A little investigation proved that this was the view accepted by the majority.

I felt a bit of pardonable pride in being able to pass along a discovery I had made long ago—that if you place the eggs in a receptacle and pour over them very warm water, as warm as the hand can bear it, and let them stand half an hour you can use them for any purpose and no one will be able to detect that they were ever frozen. That old theory of placing eggs in cold water to thaw is responsible for the prevailing conclusion of their unfitness for use. It is simply an impossibility to restore them to their normal state by the cold water process, but the warm water will readily convince the most obstinate who will give it a trial.

When eggs are high there are many ways of substituting cornstarch and flour in their place. During a recent short course, a prize of $5 was offered in the domestic economy department for the best squash pie made without eggs, and the prize-winner sold at $2. The demonstration to the 150 students that an excellent squash pie was possible without eggs proved most interesting. The only secret in the making was the use of a tablespoonful of cornstarch instead of the usual number of eggs.

When making French toast, which is simply fried bread, the liquid for dipping the bread before placing in the skillet is much better by using an equal quantity of cold water added to the well beaten eggs. Many cake recipes calling for only a few eggs are familiar to all of us and even the eggless cake has been heard of, but with little recommendation. Still in the ordinary everyday cooking these little economies are always welcome and that old adage might well be transpennies earned."

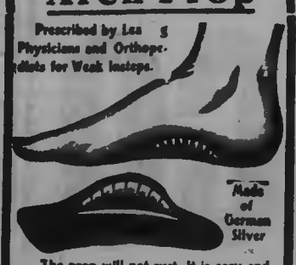
Arrowsmith Arch Prop

Prescribed by Leading Physicians and Orthopedists for Weak Instep.



Made of German Silver

The prop will not rust. It is easy and springy to the foot. A pleasure to wear. It can be gradually heightened as the condition of the foot improves. The fingers of the Prop can be brought against the side of the arch with the desired pressure. Unlike the ordinary rigid steel insole, it does not occupy the entire inner sole of the shoe, but extends only to the ball of the foot, being held in place by the pressure of the heel.

Youthful Lovers With Eight Dollars Between Them Get Lost On A Trip To New York

Little Girl Was Sent Out With Tax Money But Met Her Young Beau in a New Suit With First Long Trousers—Started Out to See Great City.

POLICE PICKED THEM UP

New York, Feb. 19th—It was a dark curly head with a chubby determined face under a cap tightly pulled down over his ears and a golden head with truant ringlets which a saucy automobile veil failed to hold in restraint, that attracted the attention of Detectives Fallon and Feigel at the corner of Bradford avenue and Main street, Flushing, shortly before 10 o'clock yesterday morning. Both heads were close together debating some weighty subject, when Detective Fallon, who had been watching the pair for some time broke in upon the conference without an introduction.

"Who are you and where did you come from?" he asked

They were Neil De Haven, fifteen, and Elsie Tomlinson, fourteen, who with $8 between them left Pineville, Pa., Friday morning to see the sights of New York, and lost their way in Flushing. Neil doubled his fists. He felt trouble was coming. Elsie clung to his arms and, surveying the detective, said:

"Well, I declare! But if you must know, this is my brother, Jack Archer, and we are going back to our home in Pineville."

Elsie Tells Her Story

The detective took them to Magistrate Fitch, where the truth came out. The youngsters looked as if they had stepped out of some old fashioned picture. Elsie was dressed in a brown skirt that just reached her knees, black stockings and gray coat. Neil wore blue suit and he confided to the court that he had on his first pair of long trousers. Instead of a collar he wore a blue handkerchief tied about his neck.

"This man here" said Elsie, with a wave of her hand toward Neil, "is my beau. We are in love with each other and some day we are going to marry. My papa owns a seventy-eight acre farm in Pineville. On Lincoln's Birthday morning mamma gave me $7 to go to Squire Kirk's house and pay the taxes and for some strings. On the way to the Squire's I met Neil and he looked nice in his new suit. I told him where I was going and you know we had often planned a trip to see New York. So Neil said, Elsie, I've a dollar; this is a good chance to see New York.'

"Well we walked to Wycombe, where we took a trolley car to Linghorne station, and from there we took a train to Jersey City. We walked around New York until we both got tired, and we bought a lot of candy and cake and all night we thought we would go back home and asked a policeman where we could get a train for Newtown, Pa., and he sent us to Long Island ferry. After crossing the ferry we got aboard a trolley car and stayed on until the car stopped, and then we walked around until we crawled into a wagon we found in an empty shed. We were going to try and go back home this morning, when the policeman came along."

Stern Justice Relents

"Well, a good spanking might do you both good," said the Magistrate "but after all I dont know that you need a spanking, at that. First, I'm going to get you a good meal, and then I'm going to send you back home to your parents. And they'll probably be more lenient with you than I am, if they'll be glad to get you both back safe."

Money to pay their way back home was furnished by Magistrate Fitch, who instructed Probation Officer William H. Allen to give the wanderers a good meal. Later he took to Jersey City and put them aboard a train for their home.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

TWO NEW ONES

Frank Adams, Will Hough and Jos. Howard have just turned out two new musical comedies, "The Prince of To-night," and "The Golden Girl." This famous trio of musical comedy producers have a long list of successes to their credit among them being "The Umpire," "The Girl Question," "The Land of Nod," "The Honeymoon Trail," "A Stubborn Cinderella," and "The Time, the Place and the Girl." Howard's music is almost invariably tuneful and his two new efforts are said to be up to the standard. Every song of "The Stubborn Cinderella" is a hit, with the special advantage that the general public has not found them for "murdering" purposes. Howard is as prolific if not more so, than Cohan, and his music is considered daintier and generally more tuneful

NOTES FROM THE BOY'S DEPARTMENT

On Sunday afternoon at 4.15 p.m., in the Boys' Parlours, a meeting for boys will be held.

The meeting will be addressed by Mr. W. Warne.

All boys over twelve years old are cordially invited.

Last night at the Business Boys' Tea, a large number of boys listened to a very interesting talk on "The Making of Books," by Mr. F. H. Dobbin, of The Review.

Next Thursday Mr. R. J. Soden, will speak to the boys.

THE BIBLE CLASS SLEIGH DRIVE

The members of the Bible class of the Park street Baptist church held a most enjoyable sleigh drive last night driving down to Mr. Kidd's home in Otonabee, where they were most pleasantly entertained. About twenty-five were in the party and they had a delightful outing. The evening was spent in games and music and refreshments were served to which the appetites sharpened by the drive through the frosty February air, did ample justice. The weather conditions were ideal for the trip.

Englishman's Self Assurance Is Satirized By George Ade

CHARACTERISTIC OF ADE.

Mr. Geo. Ade, the American humorist and playwright, whose "Fables in Slang," as he would put it, "kept English readers guessing," has left Berlin for Italy and Egypt. He is on his second trip around the world, and before coming to Germany "did" London and Paris.

In the course of an interview Mr. Ade stated that "next to being an Englishman he would rather be a German officer than anything in the world. Our Berlin correspondent asked him to amplify that apparent compliment to Britain in his own Indiana slang vernacular. This is how he replied:

"Will you pardon me if I beg off from saying anything in slang regarding our British cousins. A serious subject should not be treated flippantly or with a cheap and hybrid vocabulary, and the Englishman is a serious proposition.

The Enviable Englishman

"When I said that next to being an Englishman I would rather be a German officer than anything in the world, I merely meant to express by implication a firm belief that the Englishman is the most fortunate being in the universe, because he never has even a glimmering doubt as to the superiority of himself or his English environment.

"Some people travel to learn comparative values. The Englishman travels in order to corroborate his ingrown belief that anything un-British is necessarily incorrect, bad form and declasse. He never fails to find corroborative evidence.

"That is why I envy him. I should like to wear a tweed suit that bunched in the neck and bagged at the knees and still feel serenely confident that I was well dressed. I should like to feel assured that the best seat next to the window and all of the luggage racks were mine by divine right. When defeated at any game I should like to soothe my pride by the reflection that the victory of the opposition must have been the result of appalling accident or due to some new fangled trickery too complicated to be understood by thorough sportsmen.

"I envy the Englishman because even in his most cordial moments he patronizes all other human beings and carries a banner advertising the fact."

A WELL KNOWN WRITER ENGAGED

Copper Curb and Mining Outlook Have Secured the Services of Mr. J. T. Jenkins.

J. T. Jenkins, known throughout the country as an experienced and gifted writer of many years' standing upon mining topics, has been engaged as chief of staff of the Copper Curb and Mining Outlook, of New York, a weekly publication of thirty-two pages devoted to the mineral products of the United States, Mexico and Canada. Mr. Jenkins, in addition to contributing of his large and accurate knowledge each week to the columns of the Outlook, will exercise a personal supervision over the telegraphic and mail service of the paper, which has organized a corps of resident correspondents in all the mining camps of known importance. This is the first instance where an Eastern mining newspaper has attempted to establish an adequate special news service devoted entirely to American mines and their dependent industries. The Copper Curb and Mining Outlook is a clean and progressive journal, giving publicity to the news, without bias and in no individual interest.

NEW HORTICULTURAL SOCIETIES

From Farm and Dairy.

Through the efforts of Mr. J. H. Hare, the district representative of the Ontario Department of Agriculture at Whitby, new horticultural societies have been organized at Oshawa and Whitby. At the organization of the Oshawa society, Mr. A. Barber, of Bowmanville, introduced horticultural society work to the members and at the Whitby organization, Mr. J. Lockie Wilson, Superintendent of Horticultural Societies, Toronto, pointed out the good that such a society might do its members, and also to the community in which it is located.

Officers for the Oshawa society were elected as follows: Pres., Mr. W. H. Tonkin; 1st vice-pres., Mr. R. J. Cowan; 2nd vice-pres., Mrs. L. C. Smith; and a board of nine directors. The Whitby officers are as follows: Pres., Mr. E. Edmund Starr; 1st vice-pres., Dr. A. Adams; 2nd vice-pres., Mr. G. H. Hogarth; sec.-treas., Mr. W. A. Wilcox; auditors, Messrs. Jos. White and Geo. Robb; and a board of eight directors

About EXAMINER Want Advertisements

AS evidence of the fact that the EXAMINER is read, the following is related about several Want advs. appearing within the past week:—A gentleman placed an advertisement in the Daily Examiner for room and board on Saturday and there are now 25 answers awaiting him through the advertisement.

A party is advertising to buy a house. Already seven or eight letters had been received and there is a like number now at this office awaiting him.

A Lindsay man who lost his locket at the G. T. R. station and had the foresight to use the Examiner, has the satisfaction of having the article returned after the first insertion.

If you want to buy a new milch cow, see the Examiner's Classified Condensed Columns to-day.

A Pot Roast of Beef

When properly cooked is the most tender, juiciest and deliciously flavoured piece of meat that ever came to the table while slowly simmering in a covered pot. None of the goodness of the meat escapes and it cooks tender as a chicken. Try a potroast from Kennedy's. You'll like it.

GOODS WERE STOLEN FROM THE STATION

A Lakefield gentleman was in the city yesterday and purchased some groceries and incidentally a half-gallon of whiskey. They were left for him at the station, but when he arrived to take the noon train for home the groceries and the whiskey had departed, and there was no trace of the parties who had absconded with them, although it is certain that some one had a good "jag" cheap. The police have been notified of the theft and the guilty parties may find themselves in the police court.

WEDDING BELLS

STIBBS—DENIKE

Havelock, Feb. 19. — Special — A quiet wedding was solemnized on Wednesday evening at the residence of Mr. Jas. Denike, when his daughter, Miss Edna Josephine, was united in marriage to Mr. Norman Stibbs, of Ottawa. The young couple were unattended and the ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Balfour, M.A., only the family friends of the bride being present.

Mr. and Mrs. Stibbs left by midnight train for their home in Ottawa, and where Mr. Stibbs is employed in one of the C. P. R. offices at that point.

The many friends of the bride and groom in town wish them every happiness and prosperity.

Dear Sir—We have before us another example of the great need of an Isolation Hospital in Peterborough.

About 30 children at the House of Providence are unable to attend school, owing to their being a case of scarlet fever in the institution.

If our present council was to prove themselves worthy of the people's confidence, let them take this matter up with the Board of Health and bring it to a speedy and satisfactory issue.

Yours truly,
FEVERISH.

THE MASQUERADE BALL WAS A SUCCESS

Examiner Special.

Keene, Feb. 19.— "The best ball of the season" is the general opinion expressed of the masquerade held in the Town Hall last night. There were about 100 couples in attendance, the majority being in costume. The floor was reserved for those in costume until 10.30, from which time until 1 o'clock all who wished had a chance to enjoy themselves in the dance.

Messrs. McFarlane and Miller supplied the music.

We regret that so many of the masqueraders failed to hand in their names at the door.

Following is a partial list of those in costume:—

Miss Clara Hore — Carmen.
Mrs. Will Renwick — Night.
Miss Margaret Miller — Sunflower.
Miss Marion Weir — Mary Jane.
Miss Libbie Robertson — Shamrock.
Mrs. A. Anderson — Orange Lily.
Miss Lyla Shearer — Gipsy.
Miss Beatrice Starke — Girl of the West.
Mrs. R. Elmhirst — Oriental Dancing Lady.
Miss Ella Renwick — Queen of Hearts.
Mr. W. Pue — Highland Rory.
Mr. R. Elmhirst — Dude.
F. M. Dean — Courtier of Charles IV. of France.
H. Dinsdale — Sailor.
A. H. Anderson — gent. in time of Henry VIII.
Mr. H. McGregor — sailor boy.
Mr. Chas. Fife — Duke of Brunswick.
Mr. G. W. Fife — Joseph Sedley.
Mr. Albert Spens — Lord Dudley.

Much credit is due Mr. Robt. Brown, whose able management contributed to make the ball a success.

The third meeting of the Otonabee Branch, Women's Institute, was held this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Wm. Campbell. There was a good attendance of members and visitors and a very pleasant and profitable time was spent.

A sleigh load of ladies drove down from Warsaw and took charge of the meeting, and gave some very interesting papers. Mrs. H. Miller, president of the Warsaw Branch, presided and gave many valuable pointers on Institute work, which were much appreciated. Mrs. Choate, of Warsaw, gave a few ideas gleaned from the convention at Guelph in December, and also read a paper on Women's Institute Buildings.

The meetings of Otonabee Branch are held the third Thursday in each month, at 2.30 p.m. A cordial invitation is extended to all the ladies to attend.

FEEDING CATTLE FOR BABY BEEF

From Farm and Dairy.

At what age should cattle intended for baby beef be marketed and what weight should they be at that age, also about what price per pound should cattle of that class sell for live weight?—A. N., Port Elgin, Ont.

Cattle fed to produce baby beef may be made ready for the block at from ten to 24 months. If killed under ten months the flavor is not very beefy, it is in fact almost like veal. Of course the method of feeding has no little to do with the flavor. Baby beef animals should weigh not less than 800 lbs. live weight, nor go over 1,300 lbs. when taken to the block. Such beef may be produced at from three to five cents a pound live weight, depending on prices and kinds of feeds and the skill of the feeder. In the writer's experience it will sell for from five to six and one-half cents a pound live weight and is likely to leave about two cents a pound net profit.—J. H. G.

"You are very much in love with him, dear, aren't you?" Mrs. Brevort inquired, not without a certain doubtful note in her tone, which seemed to hint that such possibly might not be the case.

The girl who stood by the window, looking out at the uneven pavements of the Roman street, turned slowly and smiled. In that smile were weariness and subtle understanding and patient resignation.

"Yes, I am very much in love with him, Aunt Elinor," she said in a colorless voice, as if she were saying the words more because they were expected of her than for any other reason.

Mrs. Brevort smiled her open approval. The little frown of doubt which for the past few moments had wrinkled her brow suddenly disappeared. She crossed the room to the girl's side and threw an arm about her.

"Of course, dearie," she cooed, "your happiness is my first, I might almost say my only, concern. No one realizes better than I the portent of this step—that all your future, all your lifelong happiness depends upon it. No one, I think you'll admit, too, is more averse to the majority of these marriages than I am, but the duke is so utterly different from all the other eligible men we have met. He is not seeking your money, dear, for he is immensely wealthy in his own right. He is an upright, honest, splendid type of an—more like our own men in America, I think, than any one we have seen. Isn't that your impression of him?"

"Yes," said the girl in the same colorless voice.

Mrs. Brevort's pale face grew rather eager. "Somehow I have felt from the first that your destinies were linked, yours and his," said she, "but when he talked with me this afternoon I gave him no definite answer. I let him understand that the matter rested primarily with you; that it was your happiness that was at stake.

"He didn't seem quite to understand my attitude at first, but he was perfectly charming about it, as he is in everything. He said I was to speak to you and that he would call for me this afternoon at 4 in the road car, and while we went out to the aqueduct I could give him my final decision, or, rather, yours."

The girl had turned again to the window. She was looking abstractedly at the passing crowd in the street below. Her brow was furrowed by a little disfiguring frown. Her lips were set tightly together. Her eyes were troubled.

"So I suppose I am to give him a favorable answer, am I not?" Mrs. Brevort suggested tentatively.

The girl was silent. The troubled look in her eyes grew more pronounced. Her aunt watched her narrowly and with growing impatience.

"Peggy, dear, I asked you a question," she reminded her niece. "Is it a favorable answer I am to give?"

The girl shrugged her dainty shoulders. "Yes, yes; oh, yes!" she said hurriedly. "It doesn't matter." Her voice suddenly choked. "Nothing matters!"

Mrs. Brevort elevated her brows. "Really, Peggy"— she began childingly. But the girl turned swiftly and left the room, waving back the older woman, who started to follow her. Something like a smothered sob sounded as the door closed behind her.

Mrs. Brevort looked rather angry for a moment. Then she recovered her usual composure and smiled. But there was something distinctly unpleasant in that smile.

She glanced at the bronze clock ticking unobtrusively on the mantel. It pointed to half after 3. She went to a desk near the front window and from a drawer drew out a bundle of letters. They were all directed in the same hand—Peggy's hand. And they were all addressed to Mr. William Hale, at some outlandish Spanish sounding town in Ecuador, South America.

Mrs. Brevort smiled again. It had cost her a pretty penny to circumvent the mailing of those letters, but there are many itching palms in Rome, and what good money will not accomplish, if it is judiciously placed, is not worth accomplishing.

An open fire burned dully in the grate beneath the mantel. Mrs. Brevort stepped briskly over to it and fed the bundle of letters to the flames. She watched grimly until there was nothing left of them save a few gray white ashes.

Then from another drawer she took out another bundle of letters. They were thick letters, all of them. The sprawling superscriptions were all for Peggy, and they were postmarked with the name of the Spanish town in Ecuador.

Other itching Roman palms had been soothed in the conventional way to bring those epistles into Mrs. Brevort's possession.

These, too, she consigned to the grate, watched them burn and then arrayed herself for her appointment with the duke.

At precisely 4 he came in the road car. She descended the stairs, greeted him effusively, and together they whirled off toward the aqueduct.

Scarcely had Mrs. Brevort taken her departure when there came to the hotel a brisk, broad shouldered young man. Unmistakably he was American, and unmistakably he had been enduring recently all the discomforts of continental travel when such travel necessitates haste.

He glanced at the register, saw thereon a certain name and heaved a mighty sigh of relief, but ere he scanned his pockets for his card to the owner of the name that had caused his recent sigh came tripping down the stairs arrayed for a walk through the autumn streets, and, turning around, the young man stood staring open mouthed at Peggy in all her glory.

The girl's eyes, too, lighted suddenly. She gave a little gasp of surprise. In an instant the young man was beside her, and both her hands were in his own.

"Peggy, Peggy!" he was saying breathlessly.

"Billy," she was saying in a low, shaken voice, "where on earth did you come from?"

In a masterful manner he led her to the street. Once outside they both began talking as fast as they could.

"Not a word from you all this time," he declared, "not one single, solitary word. I couldn't stand it any longer. I left the bridge building down there and my chances for eternal fame and fortune with it, all in the hands of Johnson, and came over here to learn the worst: I even had to cable north to Daniels to find out where you were."

"Billy, what do you mean?" she asked in unbelief. "I have written and written and never had one single answer from you."

"Eh? What's this?" said he. "I've written every day of my life. You haven't got them?" His eyes grew suddenly dark. "Where's that precious aunt of yours?"

"Oh, heavens, Billy!" she said. "Why didn't you come before?"

"Why?"

"Why?" she repeated. "Why, indeed! Aunt Elinor is out motoring this afternoon with the Duke of Selena. She has gone with him to tell him I'll marry him. I thought—I thought—when you were silent—when I didn't hear from you"—

His teeth came together with a click. He faced her there in the Roman street, with the Roman sunshine flooding it with mellow warmth.

"To tell him you'll marry him!" he repeated. "Peggy, you're not going to, are you?"

She looked at him archly. "It's the only offer I've had recently," she said in mocking happiness.

"You'll have another right away," said he, with determination, "one that I dare you to turn down." he added, with a boyish laugh.

"But the duke," she said breathlessly. "I'm probably engaged to him by this time. Aunt Elinor wastes no time."

"I'll attend to the duke and your aunt, too," said he grimly. "What time will they return?"

"Almost any minute now," said she. "Come, let's go back. We mustn't miss them, must we, Billy?"

Discovery.

"What's the matter with you?"

"I looked for a gas leak with a lighted candle," replied the man with the bandaged head.

"And you found it?"

With grateful acknowledgment for their confidence to the holders of its 9,960,106 Policies, the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company presents the following summary of its condition and affairs for the year ended December 31, 1908, showing it to have been THE BEST YEAR IN THE COMPANY'S HISTORY

RESOURCES

United States, City and R. R. Bonds, and Stocks	$99,630,935.56
Bonds and Mortgages	90,795,319.02
Real Estate	22,444,627.78
Demand Loans on Collateral	2,192,702.00
Cash	4,775,988.79
Loans to Policy-holders	8,966,362.78
Premiums, deferred and in course of collection (net)	5,300,922.97
Accrued Interest, Rents, etc.	2,820,502.29
	$236,927,361.19

A REASONABLE INDICATION OF THE DESERVED POPULARITY of its plans and of faith in its management may be fairly claimed in the number of Metropolitan policies in force. It is not only greater than that of any other company in America, but greater than that of all the other regular companies combined, less one. It exceeds, in fact, the COMBINED POPULATION of 24 of the States and Territories out of the 52 forming the American Union; and as to CITIES, it exceeds the combined population of Greater New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston, St. Louis, Cleveland, Cincinnati, San Francisco, Pittsburgh, Baltimore, New Orleans and Buffalo.

ASSETS, $236,927,361.19

The Metropolitan paid its Policy-holders in 1908 for Death Claims, Endowments, Annuities, Paid-up Policies, Dividends, Bonuses, etc., with the amount set aside on their behalf as increased Reserve

$50,656,701.34

It has paid to its Policy-holders since organization, plus the amount invested and now on hand for their security

$470,366,769.36

HOME OFFICE BUILDING
The largest Office Building in the world; Madison Ave., 4th Ave., 23d and 24th Sts., New York City

OBLIGATIONS

Dividends Apportioned, payable 1909, on Participating Policies, Intermediate Branch	$1,382,722.00
Same on Participating Policies, Ordinary Dept. (Note. Nearly all this Company's Ordinary Policies are Non-Participating—issued at low rates of premium.)	104,203.73
Bonuses Apportioned, payable 1909, on Industrial Policies	2,650,000.00
	$4,136,925.73
Reinsurance Fund and Special Reserve	208,134,891.00
All other Liabilities	2,532,637.34
Capital and Surplus	22,122,907.12
	$236,927,361.19

The Metropolitan has more premium paying business in force in the United States than any other company.

The Metropolitan has in force one-third of all the legal reserve policies in force in the United States. Its Industrial policies in force nearly equal in number all the Industrial policies of all the other companies in the country combined.

Surplus in 1908	$22,122,907.12
Increase over 1907	$8,171,007.98
Total Number of Policies in Force	9,960,106
Gain over 1907	340,097
Total Amount Outstanding Insurance,	$1,861,890,803.00

ORDINARY DEPARTMENT

INSURANCE IN FORCE, $526,939,378

The Company issues policies for from $1,000 to $1,000,000 on individual lives, premiums payable quarterly, semi-annually or annually.

All policies are non-participating. They are plain business contracts which tell their whole story on their face; leave nothing to the imagination; borrow nothing from hope; require definite conditions and make definite promises in dollars and cents.

PREMIUMS ARE LOWER THAN ARE OFFERED BY ANY OTHER COMPANY

In the Intermediate Branch policies are adapted to the working classes. Each policy is for $500 and the rate lower than that offered by the Savings Bank system of Massachusetts. Two of the Metropolitan's Intermediate forms recently standardized by the New York and Massachusetts Departments provide for attractive combinations of insurance and annuities at the lowest rates offered anywhere.

The Ratio of Expense to Premium Income was the Lowest in the Company's History being over 8 per cent. less than five years ago and more than 15 per cent. less than ten years ago

The Company wrote more business in 1908 than any other Company in the world, and this for the fifteenth consecutive year

The number of policies paid in 1908 averaged one for each sixty-five seconds of each business day of 8 hours, and in amount $128.48 a minute, the year through.

The value and timeliness of its policy payments may be gleaned from the fact that of the claims paid during the year, 3,479 were under polices less than three months old, 6,890 were on policies under 6 months, and 12,806 were within the first year of insurance.

INDUSTRIAL DEPARTMENT

INSURANCE IN FORCE, $1,334,951,425

Number of Industrial policies in force, 9,301,001—insuring over six and a half millions of individual lives in the families of wage-earners. While the contracts are and always have been non-participating, the Company will this year have spent nearly EIGHTEEN millions of dollars in voluntary bonuses and concessions to the holders of these policies in thirteen years.

Cash bonuses on all whole life policies are annually allowed, amounting to over 8 per cent. of the premiums for a year. Additions of from 5 to 30 per cent. are made to policies maturing as claims, according to time policies have persisted. By the Company's present practice whole life policies are made free after age 75 or paid as endowments at age 80.

Industrial Insurance is Family Insurance, covering all ages from 1 to 70 on life, endowment and annuity plans.

Amount of Canadian securities deposited with the Dominion Government for the protection of policy-holders in Canada, over $5,500,000.

A Home For Harriett.

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

Harriett was a peculiar name for a ; but, then, Harriett was a peculiar . Roger Webster surveyed her sically as she lay in the sun on the rding house steps.

Any feline but Harriett," he de- red, "would at least feel mildly per- bed at the prospect of losing a home i a mistress."

You'd think so, wouldn't you?" an- red Bessie Roberts. Bessie was y pretty and wholly charming, but the present time a little frown of ety wrinkled her forehead.

simply don't know what to do ut it," she continued. "The land- r says that I've got to get rid of riett, and I can't find any other e so convenient to my work where n live. I suppose—I suppose," she d wistfully, "that I shouldn't be oolish over Harriett, but in some she seems the only link between y and the other life. With all my le gone and Harriett some other e in this big city I'd feel too aw- r, miserably lonely."

ger saw that Bessie was near s. "Poor, lonesome kiddie," he ght. And, leaning over, he stroked riett very carefully. Harriett arch- r back, purred and rose slowly to feet. Then, turning round, she ed squarely into Roger's lap.

hat a sensible cat!" Roger smiled he girl. "You see, she likes me much. If only every one—that is, one—liked me very, very much."

only wish they allowed cats in boarding house," he continued. t's one of the troubles of living in arding house—you don't get the simon pure comforts of home.

I'll tell you what we'll do," he , jumping to his feet. "We'll take lett with us and go on a tour of ation in this neighborhood. We'll hunt up a nice, quiet street where there are little cottages instead of big houses, and when we see a nice, 'homey,' comfortable housewife in one of the homes we'll go in and ask her to keep Harriett for us."

"For us?" queried the girl, with a little laugh.

"Sure," continued Roger, unabashed. "You don't think Harriett belongs to you alone, do you? I think Harriett would resent any such idea as that. She likes me too well, and I like her too well. No, indeed, I have a minority interest in this cat."

The girl laughed and rose to her feet.

"Well, come along," she said. "I suppose it's the best think we can do, and as it's Sunday afternoon we ought to be able to find lots of the people home."

* * * * * * * *

Roger helped the girl down the steps, and, calling to Harriett, they walked down the street. Harriett, big, sleek and black, followed decorously enough until they reached a small, rather obscure cross street.

Roger happened to be looking back as they crossed this street and discovered Harriett very sedately ambling down the little thoroughfare.

"Come here, Harriett," Roger called and then whistled to the cat.

Harriett paid not the slightest attention, but continued her sedate walk away from Roger and the girl. Bessie called, but even to her Harriett paid no attention.

"Well, I declare!" cried the girl in surprise. "Harriett has always been peculiar, but she has never acted like this before."

"Let's follow her and see where she goes," cried Roger. "Perhaps she is looking for a home or perhaps she has a home already picked out."

"All right," said Bessie.

They turned back and hastened after Harriett, who was now about a fourth of a block ahead. The street was a quiet one. Neither Roger nor Bessie was familiar with it and had paid but little attention to it in previous times.

Now, however, they glanced curiously at the small, rather cozy houses which lined the sides. Although erected within recent years, they were almost old fashioned by comparison with the big buildings on the more important streets near by. It seemed as if the little street was a mere eddy in the swirling life and progress all around it.

"Oh, I like this street!" cried Bessie.

"It appeals to me, too," declared Roger, with conviction.

For several blocks they followed Harriett, who continued her steady course. At last they saw the cat turn into a gate in a charming stone fence, and they hastened after her.

The fence inclosed a cozy little cottage, well set back from the sidewalk. In the yard were a couple of trees, a flower bed or two and a delightful path, bordered by a low hedge, which ran up to the spacious veranda.

The little home had such a piquant, happy look that involuntarily both Roger and Bessie smiled as they gazed at it.

Then Roger laughed.

"Look who's on the veranda!" he cried.

Bessie looked closely and gasped. There was Harriett, curled up tightly in the blaze of the sun, as if she had been in the habit of lying there just like that day in and day out for years.

"Well," cried the girl, "Harriett seems to be perfectly satisfied with the place."

"Yes," acknowledged Roger. "I could be happy, too, in a home like this if I had the right person to share it with me." He looked directly at the girl. For a fleeting moment her eyes met his, and then, startled and with her face flushed, she ran up the path to the veranda.

"Why," she exclaimed as she reached the first step, "there's no one living here—the place is for rent!" She pointed to a sign that had slipped from its position in a window.

"Why, so it is!" cried Roger. "Harriett can't stay here, of course—unless—unless"— He looked at Bessie with a smile full of meaning.

"Of course she can't stay here!" cried the girl, making a grab for the cat. "I wish we could find a home for her, though, in in a nice little place like this."

She caught the cat up in her arms.

"How Harriett would enjoy the place," mused Roger. "Look, there's a big open fireplace in the front room, and there's a fine, dandy place where we could have our piano."

"We?" gasped the girl. With her face aflame and with the cat clasped tightly she ran off down the path.

But Harriett, who had been purring very contentedly in her mistress' arms, now became very angry. She snarled and dug her claws into Bessie's coat until the girl was forced to put her down.

"Why, Harriett!" she exclaimed in pained astonishment. "What's the matter with her? She never acted that way before."

"I'm sure I don't know," replied Roger. "But look what she's doing now. Harriett may be a very peculiar cat, but she certainly knows a good thing when she sees it."

He pointed at Harriett, who, on being released, had torn frantically back up the path to the veranda. On the veranda she walked around in a circle once or twice and then curled herself up on the floor in almost the identical spot and almost the identical manner as before.

"Well, I never!" cried the girl. She hurried back to the veranda and, sitting down on the top step, began petting the cat. Roger lost no time in sitting down beside Bessie.

"Dear!" he cried as he managed to imprison one of her hands. "Dear heart, why not follow the road Harriett has pointed out? Why not let this dear little house be Harriett's home and at the same time a real home for you and me? Come, dear, it only needs a minister and a marriage license to make us all three happy."

"Oh, I will; I will!" she cried suddenly, throwing her arms about Roger's neck. "We'll none of us be lonely again!"

Harriett, with a sigh of content that appealed to the couple as almost human, rose from her spot and, purring loudly, rubbed her side against the arm with which Roger was clasping the girl.

Walpole and Balloons.

Sir Hiram Maxim's prophecy as to the use of airships in war is a serious parallel to Horace Walpole's facetious speculation made in 1784 after Blanchard's first ascent in England in a hydrogen filled balloon. "The seaports," he said, "will become deserted villages, and Salisbury plain, Newmarket heath and the Sussex downs will be utilized as dockyards for aerial vessels; there will be fights in the air with wind guns, and there will be a prodigious increase of land for tillage by the breaking up of all public roads as useless."—Chicago News.

A NEW MOTHER GOOSE

CANADA NOW HAS HER OWN NURSERY RHYMES.

David Boyle of the Ontario Education Department Has Written a Volume of Jingles For Children Which Are Intended to Replace the Ancient Rhymes With New Home-Grown Ones to Educate Young Idea.

"Hoppity, jiggity, jig,
"A squirrel upon a twig,
"Isn't it fun
"To see him run?
"Hoppity, jiggity, jig."

Sounds very much like "Jack and Jill went up the hill," doesn't it? That's just what it is intended to be.

It is the first of a series of nursery rhymes lately published by the Musson Book Co., and they fill a long-felt want. With characteristic modesty the author has not put his name upon the publication, signing the nom-de-plume "Uncle Jim."

"Uncle Jim" has been found out, however, and he is Mr. David Boyle, curator of the Ontario Education Department. He has taken the name of his brother James, and supplied the "Uncle" part of it, as Mr. James Boyle is fond of children.

The nursery rhymes are purely Canadian in matter and treatment, and as such are destined to take the place of the doggerel verse which the children of to-day are taught in the nursery.

"As long back as I can remember I have felt the need of Canadian rhymes," said Mr. Boyle. "As it is the children learn a lot of silly stuff that does them no good. What was needed was simple verses with some sense in them which, when the children learned them, would do them some good.

"I composed most of them lying in bed at night. I am not troubled with insomnia once I get asleep, but oftentimes I have trouble in starting off, as it were. Then it was I would hit upon some idea or verse, and dose off thinking it out."

The work is the product of years of labor on Mr. Boyle's part, just how many he cannot say. He composed many more than are published, and in making a selection followed an ingenious plan.

"There is no critic so good, no criticism so exact, as that formed by a child, provided the matter does not go beyond the youngster's mental powers," stated Mr. Boyle.

Acting on that principle he gathered a number of children around him and to them he read the verses. Every one they thought poor went by the board, while only those they selected were published. The result is that many here will appeal to the youthful mind.

The book is profusely illustrated, the work being done by C. W. Jefferys. Mr. Jefferys, whose newspaper illustrations are known throughout the whole of Canada, has certainly excelled himself in this regard. All the drawings are illustrated in colors and many of them are undoubted works of art.

"When the Governor-General came to town
"His lady wore a purple gown,
"But when his Lordship went away,
"Her ladyship wore a gown o' gray."

The verse is surmounted by a drawing of the Parliament Buildings at Ottawa, with the King's crown beneath.

"How the rain pours,
"And the lightnings flash!
"How the wind roars
"And the thunders crash!
"But my little baby is safe as can be,
"Cuddling here on mother's knee."

That is a verse which appeals to every mother's heart.

"Tommy Temper had a fall,
"He bumped his brow and gave a bawl,
"As soon's his head had struck the floor,
"Niagara never gave such a roar."

"Up the hill we haul the sleigh,
"Down the hill we go with a dash;
"If we don't steer straight the whole of the way,
"I guess you'll see a bit of a smash."

Many of the kiddies' bigger brothers and sisters can give testimony to the truth of the verse from their experience on High Park and other hills.

"And they met a porcupine.
"The woodchuck said 'Good Day,'
"The little mouse said 'Go way.'
"You're so rough that I don't like your talk,
"Although you may think you are fine."

Another verse will appeal to every lover of Canada's national game.

"Hi! Hi! Hi!
"When you play lacrosse.
"Hi! Hi! Hi!
"Always give the toss
"To one who is your friend,
"Or soon the game will end,
"Hi! Hi! Hi!
"To your loss."

Another has to deal with the Wicked Crow, who pulled up the corn, of his trial, and of how all the other birds gave evidence against him by reason of his predatory habits.

Another is to the rhyme of "London Bridge is falling down."

"I'm going to see Toronto Fair,
"Toronto Fair, Toronto Fair.
"I'm going to see Toronto Fair,
"Said little Johnnie Jumper."

The other verses tell of the marvels he saw there.

At the end are half a dozen pretty Indian stories in prose.

"It isn't poetry," said Mr. Boyle, "and it isn't supposed to be." But it is an excellent book of verse, neatly gotten up, that will bring joy to more than children.

Pharoah Had Hard Heart.

The Pharoah whose heart was hardened against the children of Israel so that he would not let them go, was otherwise known as Menephtah. Some time ago was described the discovery of his mummy in the tomb of Amenhotep II.

Economy.

Economy is always admirable. A Cheyenne hatter, though, was disgusted the other day with the economical spirit of a visitor to his shop. The visitor, a tall man with gray hair, entered with a soft felt hat, wrapped in paper, in his hand.

"How much will it cost," he said, "to dye this hat gray to match my hair?"

"About a dollar," the hatter answered.

The tall man wrapped the hat up again.

"I won't pay it," he said. "I can get my hair dyed to match the hat for a quarter."—Household Journal.

No Burglary.

Judge—You are charged with burglary. How do you plead?

Prisoner—Not guilty, boss, an' I'll tell yo' why. In de fust place, de chicken coop doah wasn't eben locked; in de secon' place, dar wuz no burglar alarm; in the third place, dar wus no bulldog, an', in de fourf place, dar was no steel traps. Now, dat ain't burglary et all, boss; dat's jes' simply findin' chickens, an' I leabe it too yo'self."—Exchange.

STRATHCONAS TRIM STRATTON CUP HOLDERS IN FIRST OF SERIES OF HOME-AND-HOME GAMES LAST NIGHT

Leo Quinn's Lakefield Seven Went Down Before the High Commissioners to the Tune of 4 Goals to 1.

WAS A FINE EXHIBITION.

The Strathconas got back at Lakefield last night for trimming them in the City League finals by walloping Leo Quinn's seven last night, in the first of a series of home and home games by 4 goals to 1, and incidentally showed that they should have won the City League title had they displayed anything like their real form in the last contest. They had on a patched up team last night with Ray and Dobson on the hospital list,—but at that they had it on the champions all the way, and the score might have easily been larger had the marksmanship of the winners been more accurate Lakefield were out-played from the start last night and were checked so closely that they only had half a dozen shots on the nets during the game, although there were times when the Cementville team broke away nicely, only to go down before the Strath's defence who played a splendid game all through.

About two hundred people were present and they saw a splendid exhibition, as both teams worked their heads off and the excitement was keen all the way. The checking on both sides was close, but there was plenty of nice combination as well, as spectacular individual rushes and that is what constitutes enjoyable hockey. It was not any too clean, but Referee Walter Miller was always master of the situation, and the penalties he handed out steadied the players. Both sides were out to win, and they succeeded in making a very interesting exhibition. The Straths took an early lead, getting three goals before Lakefield found the nets, and then coming back with another before half time. There was no scoring in the second half, although the Straths had plenty of opportunities but failed to locate the counting station when in close.

As stated, the Straths were without Ray and Dobson, and Pete Weatherstone had to be dug up to fill the vacant position on the line, while Dusty went up to rover and Seymour back to cover point. The shift worked splendidly. Lakefield had Mack Quigley, of the T. A. S. at rover instead of Simpson, while Moore replaced Crawford in the nets. Otherwise the two teams were the same as in the final City League game.

The Strathconas checked splendidly, coming back with the Local Option line so consistently that it was only very rarely that they were able to work down on the defence unhampered, while at the same time they played nice combination themselves and got away in a line. They met Quinn before he got fairly started, with stiff body checks and looked after him so closely that the speedy cover point of the visitors got away only on rare occasions, and even then the High Commissioners came back with him so fast that his efforts were rendered futile. It was a much easier victory for the Straths than the score would indicate, as Lakefield were looked after so closely that it was seen from the start that they need not expect another victory.

All the Strath played good hockey and special mention is coming to Weatherstone. Last night was the first time he had had a stick in his hand since the Belmont game six weeks ago, and in spite of that fact he worked as if he had been practising steadily ever since. He checked back unfailingly and in addition did a whole lot of useful work on his own behalf. Dusty at rover was good, both on the attack and in helping out the defence, while Long in centre, played his usual effective game, getting two of the High Commissioners' goals by his good work in front of the nets. McMillan and played a game just before the match, but held his own with the best of them and did good work all through. Seymour played cover as if he had been used to it all his life, using his body to advantage, while McWilliams checked well and his speedy rushes were among the spectacular features of the game, although he was handled without gloves by the Lakefield seven whenever the game up the ice. Wilson, in goal took care of a number of likely looking shots in a clever manner.

For Lakefield Quinn was the star, as usual although he did not have his usual opportunities this time. He was looked after pretty closely, but at that got away occasionally and played a splendid game on the defence. Mack Quigley was the best of the forward line. Sabatino did not seem as effective as usual, while the two wing men were out-played by their checks. M. Sabatino was effective at point and Moore, in the nets got away with a large number of pretty tops.

The teams lined up as follows:

LAKEFIELD

Moore
M. Sabatino — Quinn
M. Quigley
J. Quigley — T. Sabatino — Moran

McMillan — Long — Weatherstone
Dusty
Seymour
McWilliams
Wilson

STRATHCONAS

The game started off at a fast clip with Straths pressing right off the reel. Both teams were working at top pressure and the game was interesting all the way. Weatherstone tripped Quinn and was sent away for a minute, but returned in time to check Quinn as he was coming from behind his own goal, and passed out in front to Dusty, who scored the Strathconas' first goal in 4 minutes.

Straths 1; Lakefield 0.

Dusty and Joe Quigley had a slight altercation and were both penalized. Long was penalized for tripping, and Joe Quigley had hardly got back on the ice when he was sent away for tripping Dusty. Long put the Straths two ahead by shooting one past Moore at close range, on a pass from Weatherstone. Time, 9 minutes.

Straths 2; Lakefield 0.

One minute afterward McMillan, by a nice rush, made it three to nothing.

Straths 3; Lakefield 0.

Lakefield came back with their first and only counter in three minutes, Moran going up the side and scoring on a nice shot.

Straths 3; Lakefield 1.

McMillan was sent away for tripping Quinn, and on his return Quinn received the same sentence for performing a similar feat with the Strathcona defence man. In nine minutes Straths got what proved to be the last goal of the game. Dusty shot dead on the nets from well out, but Moore made a clever stop. Long, however, followed in and banged one past Moore on the rebound.

Straths 4; Lakefield 1.

There was no further scoring in the first half and neither team found the nets in the second, although the game was always interesting and better shooting would have enlarged the Straths majority.

The summary follows:

1—Strathconas, Dusty, 3 mins.
2—Strathconas, Long, 9 mins.
3—Strathconas, McMillan, 1 min.
4—Lakefield, Moran, 3 mins.
5—Strathconas, Long, 9 mins.
Second half—
No score.

Penalties

First half—Weatherstone, Dusty, J. Quigley, Long, J. Quigley, McWilliams, Quinn, M. Quigley, McWilliams, Seymour, J. Quigley. Total, 11.

Second half — Moran, M. Sabatino, Dusty, McMillan, Weatherstone, Long, Weatherstone, Total, 7.

Strathcona—Penalties, 11.
Lakefield—Penalties, 7.

HOCKEY NIGHT AT BROCK STREET RINK

Bell Telephone, True Blues and G. T. R. Were the Winners Last Night.

There was plenty of hockey and also plenty of amusement at the Brock street rink when in addition to the Strathcona-Lakefield games there were three other games pulled off.

In the 7 to 8 o'clock battle the G. T. R. and C P R came together and the crash could be heard for miles. The score was the Lindsay Toronto Rowing Club figures over again with the Grand Trunk holding the six and the C P R the one. It was a lively battle and the game was closer than the score would indicate, the figures at half time being 1-0 in favour of the Trunks.

The Loyal True Blues did things to the Lock Workers in the second game, the Sons of William putting it over the Sad Rats by 3 goals to 0 after an interesting battle. Both teams worked hard but all the scoring was done by the True Blues.

The last game between the Machine and Bell Telephone Companies was the piece de resistance of the evening. The Bell won by 5-4 but it was anybody's battle until the final whistle blew. Both teams as might have been expected had an some "rippers" and were even in that respect. Wade playing with the Bell and Wallie Parnell with the Machine. The latter were ahead 3-2 at half time, but failed to hold their lead. In the second half the feature of the game was contributed by O'Prior and Whitney the Machines stalwart defence men whose rushes will never be duplicated. Fred Taylor and Lester Patrick never gave such an exhibition and when they went they swept everything before them.

FOREIGN WALKERS TO APPEAR IN THE GREAT INTERNATIONAL CONTEST

Examiner Special.

New York, Feb. 19.—The return of the European representative of the managers of the international six-day-go-as-you-please race in Madison Square Garden, in the second week of March, on the Cunard Line steamship Lusitania from England, has been preceded by cable messages announcing the completion of the arrangement for the foreign teams that are to compete in the long contest.

The cabled information gives the names of the men already paired as the accredited champions of the leading European countries, selected by actual test and the records of past performances. Of these, the most prominent that have signed the articles of agreement for the race and booked passage for New York are the Belgian and Italian teams, made up of accepted national champions. The Italian long distance men are Pietore Ferri, of Bologna, champion of Italy through 1902-3-4, who has been in temporary retirement because he could not find any one to compete with him, and Guido Palanti, of Florence, a recent product of Italian road racing, who recently won a brilliant ten mile race from an international field on the Stamford Bridge grounds in England.

The Belgian pedestrians are Allexandre Navez and Albert Dos, both of Brussels, the best pair in Belgium, and said to be the best men of the known professionals in all Europe. From Holland the choice of twenty applicants for entry fell on W. W. Wakker and A .C. H. Vosbergen, of Rotterdam, who have signed as competitors, but whose entry as the Holland champions may possibly be changed, as eighteen other men are contending for places on the team. The French team finally accepted is made up of Edouard Chibot and Louis Orphee, famous French road runners and champions in their branch of sports.

For the Irish team Fred Curtiss of Dublin has been accepted as the first man of the entry, with the preference for a mate given to T. Hynes, though the pairing for the representatives of Ireland still is left open.

In England, the European representative of the managers of the race sifted forty applicants for places on the team down to the four best men, the selection of the pair that will come to America being left open for an agreement for the men on the matter of pairing.

In the selection of the Irish team it was originally expected that Curtiss would be paired with Pat White, the best and fastest of the young athletes and road racers in Ireland, but White suddenly left Ireland for America on his own account last week and is due to arrive in New York early this week, with the idea of finding an American team-mate, and entering the race as an Irish-American entry.

DAVE HARTLEY TO REPRESENT CANADA IN THE INTERNATIONAL SIX-DAY RACE IN NEW YORK

David Hartley, the veteran Peterborough walker, who started the walking game in Peterborough, and who holds the record for the Port Hope to Toronto walk, is going to make an endeavour to prove to the people of Peterborough that he is not yet down and out. He has entered the Six Day International Go-as-you-please Race in Madison Square Garden, March 7 to 13, and his entry has been accepted by the International Sports Company who are handling the arrangements for what promises to be the greatest sporting event on record, as the professional championship of the world is at stake.

As in the six day bicycle races the contest will be between teams of two men, the competing countries being the United States, Brazil, Germany, Belgium, Holland, England, Scotland, Ireland, Wales, Russia, Italy, Philippines, Canada, South Africa, France and Spain.

Hartley sent his entry in some time ago and has received the following letter from the promoters of the race:—

Dear Sir:— We have decided to accept your entry for the six day race, March 7 to 13, and have paired you with Anthony Higgins of 37 Cathedral street, Montreal, P.Q., to represent Canada.

Kindly notify this office by wire collect of your acceptance at the same time confirming this letter by mail.

Yours,
THE INTERNATIONAL SPORTS CO.

The local walker wired the management of the race to-day as follows:—

International Sports Company,
New York.

Accept my entry, six days' race, March 7 to 13. DAVID HARTLEY.

PETERBORO CLUB CONGRATULATES LINDSAY UPON ITS VICTORY

The Lindsay Warder says:—

The letter published below was received this morning by the Lindsay hockey team from Mr. R. Glover, manager of the Peterborough hockey team.

Peterborough, Feb. 17, 1909.

Mr. A. G. Simpson,
Manager, Lindsay Hockey Club.

Dear Sir:— Allow me on behalf of the Peterborough Hockey Club, to congratulate you on winning this district. While we did not succeed in the last game in giving you quite as hard a game as some of the others, yet we feel satisfied with the series with you. We have enjoyed the season immensely and with four games with a team in one season, with no hard feelings between the players, goes to show that Peterborough and Lindsay are not hard to get along with. I trust you will continue to climb in the championship race, and while you have beaten us out this year, in the years to come Peterborough and Lindsay no doubt will be still fighting it out with honours distributed as in the past.

Yours, etc.,
R. GLOVER.

BOWLING

Following were the scores in the Y. M. C. A. Bowling League last night:

Howson	118	97	108
Staunton	181	110	120
Laing	105	126	177	1142
Gewle	120	127	97

Shirley	107	157	130
Reid	106	91	95
Elliott	175	165	144	1170

There were several surprises in the Peterborough Bowling League games last night, the days doings including the taking of the series by the Iroquois from the leaders the Pacifics, the winning of a game by the Greys from the bankers and the defeat of the latter in three straight games by the Examiner A. As a result of the games there was a big shake up in the positions of the leading teams. The Iroquois seemed to have gotton back into form and they rolled splendidly against the Pacifics while some of the latter fell down and with the exception of McIlroy failed to show class.

The Pankers were off colour in both their games and the tail enders managed to steal one from them, the Examiner A came along and beat them three in a row. The first was close, the newspaper men winning by only three pins but after that the Exams had no trouble.

The scores follow—

PACIFICS—

HOCKEY

A special announcement has been made with reference to a game of hockey which is to be played at the Brock street rink on Saturday afternoon between five and six o'clock. Two teams the Daddies and the Kiddies are to clash in an affair which promises to be unusual in many respects. It is stated that Mr. Gene Burtubise will be one of the performers and other names are mentioned which should make the fray a very interesting one.

Toronto World: Two weeks more and the O.H.A. will, in all probability, announce its champions for 1909. Kingston looks again to have the call in the senior, while in the intermediate the junior finals of two years ago bid fair to be enacted over again with Stratford and Lindsay in the finals. Of course, Stratford have first to dispose of Wiarton and Lindsay the T.R.C., but five goals looks too big a margin for the local club to overhaul. Then there are the winners of the Ingersoll-Milton game, also Niagara Falls or St. Catharines v. Beamsville. The play-off will likely see winner Wiarton v Stratford play Ingersoll v. Milton, and winner Lindsay v. T.R.C. play winners Niagara Falls v. St. Catharines and Beamsville.

Madoc, Feb. 18 — Madoc defeated Stirling last night in the Trent Valley League by the score of 6-4. The game was fast from first to last, both sides playing first class hockey. At half time the score was 3-2 in favour of Madoc. The teams—

Sir,—Kindly decide the following bet made on Strathcona-Lakefield game Thursday evening. B marks score 4—4; C marks 5—3. Score was 4—1, who wins?

In all such cases the percentage should be considered in the same manner as calculating baseball. In this instance the correct score was 4—1 in favour of the Strathconas, as that the correct percentage is .800. B's score is 4—4, and his percentage is therefore .500, while C's score is 5—3, which gives him a percentage of .625 and he therefore wins the bet, as he is closer to the correct percentage.—Sporting Editor.

Two teams from the C.G.E. Works will play at Brock street to-morrow afternoon from 5 to 6, the Married Men against the Single Men. They will line-up as follows:—

Manager Trombley has the Daddies training out on Dad Vass' New Farm in North Monaghan, and are in fine shape.

Willie Edison Westinghouse Mary Jane Sweet will be mascot, while Buffalo Bill Denoon will referee, and Pretty Arnold Stanton will be judge of play. Special Policeman, Big Noise Buckley.

WRESTLING.

The Hamilton Herald says:—Fritz Mohl, the big German wrestler, arrived in the city this afternoon for his match at the Armoury rink tomorrow night, when he will attempt to throw Charlie Conkle, Sam Zeller and Conkle's unknown. Conkle, who is always in good shape, has been coaching Zeller and the unknown for over a month and is willing to bet that Mohl will not turn the trick to-morrow night. Mohl will give his wonderful exhibition at the Brunswick alleys this afternoon and the H. B. and A. C. to-night of standing at the foot of the alleys and catch balls that are rolled by the fastest bowlers as they are rolling through the pins.

A Difficult Examination.

Candidates at the Royal Veterinary college, London, must pass examinations in English grammar and composition, Latin, mathematics and either Greek, a modern language or logic (horse sense?). This from the Matric: "Find the center of gravity of a uniform wire which is bent in such a way that it forms three sides of a square." Once in, the candidate for V. S. has to cover chemistry, physics, biology, botany, histology, physiology, bacteriology, materia medica, toxicology, hygiene, dietetics, clinical medicine, meat inspection and horseshoeing.—Horses, Horsemen and Stable Management.

London on American Clothes.

Observes the London Chronicle: "In London the man who demands respect has his clothes made for him. But no New York man who is not a millionaire or near it buys anything but store clothes. And the ready made clothes are so standardized that you have but to confess your inches and you are clothed in America."

A LAND SALE IN BOLIVIA.

Survival of a Curious Old Ceremony Called "Feoffment."

Our remote ancestors did not sell land as it is sold nowadays, the seller merely giving to the buyer an acknowledged deed of the premises. According to their customs, no land title could pass except by "transmutation of possession," and this they accomplished by a solemn ceremony, called by an old term a "feoffment."

The seller and the buyer went on the land together in the presence of witnesses, usually most of the village folks. The seller took a tuft of grass or a clod of earth and handed it to the buyer, declaring with a loud voice his intention to transfer to him the possession of the land in question.

Centuries have elapsed since the English race has sold land in this way, and it has been supposed that the practice had become extinct. A few years ago, however, a New England lawyer, returned from Bolivia, gave the following account of a land sale within 100 miles of La Paz, the Bolivian capital:

The American had climbed the Andes to a height of 1,400 feet, accompanied by a native Bolivian who had agreed to sell some mining property.

The subprefect of the province and a notary went with them. The Indians living on the route were called out as the party passed along, until finally the complete company numbered about 300.

When the party reached its destination the prefect called the assembly to order, declared what was to be done, and the notary wrote it down. The seller then tore up dirt and grass with his hands and handed it to the buyer, who at once began to run wildly about the land, turn somersaults and cut up all manner of funny capers.

This, the notary told the party, was to convince the native Indians that the purchaser had actually taken legal possession of the land, and he further stated that the Indians and their descendants would defend the newcomer's title against any and all intruders until he or his heirs should see fit to transfer the possession of the land to still others in a similar manner.—Boston Post.

THREATENED THE DEITY.

An Impious Relic of Arizona While Under Spanish Rule.

Among primitive peoples gifts are made to the gods in the hope of securing their favor. Quite logically, also, when a god does not respond his worshipers cut off their gifts to him and sometimes even desecrate his image. But it is odd to find a survival of this notion among Christians, however simple minded they may be.

A very curious instance is contained in a report filed in the Smithsonian institution at Washington. It tells of what happened in Arizona while under Spanish rule and is amusingly naive in its story of how the people of one department tried to threaten the Deity and thereby make him give them rain. The report says:

Considering that the Supreme Creator has not behaved well in this province, as in the whole of last year only one shower of rain fell; that in this summer, notwithstanding all the processions, prayers and praises, it has not rained at all, and consequently the crops of Castanas, on which depend the prosperity of the whole department, are entirely ruined, it is decreed—

Article I. If within the peremptory period of eight days from the date of this decree rain does not fall abundantly no one will go to mass or say prayers.

Article II. If the drought continues eight days more, the churches and chapels shall be burned, and missals, rosaries and other objects of devotion will be destroyed.

Article III. If, finally, in a third period of eight days it shall not rain, all the priests, friars, nuns and saints, male and female, shall be beheaded. And for the present permission is given for the commission of all sorts of sin in order that the Supreme Creator may understand with whom he has to deal.

Many Requests For Sidewalks Already Been Filed For Summer

The Board of Works met last night with the following members present, Ald. Phelan (chairman), Ald. Gillespie, Bradburn, Butler, McIntyre, Mayor Rush and the city engineer.

A letter from Engineer Hay stated that Mr. Thos. Hooper's lamp had been placed in front of his north store at the favour of the city and at his own responsibility and that the damages amounting to $22.00, which he asked for because of its being overthrown by the road roller should not be paid by the city. The lamp was hung from a post alongside the curb and when the roller went into the gutter it tilted, with the result that the caboose of the roller caught the sign. Mr. Hooper had it repaired and afterwards sent in his claim. On motion it was referred to the city solicitor. Mr. Hay explained that he did not consider the city could be held liable.

Stone Purchased

The engineer also reported that 208.97 cords of stone had been purchased at three dollars a cord, amounting to $626.91, during February. No difficulty had been experienced from the teamsters, the usual price having been accepted. Regarding the placing of the portable stone crusher in the river bed, above Hunter street, it was considered that, since the council intends to curtail expenses, it would be advisable not to carry out that plan. On motion of Ald. Gillespie and McIntyre, that Chairman Phelan secure whatever stone was deemed necessary.

A communication was received from the Canadian Cement and Concrete Association, announcing their first annual convention from the 1st to the 6th of March, at St. Lawrence Market, Toronto. It is likely that the council will send a representative or two to the convention to gain any pointers that may be brought out.

For Sidewalks

Other requests were as follows: Cement walk on the north side of Parnell street; also on south side of Charlotte street, from Park street to Maitland avenue; on the east side of St. Joseph street, from Charlotte street to Gilmour street.

A sewer was petitioned for on Manning avenue, between Henson street and Aylmer street; a sidewalk on the west side of John street, from Bolivar street to King street; also on the east side of this street; on the south side of Smith street, from Harvey street to the Smith street bridge.

A sidewalk was asked for on the south side of Sherbrooke street, from Reid street to Park street; on the north side of Wolfe street, from Reid street to Aylmer street; on the west side of Margaret avenue, from Charlotte street to King street; on the south side of Crescent street, from Haggart street to lot 38.

A petition was also received protesting against the construction of this sidewalk, but asking that it be placed on the north side all along the street.

Impossible

Engineer Hay pointed out that this was impossible. There is no foundation along the crib work, and a cement sidewalk is out of the question. On the south side the trees have been irregularly planted, and it would be difficult to lay a walk without having to remove some of them.

A cement walk is asked for on the east side of Benson street.

OBITUARY

MR. MICHAEL CAVANAGH JR.

Word was received here this morning of the sad death of Mr. Michael Cavanagh, Jr., who died on Thursday night at his residence in Ennismore, at the age of 47 years. He was well known in this county having lived there all his life and was respected by all who knew him. Mr. Cavanagh was married twenty years ago to Miss Helen Cooney, who survives him. He is also survived by his father, M. Michael Cavanagh one son Francis, one daughter May; four brothers, William, Thomas, James and Daniel; three sisters, Mrs Fitzpatrick, Donevillo, Mrs Nelson, Seattle, Wash., and Mrs. Kelly, of Tacoma, Wash.

The funeral will be held on Saturday morning from the family residence, Ennismore, at 9.30 and proceed to St. Martin's church for mass, and interment will take place in the Roman Catholic Cemetery.

Montreal Man's Notoriety Caused Arrest on Old Charge.

Montreal, Feb. 20.—Charles Hill, one of the five men poisoned by gas in a little beanery on Cathedral street on Tuesday, got his name into the papers every day since then through that occurrence. This publicity was not welcome to him, however, for, as a result of it, he was arrested yesterday on a charge of embezzlement, and will be held pending extradition proceedings.

Hill is wanted in Foxborough, Mass., on a charge of the embezzlement of $600. The police of that town happened to read about the case here, which was given wide publicity, as at first it was supposed that the man had been poisoned by strychnine, and a sensational story was made out of the occurrence. They thought they recognized a cut of Hill in one of the Montreal papers as C. B. McGrath, for whom they have searched since Dec. 2, and yesterday morning Chief Detective Carpenter received a telegram from the chief of police of Foxborough, asking that Hill be placed under arrest.

The inquest on the body of Thos. Green, the man who succumbed, was concluded by Coroner McMahon yesterday morning. The autopsy showed that death was due to gas poisoning. After the medical men had submitted their report the jury returned a verdict to the effect that Green came to his death by suffocation from coal gas, and found that no one was criminally to blame.

WHIRLED TO DEATH.

Machinery Strips Toronto Man of Every Shred of Clothing.

Toronto, Feb. 20.—Whirled about in the shafting of machinery which he was adjusting, shortly before noon yesterday, George A. Ross, about 50 years of age, employed by Robert Watt, coal dealer, 201 Campbell avenue, was so badly injured that at 12.30 yesterday afternoon he died at the Western Hospital.

Ross was employed about the mill as an extra hand, and was at work adjusting a pulley on the second floor.

He was alone at the time of the accident and when found lay stark naked beside the shafting on which he had lost his life.

It is supposed that either his trousers or his coat caught in the machinery. The shafting is only a foot above the floor, and into it Ross was drawn. It was not known how many times the unfortunate man was whirled about, but he was not released until his body had been wholly stripped of clothing. The machinery even tore off the top of his socks, and his heavy boots were cut to ribbons.

Three Judges Wanted.

Ottawa, Feb. 20.—A deputation from the bar of Montreal interviewed the Government yesterday morning to ask that the Federal Government appoint three new judges for the district of Montreal, as provided in an act of the Quebec Legislature passed last year.

Sir Wilfrid, while admitting the congestion of legal business in the district of Montreal, pointed out the need of judicial reform in Quebec. Under the present system some of the judges were overworked, while others had practically nothing to do. He advised the bar to attempt to evolve some plan of redistribution of judicial work, keeping in mind the Ontario system of circuits, but promised that if such a plan were not feasible, the Government would be compelled to do something to relieve the congestion in that city.

Chicago, Feb. 20.—Edwin A. Brown of Denver, brother of the president of the New York Central, has spent a night in the Chicago municipal lodging-house, as one of the leaders of a movement in his home city to establish modern municipal lodging-houses.

Mr. Brown is on his way to Washington, to urge the framing of a bill to make a national playground of the one million acre White River reservation, with a sanitarium for indigent and convalescent soldiers and sailors.

Hawaii After Japs, Too.

Honolulu, Feb. 20.—A bill to be presented to the Legislature prohibits aliens from fishing in Hawaiian waters. Another imposes a heavy tax on fishing samples of over thirty inches beam. The Japanese practically are the only orientals engaged in the fishing business, and the only ones using samples. The only alien fishermen in Hawaii are Japanese. The bills will be introduced by Senator Coelho, a Republican, who is a native Hawaiian. The general sentiment here is unfavorable to the measures.

Cashier Robbed.

St. John, N.B., Feb. 20.—A little before 1 o'clock yesterday, while W. Herbert Downie, cashier for the T. S. Simms Co., was alone in the office, a man stole up behind him, caught him by the throat, choked him into unconsciousness, and made off with the pay roll, amounting to about $12,000.

VEN. ARCHD. SWEENEY BISHOP OF TORONTO

Is Chosen by Agreement of the Opposing Factions.

A COMPROMISE CANDIDATE

Venerable Archdeacon of St. Phillip's Church Is Selected by Joint Committee Representing Cody-Thorneloe Parties—Was Born in England in 1857 and Was Educated at McGill University.

Toronto, Feb. 20.—Ven Archdeacon J. Fielding Sweeney, rector of St. Phillip's Church, is the bishop-elect of Toronto.

He was selected by the committee of sixteen, representing the deadlocked Thorneloe-Cody factions, and appointed at the morning session as one who should prove acceptable to both. The committee consisted of Dr. N. W. Hoyles, S. H. Blake, K.C., Judge Harding, Rev. G. J. James, W. H. Hoyles, M.P.P., Rev. C. H. Marsh, Judge Benson, and Rev. W. H. Vance for the Cody party, and Rev. Provost Macklem, Rev. Canon Ingles, Rev. Canon Spragge, Rev. T. W. Powell, Dr. J. A. Worrell, K.C., A. B. Boswell, K.C., Dyce W. Saunders, and Lawrence W. Baldwin representing the supporters of Bishop Thorneloe.

Reporting to their respective meetings in the afternoon, Provost Macklem and Hon. S. H. Blake and Dr. N. W. Hoyles urged their adherents to ratify the choice. At 3.30, after two adjournments, the synod reassembled in St. James' Cathedral and at 5.35 the scrutineers announced that the result of the seventh and ratifying ballot was known.

Archdeacon Sweeny with emotion in his voice asked leave of the synod to have Chancellor Worrell read the result. When the last words of the chancellor had died away, the assembly rose and sang the doxology, "Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow," Dr. Ham accompanying on the great organ.

All the while this was being sung, the bishop-elect remained seated, with his face buried in his hands in silent prayer.

Then he rose and in low tones, almost choked with the feelings which were evidently surging up in his heart, announced that he would give his decision at 8.30 o'clock.

Rt. Rev. Bishop Reeve then pronounced the benediction, and with the chimes pealing joyously the delegates dispersed to reassemble in the evening for choral service, when the bishop-elect expressed his acceptance of the distinction conferred upon him in an eloquent address and promised to devote his life to the work of the diocese.

Venerable Archdeacon Sweeney was born in London, Eng., Nov. 15, 1857. He came to Canada with his parents, his father, Col. Jas. F. Sweeney, being appointed a staff officer of pensioners at Montreal. He received his early education in the Montreal high school, and later at McGill Normal School. In 1878 he graduated from McGill University with the degree of B.A. He continued his studies in theology at the Montreal Diocesan Theological College. In 1880 he was admitted to the deaconate, and was raised to the priesthood in the ensuing year by Bishop Bond. In this year McGill conferred upon him the degree of M.A., and two years later was honored by Trinity University with the degree of M.A. and B.D., receiving his degree of D.D. five years later. On being ordained he was appointed rector of St. Luke's Church, Montreal, and also chaplain to the General Hospital of Montreal. In 1882 he came to Toronto as rector of St. Philip's Church, and in 1889 was appointed honorary canon of St. Alban's Cathedral.

He was elected rural dean of Toronto in 1893, holding that office four years. In 1905 he was made archdeacon of Simcoe and became archdeacon of York in 1907. In this year he was appointed secretary of the house of bishops of the General Synod of Canada. He was one of the Toronto delegates to the Pan-Anglican congress in London, Eng., last year. He is president of the Toronto branch of the Toronto Humane Society, and the Toronto branch of the Lord's Day Alliance.

Placing Village in Oxford Is Gerrymander Says MacKay.

DEBATE ON SPEECH ENDS

Leader of Opposition Rags Government on Score of Soo Corporation—Reaping Unearned Credit, He Says—Allan Studholme Wants Promises About Technical Education Carried Out.

Toronto, Feb. 20.—Hon. A. G. MacKay attacked the Government in the Legislature yesterday for another piece of gerrymandering in attaching the new village of Tavistock to Oxford County instead of South Perth, to which, he said, it naturally belongs. The population belonged, 633 to Perth and 408 to Oxford; the assessment, $302,000 to Perth, and $164,000 to Oxford. A petition of 155 ratepayers asked to be united to Perth. One ratepayer petitioned for union with Oxford. The reason for attaching it to Oxford was to weaken the vote of Valentine Stock, who defeated Hon. Nelson Monteith in South Perth, said Mr. MacKay.

The Premier said he hoped he would not have to prick many more bubbles of this description. Mr. Stock had desired to have his residence brought into Perth County. The Perth Council, which created Tavistock, voted 8 to 8 on the motion to join it to the county. Oxford was unanimous in desiring it, and the Government placed it there.

The address in reply to the speech from the throne was agreed to.

Allan Studholme resumed the debate on the address with a forty minute speech. He found little in the bill of fare, as he designated the speech from the throne. He called attention to the splendid technical school now being built at Halifax and taunted the Ontario Government on their backwardness. He was disappointed in not finding a technical school at Hamilton provided for after the speeches made by the Premier and other Ministers. (Opposition applause.)

Hon. A. G. MacKay disagreed with Hearst on his views of the Government's dealing with the Soo corporation. He was unable to follow him in the remarkable elasticity of his mental action. When the Soo works were on the point of closing down and the assistance of the Government was needed, the Conservative Opposition objected, and now Mr. Hearst wanted to give them credit for what had been done.

After repeating his views on making an annual grant to Toronto University, Mr. MacKay turned to law reform. He hoped the bill would start from the standpoint of the people, and while approving the removal of appeals, he thought cutting out the present mode of paying lawyers would do more than any other one thing. By doing away with the bill of costs and permitting a lawyer to charge a lump sum the habit of raising side-stepping motions would be curbed.

Mr. MacKay in the course of an hour's speech repeated former arguments, regarding the proceedings by which after arbitration the O'Brien Mine was leased, the signing of the C.N.R. mortgage by Hon. Mr. Matheson seventeen months after it had been left by the Ross Government; civil service reform, and the removing of licenses from party control.

Premier Whitney, rising to reply, welcomed the new members to the Legislature. He declared that Mr. McEwring was not in accord with Mr. MacKay with respect to the university. That institution had 3,700 students, 60 per cent. of whom were sons of farmers and no party dare to obstruct the progress of the institution.

If a brass band was sent through the province no excitement could be raised about railway taxation. Mr. McEwing would become a discredited public man, said the Premier, if he did not substantiate his imputations against the honor of some of the license inspectors.

With respect to the Canadian Northern guarantee the agreement for a mortgage made by the Ross Government was the same thing as the mortgage, and two or three millions had been spent under the agreement.

First readings were given to the following bills: To amend the Municipal Act—Hon. Mr. Whitney; Respecting investments by trustees—Hon. Mr. Foy; respecting the action for seduction—Hon. Mr. Foy; respecting Miller—Hon. Mr. Foy.

Strait in Dispute.

Ottawa, Feb. 20.—The question of the Canadian ownership of Hecate strait and the Dixon entrance is one which has not yet been settled. It must be determined by mutual agreement or by arbitration. A prominent Ottawa official who has carefully studied the question said yesterday that it is one of the points which might very well go to The Hague convention. The question has some importance in connection with the determination of fishery rights on the west coast.

Royal Sugar Commission.

London, Feb. 20.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Addressing the West India Club, Lord Crewe stated that the steadying of the sugar trade was due to the policy of the Canadian Government. He had been exchanging views with the Dominion Government on the subject, with the result that a joint royal commission would be appointed to enquire into the possibility of the situation.

SMALLPOX AT PORT HOPE.

Attempt to Conceal Disease Has Disastrous Result.

Port Hope, Feb. 20.—Port Hope and surrounding district has been for some time in the grip of a smallpox epidemic, and that the local Board of Health and the physicians of the town have been neglectful in the handling of the trouble is an opinion heard on all sides.

When the disease first made its appearance some months ago, instead of the patients being isolated and one physician delegated to confine his entire attention to such cases, each local physician undertook to attend to his own patients. It is no whispered story that considerable political jealousy exists among the medical fraternity of Port Hope over a recent change in the appointment of a new medical advisor to Trinity school, and so each medical practitioner refuses to give up smallpox cases amongst his patients, except when eventually forced to do so by the progress of the disease.

Certain doctors, it is stated, deliberately walked from houses where they were in attendance upon the smallpox patients, to give medical attention to other patients.

In Port Hope town, two hotels and many private houses are under quarantine—in fact, up to the present no less than 30 cases have been reported, in spite of denials of town officials, who assign as their reason for denying the existence of so many cases a desire to save the town all the expense possible.

The citizens of the town forced the local board's hand, public meetings being called in order to do so, although the report of the local Board of Health officer tended to minimize the seriousness of the situation.

Compulsory vaccination and houses quarantined have been the local measures employed. One constable was assigned to watch all the houses, and during his absence the inmates were free to go and come as they pleased. No attempts has been made to isolate patients. A provincial official is absolutely necessary to look over the situation in this district.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

An imperial edict issued yesterday brings into existence a naval department for China.

Mrs. Hetty Green for half an hour yesterday cross-examined Mr. Wilks, her would-be son-in-law. She explained that she wanted to make no mistake and that she wants to see her daughter happy.

Mrs. Charles Rounds and Mr. Jas. Rouse of Welland have had a unique matrimonial experience. At Bridgeburg, Ont., this week they embarked on the troubled sea of matrimony for the second time together.

With a rude hole in the sand cut for his final resting, and a piece of sacking for his shroud, the remains of a man are buried at Pearl River. The mangled corpse was found on the track literally cut to pieces and was interred by section hands.

Another devotee of the long-distance walking craze has reached Port Arthur en route east. According to his story he has already covered the distance from Revelstoke, B.C., and will make Hamilton, Ont., his destination. His name is Charles Anderson.

In short, nervousness and fear betrayed. Whence came it? What did it mean? If it meant anything, could Lepage turn that thing to account? The king's favorite attendant seems favorite with Countess Elmsberg. For Lepage, too, the time might be very short. Herwould not injure the boy, as the angry mother had believed, or at least suggested, but, without question of that, there was no harm in a man's looking out for himself, or if there were Lepage's penchant in thinking that the countess and the general were not fit pressure to touch a highly exacting gospel.

Lepage concluded that he had something to sell. His wares were a suspicion and a fact. Selling the suspicion wronged nobody. He would give no warranty with it—caveat emptor. Selling the fact was disobedience to the king, his master. "Disobedience, yes; injury, no," said Lepage, with a bit of casuistry. Besides, the king, too, had scolded him.

Moreover, the Prince of Slavna had always treated M. Emile Lepage with distinguished consideration. The Bourbon blood, no doubt, stretched out hands to la belle France in M. Lepage's person.

Something to sell! Who was his buyer? Whose interest could be won by his suspicion, whose friendship bought with his fact? The ultimate buyer was plain enough, but Lepage could not go to Prasiok, and he did not approve of correspondence, especially with Colonel Stafnitz in practical control of the household. He sought a go-between and a personal interview. At least he could take a walk. The servants were not prisoners. Even conspirators must stop somewhere on pain of doing their own cooking and the rest. At a quarter past 8 in the evening, having given the king his dinner and made him comfortable for the next two hours, Lepage sallied forth and took the road to Slavna. He was very carefully dressed, wore a flower in his buttonhole and had dropped a discreet hint about a lady in conversation with his peers. If ladies often demand excuses they may furnish them too. Present seriousness invoked aid from bygone frivolity.

At 10 o'clock he returned, still most spruce and orderly and with a well satisfied air about him. He had found a purchaser for his suspicion and his fact. His pocket was the better lined, and he had received flattering expressions of gratitude and assurances of favor. He felt that he had raised a buttress against future assaults of fortune. He entered the king's dressing room in his usual noiseless and unobtrusive manner. He was not aware that General Stenovics had quitted it just a quarter of an hour before, bearing in his hand a document which he had submitted for his majesty's signature. The king had signed it and indorsed the cover "Urgent."

"Ah, Lepage, where have you been?" asked the king.

"Just to get a little air and drink a glass at the Golden Lion."

"You look gayer than that!" smiled the king. Evidently his anger had passed. Perhaps he wished to show as much to an old servant whom he liked and valued.

Conscience stricken, or so appearing, Lepage tore the flower from his coat. "I beg your majesty's pardon. I ought to have removed it before entering your majesty's presence, but I was told you wished to retire at once, sir, so I hurried here immediately."

Lepage tore the flower from his coat.

The king gave a weary yawn. "Yes, I'll go to bed at once, Lepage, and let me sleep as long as I can. This fag end of life isn't very amusing." He passed his hand wearily over his brow. "My head aches. Isn't the room very close, Lepage? Open the window."

"It has begun to rain, sir."

"Never mind. Let's have the rain too. At least it's fresh."

Lepage opened a window which looked over the Krath. The king rose. Lepage hastened to offer his arm, which his majesty accepted. They went together to the window. A sudden storm had gathered. Rain was pelting down in big drops.

"It looks like being a rough night," remarked the king.

"I'm afraid it does, sir," Lepage agreed.

"We're lucky to be going to our beds."

"Very, sir," answered Lepage, wondering whose opposite fate his majesty was pitying.

"I shouldn't care, even if I were a young man and a sound one, to ride to Prasiok tonight."

"To Prasiok, sir?" There was surprise in Lepage's voice. He could not help it. Luckily it sounded quite natural to the king. It was certainly not a night to ride five and twenty miles and into the hills unless your business was very urgent.

"Yes, to Prasiok. I've had my breath of air. You can shut the window, Lepage."

The king returned to the fireplace and stood warming himself. Lepage closed the window, drew the curtains and came to the middle of the room, where he stood in respectful readiness, and underneath that a very lively curiosity.

"Yes," said the king slowly, "Captain Markart goes to Prasiok tonight with a dispatch for his royal highness, you know. Business, Lepage, urgent business! Everything must yield to that." The king enunciated this virtuous maxim as though it had been the rule of his life. "No time to lose, Lepage, so the captain goes tonight, but I'm afraid he'll have a rough ride—very rough."

"I'm afraid so, sir," said Lepage, and added strictly in his thoughts, "And so will M. Zerkovitch!"

Captain Markart was entirely of his majesty's opinion as he set out on his journey to Prasiok. His ride would be rough, dark and solitary—the last by Stenovics' orders. Markart was not afraid. He was well armed, but he expected to be very bored and knew that he would be very wet by the time he reached the castle. He breathed a fervent curse on the necessities of state, of which the minister had informed him, as he buttoned up his heavy cavalry overcoat and rode across the bridge on to the main road on the right bank an hour before midnight.

Going was very heavy; so was the rain; so was the darkness. He and his horse made a blurred, laboring shape on the murky face of night. But his orders were to hasten, and he pushed on at a sharp trot and soon covered his first stage, the five miles to the old wooden bridge, where the road leaves the course of the Krath, is carried over the river and strikes northeast toward the hills.

At this point he received the first intimation that his journey was not to be so solitary as he had supposed. When he was halfway across the bridge he heard what sounded like an echo of the beat of his horse's hoofs on the timbers behind him. The thing seemed odd. He halted a moment to listen. The sound of his horse's hoofs stopped, but the echo went on. It was no echo, then. He was not the only traveler that way! He pricked his horse with the spur. Regaining the road, he heard the timbers of the bridge still sounding. He touched his horse again and went forward briskly. He had no reason to associate his fellow traveler's errand with his own, but he was sure that when General Stenovics ordered dispatch he would not be pleased to learn that his messenger had been passed by another wayfarer on the road.

But the stranger, too, was in a hurry, it seemed. Markart could not shake him off. On the contrary, he drew nearer. The road was still broad and good. Markart tried a canter. The stranger broke into a canter. "At any rate, it makes for good time," thought Markart, smiling uneasily. In fact, the two found themselves drawn into a sort of race. On they went, covering the miles at a quick, sustained trot, exhilarating to the men, but rather a strain on their horses. Both were well mounted. Markart wondered who the stranger with such a good horse was. He turned his head, but could see only the same sort of blur as he himself made. Part of the blur, however, seemed of a lighter color than his dark overcoat and bay horse produced.

Markart's horse pecked. His rider awoke to the fact that he was pounding his mount without doing much good to himself. He would see whether the unknown meant to pass him or was content to keep on equal terms. His pace fell to a gentle trot—so did the stranger's. Markart walked his horse for half a mile—so did the stranger. Thenceforward they went easily, each keeping his position till Markart came to where the road forked—on the right [illegible] on the left [illegible]. Markart knew none and waited. He might just as well see where the stranger was going.

The stranger came up, and Markart started violently. The lighter tinge of the blur was explained. The stranger rode a white horse. It flashed on Markart that the prince rode a white charger and that the animal had been in Slavna the day before. He had seen it being exercised. He peered into the darkness, trying to see the man's face. The effort was of no avail. The stranger came to a stand beside him, and for a few moments neither moved. Then the stranger turned his horse's head to the left. He was for Prasiok or Volsani, then! Markart followed his example. He knew why he did not speak to the stranger, but he was wondering why on earth the stranger did not speak to him. He went on wondering till it occurred to him that perhaps the stranger was in exactly the same state of mind.

There was no question of cantering or even of trotting now. The road rose steeply. It was loose and foundrous from heavy rain. Great stones lay about, dangerous traps for a careless rider. The horses labored. At the same moment, with the same instinct, Markart and the stranger dismounted. The next three miles were done on foot, and there before them in deeper black rose the gate tower of the castle of Prasiok. The stranger had fallen a little behind again. Now he drew level. They were almost opposite the castle.

A dog barked from the stables. Another answered from the castle. Two more took up the tune from the stables. The castle guardian redoubled his responsive efforts. A man came running out from the stables with a lantern. A light flashed in the doorway of the castle. Both Markart and the stranger came to a standstill. The man with the lantern raised it in the air to see the faces of the travelers.

They saw each other's faces too. The first result was to send them into a fit of laughter—a relief from tension, a recognition of the absurdity into which their diplomatic caution had led them.

"By the powers, Captain Markart!"

"M. Zerkovitch, by heaven!"

They laughed again.

"Ah, and we might have had a pleasant ride together!"

"I should have rejoiced in the solace of your conversation!"

But neither asked the other why he had behaved in such a ridiculous manner.

"And our destination is the same!" asked Zerkovitch. "You stop here at the castle?"

"Yes, yes, M. Zerkovitch! And you?"

"Yes, captain, yes. My journey ends at the castle."

The men led away their horses, which sorely needed tending, and they mounted the wooden causeway side by side, both feeling foolish, yet sure they had done right. In the doorway stood Peter Vassip with his lantern.

"Your business, gentlemen?" he said. It was between 2 and 3 in the morning.

They looked at each other. Zerkovitch was quicker, and, with a courteous gesture, invited his companion to take precedence.

"Private and urgent, with his royal highness."

"So is mine, Peter," said Zerkovitch.

Markart's humor was touched again. He began to laugh. Zerkovitch laughed, too, but there was a touch of excitement and nervousness in his mirth.

"His royal highness went to bed an hour ago," said Peter Vassip.

"I'm afraid you must rouse him. My business is immediate," said Markart. "And I suppose yours is, too, M. Zerkovitch?" he added jokingly.

"That it is," said Zerkovitch.

"I'll rouse the prince. Will you follow me, gentlemen?"

Peter closed and barred the gate, and they followed him through the courtyard. A couple of sentries were pacing it. For the rest all was still. Peter led them into a small room where a fire was burning and left them together. Side by side they stood close to the fire. Each flung away his coat and tried to dry his boots and breeches at the comforting blaze.

The prince read his letter.

"We must keep this story a secret or we shall be laughed at by all Slavna, M. Zerkovitch."

Zerkovitch gave him a sharp glance. "I should think you would report your discreet conduct to your superiors, captain. Orders are orders, secrecy is secrecy, even though it turns out that there was no need for it."

Markart was about to reply with a joke when the prince entered. He greeted both cordially, showing, of course, in Markart's presence no surprise at Zerkovitch's arrival.

"There will be rooms and food and wine ready for you, gentlemen, in a few minutes. Captain Markart, you must rest here for tonight, for your horse's sake as well as your own. I suppose your business will wait till the morning?"

"My orders were to lose not a moment in communicating it to you, sir."

"Very well. You're from his majesty?"

"Yes, sir."

"The king comes first—and I daresay your affair will wait, Zerkovitch?"

Zerkovitch protested with an eagerness by no means discreet in the presence of a third party, an aid-de-camp to Stenovics. "No, sir; no, it can't wait an"—

The prince interrupted. "Nonsense, man, nonsense! Now go to your room. I'll come in and bid you 'Good night.'" He pushed his overzealous friend from the room, calling to Peter Vassip to guide him to the apartment he was to occupy. Then he came back to Markart. "Now, captain!"

Markart took out his letter and presented it, with a salute. "Sit down while I read it," said the prince, seating himself at the table.

The prince read his letter and sat playing with it in his fingers for half a minute or so. Then a thought seemed to strike him. "Heavens, I never told Volsani. Markart, fetch him and wake him. You're wet, and Zerkovitch is terribly liable to take cold." He jumped up. "Excuse me. We have no bells in this old place, you know." He ran out of the room, closing the door behind him.

Markart sprang to the door. He did not dare to open it, but he listened to the prince's footsteps. They sounded to the left—one, two, three, four, five, six paces. They stopped. A door opened and shut. Markart made a mental note and went back to the fire, smiling. He thought that idea of his really would please General Stenovics.

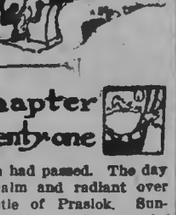
In three minutes the prince returned. "I did Peter injustice. Zerkovitch's fire is all right," he said, "and there's a good one in your room, too, he tells me. And now, Captain Markart, to our business. You know the contents of the letter you carried?"

"Yes, sir. They were communicated to me in view of their urgency and in case of accident to the letter."

"As a matter of form, repeat the gist to me."

"General Stenovics has to inform your royal highness on the king's behalf that his majesty sees no need of a personal interview, as his mind is irrevocably fixed, and he orders your royal highness to set out for Germany within three days from the receipt of this letter. No pretext is to delay your royal highness' departure."

"Perfectly correct, captain. Tomorrow I shall give you an answer addressed directly to the king, but I wish now to give you a message to General Stenovics. I shall ask the king for an audience. Unless he appoints a time within two days I shall conclude that he has not had the letter or, pray mark this, has not enjoyed an opportunity of considering it independently. General Stenovics must consider what a responsibility he undertakes if he advises the king to refuse to see his son. I shall await his majesty's answer here. That is the message. You understand?"



Markart listened to the prince's footsteps.

"Perfectly, sir."

"Just repeat it. The terms are important."

Markart obeyed. The prince nodded his head. "You shall have the letter for the king early in the morning. Now for bed! I'll show you to your room."

They went out and turned to the left. Markart counted their paces. At six paces they came to a door and passed it. Four farther on the prince ushered him into the room where he was to sleep. It was evident that the prince had made personal inspection of the state of M. Zerkovitch's fire!

"Good night, captain. By the way, the king continues well?"

"Dr. Natcheff says, sir, that he doesn't think his majesty was ever better in his life."

The prince looked at him for just a moment, with a reflective smile. "Ah, and a trustworthy man, Natcheff! Good night!"

Markart did not see much reason to think that the question, the look, the smile and the comment had any significance, but there would be no harm in submitting the point to General Stenovics. Pondering over this, he forgot to count the prince's paces this time. If he had counted the sum would have been just four. M. Zerkovitch's fire needed another royal inspection. It needed it almost till the break of day.

"The king's life hangs by a hair and your crown by a thread." That was the warning which Lepage had given and Zerkovitch had carried through the night.

Chapter Twenty-one

THE storm had passed. The day broke calm and radiant over the castle of Prasiok. Sunshine played caressingly on the lake and on the hills.

Markart had breakfasted and paid a visit to his horse. He wanted to be off by 9 o'clock and waited only for the prince's letter. He was returning from the stables, sniffing the morning air with a most vivid enjoyment of the change of weather, when he saw Sophy coming along the road. She had been for a walk. Her eyes and cheeks glowed with exhilaration. She wore her sheepskin tunic, her sheepskin cap with its red cockade and her short blue skirt over high boots. She walked as though on the clouds of heaven, a wonderful lightness in her tread. The red star signaled the exaltation of her spirit. The glad sound of the trumpet rang in her heart.

Her cordial greeting to Markart was spiced with raillery, to which he responded as well as his ignorance allowed. He was uncertain how much she knew of the real situation. But if his tongue was embarrassed his eyes spoke freely. He could not keep them from her face. To him she seemed a queen of life and joy that glorious morning.

"You've recovered from your fright?" she asked. "Poor M. Zerkovitch is still sleeping his off, I suppose! Oh, the story's all over the castle!"

"It'll be all over the country soon," said Markart, with a rueful smile.

"Well, after all, M. Zerkovitch is a journalist, and journalists don't spare even themselves, you know. And you're not a reticent person, are you? Don't you remember all the information you gave me once?"

"Ah, on the terrace of the Hotel de Paris! Much has happened since then, baroness."

"Much always happens if you keep your eyes open," said Sophy.

Only a Common Cold,

BUT IT BECOMES A SERIOUS MATTER IF NEGLECTED.

Pneumonia, Bronchitis, Asthma, Catarrh or Consumption is the result. Get rid of it at once by taking Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

Obstinate coughs yield to its grateful soothing action, and in the racking, persistent cough, often present in Consumptive cases, it gives prompt and sure relief. In Asthma and Bronchitis it is a successful remedy, rendering breathing easy and natural, enabling the sufferer to enjoy refreshing sleep and often affecting a permanent cure.

Mrs. Henry Smallpiece, Brudenell, Ont., writes:—"I was always subject to a cough and could get nothing to relieve me until I saw an advertisement of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup and thought I would try a bottle, and when I had taken a few doses I found I was getting relief, and when I had finished it I was cured. I procured a bottle for my baby, who had a cough, and a few doses cured him. I would advise anyone having a cough, to give Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup a trial and I am sure they will never be without it."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup 25 cts. per bottle at all dealers. Put up in yellow wrapper, and three pine trees the trade mark. Refuse substitutes. There is only one Norway Pine Syrup and that one is "Dr. Wood's."

EARTHQUAKES IN BRITAIN.

United Kingdom Has Suffered From Many Bad Treats.

The appalling death-roll in the Messina (Italy) earthquake is reported to be about 120,000 lives. It is remarkable that England invariably feels the ebb, as it were, of any great European volcanic shock. Of course, the Messina catastrophe is not the greatest in the world's history. In 1703 there was an earthquake at Yeddo which caused the loss of 190,000 lives. Altogether over a million lives have been lost by earthquakes in various parts of the world during the past hundred years.

Happily, earthquakes but seldom visit the British Isles, and when they do call to wake up the Britons they usually put on their mildest aspect. Even in those favored isles, however, they have had earthquakes which have been responsible for the loss of thousands of lives.

In 1884 an earthquake took place, the most serious that has occurred in the country for four centuries. It originated in the neighborhood of Colchester, and the disturbance made itself felt over a wide area. The results were of a very destructive character in Colchester and the immediate neighborhood. Several church spires were injured, and the total damage was estimated at $100,000 for which a public subscription was raised.

A few years previously there were several severe shocks felt in the Midlands and on the South coast, which were attended, fortunately, with little damage. One of these earthquake shocks, which took place in 1863, extended from Milford Haven to Burton-on-Trent, and from the Mersey to Plymouth.

Eleven years earlier a shock was felt in Dublin which, curiously enough, extended in circle after circle until it embraced the whole of Gloucestershire.

Prof. Milne, who is Britain's greatest authority on earthquakes, says that out of 110 shocks recorded in England thirty-one originated in Wales, fourteen on the borders of Yorkshire and Derbyshire, and five or six in Cumberland.

The most favored resort of earthquakes in Great Britain, however, appears to be the district of Comrie, in Perthshire, where in one winter no fewer than 140 earthquakes were experienced. Perhaps the most notable shock in this district was the one which occurred on Aug. 13, 1816, when earth tremors were felt all over the north of Scotland, causing the utmost terror and consternation. Women were seen in the streets, calling out that their children had been killed in their arms. The walls of many houses were rent from top to bottom, and one man declared that he was pitched about in his bed for a full five minutes as he had never been thrown about at sea.

London has not altogether escaped the ravages of earthquakes. In February and March of 1750, Londoners were startled out of their wits by a terrific shock. The people were so alarmed that thousands spent the nights parading the streets in state of frantic terror, and Hyde Park was crowded with campers-out, the more daring whiling away the hours by playing cards by candle-light.

Criminal Exiles In Fiji.

Reference was made throughout the British press a few weeks ago to the murder of a family named Greig by natives of the New Hebrides at Santo. The last mail from Fiji brings news that four of the murderers have been brought to Suva by the French warship Kersaint to serve sentences of deportation passed on them by the Dual Commission. They were in charge of a petty officer of the British warship Prometheus, and from his account of the pursuit of the murderers, it appears that though only four out of a large number of guilty tribesmen were taken, there was a good deal of bloodshed during the pursuit. A small body of men from the Prometheus and a number of native police set out to track down the fugitives. The next day a body of natives was seen on the ridge of a hill, and orders were given to fire on them. In a deserted camp some plunder from Greig's store was found. Standard of Empire.

Words Cheaper Than Stones.

The welcome announcement that Mr. George Meredith is so far recovered from his recent illness as to be able to take open-air exercise in his donkey chaise at Box Hill reminds one that the famous novelist is nearly eighty-one years of age. It is some years ago now since Mr. Meredith took up his residence at Box Hill, where he built for himself a small but comfortable house. And he is not a little proud of his residence, although it does not always impress visitors, judging from the following story. He was visited one day by a lady, and, with pride, he showed her over the place. After their tour of inspection, the visitor turned to her host and, with a disappointed expression, said: "In your books, Mr. Meredith, you describe huge castles and baronial halls, but you build quite a small house for yourself. Why is it?" "Well," replied the author, convincingly, "the reason is because words are cheaper than stones."

A Long Sentence.

The prize for the longest sentence ever written may fairly be awarded to the elder Dumas, who probably holds a further record for fertility of production. In the seventh of the twenty-nine volumes which compose the "Impressions de Voyage," there is a sentence describing Benvenuto Cellini, which fills three pages, or 103 lines, averaging forty-five letters apiece. The sentence is broken by 68 commas and 60 semi-colons, but as it contains 195 verbs and 122 proper names the reader is somewhat bewildered before the end is reached.

An Inquisitive M.P.

Among the most persistent questioners of the Government in the House of Commons is J. B. Lonsdale, the member for Mid Armagh, who addressed no fewer than 370 questions to Ministers during the session just ended. Last year Mr. Lonsdale established a record with 331 questions.

SOME LOVE MATCHES.

Second Marriage of Sir Geo. Doughty Was a Romantic One.

Sir George Doughty, M.P., who is firmly convinced that the cure for unemployment and the opportunity for securing equal treatment in all the foreign markets of the world is to be found in Tariff Reform, can claim that distinction of having represented Great Grimsby in Parliament both as a Liberal and a Liberal-Unionist. Sir George received his knighthood four years ago, and about this time his first wife died. His second marriage came to pass in a somewhat unexpected and romantic way. Miss Eugenie Stone of Melbourne, a lady of many gifts, came to England in the party accompanying the Prime Minister of Australia for the Colonial Conference. Sir George met Miss Stone at one of the many entertainments given in honor of the visit. He took her in to dinner, met her again, and proposed at the earliest moment.

This recalls the fact that within a year or two of the marriage of Sir George several other well-known men, whose ages ranged between 40 and 50, led brides to the altar, whom they met under somewhat romantic circumstances. Gen. Douglas Haig met and won his wife when he was a guest of the King at Windsor for Ascot week. At the time Miss Doris Vivian was a Maid of Honor to the Queen. Sir Bourchier Wrey met Miss Jessie Fraser for the first time on a Friday, and was her accepted husband on the following Sunday. Captain Godfrey Faussett, Equerry-in-Ordinary to the Prince of Wales, made the acquaintance of Miss Eugenie Dudley Ward when both were the guests of Lord and Lady Stradbroke at Henham, and proposed to her after a keenly-contested game of billiards.

Drama to Help.

The luck of the Du Mauriers is likely to become proverbial. George Du Maurier made an unexpected fortune from "Trilby."

It is now known that his son, Major Guy Du Maurier, of the Royal Fusiliers, is the author of the sensational play "An Englishman's Home," which is now being produced at the Wyndham's Theatre, London, and which depicts an invasion of England by a foreign army.

All the seats of this theatre have been booked until the middle of March and the management is preparing to run the play at two theatres in London simultaneously, something no play has achieved within the memory of a generation. Several companies will be sent to the provinces.

The growing party of advocates of conscription consider it a remarkable object lesson in their favor and it is proposed to station recruiting offices for volunteers at the theatres where the play is put on.

Romance of the Peerage.

A romance of the British peerage has just been closed by the death of Lady Robert Montagu. This lady, whose maiden name was Miss Wade, began life in the humble role of a housemaid. She was exceedingly attractive in appearance, and her good looks drew the attention of Lord Robert Montagu, who was living hard by the residence in which Miss Wade was employed. Lord Robert, having fallen in love with the beautiful housemaid, duly married her, and the Miss Wade that was thereupon became related to some of the most distinguished members of the English peerage, Lord Robert having been the son of the sixth Duke of Manchester.

THE STENOGRAPHER'S SAINT.

Sir Isaac Pitman Possessed a Remarkable Memory.

"One of the greatest of modern benefactors to commercial life." So the late Sir Isaac Pitman was once described, and the eulogy was well deserved. Shorthand to-day stands as one of the most valuable assets of business life, and there are hundreds of thousands of young men and women throughout the world who, at the present time, owe their position and prosperity in life to the man who invented phonography, and thus opened up for them a vast field of employment.

To them the story of "The Life of Sir Isaac Pitman," told by Mr. Alfred Baker, and published at 7s. 6d. by the firm which Sir Isaac founded years ago at Amen Corner, should prove of special interest and value. It tells an absorbing story of the invention of shorthand, and how for nearly twenty years Sir Isaac worked at his famous system, by night as well as by day. During these years he labored from six in the morning until ten at night, spending all his profit except a bare living wage in making phonography one of the most perfect systems of shorthand ever invented.

Isaac Pitman was always a strenuous worker. When he started life, at a very early age, as a clerk in a cloth factory, he found time for systematic study, although the hours were from six in the morning until six at night. He and his brother Jacob rose at four each morning, and devoted nearly two hours to their books. They then left home to begin the duties of the day, and in the evening gave one or two more hours to study.

When he was twelve years of age Pitman commenced a system of memory training, and in his morning walks committed to memory the first fourteen chapters of Proverbs. He would not undertake a fresh chapter until he had repeated the preceding one without hesitation. Then at sixteen he carefully read through Walker's Dictionary, with the double object of extending his knowledge of words and of correcting his errors in orthography.

Here is another example of his amazing working powers. When he was twenty-two years of age, Pitman came across Bagster's Comprehensive Bible and discovered some fifteen inaccuracies in the references. Forthwith he wrote to that publisher:

"I have made it my custom for two or three years in my morning and evening reading of Scripture to refer to every parallel place, in some measure appreciating the value of the plan. If you would like to place a copy of your Bible under my care I would give you the benefit of the corrections and mistakes which I might discover."

There were 500,000 references in this Bible, and the self-imposed task occupier him three years. But though he refused any monetary reward, he had the satisfaction of finding an error on every page and a friendly publisher who helped him later when he wanted to publish his shorthand books.

A Great Composer's Confession.

Sir F. Tosti, the famous composer, who was recently invested as a Knight Commander of the Royal Victorian Order, tells an interesting story concerning "For Ever," his first English song. "It was written," he says, "during a visit to London in 1876. I was at the house of Mrs. Singleton ('Violet Eane') one evening in company with several of her musical friends, when she showed us some verses. On reading them we all agreed to set them to music, Mrs. Singleton deciding which should be published. Mine was chosen. You may remember how it sprang into success. Grossmith first sang it in a comedietta at the Gaiety Theatre, and in consequence of this circumstance it reached the ear of Santley, to whom its success is, of course, chiefly due."

Secretary For India.

Here is a pen picture of Lord Morley, whose Indian reform scheme has aroused such interest. Time, six o'clock in the evening; scene, Waterloo Station. Seated on one of the seats of the platform from which the local Wimbledon trains start is a man whose appearance seems to stamp him as an elderly solicitor's clerk—and a none to prosperous one, judging from personal appearance. His silk hat sadly needs ironing, and his overcoat, with collar half-turned up and pockets bulging with papers, strikes one as shabby and ill-fitting. His grey hair straggles over his white collar at the back of his neck, and his umbrella is carelessly rolled. In a word, his appearance is that of a man absolutely indifferent to personal appearance. He sits there oblivious of everything—thinking.

A Costly Promise.

An amusing little story is being told of Miss Lillah McCarthy, the well-known actress and wife of Mr. Granville Barker. When she was ten years old her father, wishing to train her memory, bribed her with a sovereign to learn the second book of "Paradise Lost." So rapidly did she commit the words to memory that he again offered her 10s. to learn "Romeo and Juliet," which was no light undertaking. Success again followed, and he repeated the offer with "Macbeth." So quickly did Miss Lillah rattle off the lines that her father remarked: "It is becoming rather expensive. Next time you shall have sixpence."

Greatest Authority on Explosives.

The recent carriage accident to Lady Noble recalls the fact that her husband, Sir Andrew Noble, is perhaps the greatest living authority on explosives, and was secretary of the Rifled Cannon Committee, which was constituted at the close of the Crimean War. Native and foreign distinctions have been showered upon him since those days, and he received the royal medal of the Royal Society nearly 30 years ago. He is the only man in Newcastle—and, we believe, in Northumberland—with a tennis court of his own.

His Meal Ticket.

"Is that man you just bowed to your publisher?" asked the friend.

"Oh, no," replied the struggling poet; "that's my pawnbroker"—Detroit Tribune.

A CHRISTMAS PAY-SHEET.

Ten Pounds a Week Considered Good Money In 1867.

An old pay-sheet of the bygone Queen's Theatre, London, England, came to light recently. It was for Christmas week, 1867, and it records the salaries then paid to a number of actors and actresses whose names commanded big money thereafter. The star member of the company in 1867 was J. L. Toole. He drew $54 a week for grimacing in a one-act farce, "The Birthplace of Podgers."

John Ryder, the old Shakespearean actor and stage-manager, got $37, while Ellen Terry and Irving, as Katharina and Petruchio, received $25 and $13.50 respectively, and thought themselves lucky.

Charles Wyndham's wage was $15. Lionel Brough existed on $10 a week, and Miss Heath (the wife of Wilson Barrett) played a small part at the rate of $5 per week.

Actors then learned their trade in the hard school of impecuniosity; they couldn't afford to take holidays, "cut a dash," or overfeed themselves. With no social functions to waste their time over, they had a constant incentive to work in the hope of climbing to a summit of popularity, where $50 a week awaited them.

Acid Drops For Miss Ellaline Terriss.

The writer heard a rather good story the other day concerning Miss Ellaline Terriss, who, together with her husband, Mr. Seymour Hicks, is appearing for the first time upon the variety stage in a sketch by Mr. Paul Rubens, entitled "The Fly-by-Night," at the Palace Theatre, London, England. It was during the run of "Bluebell in Fairyland" at the Vaudeville, when Miss Terriss was capturing the heart of every youngster who went to see her delightful creation of a modern Cinderella, that a poorly-dressed boy went round to the stage door one day and asked to see the popular actress. But the stage doorkeeper was obliged to refuse the request, on which the little fellow handed him a packet and asked that it should be given to Miss Terriss. When the popular actress opened it she found that it contained three acid drops and a halfpenny, together with a little note saying how sorry the boy was for "dear little Bluebell." "It was one of the most pathetic incidents of my life," Miss Terriss remarked when telling the story.

LEADS CHARMED LIFE.

Alfred Pearse, the Artist, Has Had Many Narrow Escapes.

Alfred Pearse, the celebrated English black-and-white artist, has probably executed as many drawings as any other living artist. He has had over 7,000 published. He has without doubt met with more accidents than any one of them. In his earliest infancy, when he was being taken across the Channel by steamer, a sudden lurch jerked him out of his nurse's arms and sent him flying over the vessel's side. It was only the lucky intervention of a passenger, who caught him, that saved him from a watery grave. At the age of seven he was actually certified as dead by a doctor, whose verdict he disputed by an extraordinary recovery, and as a youth he had a narrow escape from an infuriated bull in Chilham Park.

As a young man he was seized by a madman who held him suspended over the well of a deep staircase, and on another occasion, when climbing at St. Moritz, he went careering down a slope towards a precipice with a 500-yards drop, and only managed to pull up with a few feet of the edge. When he accompanied the Prince and Princes of Wales on the royal colonial tour he was dangerously poisoned by the bite of a red spider.

While at sea in the Bight of Australia, he was informed as he lay in his bunk that there was no hope for the vessel, which was in a sinking condition. Mr. Pearse decided to stop where he was, and the next day, the ship having survived the storm, he was the only uninjured first-saloon passenger on board.

To give a brief summary of his chapter of accidents, which number over thirty, he has been nearly drowned three times, had concussion of the brain five times, thrown from top of omnibus four times, shot once, fallen down Beachy Head once, drugged once, certified as dead twice, between the train and platform once, injured by runaway horse once, run down by motor-car and nearly killed once, blind for two days, and has had shoulder out of joint, legs and right arm paralysed, and left eye forced out of socket. This does not by any means exhaust Mr. Pearse's list, and his doctors say that by the laws of medical science he ought to be dead long ago.

The EDISON PHONOGRAPH

Entertainment is the first requisite of hospitality

A guest either enjoys himself or is bored. The Edison Phonograph is an infallible ice-breaker. It brings people together, opens up conversation, paves the way to enjoyment, and in itself furnishes the entertainment for the evening.

Anyone can operate an Edison Phonograph. Anyone can buy one. The cost is small, and many dealers sell on the easy-payment plan. There is a long list of attractive selections from which to choose.

Edison Amberol Records

Mr. Edison has perfected a new invention for the Edison Phonograph—Amberol Records. These are four-minute Records, playing twice as long as the regular Edison Records, and can be played on any Edison Phonograph (except the Gem) by means of an attachment which any dealer can supply and which will not interfere with playing the Records you now have.

He was surprised at how the sores healed—"I took your New Method Treatment for a serious blood disease with which I had been inflicted for twelve years. I had consulted a score of physicians, taken all kinds of blood medicine, visited Hot Springs and other mineral water resorts, but only got temporary relief. They would help me for a time, but after discontinuing the medicines the symptoms would break out again—running sores, blotches, rheumatic pains, looseness of the hair, swellings of the glands, palms of the hands scaling, itchiness of the skin, dyspepsia, stomach, etc. I had given up in despair when a friend advised me to consult you, as you had cured him of a similar disease 8 years ago. I had no hope, but took his advice. In three weeks time the sores commenced to heal up and I became encouraged. I continued the New Method Treatment for four months and at the end of that time every symptom had disappeared. I was cured 7 years ago and no signs of any disease since. My boy, three years old, is sound and healthy. I certainly can recommend your treatment with all my heart. You can refer any person to me privately, but you can use this testimonial as you wish." W. True Detective Stories

THE LEAD-PENCIL CLEW

From the Note Book of Mrs. Mary E. Holland, Finger Print Expert

REPORTED BY HUGH C. WEIR

THE coil of circumstances can resist the blows of a sledgehammer—and it can be riddled with a pin. There is no evidence at once so unassailable and so invulnerable as that which the law terms circumstantial. The hands of a clock may send a man to the gallows or to freedom—and too late we find that the clock lied. The net of circumstances hopelessly entraps the innocent and as hopelessly prevents the conviction of the guilty. You ask me for my strangest example of the pranks of evidence—the evidence spun by Fate and a man's carelessness—and at once my memory goes back to a straggling village and the remarkable case of the rival dentists and the lead pencil clue.

The murdered man was literally hacked to pieces. The crime might have been that of a maniac. The victim had fallen downward to the floor, his hands still clenched in the agony of the last, vain fight for life. On his body they counted twenty-three wounds, any one of which might have been fatal—long, ragged slashes of a powerful knife, which had traced its crimson line across the throat and then torn its way through the chest. It was not a pleasant sight which the body of John Williams, dentist, presented when the villagers mustered courage to burst open the office door.

It was late afternoon and a ray of the yellow sun found its way squarely across the face of the dead man. He was young, and death seemed to increase rather than to diminish the lines of the youthful face. Subsequently it was found that he was in the prime of his latter twenties. Physically he was without a blemish, and the two overturned chairs in the office and the dark stream from a broken ink bottle showed that his strength had been exerted to its greatest capacity before the assassin's knife had stilled his struggles.

The weapo had disappeared, the door was locked and the murderer had escaped. Apparently, there was not the slightest clew. True, the windows of both the front and the back offices were open, but the former looked into the main street of the village, twenty feet below, with which there was absolutely no communication, and the latter looked into an alley, at first glance equally inaccessible. The assassin might have vanished into thin air, and already the suggestion of the supernatural was imprinting itself on the homely rural minds of the villagers.

Saw the Murder Done.

"Where's Clem Reynolds?" asked an authoritative voice from the centre of the group, and the town marshal who had put the question rose from his view of the dead man and glared at the white circle of faces at his back. A hesitating man at the rear, who was feverishly mopping his forehead with his handkerchief, stepped forward.

"What's wanted?" he rejoined, in a tone disposed to be surly.

With a wave of his hand and an impatient frown the marshal motioned back the increasing crowd and sat himself down ponderously in the one chair which remained erect.

"Tell me again how you happened to discover the crime," was the curt demand. "And, understand, tell me everything—everything."

There was a craning of necks as Reynolds restored his handkerchief to his pocket and shrugged his shoulders. He was editor and proprietor of The Weekly Bugle, the leading newspaper of the village, whose name for obvious reasons I am omitting, and the sense of his own dignity was returning to him. The building was divided into two stories, the lower of which was occupied by the office of The Bugle and the upper rented to Dr. Williams. That the editor should have been the first to find the murdered man was entirely natural.

"I have been having trouble with a bad tooth for some days," Reynolds began, "and this afternoon it became so much worse that I thought I would come up and have Dr. Williams take a look at it. When I tried the door I found it locked. This was odd, as I was positive the doctor was in and I had just raised my hand to knock when I heard the sound of a chair falling. Almost at the same moment I heard a man groan and then there was another crash.

"I was beginning to be frightened by this time. Who wouldn't be? As I stepped back I saw that the transom was open. The banister of the stairs is just under it, you know, and almost before I realized what I was doing I was balancing myself on top of it and looking into Williams' office." The editor paused with a swift glance around the crowd.

"Go on," said the marshal impatiently.

Reynolds recovered his composure with an effort. "If I live to be a hundred, gentlemen, I'll never forget it. Williams was doubled up on the floor where he is now with a great cut in his throat. On his stomach a man was kneeling with a knife in his hand. As I reached the transom he brought the knife down into the doctor's body twice. And then I slipped and made a noise and he looked up."

The editor paused again, and his voice was hoarse when he continued:—

"Of course, the man saw me, and for a moment seemed too frightened to move. We just stared into each other's eyes. I remember a great splash fell from the knife on his clothes, but he didn't seem to notice it. I think he was dazed. I dropped to the floor and dashed down those stairs in as blue a funk as a man ever was in. For a few minutes I don't know what I did. When I came to myself I was in the centre of my office with a cup of water in my hand."

"And the murderer?" put in the marshal, tersely. "Who was he?"

The editor shook his head.

"I don't know. Never saw him before—and if he had been in this town in the last ten years I would have known him. He was a total stranger to me"—— and he darted a grim glance toward the body in the corner—"he must have known Williams all right."

And so the case rested. And so it came to me. I was employed by a citizens' committee, headed by the Mayor. The murder, as might have been expected, made a State-wide sensation, and the residents determined to spare no expense in the effort to solve the mystery. Besides myself, representatives from two leading detective agencies were retained, and we were all soon at work in the village, which was stirred, I venture to say, as it had never been stirred before in all its history.

Seeking the Criminal.

We found the scene of the murder in a fairly undisturbed condition considering the circumstances of the crime, and our brisk search of the premises soon enabled us to eliminate at least one theory and add several others to our notebooks. At the outset it was apparent that whatever motive might exist, indu-enced the assassin, robbery was not a feature of the crime. The dead man's pockets were not disturbed and a small sum of money in the office had not been molested. A search of his desk and private papers showed absolutely nothing suspicious. Dr. Williams was apparently a country dentist, with a moderate practice and moderate ambition—the last man in the world with whom you would associate a mysterious enemy thirsting for his life.

We soon established the fact that he was one of the most popular men in the village, both from a social and business viewpoint. He was unmarried, but if we were to believe the village gossips he could have picked a wife almost where he wished. In a nutshell, he seemed to be one of the most favored residents of the vicinity. And, curiously enough, as it developed, it was in this very fact that we were to find our clew.

We had not long to search to establish the mode of escape which the assassin had used, in spite of the cloud of mystery which had first enveloped the affair. As I have said before, the office was divided into two rooms, the rear of which opened into a narrow alley. A short distance from the end window and within easy reach of a man's arm a heavy wire extended to the ground from an adjoining telegraph pole. An active person could have swung to the wire without difficulty and thus have reached the ground. That this plan entered the murderer's mind and that he made use of it were shown by stains reaching all the way to the alley below.

From this point I was confronted with a puzzling question. How could a stranger be aware of the existence of this convenient wire? It was possible, of course, in his desperate endeavor to escape from the building unnoticed, that his frenzied search might have revealed it, but I was dealing with probabilities, not possibilities. I returned to the scene of the murder with the query still puzzling me.

I have mentioned the indications of a desperate struggle which must have preceded the crime. It was not until we made a definite, systematic search of the office, however, that we were confronted with the most startling evidence of this fact. On the wall just above the point where the body sprawled we found a row of great, crimson hand prints. They were blurred and smudged, and some of them were little more than a shapeless blot, but there was no mistaking their grim significance. They were the outlines of a human hand, a grasping, clutching hand, that of a man falling against the wall, not once, but again and again, clawing the air each time to save himself. Within ten minutes I knew it was not the hand of the murdered dentist. That was small and slender. This was large and thick. The hand print on the wall was that of the assassin. Inspired by the discovery, I turned to a microscopic search of the office.

I maintain that there is never a crime committed in which the perpetrator does not leave behind some trace of his identity. It may not be and probably is not always discovered, and may be too fragmentary to be of practical service unless coupled with other points, but I do not believe that a person can occupy a room, especially under stress of emotion, without some clew to his personality and character. It was on this principle that I proceeded to explore the apartment with my lens.

In the end, however, the search seemed unavailing. I could discover only two articles in the neighborhood of the body which suggested the slightest connection with either of the principals in the tragedy. One was a soiled handkerchief. The other was a broken lead pencil.

To which of the two men did they belong? At a casual glance they might have been the property of either.

Two details struck me vividly in connection with the pencil. It was long and new and had only been whittled once. Toward the top was a straggling line of letters, which on examination shaped themselves into the legend "R. White, General Store."

The name was vaguely familiar, and then suddenly I realized that I had passed such a sign on my way up from the station. R. White was the leading merchant of the village and the pencil was probably one of an assortment distributed for advertising purposes.

Now, a country merchant doesn't give away even a lead pencil unless he is pretty thoroughly convinced it is going to do him some good. He must know who the favored customer is and whether or not it is worth while to spend two or three cents to retain his patronage. In a larger store I knew that it would be next to hopeless to endeavor to trace the broken pencil. In a village such as this—well, I determined to try the experiment at any rate.

Mr. White came from behind a stock of bright blue and red calicoes to meet me, rubbing his hands with a bland smile on his face.

"I believe you have pencils to give away for advertising purposes?" I began questioningly.

Instantly the smile faded and Mr. White began to stiffen.

"Well, we did have a few," he replied cautiously.

"Such as this?" I rejoined, extending the pencil I had found. The merchant nodded and then a quick look of suspicion sprang into his face.

"Where did you get this?" he asked.

"Wait a minute," I parried. "Tell me first how many of these you have given away."

The reply startled me.

"Just two," he answered slowly. "You see, I am holding them back for the Christmas season."

But I hardly heard his last sentence. Only two, and this was one of them! I almost held my breath as I waited for the answer to my next question.

"Was either of these pencils given to Dr. Williams?"

The merchant shook his head.

"No," he answered positively. "As it happens, I gave both of them away myself. The circumstances were somewhat peculiar and I remember the incident well. A small party of us were playing cards in my office. It was the day before the murder, I recall. When the man who was keeping tally reached for his pencil it was gone, and none of us was able to supply him with one. Suddenly I remembered my supply of advertising pencils and pushed back my chair.

"I'll get you a pencil in just a minute," I said, "and any of the others, too, who may wish one."

"Only one spoke up, however, and I remember distinctly that I drew two pencils out of the bundle and returned. One of the men put his in his pocket without sharpening it. He was in a hurry to catch a train and left soon afterward. The tallykeeper drew out his knife and got to work to his pencil and went on with his score.

"And this was the pencil you gave him?" I queried as calmly as possible. Mr. White looked into my eyes a moment without speaking.

"Yes," he answered finally, "it must be."

"Who was the scorekeeper?" I asked.

The merchant flushed uneasily and I could see at a glance that he was nervous and ill at ease. I knew that he was well aware of my business, as he was one of the Citizens' Committee by whom I was employed, and I saw that the incident of the lead pencil must have started a train of embarrassing thought in his mind. I repeated my question before I received an answer. When he spoke at last it was in a hard, unnatural voice.

Who Had the Pencil?

"The man who kept our tally was Dr. Frank Johnson," and he glanced at me shrewdly to note the effect of the announcement.

"Johnson?" I repeated, vaguely; "Johnson?" where have I heard that name before?"

"Oh, you have heard it often enough around here if you have ever been in these regions before," the merchant said carelessly. "The Johnson family is one of the 'big bugs' of the neighborhood. Lots of money, and, I guess, more pride. Frank is one of the boys who had a fancy for dentistry. I guess he was doing well enough, too, until John Williams came to town."

"Then they were business rivals," I suggested.

"I guess you have about struck it. And I reckon you'll find that Williams was getting the better of it, too. John Williams had a way of making a friend of every man on the street, while Frank—well, he always let you know that he thought he owned the town. Not that I don't like the Johnsons," he added, hastily, with a vision of their custom slipping away from him.

"Of course," I responded, absently, as I toyed with the pencil in my hands. This, then, belonged to Frank Johnson—and I had found it within two feet of the dead body of his rival. As I returned to the office I saw two sharp facts clashing.

My clew pointed to one of the best known men in the village, and yet, according to the testimony of an eye-witness, the crime had been committed by a total stranger.

The editor, Reynolds, must have known well a man of Johnson's prominence. In circumstances such as those of the murder any hint of his implication would have struck him at once. If the man had been in the room this fact must have stood out above all others. With these details piling themselves up before me I stepped into the Bugle office and confronted the editor. He glanced up from a stack of exchanges and smiled as he recognized me. I came to the point bluntly.

"Mr. Reynolds, was Mr. Johnson in the building on the afternoon of the murder?"

"Johnson?" was the musing reply. "Not that I remember." And then a grin spread over his face as he added:—"If you knew the relations between him and Williams you would not ask that question. They were hardly on what you would call visiting terms in any sense of the word."

"You would have seen him, then, had he been there?"

"I think so, assuredly, and the circumstance would have been unusual enough for me to remember it." There was a confidence in the editor's tone which I could not shake.

I determined on a parting shot. "The man you saw in Dr. Williams' office you say was an absolute stranger?"

Reynolds nodded. "To my knowledge I had never seen him before in my life."

I left the office in a maze. My facts would not dovetail from my angle, and, indeed, I was soon to find the puzzle deeper than ever.

You will recall that we found with the pencil a pocket handkerchief—a square of soiled linen. At a casual glance it bore no distinguishing marks. It would have belonged either to the murdered man or the murderer. The field of conjecture was narrowed, however, by the discovery of a second handkerchief in Dr. Williams' pocket. The obvious conjecture, therefore, was that the soiled handkerchief on the floor was that of the assassin.

With this fact in mind another and closer examination of the square of linen revealed a startling fact. In the corner were the faded, blurred initials, almost erased by frequent laundering. It was only with difficulty that they were decipherable through the lens. As I bent over the microscope I could hardly repress a cry.

What the glance showed was two letters, "F. J."

Cleared at the Trial.

Again the name "Frank Johnson" flashed into my mind. There was something uncanny in the net which circumstances were weaving around it. When I was brought up against the stone wall of the editor's testimony I was dazed. Here were two articles which any sane man must admit belonged to the dentist, whose sign I could see from the window flapping in the wind. Both were found near the body of his admitted rival, and if the latter's death was due to his hand the motive for the act could easily be traced to the passion of jealousy. A deadly net. But against these facts loomed the unassailable testimony of the eye witness of the crime sponging Johnson's slate clean with one stroke.

I sought Johnson's office in a frankly bewildered state of mind. The dentist rose to greet me with a courteous bow, but I saw that his face was haggard and that around his eyes were the dark rims of sleepless nights. When I grasped his hand I found it cold and clammy. I had not talked to him five minutes before I knew that he was a drug fiend—and a bad one.

In a village such as this it was obviously impossible to conceal my mission. I realized that at the outset and made no effort to avoid the subject of the crime. If I had expected to find the dentist embarrassed, however, I was doomed to disappointment. He frankly admitted that he and the dead man had not been on the best of terms, and for a moment sat gazing out of the window, drumming nervously on the table.

My eyes strayed curiously to his hand. It was short and thick. Again fate had tagged him.

That hand could have easily have left the tell-tale row of crimson prints on the wall above the dead man. I wondered vaguely if he knew of their existence.

Their blurred outlines, of course, made positive identification impossible, but I found myself wagering that the hand before me would fit exactly into those notched edges.

"Come again," Dr. Johnson said pleasantly as I left.

"I will," I answered with a grimness which I doubt if he appreciated. I had made up my mind as to my course of action. I had found the guilty man. Of that I was convinced. Regardless of how Reynolds' testimony could be explained—whether, indeed, it could be explained—I was certain that the man with whom I had been chatting was the assassin who had done his rival to death. Any one of my triple clues might have been wrong, but that all three were in error was impossible.

We held a consultation and acted rapidly and decisively. The hand of the law descended speedily on Johnson's shoulder. The dentist smiled at his arrest.

"You're wasting your time," he said cynically. "You can't convict me," and he relapsed into a dogged silence from which nothing could stir him.

Now, how would you end this case? If this were a detective romance we would find that after all Johnson was not the real criminal, or that he would hang himself in his cell, leaving a confession of his guilt behind. But this is not a detective romance and neither of those two developments occurred.

I have mentioned that the Johnson family was one of the wealthiest and most prominent in that section of the State. As was to be expected, the most expensive legal talent in the nation was soon wrangling over the defence. All that money can do was done, while the prisoner smiled in his cell and shrugged his shoulders. My last doubt of the proof of his guilt was removed when he refused to have his thumbprints taken. It was learned that the authorities had no power to force the demand of the test which I was confident would have proved fatal.

Eventually the case came to trial and we found the tremendous power of money. Our evidence would have sent an ordinary man to the gallows, but the ordinary man would not have had an array of lawyers, costing thousands of dollars, in his defence. The result was that the trial was drawn over a long period of arguments and disputes, and in the end the prisoner was freed. Not much like the last chapter of a popular detective novel, eh?

Oh, yes, you want the explanation of Reynolds' testimony—how the editor saw the stranger over the dead man's body. It was all due to a—mortgage.

The Bugle was in financial straits and Johnson had advanced the publisher a much needed sum of money, with security on the property. The mortgage was past due and not paid, and no likelihood of its being paid.

It was never foreclosed, however, and I have always traced the reason to the fact that the editor recognized the assassin whom he disturbed in the office of the murdered dentist—and then forgot his identity.

Saved by an Elephant

AN old showman tells the following exciting story of his experience when connected with a well known menagerie during an engagement at a town in Kentucky. "After the exhibition was over," he says, "I passed into the menagerie to talk to the watchman. From some cause he was absent from his post, and I walked across the amphitheatre toward my old friend, the elephant, to give him an apple, for we were the best of friends. He was one of the largest elephants I ever saw and was as good natured as he was large.

"I was half way across the ring when I heard a growl, and, looking around, saw to my horror one of the lions out of his cage and approaching me in a crouching manner, ready for a spring.

"I thought of a thousand things in a moment, and among them I must have regretted perpetrating so many old worn out jokes at the performance that night. I had sufficient presence of mind to realize my dangerous situation and to know that it required the utmost caution to extricate myself from it.

"One hasty motion on my part and I would be in the jaws of the monster. I felt that my only hope was the elephant, if I could reach him, but he was chained by the foot and could not reach me.

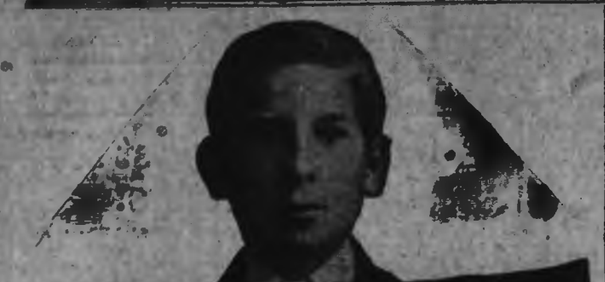
"Nearer and nearer came the lion, waving his tail in a manner that meant business. If I turned my back he would spring; if I took my eyes from him I was lost.

"It was a terrible moment. I glided backward as swiftly as I dared. I had another fear. I feared stumbling backward, and knew if I did fall I would never rise, but that where I fell I would make a meal for that lion.

"As I neared the elephant I saw that the lion understood my movements, and, fearing he would be balked of his prey, he prepared to bring the matter to a crisis. I then saw that I had but one hope, and that was to rush with all my speed to the elephant.

"I think I must have jumped twenty feet when I turned, and I know the lion jumped thirty feet, but he just missed me.

"How I completed the race I do not know. I only knew that the elephant's trunk was around my waist and he was lifting me up on his head. I only knew that I was saved!"



BOY'S FINGER SAVED

DEADLY EFFECT OF BLOOD POISON

There is nothing so deadly in its operation as Blood Poison and yet how subtly and unsuspecting it commences its work. First a tiny scratch or wound, not enough to demand attention. Then a little redness followed by a tiny red streak which rapidly broadens and travels upwards. The doctor is called in. The wound is lanced, but in nine cases out of ten mortification has set in and amputation is necessary in order to save the life of the patient.

Ernest Bartlett, of 21 Northern Place, Toronto, just escaped this. He had a terrible finger. This is his story:—"I accidentally knocked the joint of my finger and it turned to blood poisoning. I tried lots of remedies but the hand got worse. Finally I secured a sample of CUROL. This did so much good that I bought a 25c box and in five days the wound was doing nicely and finally healed. Had I used CUROL earlier it would have saved me a lot of suffering. I certainly advise everyone to use CUROL for all sores and injuries."

A cut, wound, or sore should be treated at once with CUROL. It is a wonderful salve, Healing, Soothing and Antiseptic, it touches the spot every time. A popular remedy at a popular price. All druggists and stores sell it, 25c per box, or sent on receipt of price by the CUROL SALVE CO., Spadina Ave., Toronto. Don't pay big prices when you can get the best for 25c.

THIRD PRIZE	15.00	SEVENTH PRIZE	3.00
FOURTH PRIZE	10.00	EIGHTH PRIZE	2.00
TWELVE PRIZES OF		- -	$1.00

Don't hang back because you didn't score the first week. If you become one of our Newsboys and start out now and secure two or more new customers a week, you are sure to get one of the cash prizes offered below. Parents who would like their boys to earn sufficient to-almost keep them, should encourage them to handle the Daily Examiner after school There are many young men now holding good positions who made thier first money by selling and delivering The Daily Examiner.

Boys, Get Into the Race!

Get in line; Make up your minds right away. Start in and canvass those who are not taking the Examiner — they will always read it if you once get them started.

This week's prize of $2.00 is going to be paid to some boy who hustles the most. The boy who gets the largest number of New Customers by Saturday will win it. Now get busy.

An Important Condition

In order that protection may be given to each boy who is entered in this competition it is a condition that no one will secure a prize who does not legitimately earn it. If a boy applies for a weekly prize and has not bought the papers for his own use and sale it will be turned over to the boy who has actually won it.

HOW TO CAGE A BEAR.

Show Him Carrots and Bread and Lead the Way to His Den.

Escapes of animals from their cages in zoological gardens and menageries are fortunately rare. When they do occur the work of recapture is set about in a businesslike fashion, and the prison breaker is generally captured before anything is known outside.

In the periodical issued by the management of the Breslau garden an amusing story is told of an incident of this kind. Some years ago, on a fine autumn morning, just after the gates were opened there was a loud knocking at the pay window, and, in reply to the inquiry of the money taker who presented himself, a man in a state of great excitement said that as he was walking on the Oder bank he had seen through the palisading a large bear loose in the grounds. "Greatly obliged to you, sir," was the reply. "We know that already; that bear goes for a walk every morning and returns to its cage before the visitors come in."

The man went away quite satisfied. The official, who knew the real state of the case, at once ordered the gates to be closed, and the director was at once informed that the bear was loose. It was a serious matter, for the bear had killed the keeper in a traveling menagerie and for that reason was sold to the zoological garden. Moreover, when a mate had been put in with him she soon fell a victim to his bad temper. While the authorities were considering the best steps to take to recapture the bear—for they were loath to shoot such a fine animal—the keeper whose negligence in leaving a door unfastened had caused the trouble made his appearance. His only reply to the reproaches of the director for allowing the bear to escape was, "Well, we shall have to get him in again."

He went off to the storeroom, filled his apron with carrots and bread and then sought the bear. When he saw the animal he called out to attract its attention and by throwing down food enticed it to the back of the bear dens. Here the man entered through a small door by which new arrivals were put into the cages. He was closely followed by the bear, but reached the middle of the cage before it had scrambled through the small opening. Then he dropped on the floor the rest of the food he had in his apron and made his way out of the cage, which was at once securely fastened in front and at the rear. Thus the incident, which might have had serious consequences, ended happily for those on whom the responsibility rested.—London Field.

Warned in a Dream.

On the occasion of a fatal accident to a lift in a Paris hotel some years ago a lady who was just going up in it started back, saying, "Oh, there is that dreadful man again!" and tried to induce her husband to come off it, too, but he refused and was among the killed. The "dreadful man" to whom she referred she had seen in a dream, which the niece of the friend who told me the story had heard her relate a day or two before the accident. It was of a funeral drawn up at her door, so pompous as to produce a great impression on her, presided over by a big dark man in a strange sombrero hat. This man she saw, or believed she saw, in the lift, and the coincidence terrified her from going up in it.—London Notes and Queries.

Ladies and Gents.

When I was younger kids were kids in Kansas or in Cadiz. Now all the boys are gentlemen and all the girls are ladies. Where are the kids who climbed the trees, the tousled young carousers who got their faces black with dirt and tore their little trousers? Where are the lads who scrapped by rounds while other lads kept tallies, the maids who made their pies of mud and danced in dirty alleys? They're making calf love somewhere now, exchanging cards and kisses. They're all fixed up in Sunday togs, and they are sirs and misses. Real kids have vanished from the world, which fact is surely hades, and all the boys are gentlemen, and all the girls are ladies.—Walt Mason in Emporia Gazette.

Her Idea.

Mrs. Muggins—I hear your husband is speculating in stocks. Is he a bull or a bear? Mrs. Buggins—Judging from results I should think he was a jackass.

Mother Gave Her Child Away.

Had Given up all Hope of Living. Heart Trouble was Cured by Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Mrs. Andrew Sawey, Grattan's, N.B., writes:—"In the year 1905 I was taken sick and did not think I could live any length of time. My trouble was with my heart and people told me that nothing could be done for a case like mine. I consulted the very best doctors but they could do me no good. For seven weeks I could hardly cross the floor. I had no pain, but was so weak nobody in the world can believe how I felt. I had given up all hopes of living and had given my little girl to my sister-in-law.

"One day a friend came to see me, and calling me by name, said, 'Lizzie, if I were you I would try a dose of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills as they are good for heart trouble.' My husband got me a box, but for two days I was not feeling any better, but on the fourth day my husband said, 'I believe those pills are doing you good.' I was able to say, 'Yes, I feel a good deal better this morning.' He said, 'Well, I will get you another box right away.' I took two boxes and three doses out of the third one, and I was perfectly well and have not been sick since then.

"I will never be without them in my home for God knows if it had not been for Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, I would not have been alive now."

LONDON'S ODD PRISON

Westminster Clock Tower Is the Finest Jail In England.

BUT IT IS ALWAYS EMPTY.

The Tower Is the British Parliament's House of Detention, and Charles Bradlaugh Was Its Last Occupant. The Old Prison In Former Days.

If the average sentenced criminal were allowed to select his place of confinement his choice would probably fall on the Clock Tower prison at Westminster, as that is the very finest prison in Great Britain and is able to supply comforts and luxuries quite unknown to the ordinary Bill Sikes.

But the law decides that members of parliament only may be confined in that jail, although rank outsiders could be committed to the Clock Tower for certain offenses against the rules and regulations of parliament.

The Clock Tower prison, as it exists today, was erected in connection with the house occupied by the sergeant at arms. This official is in complete charge of any member committed to the Clock Tower, and a member cannot easily make his escape, because, in order to do so, he must pass through the house of the sergeant.

Very few members of parliament are committed to the Clock Tower in these days. We have to go back many years to find a precedent, Mr. Charles Bradlaugh being the last member to occupy the cells at the Clock Tower, and he did not occupy them long. He was handed over to the custody of the sergeant at arms on June 23, 1880, committed to the Tower and released next day.

There are two sets of cells in the Clock Tower, an upper and a lower, but both suits of cells are much the same. In each there is a sitting room of very ample proportions, well carpeted and furnished and replete with most of the things which go toward making one comfortable.

In each suit there are two bedrooms—one for the use of the imprisoned M. P., the other for the convenience of the jailer, who must always be on the spot in order to see that the legislator makes no attempt to escape.

Any member of parliament sent to the Clock Tower by order of the speaker would be required to pay for his own food, and if he did not do so he could be sued in court. Any legislator incarcerated in the Clock Tower would be allowed to rise in the morning just when he pleased, and he could retire to bed when the spirit moved him. He could read to his heart's content and smoke as much as he liked, there being no restrictions over such matters; his whole punishment would lie in being prevented from joining his fellows and mixing with them.

He would be taken out to exercise, but would always have two officials beside him to guard against any attempt at escape, and his exercise would be taken on the terrace before the house sat for the day. Under no circumstances would he be allowed to hold converse with his fellow men. One way or another an imprisoned M. P. would not have a bad time of it, and he would not be kept in confinement for any lengthy period.

But if the Clock Tower is not much used nowadays, the Tower—the prison of the house of commons of a former day—was much in evidence. In olden times a passing remark, an observation obnoxious to the house, or, indeed, any trifle, was sufficient to send the culprit forthwith to the Tower, and not to the Tower only, for a member could be committed to Newgate.

Sometimes the reason for committing a member to the Tower was somewhat amusing, as witness the case of a member for Southampton who once entered the house in a drunken condition and, mistaking the speaker for an owl sitting in an ivy bush, addressed him as such. Result—the Tower. However, the member was released next day and severely reprimanded for his ridiculous behavior.

The Tower was made use of by the "long" parliament. In one day as many as eleven Presbyterian members of the house were committed to the custody of the sergeant at arms and flung into the Tower. And, to show that members were not committed for errors in speech alone, one has only to mention the case of Captain Churchill, who in 1660 was committed to the Tower for refusing to take merchant ships under the protection of his man of war unless he received a gift of £200.

In those days they had to pay stiffly for the privilege of being sent to the Tower, as witness an extract from the diary of Lord Clarendon, written the day following his committal to the "[illegible] Thomas: 'Mr. Pool brought me

THE HOME CARPENTER.

Many Women Take Courses In Manual Training.

The thrifty woman does her own odd jobs around the house. To wait for her husband is hard on the patience, and dependence on a carpenter for little breaks is both a time and money waster.

Many women today are taking a simple course in manual training for no other reason than to be independent when a chair breaks down or a faucet springs aleak. Light sets of tools are made especially for their use, and they soon acquire a skill as to quite disprove the old nail driving slander.

There are housekeepers who can put on a washer, tinker with a broken grate or put in burned out fire brick as well as a professional. They learn how to supply missing panes of glass or scrape and do over a chair or table.

One young woman who in the spirit of keeping her new home in good condition took lessons from an old carpenter in repair work soon developed such an aptitude with tools that she studied woodcarving and upon the death of her husband carried it on successfully as a profession.

Skill in mending is a particularly useful accomplishment for a woman who lives in the country or far from a carpenter. If there is no way to take a course in manual training, a carpenter or plumber can generally be found who will teach the rudiments of repairing for a small fee.

Jones' Van Dyck.

People told Jones that his youth was against him—he looked too young. If he wanted to rise rapidly in his profession he would have to grow a few hirsutorial decorations.

He started a Van Dyck. His wife watched its growth critically. She didn't take to it—said she married a young man, not a professor. The whiskers grew and grew, and hubby looked more and more like a pirate. Wifey tried to talk him out of them, but he insisted they were an actual necessity in his profession.

One morning Jones woke up with his chin feeling moist and sticky. He rubbed his hand over his face foliage and found it wet. Then he opened his eyes and saw his wife standing over him with a bottle of peroxide in her hand. Filled with alarm, he jumped out of bed and over to the mirror. Already the stuff that makes blonds to order had done its work. That primeval growth was red, yellow and mauve, even as the growing corn. Jones had to wipe the dust off his razor and remove the chin weeds.

"I suppose you think you've done something pretty smart," he observed to Mrs. Jones grouchily as he removed another bunch. "You've ruined my profession, that's what you've done."

"Rather smooth shaven competency," averred his wife sweetly, "than whiskered luxury."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Not So Here.

Every London man should remember that in the ordinary way, if he has reached 3 p. m. without getting married, he is, by a merciful dispensation of ecclesiastical law, safe for that day at any rate.—London Punch.

Snubbing a Snob.

Jasmin, the Gascon poet and barber, once treated a rich snob to the snubbing he deserved. Jasmin had been reciting his poems for the benefit of the poor and had afterward been escorted in triumphal procession to his hotel. Next morning while he was still in bed some one knocked at the door, and a vulgar nabob entered and installed himself without invitation in a chair.

"My dear Jasmin," said he patronizingly, "I am a banker, a millionaire, as you know. I wish you to shave me with your own hand. Please set to work at once, for I am pressed for time. You can ask what you like for your trouble."

"Pardon me, sir," said Jasmin, with pride. "I shave for pay at home only."

"What do you say?"

"It is true, sir. I shave for pay only at home."

"Come, come! You are jesting. I cannot be put off. Make your charge what you like, but shave me."

"Again I say, sir, it is impossible."

"How impossible? Isn't it your trade?"

"It is, but at this moment I am not disposed to exercise it."

In spite of renewed bribes and entreaties Jasmin remained firm, and the millionaire went away unshaved.

Outlines Staff Scheme.

London, Feb. 20.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The text of the scheme for an imperial general staff has been issued in a Parliamentary paper. The following are the points:

1. All forces of Empire to be organized for war on the same principles by a general staff, which must be an entity throughout the Empire.

2. Uniformity of training officers for general staff to be secured by recognising the staff college at Chamberley for some years to come as a central school for military education for the Empire, and sending its graduates to over sea dominions. There will be uniformity in officers' curriculums and examinations.

3. Uniformity in carrying out staff duties to be attained by encouraging graduates of staff colleges to undergo further training in England or India, and systematically interchanging with Imperial general staff officers throughout the Empire.

De Castellane Appeals.

Paris, Feb. 20.—Count Boni de Castellane has appealed from the decision of the French court, handed down Dec. 3, that his three sons remain in the custody of their mother, the present Princess de Sagan, who before she married De Castellane, from whom she secured a divorce, was Miss Anna Gould of New York. It is said that the count's purpose in trying to reopen this issue is to compel the De Sagans to come to a private settlement. The De Sagans are at present living quietly here. They say they are "saving money to pay De Castellane's debts."

His New Title.

Ottawa, Feb. 20.—John Douglas McLean, secretary of the Department of Indian Affairs, has been appointed Assistant Deputy Superintendent-General of Indian Affairs.

The Grand Trunk Pacific Branch Lines Co. will apply to Parliament this session for authority to build a line from Regina to Moosejaw, 45 miles.

The Canadian Medical Association will apply this session for an act of incorporation.

More Eager Than Britain.

London, Feb. 20.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—In the fiscal debate in the Commons yesterday, the Rt. Hon. Geo. Wyndham said as to our Imperial market there was a case for adopting a preference policy of tariffs. "All great powers brought into contact with Canada were deliberately designed to bring pressure on Canada to join with them before we were in a position to let Canada join us."

Castro Leaves Berlin.

Berlin, Feb. 20.—Cipriano Castro, at one time president of Venezuela, left here yesterday for Dresden. Castro leaves Berlin on account of the receipt of quantities of begging letters due to fanciful newspaper stories of his lavish expenditures. One writer demanded $125,000.

Wants Independence Recognized.

Paris, Feb. 20.—Bulgaria has notified France and the other powers of Europe that she is now convinced that the moment has arrived for a formal recognition of her independence.

Further delay would be dangerous to all interests, it is pointed out, and likely to bring about a breach of the peace in the Balkans.

CANAL IS TO BE ENLARGED

Department Report Urges That It Be Done Soon.

OTHERS ALSO IMPORTANT

However, Deputy Minister Butler Says Georgian Bay, Montreal and Ottawa Projects Should Be Looked Into—Mr. Boyce of Algoma Sees Danger In Delay Over Ratification of Waterways Treaty.

Ottawa, Feb. 20.—The annual report of the Department of Railways and Canals, tabled yesterday, shows that during the last fiscal year the total railway expenditure amounted to $35,605,193, of which $23,684,925 was charged to capital, $9,315,695 to income, and $2,565,295 to revenue.

Expenditure on capital included $16,210,449 for National Transcontinental Railway. Expenditure on the Intercolonial Railway was $13,567,491.

Deputy Minister Butler in his report strongly recommended as urgent the early enlargement of the Welland Canal. The time to be consumed in the execution of this work, with modern appliances, would not exceed five years.

"While making these remarks," says Mr. Butler, "I am not unmindful of claims to consideration due to the Montreal, Ottawa and Georgian Bay canal project, the economic and commercial aspect of which should be carefully looked into before it is undertaken." Many years would be required to complete it and meanwhile the demands for better water accommodation between the east and west must remain unmet. Both projects were desirable of execution and would probably some day be realized.

Mr. Arthur C. Boyce (West Algoma) sounded in the ears of the Government yesterday the warning that Canada's interests were being jeopardized through the action of the United States Senate in delaying ratification of the waterways treaty. Certain interests on the American side of the Soo were endeavoring to secure amendments which would accrue to their advantage, and he warned the Government to keep its eyes open.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier assured Mr. Boyce that there was no occasion for alarm. Confusion existed, he said, between the waterways convention and the boundary and fisheries treaty, and this was possibly responsible for the apprehension to which the member for Algoma referred.

As a matter of fact, the waterways treaty now before the United States Senate was eminently fair to both countries. So far as the boundaries treaty was concerned, all the commissioners had to do was lay off and monument the existing boundary between Canada and the United States.

Sir Wilfrid added that the Government was now endeavoring to obtain the consent of the British Government to the publication in this country of the waterways treaty.

In the House yesterday resolutions were amended by increasing the number of standing committees by three, on Marine and Fisheries, and minerals, and on forests, waterways and water powers.

The House will adjourn over Ash Wednesday.

Ralph Smith (Nanaimo) introduced a bill to amend the Railway Act, by limiting the hours of work of telegraphers and despatchers on railways to eight hours a day.

E. N. Lewis introduced a bill to provide for Government inspection of vessels. Under the present act there is no provision for the inspection of barges not self-propelling. His bill provides for the inspection of these as well as of all steam vessels over five tons. Another requirement is that all vessels towing others must carry a rocket gun.

To Examine Election Lists.

Winnipeg, Feb. 20.—In the Legislature Premier Roblin, in reply to the Opposition request for a committee of enquiry into alleged grave irregularities in the preparation of the provincial voters' lists used in the late Dominion elections, said he would grant a committee of enquiry, not because of the Opposition's demand, but because of Premier Laurier's allegation that the provincial lists were the cause of the Liberal defeat, and because of Hon. Clifford Sifton's subsequent statement to the same effect.

The committee has been given power to take evidence under oath and send for all persons, papers, etc.

Sarnia Man Drowned.

Sarnia, Ont., Feb. 20.—Yesterday morning between 1 and 2 o'clock, William Lowrie, a man about 35 years of age, who for many years had been employed in the Imperial Oil Works here, was accidentally drowned. While changing the lines to one of the underground tanks, it would appear he slipped and fell into the oil. Not returning in a reasonable time, he was inquired for, and the latch of the tank was found open. Afterwards his body was recovered by the other employes.

He was a well and favorably known young man, a son of the late Warden Lowrie of Lambton. He had many relatives in these parts.

Dock Wall Carried Away.

Victoria, B.C., Feb. 20.—Undermined by the dredging of the entrance to the harbor, three hundred feet of the stone wall beneath the new dock of R. P. Rithet & Co. at the outer wharf here was carried away, and, as a result, the dock itself for about the same distance has sagged and settled. The damage will amount to about $25,000.

Two Arrests For Burglary.

Brantford, Feb. 20.—William Stevens was arrested yesterday for breaking into Hartley's grocery and stealing a lot of provisions, and Walter Williams was arrested for theft of goods from John Curley, Ohsweken.

The police commissioners have appointed two new men, making the department 14 strong.

Muddle In St. Kitts.

St. Catharines, Feb. 20.—The unseating of the council opens up some interesting questions.

Money has been borrowed and spent by the aldermen who have just learned that they were illegally elected, and unless the Legislature can be induced to ratify what business has been transacted since the first of the year there will be a pretty state of affairs. Following their usual method the council borrowed money from the bank to carry on business with until the taxes comes in. Where does the bank stand?

It is not likely the council will be re-elected by acclamation, as there would still be time to legally pass the reduction bylaw. One of the unseated aldermen talks of cutting off all the twelve licenses, instead of seven.

Will Tour the West.

Montreal, Feb. 20.—John T. McBride, importer of this city, returns from London with the report that some 800 members of the world's Parliamentary Congress will visit Canada this year and that when the meetings are over in Quebec, and at Ottawa, where they will be entertained by the Federal Government, the C.P.R. will carry them all through the wheat fields of the west during the month of August.

Mr. Ross Congratulates.

Montreal, Feb. 20.—There will be a meeting of the directors of the Dominion Steel Co. on the 3rd or 5th of March to take action in connection with the matters at issue with the Dominion Coal Co.

Messrs. Plummer and Ross, the two contending presidents, met in the Windsor Hotel yesterday morning, when they shook hands, and Mr. Ross congratulated the Steel company on their victory.

Four Wards For Belleville.

Belleville, Feb. 20.—The executive council of the City Council has decided to redivide this city into four wards instead of seven as at present. This is because the electorate decided to return to the ward system of electing aldermen.

Canadian General Mining Co.

London, Feb. 20.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Attention is being drawn by the financial press to the Canadian General Mining Co., which is unknown at Somerset House. It registered in Guernsey in 1905 with a capital of $250,000. No names of directors were given in registered particulars and no list of shareholders filed. It is remarked that this is a curious state of affairs, which presumably will be remedied before actual business is done in placing shares.

U. S. May Reduce Pulp Duty.

Washington, Feb. 20.—A reduction in the duty on news print paper from $6 a ton to $2 a ton; the placing of ground wood on the free list; and the establishment of a duty of one-twelfth cent per pound on mechanically ground wood pulp, are the recommendations of the select committee on pulp and paper investigation, which made a commissioner's report to the House of Representatives yesterday.

Brakeman Loses Leg.

North Bay, Feb. 20.—Thursday night at Widdifield station on the T. & N.O. Railway, twelve miles from North Bay, Timothy White, brakeman, slipped from the station platform under the wheels of his train, receiving injuries which will necessitate the amputation of his leg. Mr. White is 28 years of age, single and has parents residing at Calabogie.

Centenarian a Widow For 39 Years.

Ottawa, Feb. 20.—Mrs. Robert Hughes of Innisville, Lanark County, born in Glasgow, Scotland, on Feb. 15, 1869, celebrated this week her hundredth birthday. She came to this country in 1831, with her parents, and has been a widow for almost half a century.

Family of Church Workers.

Rev. Dr. James Robertson, of Whittingehame, England, moderator-elect of the next General Assembly of the Church of Scotland has many family links with that church. His brother, Rev. David Robertson, is parish minister of Clepington, Dundee, and he had another brother, Rev. William Robertson, of Sprouston, now deceased. His sister is principal of the Ministers' Daughters' College; Rev. Mr. Dawson of Monymusk is his uncle; and Rev. Dr. Campbell of Balmerino is his cousin. Dr. Robertson has been minister of Whittingehame since 1865.

Thirteen Superstition In London.

The thirteen superstition appears to be prevalent in all quarters of London. There is no No. 13 in the Strand, in Holborn, Threadneedle street, St. James' street, Woburn square, or Westbourne Grove. In Park lane it is disguised as 12A, and in Upper Brook street (whose medical residents bought to be proof against superstition) it figures as 15A.

An Introduction.

Harry was walking with another boy when he was joined by a friend a year or so older and inclined to manners.

"Introduce me, Harry," the newcomer whispered pompously.

Harry twisted, reddened and at last turned to his companion with, "Jim, have you ever seen Gilbert Spencer?"

"No," the other boy answered.

"Well," Harry blurted out, reddening still more and jerking one thumb over his shoulder toward the newcomer, "that's him!"

PETERBOROUGH SATURDAY FEBRUARY 20 1909

TO MEET IN THIS CITY

Master Painters' Association of the United States and Canada Will Convene Here in July Next.

600 DELEGATES HERE.

The Master Painters' Association of the United States and Canada will hold its annual convention in Peterborough in July of this week. This was decided upon at a meeting of the executive in Toronto this week, when the Master Painters decided to come here for their yearly business meeting. It might be said that it was no easy matter to secure the big convention for Peterborough inasmuch as the local association had several competitors to compete with, including Hamilton, Toronto, Ottawa, St. John's, Belleville, and several other places. The efforts of the local executive in securing such a big gathering for Peterborough are to be commended. It seems a big thing for the people of this city, inasmuch as six hundred delegates from all parts of the United States and Canada will be here for three or four days, and it will mean a bonanza for the business people. The local association will set about arranging plans for the reception of their visitors.

MR. W. STOCKER HAS SAD NEWS FROM OLD HOME

Mr. Walter Stocker has received a letter from his home in Rawdon, Leeds, Yorkshire, informing him of the death of his mother, Mrs J Stocker, on Feburary 8th. Her death it is believed was largely due to the rather sudden death of her son-in-law, in January, for since then she had gradually declined her 75 years hastening the end. A husband predeceased her about eight years ago. Of the nine children four sons are living in America. They are Walter, of Peterborough; Douglas, of San Francisco; Arthur of Calgary, and Edward, living in Ohio.

SERVICES TO BE HELD IN BASEMENT ST. JAMES' CHURCH

The new St. James' Methodist Church has so far advanced towards completion that services will be held in the basement to-morrow. Rev. H. M. AMERICAN CONSUL AGENCY HERE TO BE OPENED AGAIN

The American Consular office in Peterborough, which was closed two weeks ago, will be re-opened by the American government. It was the intention of the authorities to close the office permanently but it was found that the volume of trade between the United States and Peterborough was too great for this city to be left without a consular office and, accordingly they have decided to re-open it. The office will be in charge of Mr. Frank Bell, and will be situated in the same place as before.

DESPERADO ENTERS MILLIONAIRE'S LIBRARY WITH BAG OF DYNAMITE AND DEMANDS $7000 FROM FAMILY

Keeps Inmates Covered With a Pistol While He Threatens to Blow Up the Residence if His Demands Are Not Acceded to, But is Finally Out-witted and Captured.

Examiner Special.

Kansas City, Mo., Feb.20— Lawrence M. Jones, of the Jones Dry Goods Company, millionaire department store man, was at the breakfast table with his wife and son Chester, this morning at his home on Troost avenue, when the maid came to the door to say a man was waiting in the hall to see Mr Jones. Mrs Jones took the man to the library on the second floor and the stranger drew an automatic pistol and pointed it at Mr. Jones. "I'll kill you if you make a noise or attempt to summon help," he said. "I am a desperate man, and I want money. Now listen. This grip is full of dynamite. See this cord around my wrist? It connects with matches which are held between files. The matches are lying in powder and the dynamite is all around it. If I drop this bag eight inches it will ignite the matches and will blow you and me to kingdom come."

"What do you want?" asked Mr. Jones.

"I want $7,000 and I've got to have it or we both must die."

"All right, let's talk it over. There is no use in getting excited. If you need money I'll try and get it for you."

Tried to Reason it out

Mr. Jones was trying to be calm and reason out a plan for dealing with the man, who he was convinced was crazy. Of course I don't keep that amount of money lying loose here in the house," said Mr Jones.

"I know that," said the man.

"You'll have to go to the bank and I'll stay with you till you place the money in my hands."

Just then Mrs. Jones came to the door. She slipped back down the hall where she met her son Chester, 21 years of age. Chester ran to his room to get his revolver. Mrs. Jones again went to the library and stepped inside. The man immediately switched the aim of the pistol from Mr. Jones to her. "Don't make an outcry or I'll kill you" he said.

Chester Jones ran into the room and, he, too, was at once "covered" with the pistol.

"Are you armed young man," he said to Chester. Chester did not reply. The man, still keeping the pistol pointing at Chester's head advanced to his side and thrusting the pistol against the young man's face commanded him to lay down the revolver if he had one, on the library table. Chester complied with the demand.

Outwitted by Ruse

After an hour had passed the man insisted that he must have the money by 11 o'clock whereupon Mr. Jones suggested that they all go down to the bank in his motor car. This the man agreed to after insisting that Mrs. Jones must come also. While they were preparing to get into the auto, Mr. Jones grappled the bandit, knocked his feet from under him and both rolled down the stone steps. Chester Jones seized the revolver in the man's hand and prevented him from discharging it. A later examination showed the matches in the bag had been ignited but failed to explode, the powder doubtless having smothered the flames. A telephone call was sent for the police who came and took the man away. To the police he gave the name of S. H. Garnett. Garnett described his plans of the robbery. He said he intended to chain Jones in an vacant house which he had already rented.

COMBINATION OF CRIMINAL AND CIVIL ACTIONS AT POLICE COURT

Witness in Criminal Action is Examined by Lawyer Gordon Regarding Chattels Which a Mortgage is Claimed to Have Covered—Outcome of Yesterday's Case.

GOODS SOLD ON MARKET.

Geo. Sexsmith rented a farm from Mr. A. McNamara in North Monaghan about three years ago. He paid something over $100 in rent but the balance kept increasing until he owed the landlord about $3700 A mortgage for $500 was held on the chattels by Mr. O. de Laplante. The above was brought out in police court today. John Foskett, Sexsmith's hired man, was remanded from Friday's police court on the charge of unlawfully taking possession of four head of cattle, the property of Mr. John McDonald, bailiff for Mr. McNamara. Foskett pleaded innocence on the ground that he had followed out his employer's instructions. The hearing of the case was resumed this morning, when it was expected that Mr. Sexsmith would be put in the witness box to explain matters.

His name was called several times but no response was made. Mr. G. N. Gordon, acting for Mr. McNamara, wanted a warrant for Sexsmith's arrest but before the case was concluded he appeared in court and was examined. Magistrate Dumble was somewhat opposed to this, as he styled it fishing to find out what had become of certain articles about the farm, which, it is claimed, cannot be accounted for. Mr. LaPlante foreclosed his mortgage two weeks ago, the landlord's mortgage following a week later. Mr. Gordon showed by his examination of Mr. Sexsmith that he wanted information about certain articles. Of the 46 head of cattle that Sexsmith had owned 16 could not be accounted for. Mr. Gordon was also persistent in questioning about a couple of sets of harness but the witness did not say anything that would assist in locating the articles. Mr. Sexsmith stated that he had to sell his milk business owing to his brother's illness.

Foskett was discharged. Many articles belonging to Sexsmith were offered for sale on the market this morning.

STOREKEEPERS TO SELL REMEDIES

Toronto, Feb. 20.—From Mr. P. H. Bowyer, East Kent, comes the first private bill of the session of the Legislature, and it is one which will receive considerable support from rural ddistricts.

It is in the form of an amendment to the Pharmacy Act, and is intended to give rural store-keepers the right to sell "harmless household remedies."

Formerly all but qualified druggists were prohibited from selling poisons, and later a change was made to include all drugs and medicinal remedies. During the past year an agent of the Ontario Pharmical Association has travelled throughout the country enforcing the Act, and this has resulted in the fining of several country shopkeepers $25 and costs for the sale of a few cents worth of some harmless remedy such as quinine or salts, Storekeepers promptly discontinued carrying even the simplest things, and to-day Mr. Bowyer says farmers are compelled to drive ten or twelve miles to a drug store for anything they may want. His bill is aimed at correcting this and he states that he has several druggists behind him as support.

No Ill Usage In The House Of Refuge The Witnesses Swear

Examiner Special.

Cobourg, Feb. 20—An official examination as to the charges of ill usage made yesterday by Dr Bruce Smith in regard to the statement that Maynard was beaten in the institution. The result of the inquiry was that the officials again swear he was not ill used. Members of the County Council and Board of Management were present, also Chief of Police Jarvis from Bowmanville and Dr. Tilley.

Relatives of Mr. Maynard gave evidence as to the old man's physical condition before he came to the institution, and told of finding marks on his body after his return, and of his arm being frozen. Dr. Tilley said the marks might have been caused by a fall or from being struck.

John McMillan, sr. said he did not. denied there was a whip in the institution. No complaints of ill usage had been made to him. He said that Maynard had been made as comfortable as possible owing to his physical condition. As it was very cold his ears might have been frozen the morning he was taken to the train. Officials again denied that there were whips in the institution or that they had struck Maynard.

Dr. Bruce Smith and Dr. Tilley have examined Maynard and will forward a copy of the evidence taken to the Provincial Secretary.

THE TEMPERANCE PEOPLE WAIT ON THE PREMIER

Examiner Special (2.45 p. m.)

Winnipeg, Feb. 20.—A delegation of temperance people, over one thousand strong, overflowed the Legislative Chamber yesterday to present their plea for the abolition of the bar, to Premier Roblin and the Cabinet. Mr. W. W. Buchanan, Secretary of the Royal Templars, was spokesman. The Premier gave them no definite reply. A similar large delegation from the liquor interests will be heard next week, it is reported, and it is believed that the government will compromise by leaving the law as it is.

SUFFRAGETTES SENT TO PRISON BY MAGISTRATE

Examiner Special.

London, Feb. 20.—Sixteen of the Suffragettes, who were arrested on Thursday in Downing street, came up for trial yesterday, and ten of them were sentenced by the magistrate to terms of imprisonment varying from one month to six weeks, after having refused to give security for their good behaviour for six months. Two of the prisoners gave the required sureties and the other four were discharged.

HIGH HEELS LOST WOMAN HER CASE AGAINST RAILWAY

Examiner Special.

New York, Feb. 20. — That women who wear high French heels on their shoes should not be able to collect damages from falls from trolley cars, was the unique defence set up yesterday in two suits against the Public Service Railway Company by Mrs. Annie Dyer, and Mrs. Annie Isner, for $5,000 and $10,000 respectively. both for heavy falls suffered while alighting from street cars belonging to the company.

In both cases the lawyers for the company claimed that the ladies had reached the ground in safety from the car steps, but that their latest style high heels had caused them to trip and fall as they started to walk away.

In the case of Mrs. Isner several women braved the plaintiff's withering glances and testified that her heels were altogether too high for a stout woman to wear in comfort and safely.

The juries in both cases decided in favour of the company.

FAMILY AFFAIR WHICH WILL BE HEARD ON MONDAY BY JUSTICE CLUTE AT THE WINTER ASSIZES

James Fowler Claims $1500 for Six Years Board for Woman Who it is Said Rendered His Family Valuable Service---Claim of $5000 for Loss of Arm at C. G. E.

The winter sittings of the High Court will be opened on Monday afternoon at the Court House, with Mr. Justice Clute presiding. There are two jury and two non-jury cases.

One of the former is that of Fowler vs Fanning and Brumwell. In this case the plaintiff, James B. Fowler, is a farmer residing in the township of Smith. The defendants are Matilda Fanning and Jacob Brumwell, the administratrix and administrator of the estate of the late Jane Brumwell, of Smith. When she was well advanced in years and unable to reside alone in her own home, she came to the plaintiff's residence in October, 1902, and boarded and lodged with the plaintiff until her death, in March, 1908. The plaintiff claims that the deceased promised and agreed to compensate him for her board and lodging and attendance, but did not during her lifetime pay him any sum on account of same, and the plaintiff's claim still remains unpaid. The plaintiff therefore claims $1,560, besides the costs of the action and any other relief as the nature of the case may require.

Statement of Defence

The defence claims that Jane Brumwell adopted her niece, Mary Jane Jordan, when seventeen years of age and maintained her up until she was thirty years of age. About eighteen years ago the latter married James B. Fowler, but through illness she afterwards became infirm in her health, and Jane Brumwell being a strong, healthy woman, nursed and cared for her and finally removed to the house of the plaintiff at his request, and lived there until she died. While so living with the plaintiff, it is claimed, that Jane Brumwell nursed the plaintiff's wife, did housework and helped keep up the house, and was of great value to him by reason of her services in the household, and for the pecuniary assistance she rendered to him and his wife. The defendants deny that Jane Brumwell ever promised and agreed with the plaintiff to compensate him for her board and lodging and attendance.

Dennistoun, Peck and Kerr for the plaintiff and Dumble and Johnston for the defendants.

Crowley vs. C. G. E. Co.

The other jury case is that of Maurice Crowley against the C. G. E. Company, Limited, the plaintiff claiming $5,000 damages and costs for the loss of a hand in a rubber machine. The plaintiff was employed as a machine attendant from March, 8th, 1905, to February 28th, 1908, when the accident happened. On February 28th, 1908, he was engaged in passing rubber through a calender and withdrawing it, and in the course of this work his hand was caught between the rolls of the machine and the hand and arm were drawn in and crushed, causing grievous personal injuries. The plaintiff claims that in spite of the extremely dangerous character of the machine, it was improperly guarded and protected and was without any device to prevent accidents; also that the defendants were aware of the defective condition of the calender and permitted the same to remain in that condition, and the plaintiff did not at any time have any knowledge of such defect.

The defendants claim that the accident was caused by the plaintiff's own negligence, and he might by the exercise of reasonable care have avoided the accident.

O'Connell & Gordon for plaintiff, DuVernet, Raymond, Jones and Ardagh for defendants.

Non-Jury Cases

Ann Steadman is the daughter of the late Christopher Burton, of Smith, and by his last will is entitled to certain sums of money in said will particularly set forth. It is claimed that the defendants, as executors of the estate of the said Burton and for the plaintiff and other beneficiaries under said will, received a portion of the moneys and securities of the said estate, including moneys payable to the plaintiff and the defendants, have from time to time made payments to plaintiff, but still retain certain moneys in their hands for the benefit of the plaintiff. The latter claims that the defendants be required to furnish her with a detailed statement of all moneys received by them from said estate for her benefit, and of the investments, if any, of such money by the defendants; also she claims the payment of all such moneys by the defendants. Claims for costs are also asked.

Northey vs Edmison and Dixon

The other non-jury case is that of Solomon Northey against Edmison and Dixon. O'Connell and Gordon will represent Mr. Edmison and Roger, Bennett and Goodwill are Mr. Northe's solicitors.

DIVORCED AFTER QUARREL COUPLE MARRY ONE ANOTHER SECOND TIME

REV. MR. HENDERSON,
Pastor of the Charlotte Street Methodist Church, the Annual Meeting of which was held on Thursday.

Wedding Took Place This Week at Bridgeburg — Could Not Be Happy Without Each Other.

THEY WILL TRY IT AGAIN.

Examiner Special.

Welland, Ont., Feb. 20.—Mrs. Charles Rounds and Mr. James Rouse have had a unique matrimonial experience. At Bridgeburg, Ont., this week, they embarked on the troubled sea of matrimony for the second time together, when they were married by Rev. C. E. Stafford.

The lady's first husband, Charles Rounds, died several years ago. The young widow and James Rouse fell in love, and were married at Niagara Falls, N.Y. They resided in Welland.

The union was unsatisfactory and Mrs. Rouse secured a divorce in Detroit last fall. Then they realized that they could not live apart and the second marriage followed.

Mr. and Mrs. Rouse are now residing in Buffalo.

Opening Of S. H. Knox & Co's Big Peterborough Store Was Auspicious

Judging by the throngs which poured into the S. H. Knox & Co's new store on the occasion of the "public inspection" of the new establishment yesterday afternoon and evening, the people of Peterborough have just been waiting for such an institution. The store was thrown open to the public at 3 o'clock and long before that time there was a crowd waiting for the doors to open.

The store is essentially a five, ten and fifteen cent establishment. Fifteen cents is the highest price that is paid for any article on sale there, and the stock contains almost everything in the line of small ware that may be wanted. Tin and enamel ware, jewellry, glassware, stationery, hosiery, candy, music and tools, and many other articles are kept in stock. A feature is the candy department in which all varieties of candy may be secured at ridiculously low prices. The firm state that they lose rather than make money on their candies, but they are regarded as a good leader.

Music is another feature of the store and all the popular songs may be found here selling at 15c. Miss Eva Heard, of Peterborough, is presiding at the piano.

The Knox Company have no less than 93 stores in the United States and Canada, and are thus able to buy and sell articles far cheaper than the usual retailers. Their local store is bright, roomy and well equipped, and judging by the crowds present to-day when the place was thrown open for business, promises to speedily become one of the most popular business institutions in the city.

Some thirty-five girls are employed in the store, and none of them had an idle moment to-day.

Yesterday an orchestra under the direction of Mr. Rupert Gliddon was present and rendered a most enjoyable programme of popular music

REFUSED TO PAY IT

Mr. George Ruth Effects Trade of Properties Between Two Men— One Claims He Need Not Pay Commission.

A DIVISION COURT CASE.

If a real estate agent has two houses for sale and he effects a trade between the two owners is he entitled to a commission from each of the two parties?

This question of everyday occurs was brought out in a case at the Division Court yesterday. Mr. George Ruth had for sale a store at Springville, owned by Mr. George Monerief. He also had on his list a house in the city, the property of Mr. Archibald Reynolds. Mr. Ruth effected a sale for both by bringing about an exchange between the two men, Mr. Monerief paying a little cash balance. The latter paid Mr. Ruth his commission, but Mr. Reynolds refused to pay anything, and his counsel held that Mr. Ruth was not entitled to be paid by both men. Mr. R. F. McWilliams, representing Mr. Ruth, stated satisfactory service had been rendered to each of the men in the transaction, and his client should receive a commission from both.

Judge Weller remarked that in his opinion Mr. Ruth was entitled to be paid by both men, but he reserved judgment. Mr. Ruddy appeared in behalf of Mr. Reynolds.

"SALOME" PROTEST WAS UNHEEDED

Oscar Hammerstein Went on With the Show Despite Complaint of Society Women.

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 20. — Oscar Hammerstein was confronted with a protest from the city's society women against the production of Salome at the Philadelphia opera house last night. In a last desperate effort more than 60 women, all of them prominent in exclusive social circles, and well known as patrons of music and the arts generally, signed a petition calling for the suppression of the opera and pledging themselves to attend the opera. Not only was the list of signatures impressive numerically but in it were the names of women who have heretofore been identified with those who have supported Hammerstein's opera house. Salome was given as per programme.

DR. McCULLOCH TO GIVE A LECTURE

The Historical Society will hold its regular meeting on Tuesday, Feb. 23. The meeting will take place in the Collegiate Institute at 8 p. m. The lecture will be given by Dr. Malcolm McCulloch, the subject being "Beginnings in Medicine."

THE SPIRIT OF COMPROMISE EFFECTIVE IN SETTLEMENT

The Board of Works, in deciding to allow Mr. Wm. Logan the sum of $50 as damages, owing to the loss of business incurred by construction work on the Brock street bridge, practically excluding access to his business premises, corner of Aylmer and Brock streets, have acted commendably. No doubt Mr. Logan's business and business interests suffered by the interruption of traffic and possibly to the extent of $60, which he claimed. At a previous meeting the Board of Works offered Mr. Logan $30, which he refused. Compromise seems to be a good way, either in electing a bishop or settling a claim for damages; the Board in advancing its liberality from $30 to $50, came nearer to giving Mr. Logan's claim a just consideration. Mr. Logan is one of our oldest and best respected citizens. He was in business in the same place when the old bridge was built, and if retrospective compensation were considered, Mr. Logan's claim for $60 may have been nearer the equitable figure.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

TENDERS FOR SHOPS EAST OF WINNIPEG.

Sealed Tenders addressed to the undersigned and marked on the envelope "Tender for Shops," will be received at the office of the Commissioners of the Transcontinental Railway at Ottawa until 12 o'clock noon of the 10th day of March, 1909, for the construction and erection complete, in accordance with the plans and specifications of the Commissioners, of shops east of Winnipeg.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied by the Commissioners, which may be had on application to Mr. Hugh D. Lumsden, chief engineer, Ottawa, Ont.

Each tender must be signed and sealed by all the parties to the tender, and witnessed, and be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank of the Dominion of Canada, payable to the order of the Commissioners of the Transcontinental Railway for the sum of one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000).

The cheque deposited by the party whose tender is accepted, will be deposited to the credit of the Receiver General of Canada, as security for the due and faithful performance of the contract according to its terms. Cheques deposited by parties whose tenders are rejected will be returned within ten days after the signing of the contract.

By order,
P. E. RYAN,
Secretary.

LEVEL CROSSINGS.

In the matter of the protection of level crossings on railways, the Minister of Railways and Canals, suggests that the expense should be divided, as the Dominion and Provincial Governments and the municipalities all had a share of responsibility in bringing level crossings into existence. The Globe adds the suggestion that the municipalities where the dangerous crossings may exist should be the first to make a request for protection. This is logical on the face of it, but a little analysis will show that residents of other—adjacent—municipalities who would bear no direct share in the cost of protecting level crossings, will possibly derive the larger direct advantage. To be strictly equitable, the expense might be divided among the railways and the Dominion and Provincial Governments. The latter represent the whole body of people and as the people as a whole, who would enjoy the benefits would share the cost. At all events, railways should not bear the whole cost. Their existence and operation confer so many benefits on the public that a fair division of the cost of protecting the public should be aimed at. If as the Globe suggests initiative should be left to municipalities, there is less likely to be effective agitation if the municipality is to be mulcted in comparatively large expenditure as the result of taking action. If the initiative were left to the Railway Commission more authoritative, general and systematic action would be possible, and probable.

Too large a dispersion of responsibility for initiative leading to action, will not tend to the attainment of practical results.

THE "WHITE SLAVE" TRADE.

Canada was the pioneer in abolishing "black slavery"; the United States followed its example half a century later, but "white slavery," infinitely more odious exists on this continent. A circular has been received by the Examiner issued by the Board of Social and Moral Reform of the Presbyterian Church, directing attention to an article, written by Hon. E W Lewis, U. S. District Attorney, Chicago, on the subject of the "White Slave Traffic," which is described as the "foulest stain on 'Twentieth Century Life." The article says in part:

"The recent examination of more than 200 white slaves by the officers of the United States District Attorney, Chicago, has brought to light the fact that literally thousands of innocent girls from the country districts are every year entrapped into lives of hopeless slavery and degradation because parents in the country do not understand conditions as they exist, and how to protect their daughters from the white slave traders who have reduced the art of ruining young girls to a national and international system. I sincerely believe that nine-tenths of the parents of these thousands of girls who are every year snatched from lives of decency and comparative peace, and dragged into the slime of an existence in the white slave world, have no idea that there is really a trade in the ruin of girls—as there is a trade in cattle or sheep. • • •

The evidence obtained from questioning some 250 girls taken within the last four weeks in Chicago houses of ill-repute me to believe that not fewer than fifteen thousand girls have been imported into this country in the last year as white slaves. Of course this is only a guess—an approximate—it could be nothing else—but my own personal belief is that it is a conservative guess and well within the facts as to numbers. Then please remember that the girls imported are certainly but a mere fraction of the number recruited for the army of prostitution from home fields, from the cities, the towns, the villages of our own country. There is no possible escape from this conclusion.

Another significant fact brought out by the examination of these girls is that practically every one who admitted having parents begged that her real name be withheld from the public because of the sorrow and shame it would bring her parents. One said: "My mother thinks I'm studying in a stenographic school;" another stated, "My parents in the country think I have a good position in a department store—as I did have for a time—and I've sent them a little money from time to time; I don't care what happens so long as they don't know the truth about me." In a word, the one concern of nearly all those examined who have homes in this country was that their parents—and in particular their mothers — might discover, through the prosecution of the white slaves, that they were leading lives of shame instead of working at the honourable callings which they had left their homes and come to the city to pursue. There are, to put it mildly, hundreds — yea, thousands — of trusting mothers in the smaller cities the towns, the villages and farming communities of the United States who believe that their daughters are "getting on fine" in the city and too busy to come home for a visit or "to write much." While the fact is that these daughters have been swept into the gulf of white slavery—the worst doom that can befall a woman. The mother who has allowed her girl to go to the big city and work should find out what kind of life that girl is living—and find out from some other source than the girl herself. No matter how good and fine a girl she has been at home and how complete the confidence she has always inspired, find out how she is living, what kind of associates she is keeping. Take nothing for granted. You owe it to yourself and to her, and it is not disloyalty to go beyond her own words for evidence that the wolves of the city have not dragged her from safe paths. It is, instead, the highest form of loyalty to her."

There is ample evidence that this horrible traffic referred to above, (but with its most loathsome features withheld.) is not confined to the United States, but that Canada is used as a recruiting ground for the army of shame. This unspeakable traffic is carried on in this country and has been discovered in Montreal, Halifax, Toronto, Hamilton, Winnipeg, in the West and the Yukon, and even suspected in this county. While immigrant girls are most liable to being drawn into the snare, yet no girl who is willing to listen to tempting stories of employment in the United States related by richly dressed women or gentlemen, is free from danger unless she takes the great care and seeks the counsel of a mother or some friend wise in the ways and evils of the world.

SINNING IN IGNORANCE.

The Conservative Opposition at Ottawa have again demonstrated that their opposition to the Liberal Government and its works is not animated so much by a desire to promote or protect the interests of the country as to promote the interests of their party. The Conservatives have among them some critics who have been denouncing the fisheries treaty of Canada with the United States without knowing anything about what they are talking about. In the House on Thursday the irrelevant questions asked by members of the Opposition showed that they had never even read the treaty. Mr. Foster who poses as the potential leader of the Opposition and the authority that must be respected, fell into the trap baited by the ignorance of his critical colleagues. As reported, Mr. Foster came to grief in this wise:

It was at this point that Mr. Foster fell into a hole of his own digging. Impressed, by the lack of knowledge of the treaty which seemed to prevail on his own side of the House, he thought he saw an opportunity of scoring a point at the expense of the Government on the ground of unnecessary secrecy. "I think it is about time," he said, "that we on this side of the House had some of the information which is in the hands of the Government."

"Hear, hear," murmured some one on the Government side.

"I ask," continued the member for North Toronto, "that the treaty be laid on the table."

The House gasped in astonishment, and then, amid a roar of laughter, came the reply from Mr. Brodeur: "Why, the treaty was laid on the table last session."

The Minister of Marine and Fisheries was asked no more questions on the subject, and the House got quickly into supply on the estimates.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Cobalt's "blind pigs" are on the spot, but Cobalt's mining companies blind lambs are always outsiders.

It will cost $50,000 to inaugurate President Taft of the United States. This sum is moderate compared to what it cost to elect him.

What will commend the new fresh air wrinkle to the gentler sex is the fact that it keeps off the old stale air wrinkle stage. Sleeping with fresh air in chambers staves off wrinkles, while their development is promoted by sleeping in close, stuffy, unventilated rooms.

The Brantford Expositor is conducting an energetic publicity crusade; that is, advocating measures, looking to effectively advertising the advantages of Brantford as a manufacturing and residence centre. That is something that should engage the attention of our authorities — the City Council and the Board of Trade. The tendency is to talk a proposal to death. What we need is more action and less talk.

The estate of the late H C Hammond, Toronto, disposed under his will as probated, amounts to $1,205,000, upon which succession dues are a charge of between $75,000 and $100,000. The bequests to charities amount to only $33,000, but then Mr. Hammond was in the way of doing good while he lived, and devoting large sums to beneficent uses, when he could see to the proper application of his liberality.

The British police curtail Carrie Nation's little hatchet "work-outs," but they can't quench her spirit. It has been caught by the London suffragettes, whose assault on the London police is quite in line with Carrie's militant methods. The suffragettes consider the franchise as the heavenly ideal the supreme good, and they seem to wish to illustrate in spirit and literality the scripture which says "the Kingdom of Heaven suffereth violence and the violence taketh it by force."

Since 1907 in the United States thirty-five "national banks" with liabilities of sixty millions have failed, and including state banks, trust companies, etc., there have been more than 250 bank failures with liabilities aggregating $260,000,000. The Canadian banking system can't equal a record like that. Among our neighbours it is about as easy to establish a national bank as to open a corner grocery, but the line will hereafter be drawn closer.

The imagination of the Ottawa correspondent of the Mail and Empire is again working under high pressure. He writes to his paper on Thursday that he "is in a position to state positively that the Government has decided to place the Intercolonian Railway under a Commission." This imaginative gentleman also stated that the Commissioners have been decided upon in advance of the announcement in the House—"to head off political pressure." It is "political pressure' of the baser sort that leads the Mail and Empire to give currency to a report for which there is not the slightest authority. The responsible Minister, who is in charge of the railway, denies the report in toto. When the public wishes reliable information about politics they will go to any other source than the Mail and Empire, which has gained an unenvibale reputation for drawing the long bow, especially in matters relating to any effort to discredit its political opponents. If, in this matter, a good name is better than riches, the Mail and Empire must be quite bankrupt.

'ROUND THE STORES.

Retail business has been fairly active for this season of the year, during the past week. Some dealers, who have been making an extra "hustle," report that they have been able to move stocks by pushing their special value sales, and seem satisfied that prospects for spring are encouraging.

Buying a supply of stockings now is like buying flour or sugar or some standard staple. But staples like flour and sugar rarely go down so far in proportion to their every day value as hosiery prices do. Fancy cashmere hosiery, with silk embroidered fronts, are offered at Adams at 25c. a pair this week. A much finer and gorgeous line, often retailed for 75c. per pair, are ticketed 38c.

As the corset fits so does the gown. Your gown may be the work of the most artistic dressmaker and still be an utter failure, unless the right kind of corset is worn. The new French model corset made its appearance at Fair's this week. Every new feature is reproduced — the extra long, smooth back, dip hip models, etc., authorized correct styles for this season. If you want to wear the new gown you must invest in the "A La Grace" corset.

One of the secrets of cheap buying is to buy in advance. There are occasions when merchants sell at a sacrifice to clear stocks before the season's change. That is quite a legitimate proceeding and in the line of ordinary business. Just such a chance is now offered at Stratton's bookstore. For instance, thousands of rolls of wall papers are being offered at half original prices. See advertisement.

A proof of what good judicious advertising will do for a grocery store was furnished this week. Mr. W. J. Routley, who conducts the grocery at 168 Charlotte street, recently invested in a modest advertising contract with the Examiner. The growth in his business has since been quite marked in consequence. Instances of this growth were cheerfully given, showing that the increased sales could be clearly traced to the advertising. Particularly was this the case in the increased sales of Quaker flour, nearly five tons having been disposed of, where only about half that quantity was sold before in a similar period.

It looks as if some busy merchants did not care who gets the profits so long as they get the business. That is one way to look at the aggressive mid-winter clearing sales. Remnants of winter stocks that the firm is determined not to carry over, are certainly being sacrificed, and should prove economic chances for thoughtful buyers who look ahead. See the page advertisement full of interest.

What if we haven't an overflowing pocket book, need we hang down the corners of our mouths. If you want to get the worth of the bargains in life cultivate gladness. Why, all around us merchants vie with each other as to how they can best help us to enjoy things. Even in the opportunities to replenish our toilet articles, McDermid & Jury have prepared such a bargain in combs as must have cleared the entire line out.

PUTNAM'S PAINLESS CORN EXTRACTOR

SAYS WOMAN CANNOT REASON

Dr. Edgar Hoffman, the German scientist, declares that woman can only reason up to a certain point, after which she "sees blind," or in other words, loses sight of the question at issue.

His argument is to the effect that if the perfect mind were appraised at, say, 100 points, and the average mind at 50, it would be found that the ratio of practical mindedness in these two figures would be respectively 90 and 45. With a woman sentimentality would take the place of practical mindedness in similar ratios, the result being that, to an ordinary political, sociological or economic problem, a woman with a perfect feminine mind could bring to bear only 10 per cent of common sense, and an average woman five per cent. — which looks bad for the long suffering suffragettes.

When women, the German argues, somewhat after the line of Anatole France, show more than usually acuminous intellect, they are not really applying either knowledge or experience, but are simply making haphazard shots by the machinery of intuition. And, says Hoffman, when a woman shows an enduring and consistent intellectuality, it may be asserted positively that she is a-sexual, or without the ordinary attributes of love that characterize ordinarily constituted women.

From this he argues that a man who is really manful or manly is committing the worst of follies who ventures into matrimony with a woman who shows an inclination to high intellectual or even artistic pursuits that call for much devotion and labour. He holds that even female singers are a-sexual, or without real sex, and that they are wholly unfitted to mother normal children, and, indeed, wholly unfitted for the duties of maternity or love.—World.

SAVED BABY'S LIFE.

Mrs. T. Osborn, Norton Mills, Vt., says:—"I have no hesitation in saying that Baby's Own Tablets saved my baby's life and I cannot say enough in praise of this medicine. He was so weak and sickly that he took no notice of anything, and cried so much that I was worn out caring for him. After giving him the Tablets there was a great change, and he is now a bright-eyed, laughing baby, the pride of our home. Baby's Own Tablets cure all stomach and bowel troubles, break up colds, destroy worms and keep little ones healthy and happy. SMALL POX CASES NOT QUARANTINED

Man Nearly Recovered When Authorities Learned That He Had the Disease.

Port Hope, Feb. 19th.

A case of smallpox on Peter street was reported yesterday, and Chief Bond visited the residence. He found that the man had almost recovered from the disease and had never summoned medical attendance. The house was placarded, and quarantine will be enforced.

Cases of this kind cause the spread of the disease. We do not know, but it is very likely that the other members have been going to and from the house and mingling with the public. The Board of Health, of course, has not control over cases of this kind, and it is only by chance that they learn of them. No doubt there are many more in a similar position, and as long as people endeavor to keep it a secret the disease will spread.

Since its introduction, the New Scale Williams Piano has reigned supreme in the hearts of the music-loving public.

In homes, schools, convents, conservatories, universities—on the concert and operatic stage—the

SUFFERED TORTURES FOR 70 YEARS

Wife of a Prominent Physician Tells How She Was Cured.

Mrs. J. R. Flock is the widow of one of the best known physicians in London, Ontario. She was treated by her husband and many other medical men yet never received any lasting benefit. Just by accident, she tried a well-known remedy, and now, after 70 years of suffering, she is well. Read her letter to Fruit-a-tives Limited.

"Dear Sirs,—Since my early childhood (and I am now in my seventy-third year) I have suffered indescribable torment from stomach trouble and indigestion, complicated with liver disorders. Being the wife of a prominent physician (the late Dr. J. R. Flock), I, naturally enough, had a prejudice against proprietary remedies. I was, however, unable to benefit to any great extent through my lifetime, from taking the ordinary remedies of physicians, being constantly in delicate health from stomach disorder and vomiting. Accidentally I came into possession of a sample of "Fruit-a-tives"—tried them, and found myself wonderfully benefitted. I take them now as my only medicine and they are keeping me in the most satisfactory health.

After finding out the wonderful medicinal qualities of "Fruit-a-tives" I have recommended them to many of my friends and acquaintances, who have also had the best results from their use—and one lady friend that I have recently recommended them to, has used them for Sciatica, from which she suffered constantly and was unable to procure any remedy that would relieve her. She is now taking "Fruit-a-tives" and is cured.

I am glad to be able to recommend "Fruit-a-tives" and will be glad if you will use my name in any way that will be the means of bringing your remedy before the public."

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON QUESTIONS

Suggestive Questions on the Sunday School Lesson by Rev. Dr. Linscott for the International Newspaper Bible Study Club.

February 21st, 1909.

Golden Text — They stoned Stephen calling upon God and saying, Lord Jesus receive my spirit. Acts vii: 59.)

Study Acts vi: 8-15; vii: 54 to viii; 3.

Verse 8:— Who was Stephen?

In view of present day distinctions, would you call Stephen a layman or a clergyman?

Why is it not a crime against the gospel, that the preaching of the gospel is so professionalized, that our pulpits to-day in the towns and cities are practically closed to the laymen of the church, so that even men like Stephen have to "keep silent" in our church pulpits? (This question is to be answered in writing by members of the club.)

What was the secret of Stephen's power as a preacher, and to what extent may every layman become like him?

Verse 9 — When in a community of thoughtful men who oppose the gospel, can its claims be established better by debate than by ordinary preaching or declamation?

Verse 10 — If you defeat an opposer in a debate, that is not likely to convert him to Christianity; unless he is a sincere seeker after truth, is it likely to convert the hearers?

Verses 11-13 — What effect did Stephen's victory have upon his opponents and what effect did it probably have upon the audience?

Is there any necessary moral value in mere opinion, and will men ever be condemned because of wrong doctrines, i.e., wrong opinions?

When a man with right views of truth gets angry with the man with wrong views, and does mean things to him that the latter takes with gentleness, which is likely to be the better man of the two?

Why is it that men who profess religion can act so like devils, when new truth is presented to them as in this case?

Verse 14 — Can a man's word in a religious dispute be depended upon, on a matter of fact, if he is untrue to his conscience and to God?

How is it that unrighteous men will fight for their false religious creeds, and shrink from no sort of rascality to accomplish their purpose?

Can you give any other reason than their unrighteousness or assign to any other principle, the hatred of these men for so lovely a character as Stephen?

Verse 15—Did the fact that Stephen looked like an angel make his persecutors love, or hate him more?

Chap. 7, verse 54—What is it which cuts wrong doers to the heart more than anything else?

If these rulers had been innocent of the charge Stephen brought against them, would they have been cut to the heart as they were?

Verse 55 — What do you understand by Stephen being full of the Holy Spirit?

What did Stephen see when he looked up into heaven?

Would the onlookers have probably seen the same things as Stephen, if they had looked up?

Verse 56-57 — Did they believe Stephen's testimony as to what he saw?

Do cold professors of religion as a rule have any confidence in the experiences of those who walk and talk with God?

Verse 58 — How would these people justify themselves for committing this great crime?

What was the method of stoning a victim to death?

Verses 59-60 — Does the spirit sleep at death, or go into a state of conscious presence of God?

By what power can a man love or forgive his murderers?

Chap. 8, verses 1-3 — What was the measure of Saul's sin in the stoning of Stephen?

What were the chief results of the stoning of Stephen?

DAIRYMEN'S MEETING HELD AT HARWOOD

From Farm and Dairy.

"A great many people say that there is no profit in dairying," said James Stonehouse, of Port Perry, at a creamery meeting held recently, at Harwood, Ont., "and in many instances they are right. There are some men whom it costs 20 cents a lb. for every pound of butter they produce. These men, if they would watch the cost of production, could make a profit in dairying. There are thousands of dairy cows that are incapable of producing milk at a profit. They are undersized, poorly bred and their milking qualities have never been developed. I know of a farmer in my section who has not got a cow in his herd with an udder as large as my head. Such cows cannot produce milk profitably. A large proportion of our farmers keep such cows and wonder why they can't make dairying pay. Their factory returns do not average over $30 a cow a year. It costs that much to keep a cow.

"Such men, for the most part, are those who do not read good agricultural papers. If they did they would see how cows should be kept and what they should produce and would set to work to secure an improvement.

ARE NOT GIVEN A CHANCE

"There are thousands of cows that are poor producers simply because they are not properly fed. Many farmers make the mistake of treating their cows all alike. They do not realize that every cow has its own individuality. That is why it happens so frequently that good cattle feeders are able to buy good cows at low prices from farmers who do not recognize their values. Good care and judicious feeding have frequently doubled, trebled and quadrupled the value of dairy cows by giving them a chance to show what they were capable of in the production of milk."

Mr. Stonehouse showed the audience by means of the table, showing the composition of cattle foods, published on page 3 of Farm and Dairy for Jan. 21, copies of which were in the hands of the farmers present, that alfalfa hay contains 14.3 per cent. protein while wheat bran contains only 15 per cent. Alfalfa, he pointed out, is, therefore, worth almost as much for feed as wheat bran and it has the advantage that it can be produced much more cheaply.

SILOS PAY

Corn is often the salvation of the dairy farmer. Any man who says after two years' trial that silos do not pay must have followed wrong methods. The most successful dairymen, both in Canada and the United States are agreed that the use of ensilage is one of the secrets of successful dairy farming. In western Ontario farmers are coming back to the silo again. They have found that the blame for the poor results they obtained from their silos was theirs and could not be charged to their silos. Sometimes their trouble arose through not having the corn sufficiently matured before it was put away. In other cases it was not sufficiently tramped and the air was not excluded. Where silos do not give good returns the explanation may be found almost invariably in such reasons as those mentioned.

AN ADDRESS TO FARMERS.

From Farm and Dairy.

Probably one of the most inspiring addresses for the farmer or farmer's son given at the Poultry Institute, at the O. A. C., Guelph, last week, was delivered by Mr. Wilbur Bennett, of Peterboro, Ont. He is a young man in a similar position to many other boys on the Ontario farms, and is an example of what may be accomplished on the average farm.

Mr. Bennett began in a small way three years ago with cheap buildings. He had good birds obtained from the O. A. C. He keeps Buff Orpingtons and Barred Rocks, but he prefers the Orpingtons. He complains that the Rocks do not mature early enough. He has now increased his stock to 350 birds. His whole investment in equipment equals about $1.95 per fowl. He raises enough chickens each year to obtain sufficient pullets to replenish his flock. The cockerels from the early hatches which develop well are shipped to Montreal as broilers. The rest are crate fattened and sent to the same place for roasters in the fall and early winter. For these he receives from 10c to 12c a lb. f.o.b Peterboro.

From the sale of all the cockerels he makes sufficient to pay the cost of raising all his pullets. He ships his eggs to Montreal once a week and has received as high as 50c a doz. for them this winter. He aims to have his hatching all done by the 1st of May. About three hours a day is spent with his poultry. The balance of the day is given to the general farm work.

The poultry occupies about five acres of ground and from it he makes a profit of $450 a year, or more than is made from the other 95 acres of the farm. Surely this is an encouraging report, and surely there are more farm boys who can follow his example.

FAT IS OUT OF STYLE

To paraphrase Caesar's remark, the directoire gown came—was seen—and has conquered. So fat ladies are reduced, so to speak, to the necessity of either reducing at a very rapid rate or of eliminating themselves from public view until the fashion dies out. Otherwise they risk being ridiculous.

Since many fat ladies will not eliminate themselves, however, but, per contra, will insist on wearing the curveless gown, no course is open to this well-meaning scribe than to tell them how they may eliminate the fat.

What is there, then, that reduces fat safely? What pleasant inexpensive article is there on druggists' shelves that can reduce a pound a day without causing wrinkles or stomach ache? What can the pharmacists offer as an improvement over scanty victuals or ten mile walks without breakfast? Is there anything pleasant to take and inexpensive to buy that will reduce one uniformly, quickly and innocently thirty pounds a month? Here is the answer: Either write the Marmola Company, Detroit, Mich., or ask your local druggist for Marmola Prescription Tablets, and for 75 cents they or he will give you one large case of these fat reducers, containing so generous a quantity of tablets that sometimes only one case is needed to produce the desired results. Can you match that for a simple solution of your problem?

MR. J. C. HERVUS PELLETIER

Bronchial Catarrh Unless Stopped Often Spreads To The Lungs, Causing Catarrh of Lungs.

J. C. Hervus Pelletier, Dep't de l'Agriculture, Ottawa, Ont., writes: "The Peruna is particularly efficacious in the cure of catarrhal affections of the lungs and bronchial tubes, and it is in consequence the remedy most appreciated here in Ottawa. Six bottles cured me this winter of bronchitis. I am completely restored and I owe thanks to the Peruna. I have recommended this remedy to a large number of my friends afflicted with the same trouble, and they have verified my good opinion of this valuable remedy."

CATARRH of the bronchial tubes often very quickly becomes catarrh of the lungs. Catarrh of the lungs makes the patient an easy victim to the germs that cause tuberculosis. Some lungs protect themselves against disease germs.

Peruna has acquired a lasting reputation in relieving catarrh of the throat, bronchial tubes and lungs. This should prevent the tubercular bacilli from gaining any foothold in the lungs, and saves the patient from the inevitable result.

Mr. Wickliffe R. Smith, Editor of The Potlatch Herald, formerly Principal of the Schools at Cameron, Idaho, writes: "For some time I suffered with catarrh of the throat and bronchial tubes. I tried many remedies, but could find nothing that would give me relief.

"Finally I tried Peruna. Three bottles cured me, made me sound and well. I believe it will do as much for others as it did for me. I shall be glad to recommend it to those suffering with catarrh."

Rid Out Your Foot Troubles by wearing the

Arrowsmith Arch Prop

Prescribed by Leading Physicians and Orthopedists for Weak Instep.

Made of German Silver

The prop will not rust. It is easy and springy to the foot. A pleasure to wear. It can be gradually heightened as the condition of the foot improves. The fingers of the Prop can be brought against the side of the arch with the desired pressure. Unlike the ordinary rigid steel insole, it does not occupy the entire inner sole of the shoe, but extends only to the ball of the foot, being held in place by the pressure of the heel.

CHATS ABOUT FAMOUS BOOKS AND THEIR AUTHORS

By F. M. D.

The year that witnessed the birth of Milton, witnessed also the appearance into the world of two other great Englishmen, Edward Hyde, Earl of Clarendon, author of the History of the Rebellion, (who died in the same year as Milton, 1674), and Thomas Fuller, author of the "Worthies of England."

A Brilliant Galaxy of Authors

John Milton, the most illustrious of the trio, and the greatest epic poet that England has ever produced, was born in London, on December 9th, 1608. His father was a scrivener, or lawyer, who had originally been a Roman Catholic, but abjuring the faith of his fathers, had turned into a most rigid Puritan.

The first sixteen years of Milton's life were spent in Bread street, London, where he received an excellent education. At the conclusion of this period he went to Christ Church, Cambridge, where he spent the succeeding seven years. His studious tastes had shown themselves at an early age. While yet a school boy he had learned to write capital Latin and Greek, both in prose and verse, and had acquired also a slight smattering of Hebrew. His career at the university is not spoken of as being extraordinarily brilliant, and he seems to have been more noted for the beauty of his person than for his scholarship. His brother students dubbed him the "Lady of Christ's College," on account of the womanly cast of his features.

Milton was, however, by no means effeminate in his character, as was evinced even at this early stage in his career, by his being compelled to leave college on account of a warm dispute with his pupil, Chappel, who was afterwards Provost of Trinity College, Dublin.

On leaving the university in 1632, Milton retired to his father's country house at Horton, in Buckinghamshire, where he remained for the following five years, and it was during this period that he composed L'Allegro, Il Penseroso, Arcades, Comus and Lycidas. Il Penseroso is said to have been suggested to him by a perusal of "The Anatomy of Melancholy," written by that curious author, Robert Burton.

Death of Milton's Mother

The death of Milton's mother took place in 1637, and the tie that had bound him so closely to Horton being thus rudely broken Milton determined to undertake a continental tour. For fifteen months he travelled through France and Italy, meeting in the course of his travels, Grotius, the great Dutch statesman and writer, at Paris, and Galileo, whom he visited in the prison of the Inquisition at Florence. He seems to have been received with open arms wherever he went. At Naples, the furthest point reached by him in his continental tour, he found a firm and hospitable friend in the Marquis Giovanni Batista Manso, the friend and biographer of Tasso, who showed him every courtesy at his command.

Milton as a Teacher

On his return to England Milton took up the work of teaching, and for ten long years continued at this work, until he received his appointment as Foreign Secretary under Cromwell, in 1649.

During his years of teaching his pen had not been idle, for he was engaged in violent attacks upon Episcopacy and in Pamphlets on Divorce, in the latter of which he declared that the notion of a sacramental sanctity in the marriage relation was a clerical invention and that incompatibility of character or contrariety of mind between two married persons was a perfectly just reason for divorce. Even in that age of looseness of living, this presentation of the matter caused considerable noise. He was not only attacked fiercely through the press, but strenuous efforts were made to bring him under parliamentary censure. Those were the days of licensed printing and seeing no other way open to them, his opponents taking advantage of the fact that his first treatise on Divorce had been published without registration brought the matter before Parliament.

This procedure caused Milton to publish the famous Areopagitica. A speech for the liberty of unlicensed printing, perhaps the finest piece of prose work that Milton ever accomplished. It gave the death blow to the hoped-for enactment and freed Milton from parliamentary condemnation. There is little doubt but that Milton's articles on Divorce had been occasioned by the treatment meted out to him by his wife, whom he had married in 1644, and who after living with Milton for a few weeks deserted him and returned to her father's home. After an absence of two years she returned to Milton, a reconciliation having taken place between the two and they seem to have lived fairly amicably together until her death in 1653.

The publication of his work "The Tenure of Kings and Magistrates" which argued the lawfulness of Charles Stuart's execution, was the cause of procuring Milton the office of Foreign Secretary at a salary of £290 a year.

Milton a Bitter Controversialist

Biographers of Milton have been sedulous in saying that he was a man of gentle, quiet disposition. These characteristics are not particularly noticeable in his controversial works. His Eikonoklastes was a most virulent and rancorous assault on the memory of Charles I and utterly unworthy of a man of his indisputably high character. In his succeeding quarrel with Salmasius, the Leyden Professor, on the same subject, Milton showed far more dignity.

Salmasius got the worst of this struggle, and is said to have been so mortified at the result that it hastened his death. Certainly the style of argument used in those days was vastly different from that in vogue at present time. Salmasius talked of Milton as a "puny man" a "bloodless being" "nothing but skin and bones", "a contemptible pedagogue fit only to flog boys," etc Milton stung by this, rejoined that he was never considered unbeautiful, that his size was not diminutive, and that although past 40 he felt ten years younger in every respect.

Facts About the American Indian' Healthy Hair.

The American Indian accustomed from time immemorial to go bareheaded in all kinds of weather is never troubled with falling hair or baldness.

The close atmosphere caused by our "civilized" head-gear is conducive to the breeding of infinitesimal germs which dig into the scalp and thrive on the cap of the hair-root.

This true cause of baldness is of recent discovery and explains the non-success of all hair vigo which treated baldness as a functional disorder.

Newbro's Herpicide is a direct exterminator of the germ. It destroys the cause and permits the hair to grow as nature intended.

SPECIAL ENGAGEMENT OF NOTED BOSTON SOLOIST

Mrs. Margaret Walsh, a noted Boston soloist, is announced to fill an engagement for one week at the Theatre Royal, commencing Monday, February 22nd.

Mrs. Walsh has been singing to appreciative audiences in Toronto during the past week. She is a refined vocalist, an attractive figure on the stage and was leader in Symphony Clubs of Boston, where she has appeared before most critical musical audiences in that critical musical city.

Her little daughter, ten years of age, will also appear and give some rare performances on the piano, for one of her age. She will also sing a number of her song gems in a very fascinating manner.

THE LOCAL OPTION MOVEMENT EXPLAINED

The matter appearing in this space from time to time is furnished by the Temperance and Moral Reform League of this City, who have arranged for its Publication.

OUTSPOKEN WORDS BY THE REV. E. A. PEARSON.

The meetings being held every Sunday afternoon in the Crystal are proving one of the most important lines of work being carried on by the temperance workers in the Peterborough local option campaign. Leading citizens are attending and speaking and the interest and enthusiasm is growing.

Rev. E. A. Pearson, pastor of the George St. Church, explained at a recent meeting, how it is that the local option movement is spreading so rapidly both in Canada and the United States. The following is an outline of Mr. Pearson's remarks:

PEOPLE ARE AROUSED.

The people of the United States and Canada were never so aroused upon the matter of temperance reform as they are to-day. Some things have become settled as a result of the agitation and discussions of the past fifty years. As a rule, those who are the opponents of the temperance people to-day, were their antagonists yesterday; those who so pleadingly urge us to let well enough alone, and tell us that if we will but cease this agitation for Local Option, they will cooperate with us in the enforcement of the excellent law we now possess, are the very people who have so bitterly fought us at every step. Things would not be as they are, if they could have had their way.

1. We are agreed to-day that "Wine is a Mocker." It was so written by inspiration some thousands of years ago, but the world has been reluctant to concede it. It mocks the dignity of man. It mocks the sanctity of law. It mocks industry and prosperity. It mocks religion. It mocks God. It is to-day accepted as a self-evident fact, that "Wine is a mocker and he that is deceived thereby is not wise."

2. Another fact which the people have come to understand is that the Bar Room is the citadel of this entrenched evil. There may be a difference of opinion to the individual right of indulgence. There is no difference of opinion as the character of the bar room. It has done evil and only evil all the days of its life, and there is not one good thing to be said for it. From these places, multitudes of men stagger along to fill our jails, and insane asylums, and later our poor houses, dragging with them pale faced women and weeping children. The citizens of Canada have to maintain these institutions, so largely the creation of the liquor traffic. Out of the Bar Room they reel into the world to wreck their own lives, ruin their homes, to burden society—on they go to dishonoured graves, often to potter's fields, always into that awful night from which returns a voice "No drunkard shall inherit the Kingdom of God."

Behind the bar room and its victims is an organized liquor traffic, the greatest of all ungodly trusts and syndicates. It has been stated that in the City of New York 6,000 of its 10,000 saloons are under chattel mortgages and these mortgages are held by a combine of distillers and brewers, who are controlled in turn by an executive board of about 20 men. In other words the majority of the saloons are practically owned and controlled by 20 men.

The bar is never decent: it is bad, always and only bad. It is accursed of God and man and the people are thoughtfully and deliberately determining that it must go.

3. The people have at last come to the conclusion that the remedy is in their own hands and that that remedy is law. The first method of meeting the ravages of the drink habit was Moral Suasion. But we have come now to see that it is waste of time to coax a mad dog or argue with a rattle snake. The conviction of the people to-day voices itself in this way:

"Mental Suasion for the man who thinks,
Moral Suasion for the man who drinks;
Legal Suasion for the drunkard maker;
Prison Suasion for the Statute breaker."

After moral suasion the people came to favor regulation of license. But slowly and surely this method is coming into disrepute as men see that every vote cast for license—high or low—is the personal permission given by the voter to this traffic to carry on its work of making the earth a hell.

Apart from Suasion and Regulation the only alternative is prohibition. Local option is simply Prohibition by separate single municipalities. By this method in America wonderful progress is being made toward national Prohibition.

OBJECTIONS ANSWERED

There are two main objections urged against Prohibition or Local Option.

1st. It is an interference with personal liberty. To put it bluntly the friend of the liquor traffic says "Mind your own business." If you don't want to drink, refrain from it and don't meddle with us." But surely this old cry about personal liberty and sumptuary legislation is worn out to-day. A great liquor journal in the United States recently stated that henceforth the liquor trade must fight its battle from the stand-point of the general good as opposed to personal freedom for "the people to-day will not have it otherwise." Surely we see that the only freedom we have in this country is not personal but social freedom. "Salus Populi suprema lex"—the welfare of the people is the highest law. And we are all within our rights in Peterborough in passing Local Option, even though it curtail the personal liberty of some, if such action is for the general good of our city. Every red placard on the door of a dwelling in Peterboro, indicating that Scarlet Fever is in that home, means to us, and we make no objection, that the welfare of the people must override personal liberty.

Two statements once made in my hearing by Dr. Haverson, the legal adviser of the liquor party in Ontario, will show the unbrotherly and unchristian viewpoint of many of our opponents. When urged at the meeting of a certain Liquor Board, to desist from seeking to secure a bar license for a certain young man, as it would be a blessing to him to be free from the business, his reply was "if he swims in whiskey, that is his own concern, not mine." Again, he said, "whiskey is a heaven sent method of weeding out the incompetents of the world."

Lovers of humanity, what think you of such statements? Has not this liquor dragon devoured many of our brightest and best?

2nd. It is claimed that Prohibition does not prohibit. If this means that it does not wholly prevent the use of intoxicating liquors, the point is well taken; but a like objection can be made against any of the Ten Commandments. In neither case should failure to prevent the evils aimed at be given as a good reason for displacing them to make way for license laws. But the facts are all against this statement. Nobody says that Local Option in Peterboro will mean the entire elimination of the consumption of liquor, but every body whose eyes are open, sees and knows that it will be enormously lessened.

If Prohibition does not prohibit, "what fools these mortals be," who oppose it. If prohibition does not prohibit, who's to blame? The makers and sellers of intoxicating drinks, who, generally speaking, have always been arrayed against and willing to break the law. The liquor traffic is the greatest law-breaker in the community to-day; and those who thus wink at our laws should receive the same treatment that any law breaker would receive at the hands of justice.

We are in this fight to win—victory may be delayed, but it is assured.

"For right is right since God is God
And right the day must win
To doubt would be disloyalty
To falter would be sin."

CAMPAIGN NOTES

Mr. Denis O'Shea, of Norwood, formerly of Peterborough, while in the city on business this week, informed some of our local temperance workers that local option is proving a great success in Norwood. He stated that the moral tone of the village has improved so greatly Norwood is like a different place.

An encouraging feature of the local option campaign in Ontario is the splendid manner in which the law is being enforced. Every week or so the papers report the case of some law-breaker being sent to gaol for a second offence and not merely fined as used to be the case. Recently Frank Miller, a hotel keeper in Stouffville, a local option district was sent to goal for four months for illegal sale of liquor.

As a result of the unseating of the St. Catharines City Council on a technicality the License Reduction By-law that was voted on and carried there on election day cannot now come into operation this year. The time having passed when the by-law can be read a third time, and the reading it has received by the now defunct council being illegal, like all the other acts of that council, it will not now be possible to legally give the third reading which is necessary to bring it into operation. It is to be hoped that the people of St. Catharines will now decide to go in for Local Option and wipe the whole thing out.

The interest that the ladies are showing in the Peterborough local campaign shows that they are going to do their part. They will have charge of the meeting that will be held in the Crystal to-morrow (Sunday) afternoon at 4.15. Ladies representing the different churches will give five minute addresses. A lady will preside. Everybody welcome.

LARGE MARKET THIS MORNING

Butter and Eggs Were in Abundance But There Were Very Few Fowl.

The market this morning was a very large one, judging from the amount of people present from a distance. It consisted solely of butter and eggs, except for a very few exceptions where fowl were were sold. The tables were all filled to the overflow with butter and eggs, which were selling cheaply in some places. eggs coming down as low as 22 cents per dozen, while again in other places going up to 30 cents per dozen. The following are the prevailing prices at this morning's (Saturday's) market:—

Beef	6c and 7c
Pork	10c and 11c
Chickens	60c
Turkeys	1.75 to 3.00
Hides	8.50
Hogs, dressed	9.50
Hogs live	6.75
Hay baled	$13 to $14
Hay, loose	$11 to $14
Butter	27c and 28c
Eggs	22c to 30c

S. H. Knox Co. Purchase Big Corner Property In Toronto

It has now transpired that the S H Knox Co. are the purchasers of the Philip Jamieson building at the north-west corner of Queen and Yonge streets, which deal was closed a few weeks ago, the price for the building being $80,000. The total price, including building and lease, was $209,00 cash.

The lease of the ground was granted originally to Mr. Jamieson by the Dominion Government to be renewable every 21 years, but a few years ago the McMaster Estate took the property over from the Government for $110,000 subject to the lease held by Mr. Jamieson.

As the situation now stands, the S. H. Knox Company is owner of the building, and lessee of the land owned by the McMaster Estate.

To Run 95 Years

The Knox Company is figuring on opening up in their new premises early in the spring.

Details of the lease cannot be found out, other than it has now 95 years to run. Neither the local officials of the Knox Company or Mr. Robins, who put the deal through, will discuss the deal at all. Mr. Robins while neither affirming or denying anything, said to-day that it would be some little time yet before he could talk about the big corner. The property is 40 feet by 82, and the building is five stories high.—Telegram.

Annual Meeting Of Charlotte Street Methodist Church

At a well attended meeting in the lecture room of the Charlotte street Methodist church on Tuesday evening last the financial report of the church for the year 1908 was presented and read by the different representatives of the many branches of the church. It might be stated here that the church is entirely free from debt and has never in its history been so prosperous as the time it has been under the leadership of Rev. G. W. Henderson, the present pastor and has never been in a more active state.

The pastor presided at the meeting and reports were read the first being the statement of assets and liabilities; the assets being church property valued at $10,000 and the liabilities $577.50. The second report read was that on the trustee board receipts amounted to $1,357 55 and the expenditures were $883 50, leaving a nice balance on hand of $439.95.

The next report read was that of the quarterly board. This showed the receipts to amount to $2,058.72 and the expenditures were the same. The Women's Missionary Society's report for the year ending May 1908 was next read and showed the receipts to be $115.04, expenditures were $110. 64 leaving a balance of $4.40 on the treasury.

The Mission Circle report showed receipts in this department to be $203.62 and the expenditures were $171.65, having a balance of $31.97 The next report read was that of the Olive Mission Band, the receipts were $42 68, with no expenditures.

The Sunday School report was then read and was given in full and is as follows—

The Annual business meeting of the Charlotte Street Methodist Sunday School was held Tuesday evening the 16th inst. After the usual routine of business was transacted the following teachers and officers were elected for the ensuing year—

Supt.—Mr. R. Kidd
1st Asst.—Dr. Morrison
2nd Asst.—Mr. Geo J. Tovey
3rd Asst.—Mr. Downie
Sec. Treas.—Percy Hamilton
Asst. Sec. Treas.—Mrs. E. Tovey
Librarian—W. H. Hamilton.
1st Asst Lib.—Mr. F. Sandy
2nd Asst Lib.—Mr. McClelland
3rd Asst. Lib.—Mr Emmerson.
Pianist—Miss S. Campbell.

The teachers were all re appointed to their former classes.

The Secretary treasurer's annual report which was presented at this meeting shows the school to be in a very flourishing condition, notwithstanding that the new Methodist connection in the south part of the city has removed several scholars and teachers, the school has an increase of 51 over last year. During the year 276 of the scholars have signed the pledge to abstain from the use of tobacco, liquors and profane languages, and 30 have united themselves with the church.

The statement of the Epworth League from December 31st 1907 to December 31st, 1908, showed the receipts to be $119.57, expenditure $112 89 with the balance of $6 62 to begin the present year on. The report of the Ladies' Aid Society was next read. This showed receipts to be $437 09 and the disbursements were $374.71 leaving the substantial balance in the bank of $63.28.

The Boys' Guild and the Men's Brotherhood reports were read and total number of boys in the guild is 34 and the Men's Brotherhood has 68 members.

Before the meeting started a musical programme was rendered by Miss Dawson, Miss Howell and Mr. Dowey, their singing being greatly appreciated by the audience. During the evening refreshments were served by the ladies of the church and the evening was enjoyed by all present.

THE THREE MUSKETEERS.

Probably the heaviest production ever attempted by local amateurs in Peterborough was the "Three Musketeers," which was produced at the Conservatory Music Hall last night, under the direction of Mr. D. Oscar Waring.

The celebrated Dumas drama has long been a favourite attraction when given by professional players of high ability, and the local artists are to be commended on the showing they made as amateurs, the majority of those taking part never having appeared on the boards before. The costuming of the presentation was excellent and the scenic settings were also acceptable, considering the disadvantage for the lack of material for giving the proper effect in this latter respect. Rehearsals of the play have been held for a considerable time, and the cast were well drilled in the lines and the business of the respective parts. A story of depth and interest is told in the interpretation of the piece.

The clever acting of Mr. D. Oscar Waring as Cardinal Richelieu, was the outstanding feature of the play. He portrayed the part of the intriguing and crafty Cardinal in a most convincing manner, and showed his ability as an intelligent interpreter of a heavy and difficult role.

As the impulsive and bold D'Artagnan, Mr. Herb Rush was seen to much advantage. Miss Ethel Packenham assumed the role of Queen Ann, of Austria, and her expression of the part was most satisfactory. As Athos, Porthos and Aramis, the three soldiers of the musketeer guard, Messrs. H. E. Potter, Ed. Gardiner and George Marshall took their parts well. Miss E. Gardiner gave a good reading as the role of Lady de Winter. The audience at frequent intervals by its hearty applause expressed its appreciation of the work of those taking part.

Cast of Character

The cast of characters was as follows:

King Louis XIII of France—Mr. A. Weart.
Cardinal Richelieu—D. Oscar Waring.
Duke of Buckingham; Capt. Le Tour (Capt. Cardinal's Guards)—Mr. A. Packenham.
Count De Rochefort — Mr. Charles H. Reid.
De Trevils (Capt. of the King's Musketeers)—Mr. S. Ducoett.
Athos, Porthos, Aramis, three soldiers of the Musketeer Guard—Mr. H. C. M. Potter, Mr. Ed. Gardiner, Mr. George Marshall.
D'Artagnan (an adventurer) — Mr. Herb Rush.
Rochefeaux (A spy of Richelieu's) Pouchet (Host of the "Jolly Miller") —Mr. Mat. Drysdale.
Jacques (a waiter)—Mr. Alma Fox.
Ann of Austria (Consort of King Louis)—Miss Ethel Packenham.
Lady De Winter (an agent of Richelieu's)—Miss E. Gardiner.
Constance (the Queen's Tirewoman, a foundling)—Miss E. Strong.
Manette (a village girl)—Miss Olga Haskill.

The scenes of the play were:

Act 1

Scene I.—Courtyard of the Maison d'or, on the road to Paris.
Scene II.—Bonacieux House (D'Artagnan's lodgings).
Scene III.—Queen's Reception Chamber at the Louvre.

Act 2

Scene I.—Exterior of the Fort St. Leon.
Scene II. — Bonacieux House (D'Artagnan's lodgings).
Scene III—Room in the Maison d'or returning from Paris).

Act 3

Scene I.—Street in Paris.
Scene II.—Chamber of the Sign of the Cygogne (the meeting place).
Scene III. — Queen's Reception Chamber at the Louvre.
Scene IV.—Grand Salon in the Louvre.

Between the scenes of the play Miss Choate gave an artistically played and much enjoyed violin solo.

Miss Reesor sang in fine voice and Miss Foy gave a much appreciated piano selection.

"The Three Musketeers" was given under the auspices of the A. Y. P. A. of St. Luke's Church.

COUNT THE COST.

Count all the shame and the sorrow and tears,
Count all the homes that are wretched and sad,
Count all the men who have gone to the bad.

Count all the staggering steps that you meet,
Count all the oaths that you hear on the street,
Count all the stricken ones, tempted and tossed,
Count all the hopes that are blighted and lost.

Count all the children sent hungry to bed,
Because there's no money with which to buy bread;
Count all the hardships the innocent bear,
That a few may get rich and have money to spare.

Count all these things—the result of strong drink—
Enough to make any one seriously think;
And then, in your heart, can you honestly say
"I'll vote that bar-rooms in Bowmanville shall stay."

What a horrible sum this addition does make,
When you count things up and a view of them take;
And how shall we stop this increase of woe
Unless 'tis voting, the bar-rooms must go?

And this we will do, by God's helpful grace;
No longer shall Bowmanville remain in disgrace.
Our purpose is settled, the decree has gone forth
To vote out the bar-rooms on Monday the 4th.

Whitby, December, 1908. Rev. D. O. CROSSLEY.

Note.—The above was the last thing written by Mr. Crossley. His death, it will be remembered, followed closely on the election.

Anti-Cant Writes Answer To Rev. Mr. Pogue's Anti-"Salome" Letter

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir—I am not a theatre goer I have not for some months been in the Opera House till last night. I was attracted there by Mr. Pogue's letter in the Examiner, and I visited the Opera House last night to see for myself whether the play justified the violent letter in the paper or whether the reverend gentleman was as much mistaken in this matter as he is in the judgment exercised in some of his methods and sermons.

I found that not one word of his intemperate letter was justified I found that there was nothing bad about the play except the acting, and Salome's voice might be better of a course of lessons.

I am not writing to defend or condemn theatre going Each one's view of right or wrong or taste must govern in this respect.

I just write to say to the reverend gentleman that he should be more careful before he again rushes into print to condemn something, which events show he knows nothing about, as is the case in a great many things he literally threshes out in the pulpit. Were I to say in print, what I have heard many members of his congregation say, he would not perhaps like it. He would not like it to be felt that one half his sermons might appeal to the socialistic element of a great city or lovers of lurid sensation of the class of Yankee yellow journals. He will find that preaching the straight gospel and attending to matters coming within the duties of a minister will conduce to a more protracted citizenship of Peterborough.

A man who poses as a great moral teacher and social revolutionist, will gain influence by taking care to know what he is talking about before he begins to talk—or write letters to the newspapers.

Yours truly.

Presentation Was Made To Superintendent Of Sunday School

The teachers and officers of Grace Church Sunday School, made a friendly invasion of 234 Antrim street, the home of Mr. J J Hartley, last night; and in recognition of Mr. Hartley's faithful services in the capacity of superintendent of the school, presented him with a beautiful electric reading lamp accompanied with the following address:

Dear Mr. Hartley,—It is with feelings of great pleasure that we meet with you to-night; we rejoice in the relation of Christian fellowship which has bound us, as teachers and officers of Grace Church Sabbath School to you during the past years.

Your noble record of faithful service in connection with our Sabbath School leaves its impress on our lives. Your humble consistent Christian walk and your diligent self-sacrificing efforts in the Master's cause are a constant example to us all, and in accord with this we wish to express our appreciation to you.

We would ask you to accept this lamp and the earnest prayer of our hearts is that He who directs the paths of those who commit their ways unto Him may still be your constant Guide, as the cloud of Jehovah's presence glorified the tent in the wilderness, so may His presence abiding in you, glorify your life and make all your work divine.

We trust that you may yet be long spared to us in the relation of superintendent of our Sabbath School, and

When working days are o'er for thee,
May the rich music of thy life flow on eternally.

Signed on behalf of the officers and teachers,

WILLIAM HARTLEY,
MABEL CURTIS.

The address was read by Miss Mabel Curtis and the presentation made by Mr. Norman Allison.

Mr. Hartley made a suitable and grateful reply, and he and Mrs. Hartley entertained their welcome guests to refreshments and a pleasant hour or two, spent in music and social intercourse was concluded by the singing of "God Be With You Till We Meet Again."

Comes Proof of Another Wonderful Cure by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Skipton, Duck Lake, Sask. Feb 19. Special—"After thirteen years suffering from kidney disease brought on an accident, Mark Southern, of Beaker Farm near here, is a well man and is not slow to state that he owes his cure to Dodd's Kidney Pills

"It began with pains in my back" Mr. Southern says, "and across my loins, and of late years I became very weak and for days I had to keep to my bed. I had all kinds of advice and tried a great many medicines but all to no purpose.

"Reading an advertisement induced me to give Dodd's Kidney Pills a trial and I wrote for six boxes. After taking the first box I began to feel relief and after using five boxes I felt quite well again. I am now able to get about my work and feel no effects whatever from the old complaint."

Dodd's Kidney Pills clean all Kidney Diseases and all diseases resulting from disordered Kidneys right out of the system. That's how they cure Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Dropsy, Rheumatism and Backache. They do it by putting the Kidneys in good working order and they always do it.

GLASSES ARE PLENTIFUL

But it is almost a certainty that they would be even more common still if everybody wore them who should. You find people doing without them just as long as they possibly can, which is a very wrong thing to do, indeed, every day makes the case harder to deal with. If you, Reader, have the slightest cause to believe that your eyes need the attention of an Optician, we shall be pleased to advise you if you need glasses, and if glasses are not necessary we will tell you so. We invite you to call and ask us about your eyes.

DYED TO SAVE LIFE.

Lady Ramsay Was Saved In Indian Mut...y by Ayah.

The history of the family of the Dukes of Atholl, the heir to which title, the Marquis of Tullibardine, has celebrated his 37th birthday, goes far back into the mists of antiquity, for the first Earl of Tullibardine, who received the title in 1606, was twelfth hereditary baron of that place. Lord Tullibardine entered the Black Watch at one-and-twenty, and two years later exchanged into the Royal Horse Guards, his first public appearance as an offices of the latter regiment being an unfortunate one. It was on the occasion of the wedding of the Prince and Princess of Wales, and Lord Tullibardine was acting as a member of the guard of honor to Their Royal Highnesses, when his horse stumbled and threw him heavily. Probably his helmet saved his life, but he was badly hurt both by the fall and by the animal trampling on him. In 1896 he volunteered for active service in Egypt, and distinguished himself at Atbara and Omdurman, gaining two medals, clasp, and a D. S. O. His special exploit was to dash through the Dervishes in order to reach two wounded troopers, and after Omdurman he and Mr. Winston Churchill went among the Dervish wounded—a very perilous undertaking—to give them water. The marquis, moreover, extracted a bullet from a Dervish's arm with a buttonhook in his pocketknife. Lady Tullibardine, daughter of Sir James Ramsay, like several of her family, is a Christian Scientist. Her mother, the late Lady Ramsay, met with a curious experience as a baby. She was saved by her ayah during the Indian mutiny, by being stained the dark-brown color of the native infant. Lady Tullibardine will always remember her home-coming as a bride to Blair Castle, Blair Atholl, for there is an old custom in the family that a bride must never walk across the threshold, but must be carried over in the arms of old retainers. This pretty ceremony has always been most religiously observed.

Stormed Church to See a Wedding.

The earldom held by Lord Granard, whose marriage to Miss Beatrice Mills, daughter of Mr. Ogden Mills, and niece of Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, has taken place, dates back to 1648. But there was a barony in the family long before this, for Sir Alexander Forbes, who married a granddaughter of the Scotch King, Robert III., was created Lord Forbes by King James II., of Scotland, in 1448. Lord Granard saw active service with the Scots Guards in South Africa. Miss Beatrice Mills is one of the wealthiest heiresses in New York. She is a good rider, and fond of outdoor pursuits, and is a splendid singer. As is only natural, the wedding was looked forward to with considerable interest, and in this connection one is reminded that a ceremony of such importance is sometimes the cause of a regrettable lack of manners among ardent persons eager to be present. On one occasion, a determined woman headed a number of others equally determined, all of whom asserted that they would, at any cost, "get in" to the church where an English nobleman was to marry an American heiress. They succeeded in carrying out their threat, but the leader of the band was roughly handled, and her clothes were in tatters. Not in the least daunted at this, however, she went up to the bride's mother and said, "Mrs. ——, you see I've got right here, and I heartily congratulate you and your daughter and son-in-law." But owing to her dishevelled appearance the congratulations were received in stony silence.

Versatility of Lord Tankerville.

The Earl of Tankerville, whose name has figured in an interesting case in the Chancery Division lately, is one of the most philanthropic and versatile members of the Upper House. He is a noted athlete and sportsman, as well as a painter of much talent and a good musician. He also numbers orchid-growing amongst his hobbies, and not the least interesting fact concerning both he and his wife is that they are keenly interested in evangelical movements. As Lord Bennet he was for a long time the intimate friend and co-worker of Messrs. Moody and Sankey, and they have frequently presided over mission meetings in Shropshire. One of the most picturesque gatherings ever held in the county was an open-air service which they conduced a short time ago. Lady Tankerville, however, is not, as is commonly reported, "a Salvation lass"; "nor," she says, "have I ever taken part in any outdoor religious meeting in New York, as I have often seen stated."

Smallest Burial-Ground.

In connection with the scheme for a new railway station at Worthing, England, the land purchased for the purpose includes what is believed to be the smallest burial-ground in the United Kingdom. This miniature "God's acre" is only six yards square and contains but four bodies. As soon as these have been transferred to the cemetery at Broadwater the work of converting the land into the site for the new station will be commenced.

A Golf Story.

Scotsmen are noted for their canniness, and a story told by a Lancashire commercial traveler, who was up in Aberdeen a few days ago, shows that the men beyond the Tweed are still worthily upholding their reputation. The traveler in question was asked by a prospective buyer to subscribe to the prize fund for the local golf tournament. He parted with 5 shillings, and as he was interested in golf he remarked that he would like to be kept informed of the progress of the tournament so that he could look out for the result.

"Oh," said the customer as he picked up the 5 shillings and placed it securely in his pocket, "ye needna dae that. The tournament was held last Saturday." This was rather a staggerer for the latest contributor to the prize fund, but he retained curiosity enough to inquire who had proved the happy winner. The guileless solicitor for subscriptions was quite undaunted, however. "The winner?" he said coyly, "Oh, just mesel'."—Exchange.

A Wonderful Shot.

They were telling how well they could shoot, and Tom Dawson recalled a duck hunt in which he had brought down five birds with one shot.

"Talk about shootin'," began old man Tilford. "I saw Jim Ferris do a mighty neat piece of work one day. His wife was puttin' out the washin', and she was complainin' about the pesky sparrows makin' dirt marks on the damp clothes with their feet.

"'They're thick as bees round here,' says she. 'There's seven of 'em sittin' on the clothesline this blessed minute.'

"'I'll fix 'em,' says Jim, takin' down his shotgun, which he allus keeps loaded with fine bird shot. He tiptoed to the door, took aim and"—

"Killed every one of them sparrows," broke in Dawson.

"You're wrong," corrected Tilford calmly. "He never teched 'em, but when his wife took in the washin' she found she had three pair of openwork stockin's and a fine peekaboo shirt waist."—Success Magazine.

Proved an Alibi.

This happened at a certain boarding house, one of those where "a few refined gentlemen may share an elegant home."

The girl with the dun locks brought in the soup. When she came to Jenkins he noticed a long string of substance entirely foreign to the soup itself. It was a hair. In the dim light it looked as if it might have been from the dun head of the waitress.

Jenkins called her attention to this, remarking that the best culinary authorities are agreed that a strip of cranial capillary substance is not essential to the success of a plate of consomme or other liquid nourishment.

She didn't follow him fully, but when she saw him holding up the quarter of a yard or more of hair accusingly she spoke up in her own defense.

"That ain't mine!" she declared in an aggrieved tone. "It couldn't be mine. Why, I ain't even brushed my hair since yestiddy!"—New York Press.

Foreign Gun Tests.

"The government ought to guarantee our guns as it guarantees our money," said a sportsman who had traveled abroad. "England and Belgium test and stamp every gun made in their confines.

"I have visited the Belgian testing works at Liege. A gun barrel gets two tests. The first costs 5 cents, the second 10. The works conducted on those small fees are self supporting. How many lives they must save! The gun barrels by themselves are tested first. A charge three times as big as the ordinary one is fired from them. They emerge, if they do emerge, strong enough three times over for the strain to be put on them hereafter. In the second test the guns complete, with the breech action attached, are fired. If they come through again all right, the government stamps them and they are put on the market. It is queer that only England and Belgium warrant in this splendid way the national firearms."

The Exceptions In the Case.

"The path of true love is running smooth enough for us," fondly remarked the young wife as she kissed first her spouse and then their lovely babe.

"Perhaps so," replied the young husband doubtfully as he eyed the waiting cradle, "but I must confess I see rocks ahead."—Baltimore American.

A Proper Title.

"That doesn't seem to be a very good fountain pen you've got."

"No, it isn't."

"What's the name of it?"

"'Independent.'"

"Ah, I see; quite appropriate! It doesn't care whether it works or not."—Philadelphia Press.

WHEEL OF FORTUNE.

"Maori" Browne Will Marry a Wealthy English Woman.

A romantic wedding will shortly take place, when Col. "Maori" Browne is to be married to a lady of wealth and position. The story of this love match is as remarkable as anything in the pages of fiction, and seldom has the wheel of fortune turned more rapidly for a man. Three months ago Col. G. Hamilton Browne —"Maori" Browne to all his friends— was stranded in London, and appealed for any work, no matter how humble. The Salvation Army helped him in his search for employment, and the colonel, who had served his country all over the Empire, offered to black boots for a living. He was left at the age of 63 without a pension, as he had commanded only irregular Colonial troops, and for three weeks he had lived by the sale of his medals. Then Col. Browne, who had served his country for 40 years and been through the Zulu war and Matabele campaigns with distinction, was almost starving in a lonely London lodging.

At this point, when things looked at their blackest, the colonel's luck turned. One day a letter came from a lady asking if he was the same Hamilton Browne who had served in Zululand with a man whose name she gave. She wished to know, because Hamilton Browne had saved the life of this man, who was her sweetheart. Col. Browne recalled the incident, and wrote to her telling what he remembered of it. The man he had saved at a critical moment in the Zulu campaign had afterwards died in the Soudan., and the lady had never married. The correspondence between Col. Browne and the lady led to a meeting, which ripened into an acquaintanceship, and then into an engagement. Col. Browne, who counts among his friends Lord Roberts and Gen. Baden-Powell, belongs to an old Irish family, and was educated at Cheltenham. His long military career began in New Zealand in 1866, and was continued in South Africa, where he won great distinction. He was commended for gallantry at Rorke's Drift, and was an eye-witness of the great disaster of Isandlwana.

A Poet's Wedding Cake.

The day Lord Tennyson, who has resigned the chairmanship of the League of the Empire, was born at Twickenham, August 11th, 1852, his father, the great English poet, in a letter to a friend, wrote: "The little monster does anything but what Hamlet says Ossic did in his nursery days." Later, however, the mother, writing to the same friend, said, "Alfred watches Hallam with profound interest, and some of his acquaintances would smile to see him racing up and downstairs dangling the baby in his arms." The late Lord Tennyson's marriage was a quiet one. Even the cake and dresses are said to have arrived too late, which made the poet declare that it was the nicest wedding he had ever attended. When the present holder of the title was four years old his parents removed from Twickenham to Farringford, and he well remembers a visit Prince Albert paid them soon after their arrival. The parlormaid answered a ring of the front door bell, and when she heard the prince's name announced she became so bewildered, not knowing into what room to show his royal highness, as books and all sorts of things were strewn over the drawing-room floor, that she stood stock still, unable to act. But she did not remain in this embarrassing position long, for the prince's equerry took hold of her by the shoulders and got her to lead them into the house. One day Queen Victoria asked the poet what she could do for him, and the reply her Majesty received was, "Nothing, thank you, madam, but shake my two boys by the hand. It may keep them loyal in the troublous times to come." Shortly afterwards, the Queen sent for the boys to come to see her at Osborne, which, of course, they did. When Lord Tennyson rushed into his father's study one afternoon he found Charles Kingsley pacing the floor, studying and smoking furiously, confirming his contention that tobacco was the only thing that kept his nerves quiet.

The Laughing Judge.

So someone has called Mr. Justice Darling, who made such an amusing speech at a recent Savage Club dinner. He is one of the brilliant wits of the British High Court, and it was quite characteristic of him, when responding to a toast at the dinner, to tell the members that he was glad to find that in that club, notwithstanding its name, the laws of the country were respected, and that he did not recognize anyone present as having appeared in the Court of King's Bench or the Central Criminal Court. Mr. Justice Darling's impressions of the House of Commons are very amusing. He considers the House a very good public school, with the advantage over the ordinary public school that you need not play games there. He confesses that he always had a strong antipathy to playing games. But he has a passion for hunting and a weakness for painting pictures, while he laughed up his sleeve for some time when people were disputing the authorship of "Meditations in the Tea Room"—for it was written by Sir Charles himself.

Much Work, No Pay.

Rev. W. Dore Rudyard, who has been installed as the first vicar of the new parish of Longford, is one of the most remarkable incumbents in England. He has spent the whole of his busy clerical life—twenty-three years or so—in the Foleshill district, and has expended thousands of pounds upon Church work. Up to a few years ago he, without assistance, conducted the whole of the services at St. Thomas', Longford—preaching, reading the lessons, etc., and, in addition, acting as organist. Among the reverend gentleman's gifts to the new parish church is a handsome vicarage. For many years he drew no stipend at Longford.

FINDING HIS INITIAL.

A Tangle of Letters That Was Finally Made O. K.

The man with a soft, low voice had just completed his purchases.

"What is the name?" asked the clerk.

"Jepson," replied the man.

"Jefferson?"

"No, Jepson; J-e-p-s-o-n."

"Jepson?"

"That's it. Eighty-two"—

"Your first name—initial, please."

"Oh, K."

"O. K. Jepson?"

"Excuse me, it isn't O. K. I said 'Oh.'"

"O. Jepson?"

"No, rub out the O. and let the K. stand."

The assistant looked annoyed.

"Will you please give me your initials again?"

"I said K."

"I beg your pardon, you said O. K. Perhaps you had better write it yourself."

"I said 'Oh'"—

"Just now you said K."

"Allow me to finish what I started to say. I said 'Oh' because I did not understand what you were asking me. I did not mean that it was my initial. My name is Kirby Jepson."

"Oh!"

"No, not O., but K.," said the man. "Give me the pencil and I'll write it down for you myself. There; it's O. K. now!"

THE HAUGHTY TURK.

High Handed Diplomatic Methods of the Seventeenth Century.

Indignities to which foreign envoys were formerly subjected in China were mild in comparison with those occasionally meted out to them in Constantinople. M. Julian Klaczko in his "Etude de Diplomatic Contemporaine" relates that in 1673 the grand vizier, having intercepted some French dispatches, tried to force Del la Haye, first secretary to the French embassy and son of the ambassador, to give him the cipher of the embassy. The young diplomat indignantly refused and was in consequence bastinadoed, struck in the face with such force that his teeth were broken, and he was thrown into prison. No attempt was made by Louis XIV. to obtain redress for the wrongs inflicted on his representative.

Until the beginning of the eighteenth century Christian envoys to the porte were forbidden to visit one another or even to confer with one another on neutral ground. They were not allowed to drive in public with their wives, and at one time it was proposed to prevent them from importing wine for their own consumption. A compromise was effected on this point, on the understanding that the accursed liquor was to be conveyed from the harbor to the embassies at night and in great secrecy.

The Order of the Seraphim.

The Order of the Seraphim is the oldest and most famous of the decorations in the gift of the king of Sweden. Originally it was instituted by Magnus IV., some 600 years ago, to commemorate the siege of Upsala, the ancient capital of the Swedish kings, and its statutes bound the recipients of the order to fight to the death for the maintenance of their religion and to constitute themselves the special protectors of the widow and the fatherless. When it was revived about the middle of the eighteenth century by King Frederick the obligations laid upon the members were somewhat less onerous. The decoration consists of an eight pointed star in white enamel with cherubs' heads of gold and is worn on a broad band of pale blue ribbon.

Without Horns.

A clergyman was an important witness in a horse dealing case. He gave a somewhat confused account of the transaction in dispute, and the cross examining counsel, after making several blustering but ineffective attempts to obtain a more satisfactory statement, said:

"Pray, sir, do you know the difference between a horse and a cow?"

"I acknowledge my ignorance," replied the reverend gentleman. "I hardly know the difference between a horse and a cow or between a bull and a bully—only a bull, I am told, has horns, and a bully"—here he made a respectful bow to the advocate—"luckily for me, has none."

Beans, Spanish Style.

Soak overnight two cupfuls of white or pink beans. In the morning boil with a pinch of soda fifteen minutes and drain. Fry one large sliced onion with a piece of pork or bacon. Add these to the beans; also a cup of canned tomatoes, two shredded chili peppers, salt and sufficient hot water to cover well. Boil briskly for ten minutes on the stove before putting in the cooker. Leave in for five hours. —Good Housekeeping.

Dental Incubation.

"Tommy," said the visiting uncle, "seems to me that baby sister of yours is pretty slow. She hasn't any teeth yet, has she?"

"She's got plenty of teeth," replied the indignant Tommy. "She's got a whole mouthful of teeth, only they ain't hatched yet."

Going, Going, Gone!

A New York auctioneer was begging the crowd for a bid. He pleaded for ten minutes and then in desperation cried:

"For the Lord's sake, will no one give me a bid?"

A mild spoken gentleman replied:

"Why, yes, old man, I'll try to help you out. I bid you good night."

And the kindly disposed one departed, leaving the auctioneer to the tender mercies of a laughing crowd.—Rehoboth Sunday Herald.

HEARTY APPETITE BUT AFRAID TO EAT

Why Not Put an End to Your Stomach Trouble Forever?

Some people think they have indigestion, others Catarrh of the Stomach, others Nervousness, Cancer or Dyspepsia, etc. Call it this if you will, but the real name for your trouble is Food Fermentation, with only partial digestion. Everything you eat turns to either Acid, Stomach gas or Stomach poison, which weaken the digestive organs, causing a lack of gastric juice. Your food sours, is only half digested, and you become affected with loss of appetite, pressure and fullness after eating, burning sensation, a feeling of vomiting, heartburn, water brash and tenderness in the pit of the stomach, slimy tongue, bad taste in the mouth, constipation, nausea, belching of gas, dizziness, sick headaches, mental depression and many other common symptoms.

You can cure all this by not eating, by not putting any food in your stomach to ferment; but how about the nourishment needed to sustain your bodily strength? If you are a stomach sufferer, either man or woman, young or old, whether you call it indigestion or any other name, go now to your druggist and give 50 cents for a case of Pape's Diapepsin.

Every possible kind of Stomach trouble is readily cured by Diapepsin, which takes right hold of the food in your stomach and digests it alone, without the help of the stomach, just as if your stomach wasn't there.

After a few day's use of Diapepsin your Stomach will again be in good working order, your meals will thoroughly digest and your intestines will be clean and fresh, and you will have no use for laxatives or liver regulators.

Uses For Brown Coal.

"The Utilization of Brown Coal" was the subject of a paper read at a meeting of the Society of Chemical Industry, in Melbourne recently by Wykeham Bayly. The author stated that Victoria, more than any other state, was favored with valuable brown coal, the deposits being practically beyond computation. In many respects the deposits were equal in value to those in Germany, which produces nearly 50,000,000 tons of brown coal annually. He had obtained ammonia sulphates and other valuable products from the coal, and found is exceptionally well adapted for making producer gas. By reducing the watery contents 10 to 18 per cent. and using hydraulic pressure, they had made briquettes, which were superior in calorific value to those manufactured in Germany. He estimated that briquettes could be manufactured at Morwell on a large scale, and delivered in Melbourne at 13s. 6d. per ton. It was, however, for producer gas purposes that the brown coal in Victoria could be best utilized.

Buying Bananas In West Indies.

When a fruit company is desirious of purchasing the produce of a banana plantation in the West Indies the manager first sends round a circular stating that he is willing to take so many "stems of good, round, full, and clean fruit." The price per hundred "counts" is then quoted. A stalk carrying nine or more "hands" is called a "bunch," a "count," or a "payable"; one bearing eight "hands" is termed a "three-quarter bunch"; one with seven is a "half"; while another with six is a "quarter." Consequently, a hundred stems may contain considerably less than a hundred "counts," owing to the varying number of "hands" on each stalk. Five pounds is the lowest price paid per hundred, and that is from October to January, after which prices go up until April and May, when as much as £12 10s. is obtained. "Wrap your fruit to avoid bruising," and "Don't cut your bananas until the day before selling," are two maxims which are golden in more ways than one, says the buyer.

"The Unlucky Avenue."

Mr. Charles Hawtrey, the actor, whom everyone will be glad to hear is making excellent progress after a recent operation, will always be remembered for destroying the damaging superstition which hung over the Avenue Theatre, now the Playhouse. Until Mr. Hawtrey produced that successful play, "A Message from Mars," at the Avenue, it bore the name of "the Unlucky Avenue." Manager after manager had produced plays there, but invariably with the same result, and no change in program or players seemed to bring success until Mr. Hawtrey came along. Mr. Hawtrey is the son of the Rev. John Hawtrey, an Eton master, and was himself educated at Eton. People seem to have almost forgotten that it was he who produced that funniest of all funny plays, "The Private Secretary," which, by the way, he adapted from the German of Von Moser.

WORTH ITS WEIGHT IN GOLD

Mi-o-na Has Reached a Gold Standard, Says Harry Ellis of Fergus, For Stomach Trouble.

Harry Ellis, of Fergus, Ont., says: "I believe that Mi-o-na for the cure of stomach trouble is worth its weight in gold. It cured me from a stomach difficulty that seemed to puzzle all other prescriptions and remedies. I was unable to eat, the food would ferment and form gas and make a serious pressure on my heart. There were terrible pains in the pit of my stomach. I became weak, drowsy, discouraged and later I got nervous and could not sleep or rest. This disease makes one feel like not wanting to see any human being and produces melancoly and forebodings. I was told to try Mi-o-na, and (why) I commenced on the first box I had hardly any faith in it, but the first two days' treatment made the pain in my stomach cease, and to make a long story short, the upshot of my using Mi-o-na was that it cured me wholly, and I now can eat what I like and when I am hungry. I am an ardent advocate of the use of Mi-o-na."

Wm. Madill sells Mi-o-na Tablets, the dyspepsia remedy that is making such surprising cures throughout Canada, for 50 cents a box, guarantees them to cure, or money back.

Humor

HOW THEY PARTED.

A Few Weeks of Married Life Was Enough For Them.

And they were married and lived happily ever afterward? Well, hardly.

It wasn't two days after they had returned from the honeymoon when he dashed downstairs with a shirt in his hand and exclaimed:

"Queen of queens, light of my life, I love you as a woman was never loved before, but if you don't mend the buttonholes in my shirts when they come from the laundry a calamity is going to happen around here."

Two or three days later she met him at the front door when he returned from the office, and there was a savage gleam in her blue eyes as she said:

"My king of kings, man whom I adore as man was never adored before, let me give you a little piece of advice. If you don't wipe your feet on the doormat hereafter you'll think you have been struck by lightning."

All went well for a time, but one morning he picked up one of the biscuits she had so proudly placed before him, and as he carefully looked it over and studied its size and shape he remarked:

"My beloved, my jewel of the first water, my princess that I would willingly lay down my life for, you are all the world to me, but hereafter when you put these English walnuts on the table I wish you wouldn't forget the nutcracker."

She awaited her opportunity and got back at him one night when he came home from the club in a hilarious condition.

"My prince of princes," she said as she led him around the bedroom by the ear, "I worship you every minute of the day, but right here and now I am going to take away your latchkey and teach you to stay home by your own fireside seven nights a week."

It was only two days later that he caught her using his best razor on her corns, and as he took it away from her he said:

"Helpmeet of helpmeets, woman with eyes that the stars might envy, my very soul is yours, but if I ever catch you doing such a trick again I'll break all the furniture in the house and see that your poodle meets with a violent death."

She did not reply, but when he came home that night the kitchen fire was out, and he found a note reading:

"Apollo of Apollos, Beau Brummel of Beau Brummels, man whom a queen might fall down and worship, I have gone home to mother, and divorce proceedings will be started at once."

He lost no time in getting pen and paper and replied as follows:

"Angel of angels, sweetheart of sweethearts, woman whose charms no man can resist, bring on your proceedings and make me the happiest man on earth."

And it was thus they parted.—New York Herald.

One Way.

"Of course you know how to say cutting things in company without being openly impolite?"

"No, mother. How?"

"Why, just make the remark general and then bow to the one you want to hurt and say, 'Present company, of course, always excepted.'" — Kansas City Times.

Watch Charm.

Edna—Now that they are engaged he watches her all the time. You see, she is such a flirt.

Eva—Flirt! Why, he used to call her a charm.

Edna—Yes, and that is why he keeps a watch on her.—Detroit Tribune.

Works Well In Other Cases.

Father—I am going to have my children learn Esperanto.

Friend—Is that so? Then I will give you a little advice good for one who wants to learn the new language. Go to the country in which the language is spoken.—Fliegende Blatter.

A Question of Form.

SHE PAINTS.

A pretty maiden is Miss J.,
With cheeks to charm the hermit saints,
And yet, alas, some people say
She paints.

It is not very widely known,
Though oft some friend of hers acquaints
Some other in informing tone
She paints.

Oh, no, I do not keep aloof—
Her charms no whit this habit taints—
Although I have conclusive proof
She paints.

Here are the proofs right on my wall,
Before which all denial faints—
Oh, yes, they're pictures! That is all
She paints.

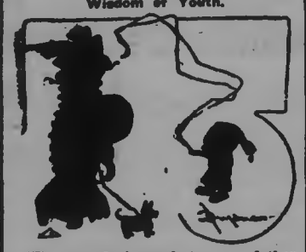
Wisdom of Youth.



"I'm wondering what your father would say if he saw you smoking."

"Well, lady, I don't know as I care much about what he'd say. I'm wondering what he'd do."—New York World.

Another Victim.

"Kind lady," says the frayed and frazzled gentleman who has rapped timidly on the back door, "could you spare a little something for a poor earthquake sufferer?"

"What earthquake are you suffering from?" skeptically inquires the kind lady.

"The one in Sicily, madam."

"In Sicily! Nonsense! You couldn't have reached here since that happened."

"I was here when it happened, madam; but, you see, a lot of people who might have loosened up a dime or quarter for me have sent all their money to the relief fund, and that lets me out."—Chicago Post.

Narrow Escape.

Kind Lady — Remember, my poor man, that fortune never chases any one.

Sandy Pikes—Dunno about that, mum. I had $5,000 to chase me one time.

Kind Lady—You really mean it?

Sandy Pikes—Yes, mum. It was in the shape of an imported bulldog, and I just made the fence by two feet.—St. Louis Republic.

Doubly Overdrawn.

Shortleigh—My account at the bank is overdrawn.

De Long—Why don't you marry Miss Gotrox?

Shortleigh—She's too homely.

De Long—Can't you close your eyes and imagine that she is handsome?

Shortleigh—Hardly. My imagination fund account is also overdrawn.—Town and Country.

On a Tramp Steamer.

Passenger—I should like to have a sleeping berth now, if you please, captain.

Skipper—Why, where have you been sleeping the last two nights since we left port?

Passenger—Well, I was sleeping on top of a sick man, but he's got better and won't stand it any longer.—London Opinion.

Hitting Back.

"Your nearest rival gave me a gold bracelet," boasted the pretty girl.

"And I will send up my present tomorrow," replied her other suitor in caustic tones.

"Ah, something gold too?"

"No; a bottle of acid to test my rival's present."—Judge.

Consultation.

"Does your wife ever take your advice about anything?" asked the impertinent relative.

"Certainly," answered Mr. Meekton. "She frequently consults me as to whether her hat is on straight."—Washington Star.

Method In His Madness.

Nurse—But why did you tell that patient it would be all right for her to eat such indigestible things?

Doctor—Why, don't you see, she'll develop dyspepsia and come round for me to cure it.—New York Herald.

Hot Talk.

Nagget—I hear she rejected you. I'll bet you felt foolish about that time.

Lovett—Yes, I guess I felt just as foolish at that time as you look all the time.—Catholic Standard and Times.

Repartee.

Freshie—He isn't my dog.

Senior—He is following you in.

Freshie—Well, so are you.—Northwestern Academician.

Just Like Them.

First Mother—I don't know whether to enter my baby in the beauty contest or not.

Second Mother—It seems rather too bad to take all that trouble for nothing.—New York Herald.

At the Crossroads.

"Why do you object to Mrs. Brown for postmistress?"

"I object to her 'cause I know she'd delay th' distribution of th' mails."

"How so?"

"You know jest as well as I do that she'd have to read every post card that came into th' office—an' she's always mislayin' her specs!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Disease Often Proves A Friend Although Few View It As Such

It Frequently Brings Permanent Health—If Typhoid Victim Recovers He Need Never Fear Indigestion—A Cold Will Save You From Other Ills.

RHEUMATISM'S EFFECT.

To be struck down by disease seems a most undesirable thing, yet there are many living to-day in the fullest enjoyment of very excellent health, who, but for an attack of some disease, would have lived a life of almost perpetual misery.

These people were, first of all, victims of indigestion in its worst form, and only those who have experienced it know what true indigestion is. Struck down by typhoid fever, they came through the trying ordeal cured of indigestion, for one outstanding eccentricity of typhoid is that, if you pass through an attack safely, it gives you a new stomach. In fact, after an attack of typhoid the victim is usually left with a stomach like an infant.

That is the grand chance offered to one who has suffered, it may be, for long years from acute indigestion; if only he takes care, after an attack of typhoid, he need never know indigestion again.

Be it remembered that any one troubled with severe indigestion is not advised to go hunting round for typhoid fever. That might prove to be a disastrous course to follow!

Rheumatism is Friend

A chronic cold is just one of those things which none of us want, yet even a chronic cold has its good points, more especially if you happen to be up in years a bit—not too old, of course. People who are up in years and who suffer from chronic bronchitis, seem to get remarkably well. It keeps the blood in good circulation, for, of course the victims have to cough, and that gives the heart a jerk and sends the blood coursing nicely through the veins and arteries.

If the cold be not too acute, old people derive considerable benefit. An acute attack, on the other hand, may cut off an old person in a day or two. It is the chronic type only which yields benefit. If however, you desire to attain to a ripe old age, you cannot get on at all without rheumatism. Consider the hosts of old folks you encounter hobbling about, grumbling all the day about their bones and joints. In all probability these old people would have been in their graves years before but for this very rheumatism.

The reason is that if rheumatism is in the system it keeps other ills out. It makes a grand fighting force, and keeps most other enemies of the human frame at bay, especially those of the germ type.

Very naturally if you have such a grand friend at hand, you have the pain of rheumatism, which, if shockingly severe at times, is not deadly, and that is why one gets so little sympathy when suffering from rheumatism.

Take Greatest Care

But the plain fact is that a slight malady always benefits you, even if indirectly. As an example of that, say a very bad spell of weather comes along, cold and wet, and you contract a slight chill.

What do you propose to do? Why, to take the greatest care of yourself, and make as certain as possible that your cold gets no chance of developing into anything worse. Now did that very slight cold not make its appearance and cause you to be extremely careful of what you did, there is no saying what might happen to you any day during a spell of evil, cold weather. You might have exposed yourself so much that a severe chill would have seized you, followed by inflammation of the lungs.

Accordingly, a slight cold may easily save you from many worse ills.

In this way minor affections act as warnings that worse things are coming along, but, unfortunately, many persons quite neglect these warnings.

Is Adopted Son A Legal Relative? Justice Anglin To Decide Matter

Examiner Special.

Toronto, Feb. 20.—Is relationship by adoption recognized by the English law or the law of the Province?

That is the question Mr. Justice Anglin is called on to decide in giving judgment on the application of the Brantford Gas Company to have struck out the statement of claim in the action brought against them by Joseph Blayborough, of Brantford.

Blayborough is suing the company for $15,000 damages for the death of his adopted son, Joseph Blayborough, jr., who he claims was the sole support of his foster parents.

Joseph Blayborough, jr., met his death in the famous Brantford explosion of Sept. 11th. With a companion, Bert Holstock, he was sitting on the steps in the Theatorium, in the Holt building, when the explosion occurred.

The action is being brought against the gas company, the negligence of whose employes in making service connections with a main is alleged to have been responsible for the explosion.

Judgment is reserved.

Interesting Documents Of Early Days In The District

Mr. Samuel McElroy of this city has shown the Examiner some interesting documents relating to the early days in the Township of Dope. Amongst these are the contract for the building of the Presbyterian church on lot No. 7, con 6 of the above mentioned township, for which Mr. McElroy's father provided the land.

The contract is dated 1st August 1859, and the church is still standing as a record of early efforts of the residents in that section.

Another interesting document is the contract with the teacher appointed for the school section, dated Jan. 19th, 1855. The provisions contained in this contract read curiously at the present day, for instance Section 2 reads—

"That each householder sending children to this school be required to provide one half cord of wood for the school....otherwise the wood to be provided by the Trustees and the amount levied upon such defaulters."

The teacher was paid £60 per annum for his services and each child was charged one shilling and three pence per month for tuition. Mr McElroy states that the teacher was obliged to walk seven miles a day in order to discharge his duties

Two Boys Fined For Throwing Snowballs At A Policeman

Caution, we are told is one of the most desirable attributes one can possess. Look before you leap, has been a bit of advice that has been handed down from the days of old Rameses, but in spite of this fact most people look after they have leaped and are lying bruised and injured in the moat. Police Officers Meharry and Meagher were driving up Water St. last night when out of the dark flashed a volley of snow balls, one of which P. C. Meagher got on his face dangerously near his eye.

The boys, of course, never expected that two minions of the law bent on special work were in the cutter or they would have thought twice before hurling the snowy missiles. They happened to be young Collegiate Institute boys, but this fact did not save them from a fine of two dollars each. Snowballing is under the ban of the law, and now and then a case is heard of just to keep the fact fresh in the minds of the youth.

FRED SIMPSON IS TO RUN RELAY OF TWO MEN IN TORONTO IN SHORT TIME

Toronto, Feb. 20.

Tom Eck, manager of Fred Simpson, the Ojibway Thunderbolt, is eager to show Toronto people how much Simpson has improved since he has had him in charge. He wants to run him a 15-mile relay race here either against Mike Spring and Bob Hallen, who beat Longboat in Newark, N.J., or a local relay.

He may get the chance here to meet Henry Jackson, the Midland Indian, and another man, Jackson, to run ten miles and the second man five. It has been suggested that Bill Cumming of the I.C.A.C. be the second man, but Cumming still refuses to jump to the 2 ranks. He is in training, however, and may be persuaded to turn over. If Simpson can trim that relay he is a good one. Jackson has twice beaten 1.27 for 15 miles, while Cumming has gone five miles indoors in 26.30. If Jackson only does 58 to ten miles Cumming could step along in 27, and then make the Ojibway gallop in Tom Longboat time to beat them.

MANAGER NAYLOR'S EXPERIENCES IN ROUNDING UP HASSAN ABDALLAH

W. B. Naylor, manager of Yankee Rogers, who has been engaged by C. W. Smith, of the Riverside arena, to look after the wrestling game for him, arrived last night from Nomingue, the most northern station in the C.P.R., in the Province of Quebec, where he had gone on Saturday to get Hassan Abdallah, the Terrible Turk, who was out shooting and hunting at Lac Kiamican.

Naylor thinks this is the hardest proposition he ever faced in his experience with wrestlers. When he arrived at Nomingue the thermometer only registered 43 below zero. Whew! He then had twenty-six miles to drive over the Laurentian Mountains to get the troublesome Turk, and when five miles on his big journey the big snowstorm that has upset traffic all over the country came along, and for forty-one hours he was stuck up in a farm house, where a French Canadian habitant with a small family of eleven children tried to make things pleasant, but as they could not speak English, and his French was execrable, he let his brains play tag with his think tank. Monday night the storm abated, and Naylor rushed back to Nomingue, sent some one else for his Turk, and hurried back to Montreal to interview Frank Gotch to try and fix matters for a match with Rogers in Toronto.

Gotch gave Naylor his promise of a match some time in April, and then the champion says he will retire from the game. Gotch is in splendid condition, and spoke well of his tour in England. He says Hack is not looking for a match with him. He prefers music hall work to a strenuous struggle, and laughs at the tales from England that he side stepped an engagement with the Russian Lion.

Lecture Given At Normal School By Prof. Cappon

A large number of students and citizens were present at the lecture given in the Assembly Hall of the Normal School last night, and had an enjoyable and profitable evening.

A few words byy Principal Walker, explaining the aim of the Education Department in providing a course of lectures for the students of the Normal School, and for the public generally.

A chorus by the Glee Club, under the leadership of Miss Davies, was the next number on the programme, after which Principal Walker very briefly introduced the speaker, Prof. Cappon, of Queen's University, Kingston, who spoke of "Ballid Poetry."

He began by saying that the English ballad was simple poetry, a species of folk lore, composed by wandering musicians, who began with some verses learned from others and then added more of his own, quite often changing the original. These ballads were not by any means accurate. They depended a great deal on legend or tradition, while these ancient ballads had thus a simple beginning, they were not, however, lacking in the essentials of real poetry—natural simplicity of style. Prof. Cappon illustrated this by the old ballad of Sir Patrick Spens.

He pointed out how an ancient ballad passed through its several stages until it appeared in the form of modern ballad, illustrating this form by using Goldsmith's Edwin and Angelina. This ballad and those of the eighteenth century especially did not approach the art of ancient ballad, it having lost the original vigor, action and ancient language and attempted to supply its place with external polish and conventional language. Sir Walter Scott's ballads and romances did much to restore the lost art of the ancient ballads and gave to it a classical tinge. This restoration was illustrated by Scott's, "The Eve of St. John's," in which were pointed out the vigor, the charm and the excellence of the ancient ballads.

The romantic side of life behind these ballads of Scott's gave the added charms and accounted for the popularity of Scott. This infusion of the romantic element was the only change that Scott made in his restoration of the ancient ballad. But two young poets, Coleridge and Wordsworth, realizing the conventionality in the ballads of the eighteenth century, went further than Scott and omitted the romantic element. They emphasized that of nature. Coleridge's "Ancient Mariner" illustrated the archiac form of simple metre rhythm and cadence of the ancient ballad, but substituted modern feeling and thoughts.

Prof. Cappon intended to further illustrate this change in the ballads by reference to Wadsworth's "Ruth," but decided, on account of the length of his lecture, to omit this. The chief reference, however, was made to the aesthetic school.

Dr. Park, in a few chosen words, referred to the splendid instructive lecture, and also moved that a vote of thanks be tendered to the lecturer, and the motion, seconded by Mr. J. H. Burnham, was carried unanimously.

The evening closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

RE-ELECTED OFFICERS

Annual Meetings of Light and Power Company and Hydraulic Company Were Held Conjointly —Confidence in Officers.

A SATISFACTORY SEASON.

The affairs in connection with the Peterborough Light and Power Co., the Peterborough Hydraulic Power Co. and the Peterborough Radial Railway Co., have been most satisfactory during the past year, the Light and Power Co. having enjoyed an especially prosperous season. The annual meeting of the companies was held on Thursday in the offices of the Peterborough Light and Power Company, George street. The annual reports were received and adopted and the officers of all three companies for the ensuing year were re-elected. At the Railway Company's meeting the question of extending the line to Lakefield was thoroughly discussed and it was hoped that the company would be in a position to do the work in the coming summer.

The re-elected officers were:

Peterborough Light and Power Co.—
Pres.—T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P.
Vice-Pres.—John Stuart.
Secretary—Robert Gordon.
Directors—The officers named and H. P. Crowell, W. H. Denham, J. H. Larmonth and Robert Stuart.

Secretary—Robert Gordon.
Manager—J. H. Larmonth.
Directors—The officers named and T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P., H. P. Crowell and John Stuart.

THE TRUE CAUSE OF RHEUMATISM

Caused by Uric Acid in Blood and Can Only be Cured Through the Blood.

Not many years ago doctors thought rheumatism was only a local pain caused by exposure to cold or wet. Now they know that rheumatism is caused by the blood becoming tainted with uric acid. This acid contracts the muscles, stiffens the joints, and irritates the nerves. Then the cold and wet make the joints and muscles groan with aching rheumatism. You blame the weather but the real cause is acid in the blood. If not promptly treated the stiffness spreads and the pain grows worse each year until you are a helpless cripple, tortured day and night. If the disease touches the heart it means sudden death. You can't cure rheumatism with liniments, plasters or hot clothes. You must go to the root of the trouble in the blood. The one sure, scientific way to cure rheumatism is Dr. Williams Pink Pills, because they actually make new blood. They sweep out the poisonous acid, loosen the joints and muscles, and bring ease and freedom where before had been pain and misery.

Mrs. Fred Sabeau, Canada Creek, N. S., says:—"Three years ago I was taken with a severe pain in my right hip. It grew gradually worse until it finally settled in both my hips and legs. The pain was really almost unbearable. At first I tried liniments, but this gave me only the most temporary relief, and I felt as if I was to go through the rest of my life as a suffering cripple. A neighbour whose daughter had been cured of rheumatism by Dr. Williams Pink Pills advised me to try this medicine, and I purchased three boxes. Before they were all gone I was able to get my foot up on my knee and untie my shoe, something I had not been able to do for two years, and I began to feel I had at last found a medicine to cure the trouble. I kept on taking the Pills until I had used, I think, a dozen boxes, when I was completely cured and I am as well and strong to-day as ever I was in my life. I want every sufferer to know that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is a sure cure for rheumatism, and that if they will give this medicine a fair trial, their pains and aches will disappear as mine did."

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Miss Daisy Robinson and niece, of Bobcaygeon, are visiting Miss Ella McLaughlin, Water street.

Mr. Wm. Kennedy, of West Toronto, and Miss Hannah Graham, of Lindsay, who have been visiting at the home of Mr. John Cathcart, Springville, and other friends, have returned home.

BOOSTING THE CITY.

Some time ago the Council was discussing the advisability of engaging a man to look after the city's interests in trying to induce manufacturing concerns to locate here, to strive to bring excursions to Peterborough, and by other means to boost the city and give it prominence among other cities. As an example of civic progressiveness in this regard, the following extracts from the plans of the Ad. Club of Buffalo is given and may be of interest to those who have given the matter any consideration.

Unanimous approval of the Ad. Club's plan for a Buffalo industrial and municipal advertising bureau that will cost $100,000 a year for five years was voted at a meeting of about a dozen of the most important business men's associations of the city held at the Chamber of Commerce recently. The delegates from the various organizations represented formed a permanent organization to carry forward the work of establishing the bureau, Ellicott C. McDougal, president of the Chamber of Commerce, being chosen chairman of the committee.

Among the business organizations having delegates at the meeting were the Chamber of Commerce, Manufacturers' Club, Ad Club, Real Estate Association, Hotel Men's Association, East Buffalo Livestock Exchange, Builders' Exchange, Hardwood Lumber Exchange and Produce Exchange. A number of other associations have been invited to join in the movement. Some of them were not represented by delegates because since the call for the meeting was sent out their associations have not met and therefore could not elect delegates, but they will be represented at the next meeting of the committee, it is expected. This will be held on March 3.

A publicity and industrial bureau with a $10,000 man at the head of it to secure industries for Buffalo, bring conventions to town, advertize the city, and work for increased business in Buffalo along the same business like line the head of a commercial institution would work to enlarge the business of his concern. This bureau with advertising bills and all will cost about $100,000 a year.

That each daily paper three times a week run a column devoted to telling about Buffalo's development.

That popular talks be given at the public and high schools to stir up the interest and pride of coming citizens in Buffalo.

That a slogan contest be held (as has been done), that snappy phrases advertising Bufalo and other publicity features be devised.

That a committee to raise the funds needed to carry out the plan be appointed and its work systematized.

THE CHOIR WERE ENTERTAINED

Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Kennedy Were at Home to Members of Charlotte Street Organization.

Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Kennedy, corner of Aylmer and Dalhousie streets, were "at home" last evening to the Charlotte street Choir and some other friends.

Their large home is an ideal one for entertaining a number of guests.

After a short choir practice the guests enjoyed the games provided by the hostess, and entered into the various contests with a spirit of good natured rivalry. Then followed a musical and literary programme, in which some excellent work was done.

After luncheon was over the guests sang "For they are jolly good fellows," and left for their homes carrying with them kind thoughts for their amiable host and hostess.

SALVATION ARMY HAVE FORMED AN ORCHESTRA

Mr. J. M. Greene, musical director of the Salvation Army Band, is launching out a new orchestra which will be heard for the first time on Thursday evening next at a band concert in the barracks. It is learned that the orchestra is practically complete and includes among its players some of the best musicians connected with the local corps. The concert should be well received, as it is months since the band has been heard in concert music.

Ordered His Daughter To Shoot Him After He Had Killed Man
Strange Tragedy In The North

Examiner Special.

Fort William, Ont., Feb. 20. — A weird tragedy of the northern wilds was reported on their arrival here from Lake Nipigon district by the National Transcontinental Police.

An old Indian named Zeabo, quarrelled with his best friend while on a hunting trip, the dispute arising over the possession of furs, which Zeabo claimed were caught on his preserves.

The deed preyed on Zeabo's mind and on his return home he told that he had killed his best friend and asked several acquaintances to kill him, believing that only by his own death could he atone for his sin. He could not kill himself. That he claims would be a double crime.

One night he came into his home and handing his daughter a sharp axe commanded her to kill him. At first she refused but on being told by her father that he would commit more murders if she did not, consented.

He bade an affectionate farewell to his two young sons and the girl, who then commanded him to stand over by the fire with his back to her.

She weighed 160 pounds and swinging the axe high in the air, brought it down with all her strength, completely severing the head from the body. Then she fainted away.

The police after investigating the circumstances, decided to leave the girl alone with her sorrow.

NEW YORK POLICE SERGEANT SHOT DEAD BY POLICY MAN HE WAS TRYING TO CAPTURE

Examiner Special

New York, Feb. 20.—Police Sergeant John B. Goldhammer, attached to the office of Deputy Commission Bert Hanson, was shot dead by Ginny (Edward) Burns this afternoon at No. 1270 First avenue whither he had gone to arrest Jules Morales, one of the notorious characters of the Bowery. The murder grew directly out of the raid on a policy shop at Bond street and the Bowery a week ago, when $250,000 in uncut paper money, was found in a safe.

For weeks Goldhammer had been hunting Morales, and though he knew his man to be a desperate character, he went single-handed this afternoon to get him. Burns tried to escape after he had killed the sergeant, but was caught and locked up.

On the night of December 21, Morales, with two companions of the same sort, who hang out in a saloon at the Bowery and Bond street, broke into the home of William Kent at No. 67 Saint Nicholas avenue. They thought he had given Goldhammer the tip that led him in his policy fights and they had determined to make away with him. They beat him about the head and would have killed him except for those who were attracted by the cries of his children.

The men wer indicted by the grand jury and Goldhammer was after Morales to-night to arrest him on the indictment.

Goldhammer, in plain clothes, went to the double tenement at No. 1270 First avenue, and knocking at a room on the second floor asked: "Is Johnson in there?"

This is the way that Burns told the story to the police:

"I opened the door a little and told the man that Johnson was not here. He pushed his foot in so I could not close the door and then jammed his way in. There was a struggle and then I got my hand in a bureau drawer and got my revolver and shot him in the head."

When the policeman fell, Burns raised his window over a lightwell and cried across to Mrs. Caroline Kuhl, the janitress:

"Send someone over quick. I have killed a burglar."

She cried out of the window for a policeman and one took Burns off to jail, leaving the body in the room.

ONE OF PRINCIPALS IN DETROIT ROMANCE WELL KNOWN HERE

Examiner Special.

Detroit, Feb. 22.— A. Preston Henry and Miss Sybil Povah perpetrated what they thought was a pretty good joke on their friends Friday night. They went to a minister and got married without acquainting anybody of their intentions.

Both are prominent in Masonic circles Miss Povah having figured in amateur theatricals, under the auspices of several of the Lodges, and Mr. Henry being one of the organizers of the City of the Straits Lodge.

Mr. Henry is a son of Melvin Henry, chairman of the Taxation and Paving Sub-Committee of fifty, and although still a young man, has been remarkably successful in business. He is general manager and treasurer of the Standard Pattern Co., and secretary of the Detroit Foundrymen's Association.

Miss Povah is a talented and beautiful young lady, whose vivacity has made her one of the leaders of the younger set of the North Grand Boulevard District, where she has lived with her mother.

The above dispatch will be read with interest here, as Miss Povah is a niece of Mrs. Walter Bourne McDonel, and spent last summer here, meeting a large number of local people.

Justice Clute Asks Grand Jury To Consider Question Of Providing Abode For The Aged Suggests That They Endeavour to Arrive at a Reasonable Arrangement With County in Order That the Infirm May Not Have to Remain in Jail.

NO GRAND JURY CASES.

The two jury cases which were to have been heard at the Spring Assizes of the High Court of Justice, were settled out of court, leaving only two non-jury cases for His Lordship, Justice Clute, to hear. The court room contained a large number of citizens and a fair sprinkling of farmers, who were interested in the Fowler-Fanning and Brumwell case.

The members of the bar present were Messrs. D. W. Dumble, F. D. Kerr, E. L. Goodwill, D. O'Connell, A. E. Dixon, G. M. Roger, L. M. Hayes and Crown Attorney Drayton, of Toronto.

The Grand Jury was sworn in as follows:

Messrs. Wm. Buller, Wm. Brown, R. J. Devey, Robt. J. Edmison, J. E. Fitzgerald, J. C. Hope, John Lancaster, Thos. Mahoney, Dennis Maloney, A. Montizambert, Harry Phelan, R. C. Strickland and Robert Trotter. Ald. Phelan was appointed foreman.

Address to Jury

In making his address to the Grand Jury Justice Clute remarked that their labours were rather light, as there were no cases to be presented to them. They would have to examine the jail and such other institutions receiving public aid, as they should see fit, and report on the conditions as they found them. He drew special attention to an existing condition in the jail. There were seventeen prisoners, twelve of whom were incarcerated for vagrancy. A number of these had not committed any criminal offense but had merely reached that old age which renders them infirm and unable to provide for themselves. They were in jail, whereas they should be sent to the poor house. Justice Clute stated that the county had a house of refuge but for some reason there was no arrangement between the city and the county. The jury was asked to consider this question and to endeavour and bring in some recommendation aiming at a reasonable settlement.

The case of Maurice Crowley vs. the C. G. E. Co. was settled out of court, Mr. Crowley getting $1,050 in settlement for $5000 for the loss of his left hand and wrist. Messrs. O'Connell and Gordon represented Mr Crowley in the case. The other jury case was likewise settled. The petit jury had therefore no work to do and was dismissed. The first necessary case taken up was that of Fowler vs Fanning, Denistoun, Peen & Kerr representing the plaintiff and Messrs. Dumble & Johnston being counsel for the defendants.

TROUBLES OF THE SPORTING MEN

M. M. Robinson, Formerly of Peterboro Charged with Disorderly Conduct.

Hamilton, Feb. 21.—The breach between M. M. Robinson, the sporting editor of the Spetator, and F. C. Mills, sporting editor of the Times, has gradually been widened since Mr. Mills began an action against Mr. Robinson for alleged criminal libel a few months ago, and an action taken by Mills on Saturday is not likely to heal it.

He had a summons served on Robinson, charging him with disorderly conduct at a wrestling match on Friday night. Robinson went there and bought a ticket, but was refused admission. He again tried to get in, but was ejected by Sergt. Bainbridge. The case will be aired in the police court on Monday.

HAVE ARRANGED SPECIAL MEETINGS

Noted Bible Teacher and Evangelist Will Speak at Bethany Tabernacle.

The noted Bible teacher and evangelist the Rev. James Lyall, of London, England, is expected to conduct special evangelist meetings in Bethany Tabernacle, beginning on Thursday evening, Feb. 25th, and closing on Sunday evening. There will be a Song Service beginning at 7.30 each evening, the regular meeting commencing at 8 p.m.

On Friday and Saturday afternoons from 3.30 till 4 o'clock, there will be Bible readings on deeper Christian life, given by the same speaker.

It is expected that Dr. R. J. Zimmerman, a former pastor of Bethany Tabernacle will be present, to assist in the meetings on Saturday evening and Sunday.

Further notices of the Sunday services will be given later.

SMALL POX AT CORDOVA MINES

The Disease Spreading—Steps are Being Taken to Oppose its Progress.

Belleville, Feb. 22.—A number of cases of smallpox have broken out in the vicinity of Cordova Mines, some of them being in Belmont and some in Marmora township. The school and churches have been closed, and a number of houses quarantined, and every precaution is being taken by Dr. Mackenzie, Medical Health Officer for Marmora township, to prevent the spread of the disease. There are also a number of cases in Madoc, but they are all of a very mild type.

WHY THEY DELAY.

One would think that an explanation is due from the City Fathers as to the delay in dealing with the proposal of the Water Commissioners, in reference to a new water works dam. Three weeks have now elapsed since the Commissioners submitted their proposal. It was understood that the City Council was to call a special meeting within a week to consider the matter. Three weeks have now elapsed since the proposal, or demand, of the Commissioners was placed before the Council, and the former naturally are curious to know why such prolonged delay is made over a matter which was promised prompt consideration.

Promptitude is one of the essentials of good business management.

MARITIME PROVINCES PROGRESS

We in Ontario are just beginning to know, and, therefore, take an intelligent interest in the Maritime Provinces, which have of late years, with the rest of Canada taken on a gratifying material development. Intellectually and as statesmanship counts, the lower provinces have always occupied a leading position. Now their natural resources of mine, forest, farm and fisheries are beginning to bulk largely in the invoice of national assets. The Toronto News thus refers to the progress and development indicated by the speech from the Throne of Nova Scotia Legislature, which shows that immigrants from the Old Country are taking up land or finding work on the farms. The establishment of facilities for imparting technical education proceeds. A technical college at Halifax will open its doors next autumn. Four of the large manufacturing centres have night technical schools. The mining towns boast mining schools. It may be added that the approaching termination of the Steel-Coal war should make greatly for the improvement of industrial conditions in Cape Breton and throughout the Province.

PROGRESS OF NEW PROVINCE.

Official estimates of the grain yields in Saskatchewan for the season of 1908 indicate that the Province surpassed Manitoba in the production of wheat and oats. The final figures, which have just been issued by the Department of Agriculture of the former province, place the total yield of wheat at 50,654,629 bushels, while the final bulletin of the Manitoba Department of Agriculture, issued about the middle of December, indicated a wheat production in that province of 49,252,539 bushels. On this basis Saskatchewan leads for the season by 1,420,000 bushels. The production of oats in Saskatchewan is estimated at 48,379,838 bushels, as compared with 44,686,043 bushels in Manitoba, giving Saskatchewan a lead of 3,693,795 bushels. On the other hand, the yield per acre for both wheat and oats is larger in Manitoba than Saskatchewan. The average production of wheat was about 3.6 bushels greater, and that of oats about 9.5 bushels greater. It is also admitted that in the case of barley Manitoba has a long lead. Saskatchewan holds the first place in the output of flax, and it seems likely that this relation will be maintained for an indefinite period. Ontario can regard this rivalry between the two western provinces with complacency, confident in the knowledge that her own lead in agriculture is so great that she is not likely to be overhauled in the near future. Besides, the more the west ties itself down to grain production the more it will require of the industrial products which Ontario is so well equipped to furnish.

Every new settler in the west means a new household and farmstead, which will make demands upon the products of a wide range of manufacturing industries in Ontario.

BENEFITS OF PREFERENCE.

The Pulp and Paper Magazine has the following:

The preferental tariff that is already adopted by the Australian Commonwealth, and the South African colonies, and is likely to be extended in due course throughout the whole circle of British Colonies, is likely to prove of far-reaching influence in developing the nascent industries as well as the agricultural and commercial interests of the various colonies. Such developments will also reflect favorably on the manufactures of the Mother Country, even if free trade continues to rule. A number of Canadian manufacturing firms are extending their works in order to provide for trade which has recently been diverted from United States and foreign firms owing to the fact that under the new tariffs the advantage in price lies now with Canadian manufacturers. The paper trade furnishes another illustration of the advantage of being within the circle forming the Anglo-Saxon Zollverein. The Laurentide Paper Company has been able to take a contract for the supply of news print to the amount of 300 tons a week for South Africa. This contract was for several years filled by a Scandinavian firm, but has now been transferred to Canada, owing to the advantage which our manufacturers now enjoy under the mutual preference between these colonies. This is important not alone for the trade which our native industries are now getting, but for its effect on the future development of our manufacturers, since those in such lines as the pulp and paper and wood working industries in other countries will now find it distinctly to their advantage to locate in Canada in order to hold the trade of the growing British colonies. In fact a number of United States firms are now looking for locations in Canada as a better base for developing this export trade.

CANADA THE KEYSTONE

The correspondent of the Overseas Daily Mail (London) in dealing with the place of Lord Milner in Imperial politics, has the following reference to the position of Canada in the schemes of the Empire. While the writer's conclusions are not to be accepted without reserve, they are at least interesting as revealing one important point of view:

"Seekest thou great things, seek them not." In the spirit of that searching counsel Lord Milner is steeped. Because no vulgar ambition is his, he is the greater, and the great things must come to him. This has been proved recently in a very interesting way. The key to political power in this country is the confidence of the Colonies. That was Mr. Chamberlain's possession. It is now Lord Milner's; but he has suddenly secured it without searching for it. He went to Canada, not at all with any self-conscious design of magnifying his influence at home.

He went there just to see the land, and to convince the people of the Dominion of the earnestness of our purpose. Yet the journey was from every point of view a master-stroke, such as no merely egoistic politician could have devised, for no less profoundly sincere mind could have created an equal moral effect across the Atlantic.

The task of our generation is to save the Empire that Chatham won. And it will be saved, if at all precisely where it was won. In Chatham's time the fight for British America was the fight for the world. In our time the question of Canada is the question of Empire.

For Canada is the keystone. Pull that out, and the whole fabric of the Empire crashes. Either there will be established within the next few years an Imperial Union upon the basis of commercial Preference, or there will be set up as between the Republic and the Dominion a process of trade-reciprocity leading gradually but inevitably to the creation of one vast North American Zollverein, stretching from Panama to the Yukon, which would reduce the relative naval and commercial power of the Mother-country to insignificance for ever. That and nothing less is the issue that trembles in the scales. We cannot be certain that the Imperial cause will not kick the beam. The next general election in this country—dangrously delayed, in any case, as it now promises to be—will resolve the doubt for good and all.

Meanwhile every feather's-weight of influence that the Mother-country can throw into the balance on the right side is valuable. Every sovereign invested in Canada tells. Visits paid by English statesmen might have been made to tell enormously. There were no such visits. Canada, which may be reached comfortably in a week, was as consistently ignored by our public men as though it were in Jupiter or Saturn. And yet, as has just been explained, Canada holds the casting vote in a cause as momentous as history has ever decided. That casting vote will decide absolutely whether the Empire is to be organized or dissolved, and whether the Mother-country can maintain, even into the second quarter of the twentieth century, her place as a Great Power, as well as whether Canada is to retain and develop her own splendid national identity or to be merged at last in a wider United States.

Lord Milner's journey broke the traditional boycott. He went from ocean to ocean before opening his mouth in public. Then he went back from shore to shore, making speeches in the chief centres of Canadian life and thought. It was speaking such as Canada had never heard before. Lord Milner's speeches in Canada were a public education. They revived the Imperial cause. At a critical moment, upon the very eve of tariff revision in Washington, they saved the immediate situation. The Dominion will not, for some time yet, conclude with the United States any reciprocity arangement to the prejudice of Preference. But the second "missionary of Empire," fit successor to the first, not only revealed to the people of the Dominion the real state of public opinion in this country. He revealed himself.

Lord Milner came back a few weeks ago with the confidence of Canada behind him. Consider what that means. In South Africa even the Dutch, now that they have taken over the government, are finding that they must build more and more to Lord Milner's designs and upon the solid foundations he laid. He is far nearer to Australian ideals, military and social, as embodied by a man like Mr. Deakin, than is any other English statesman.

In Egypt he acquired an unsurpassed insight into the whole spirit and system of our Eastern administration, and thus he "divines India" as Alexander Hamilton divined Europe, to recall Talleyrand's celebrated phrase. And now he has the special support of the community holding the casting vote in the whole Imperial problem—Canada.

led him to overestimating the influence of Lord Milner's addresse ir Canada! as he has assumed the "situation" which the latter is described as having been raised, for there was no danger of the conclusion of a precipitate reciprocity treaty with the United States, either to the advantage or disadvantage of the preference. While Canada is willing to do her share in Imperial consolidation she is not likely to lend herself to huckstering to achieve her proper place in the Empire. The exacting British preference indicates tha Canada's loyalty to Imperial unity is not represented by a necesary quid pro quo.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Carrie Nation is taking part in the suffraggette agitation in London. Nothing could be better devised, says the Brantford Expositor, to bring conster-Nation to her English sisters and dam-Nation to the movement in which they are engaged.

Premier Whitney boasts loudly of the financial exhibit made by his government. He would not have much to be proud of if he had to measure the present expenditures of the province with the revenues as they would have been had the financial policy advocated by himself and Mr. Matheson, when in opposition, been adopted on the accession of the Conservative party to power.—Brantford Expositor.

The Speech from the Throne delivered at the opening of the Legislative Assembly of Ontario is noticeable quite as much for what it omits as for what it contains. Among the noticeable omissions, says the Brantford Expositor, is a reference to any scheme of industrial education, despite the fact that during the past summer both the Premier and Minister of Education were reported to be visiting Great Britain and the Continent of Europe in pursuit of information, while the Government paid the expenses of a commission of inquiry to the United States on the same subject. For an administration which was to revolutionize the educational policy of the province, the men now in power at Toronto seem to be not only lame and halt, but very blind to the requirements of the situation.

Another Boundary Dispute Looms.

Tacoma, Wash., Feb. 22.—The fishing interests of Puget Sound will carry to the State Department in Washington a protest against the reported seizure by the Canadian Government of Hecate Strait under Dixon entrance. This action is said to be an attempt to extend Canadian jurisdiction within the three mile limit. If the Canadian contention be granted, the halibut trade of Tacoma and Seattle will be seriously crippled, it is alleged.

Canadians accuse Americans of crossing the three-mile-limit repeatedly and of violating other regulations. Capt. Newcombe of the British cruiser Kestrel accuses Americans of stealing 1,500 pounds of halibut this month.

New Lumber Association.

Victoria, B.C., Feb. 22.—Every branch of the timber industry is represented in a new organization. The British Columbia Lumber Logging and Forestry Association, which absorbs the British Columbia Chamber of Commerce and Forestry. The new organization's chief objects are promotion of mutual interests, and obtaining legislation for all branches, including a recent request for a law giving permanency of title to the present 21-year timber licenses, and the conservation of the forests of British Columbia, which have the largest quantities of marketable timber in the world.

Mother Charged With Abduction.

Brantford, Feb. 22.—William Symons, a well-to-do resident, returned here yesterday with his three children, Edward, Annie and May, all under 14 years of age, who were sent to Detroit prior to an intended elopement which his wife was alleged to have been about to make with John McDonald until prevented by the local police. The woman is at present in jail awaiting trial on the charge of abduction.

A Way They Have.

Vancouver, B.C., Feb. 22.—After calling for tenders to construct 30 miles of the south end of the Kootenay Central from a point between Nelson and Cranbrooke to a point north of Fort Steele, the C.P.R. have secured two years extension from Parliament, and have shelved the project indefinitely without assigning a reason.

TERRITORIAL FORCE.

Secretary Haldane's Scheme For Extension to the Colonies.

London, Feb. 22.—Speaking at Newcastle Saturday morning on the subject of the proposed imperial general staff for the army, Secretary of War Haldane gave a general outline of the strength of the oversea forces as contemplated under the imperial scheme.

Canada, he said, could easily raise five or six territorial divisions, Australia five, New Zealand one, and South Africa four or five.

These, in addition to the existing 14 divisions of the territorial forces of the United Kingdom, would give a total of 30 divisions for home defence. With the 16 divisions of regulars ready for oversea service, it was thus hoped to attain an imperial army of 46 divisions, equivalent to 23 army corps.

This was just the strength of the German army, Mr. Haldane said, and no other army in the world had such a great organization.

Canada, added Mr. Haldane, had cabled warmly accepting the imperial general staff scheme. (Cheers.) Mr. Haldane hoped the other colonies would speedily follow suit.

Graft Prosecution Fails.

Indianapolis, Feb. 22.—Henry W. Marshall of the Western Construction Co. of this city and former Speaker of the Indiana House of Representatives was acquitted by a jury in the Marion County Criminal Court here on Saturday of the charge of defrauding the city by excessive charges for asphalt paving repairs.

Will Go Into Pork.

Edmonton, Alba., Feb. 22.—Estimates passed Monday in the Legislature will, it is understood, total over three and a half millions.

Among them is a $50,000 initial grant for establishing a Government packing industry.

The Bishop's Rebuke.

A conceited young cleric once said to an American prelate, "Do you not think that I may well feel flattered that so great a crowd came to hear me preach?"

"No," was the answer, "for twice as many would come to see you hanged."

GIVE THE CHILDREN PLENTY OF FRUIT

It Helps to Keep Them Well.

In a growing, active child the cells of which the body is composed are being worn out—and replaced — very rapidly. This dead tissue must be gotten rid of somehow, and the danger is that the eliminating organs—the Bowels, Kidneys and Skin—may not do their work well enough. Then the blood becomes poisoned and the child does not thrive.

Nothing has such an invigorating effect on these organs as ripe fruit juices. Apple juice increases the action of the kidneys; other fruit juices stimulate the liver to secrete more bile, and bile produces easy and regular movements of the bowels; others stir up the glands of the skin to throw off more waste matter.

The difficulty is that to get these effects a great deal of fruit must be eaten, and the excess of pulp and woody matter may upset the digestion. The better way is to give the children "Fruit-a-tives", which are tablets made of concentrated fruit juices with valuable tonics added.

"Fruit-a-tives" have the combined effect of the different fruit juices, helping all the eliminating organs to work properly, curing Constipation, toning up the system, and keeping the children plump and rosy. 25c. for a trial box. 50c. for regular size—6 boxes for $2.50. Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

MOTHER'S GUIDE

When a young girl's thoughts become sluggish; when she has headaches, dizziness, faintness, and exhibits an abnormal disposition to sleep; dislikes the society of other girls; then the mother should come to her aid promptly, for she possesses information of vital importance to the young daughter.

At such a time the greatest aid to nature is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It prepares the young system for the coming change, and has helped to bring three generations safely from girlhood to womanhood. Read what has accomplished for Miss Olson.

Miss Ellen M. Olson, of 417 North East Street, Kewanee, Ill., in a letter to Mrs. Pinkham says:

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured me of backache, sideache, and established my periods after the best physicians in Kewanee had failed to help me, saying that an operation was necessary."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Women At The Temperance Meeting Held In Crystal Give Very Vigorous Addresses

Large Audience Hear Arguments in Favour of Local Option—Hall Crowded to the Doors.

SUCCESSFUL MEETING.

The Gospel Temperance meeting in the Crystal on Sunday afternoon was in charge of the women temperance workers of the city, the speakers being all ladies. One of the largest audiences in the series of meetings was present, the theatorium being crowded to the doors and the remarks of the different speakers were followed with an earnest attention that showed that the auditors were deeply interested in the subject of temperance. The ladies had evidently studied their subject earnestly and their addresses were eloquent and forcible.

Mrs. (Dr.) Scott, of the Murray Street Baptist Church, was in the chair, and the speakers included representatives of the Murray and Park Street Baptist Churches, George Street and Charlotte Street Methodist Churches, St. Andrew's and the Young Women's Christian Association. The meeting was opened with devotional exercises conducted by Mrs. Batten.

Is Temperance a Work for Women

Miss Kathleen Martin, of Murray Street Church, discussed the question, "Is Temperance a Work For Women," and gave reasons why women should be specially interested in this work.

First, because they were personally affected by it. It was on the wives and children of drinkers that the burden, disgrace and misery pressed with peculiar force. Even if the husband and father never became a drunkard, the loss of efficiency, of earning power, and most of all of attention and devotion to home that accompanied even moderate drinking, crushed the spirit and life out of many a woman.

Second, because drunkards were recruited from the ranks of the children. Women had the greatest influence on the early lives of their children, and should be faithful in implanting temperance principles.

Third, because women should always be constant advocates of temperance because to them was given charge of social arrangements, and they might be the cause of ruin to many lives by putting temptation in the way of their guests. No woman would place poison before her guests, but if she tempted them to the use of strong drink she was doing worse than offering poison.

Influence

Miss McCalla, of the Y. W. C. A., spoke on "Influence," saying that people exerted an influence on all with whom they came in contact. Who was there who had not felt in his own life the influence for good or evil of those with whom he came into touch. It was necessary, therefore, to remember that people similarly helped or hindered others. Influence had been compared to a shadow. Just as people were in the light of the Son of Righteousness, did they reflect from them His light. Indifference in the cause of temperance or any other good, was influence exerted on the wrong side, said the speaker.

How to Vote

Mrs. H. B. Collier, of the Charlotte Street Methodist Church, in speaking on "How to Vote Without Going to the Polls," remarked that she thought at one time that all women were in favour of Local Option. Mrs. Collier thought that there were two classes of women who should certainly support any measure that would tend to stop the drinking habit. The first of these was the drunkards' wives who knew just how the habit influenced their lives, and tended to make them and their children unhappy. The second class was the women who drank themselves. Fortunately there was only a small proportion of them, as compared with the women of other countries, but still there were some who had fallen victims to the temptation.

They had started drinking, some of them in the mistaken notion that the liquor would help them over some of the hard places in life. They found themselves worried by some problem, and took some liquor, thinking that it would make matters easier for them. Soon they found themselves drinking more, and although the liquor did not really help them, so insidious was it, that they really imagined that it was beneficial in its effect.

She had known an old doctor who prescribed the use of liquor as a medicine, and she was sure that he had a lot to answer for. She had often imagined that he had adopted this course in order to obtain more patients, at least that was the way it resulted.

Mrs. Collier, in conclusion pointed out the duty of the women in the fight and urged them to do all that they could to further the cause of temperance.

Some Question for Brothers

Miss Hill, of the Park Street Baptist Church, spoke upon how to vote and why. There could only be one reasonable opinion in regard to how to vote, and that was to vote in favour of Local Option. Miss Hill proposed to discuss why this course was the right one, although she remarked that there were so many reasons, that she would only have time to touch briefly upon one or two. Man was intended by nature to protect his home, and it was only reasonable that he should endeavour to remove everything from the pathway of his children that should tend to entrap and destroy them.

There was no greater tragedy than a drunkard's home, and it was impossible to say who were going to be the drunkards of the future. She was sure that if people had the power to look into the future and see what was going to transpire in future years they would at once take steps to banish the hydra-headed monster, drink, so that it would not have the chance it has at present of ruining men and women. There were people who drew aside their skirts from the men and women who had fallen, instead of trying in every possible way to help them, as was the duty of Christians. The speaker advised the ladies present to do everything in their power to help on the cause of Local Option and pointed out, that, while the great part of the vote was in the hands of the men yet the women could do much to further the cause if they set about it in the right way.

She spoke about the privilege of the ballot and the desirability and necessity of using it properly in order that the greatest good might result. She advised every man to exercise his privilege as became a Christian citizen and she was sure that if he did he would support local option, the measure would be carried by a sweeping majority in Peterborough next January.

What Traffic Takes From the Home.

Mrs. Rankin of St. Andrew's church emphatically decided that it was the duty of every Christian man and woman to vote for and to support local option. It could not be wondered at that people who were not Christians did not think that local option was in the best interests of the people but she could not understand how people who were members of God's family could fail to support the measure. There was of course a big difference between members of a church and true Christians and the latter should have no hesitation in working for local option.

She referred to the terrible effects of drink and stated that liquor destroyed both body and soul. In the United States where she had lived the greater part of her life, 100,000 people yearly filled drunkards' graves. She asked who were taking the places of these people in the great army of drunkards, "It is your sons and daughters" she stated emphatically.

People often said that moderate indulgence in the use of alcohol was all right. This is a mistaken notion. The drunkards were all moderate drinkers at one time in their lives until presently they found themselves in the grip of the habit.

Mrs. Rankin referred to the treating habit which she condemned strongly. A man came into town perfectly sober, met a friend who asked him to have a drink, did not refuse because it would not appear sociable, and finally when he returned to his home he was not a man, he was a fool and worse than a brute because a brute would not touch some of the stuff that men took.

If a man was cruel to any one when under the influence of liquor it was to his wife and she asked those present to bear that fact in mind.

A gentleman had remarked to her that drinking was not the only form of intemperance and asked her to remember the glutton and the many cases of dyspepsia caused by overeating. While that might affect the body it did not affect the soul as did the drink.

In conclusion she remarked that while the travelling public needed accommodation, they did not require the bar.

Mr. Campbell's Address

Mrs. (Rev.) Campbell of George st. Methodist church, president of the local branch of the Women's Christian Temperance Union was the concluding speaker of the afternoon. She stated that the bar room was the greatest cause of iniquity in present day life and emphatically declared that it should be banished. The drink habit was invading the homes of the citizens and destroying the younger people by its insidious temptation. The worst feature about it was to think that it was legalized by the government. The temperance people sought to banish the evil and they were constantly finding themselves working against the strongest opposition. They found the forty fathers and the government afraid to give them the measures they asked for, hedging them around in order to make it as difficult as possible to get what they were aiming at. The authorities seemed afraid to make any concessions to the cause of temperance. The three fifths clause of present Ontario Government, the speaker characterized as the greatest iniquity possible.

As it was at the present time the disorderly drunkard walked to the polls and marked his ballot in opposition to respectable citizens. Mrs. Campbell could see no reason why the local option measure should not be carried in Peterborough next January with a large majority if the work was gone ahead with in the proper manner. She spoke of the influence and the power that the women had in the fight and urged upon them to do everything in their power to see that the measure carried.

She understood that there were 700 women voters in Peterborough and she hoped that their hearts would be touched so that every one of them would mark their ballot in favour of local option and help to save some of the unfortunate victims of the habit and remove temptation from the pathway of the children.

The meeting was brought to a close with devotional exercises, conducted by Mrs. Jas. Kendry.

IN THE INTERESTS OF ORCHESTRAL MUSIC

Why Musicians Cling to the Prestige They Have Gained—Place a Sacrifice in Organizing Musical Success.

Now that Peterborough has a permanent orchestra, well deserving the support and encouragement of the public; in the interests of the development of local talent, the following from Saturday Night, in reference to the Toronto Symphony Orchestra, soon to be heard in Peterborough, will be read with attention. This excerpt is valuable as showing how much sacrifice and subordination of personal ambition and sometimes profit, and how much the spirit of co-operation is necessary to the success of organized music. Saturday Night says:

Because musicians in common with other people who make their living by the suffrage of that great unknown, The Public, have to cling tenaciously to whatever prestige they have gained or hope to gain, they have been called selfish and egotistical. But we have our sacrifices for the common good, that mean more than a tithe of all we are possessed. A case in point gives part of the answer to the success of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra. When Mrs. Drechsler Adamson thought that it would no for the good of the organization to make way for someone else she voluntarily resigned her position which by all right she was entitled to hold as long as she could play, and thus furnished one of the finest examples of devotion to a cause I have ever known. She and her talented daughter have done more for the fostering of orchestral music than anyone else in the city, as under Mrs. Adamson's direction the Conservatory String Orchestra has prepared the way for the splendid string section that Mr. Welsman now has. At Mrs. Adamson's suggestion Mr. Blachford becomes concert master, and she takes his place. Mr. Blachford has been coming rapidly to the fore, largely through the excellent work of the Toronto String Quartette, which he organized and directs, and since Mrs. Adamson has suggested the change it will undoubtedly be for the general good. At any rate public, press and musicians unite in praise and appreciation of Mrs. Adamson's generosity.

This is the spirit that has characterized the organization from its inception, and with this season the success it promises to be, Toronto will be able to boast of having the first symphony orchestra that is the outgrowth of a genuinely popular demands for orchestral music.

NO WOMAN

CAN BE STRONG AND HEALTHY UNLESS THE KIDNEYS ARE WELL.

When the kidneys are ill, the whole body is ill, for the poisons which the kidneys ought to filter out of the blood are left in the system. Then how important it must be to see to it that this system of sewerage be not clogged up. Those who have never been troubled with kidney trouble know not the misery and suffering which those afflicted undergo.

Doan's Kidney Pills are a specific for all kidney troubles. They begin by healing the delicate membranes of the kidneys and thus make their action regular and natural.

They help the kidneys to flush off the acrid and poisonous impurities which have collected, thus clearing out the kidneys, bladder and all the urinary passages.

Doan's Kidney Pills are entirely vegetable, and may be safely taken by young and old.

Let Doan's Kidney Pills do for you what they have done for thousands of others, that is, cure you.

Mrs. M. Bryanton, Spring Valley, P.E.I., writes: "I was troubled with my kidneys for two years. They were so bad at times I could not cross the floor for the pain. I tried a doctor but he did me no good at all. I sent to my nearest druggist and got five boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills, and I am glad to say that after taking them I have had no more trouble for nearly three years now."

Price 50 cts. per box, or 3 for $1.25, all dealers or The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

PARISIAN SAGE

Puts Hair on Your Head and Keeps It There

What's the use of being bald? What sense is there in deliberately allowing your hair to turn grey?

Do you want to look old before your time? Give up the thought; old age will come all too soon.

Look after your hair. Parisian Sage will kill the dandruff germs, and is the only preparation, so far as we know, that is guaranteed to do so.

Man or woman, no matter how old you are, Parisian Sage will make you look younger!

Why not go to Wm. Madill, corner of Hunter and George streets and get a large bottle to-day, it only costs 50 cents, and your money back if it does not cure dandruff, stop falling hair, or itching of the scalp. It will make your hair luxuriant, bright and beautiful and it is the most refreshing, pleasant and invigorating hair dressing made.

HAS ORDERED NEW BOAT FOR KAWARTHA LAKES

Mr. C. W. Burgoyne has given an order to Messrs. Hickey & Son, Peterborough, for a new boat, 65 feet in length and 14 feet in beam, to accommodate the 50 h.p. engine purchased early in the winter. The new boat will carry one hundred passengers, and will probably be put on the "Kawartha" route between the Falls and Coboconk, but will not be ready in time for the coming summer's business. — Fenelon Falls Gazette.

THE NORTH IS A LAND OF PROMISE

Cauliflower Grown 350 Miles North of Edmonton says Finance Chronicle.

Growing a cauliflower ten pounds weight, 350 miles north of Edmonton, is evidence surely that Canada's Northland is not the dreary waste we once thought it. This was by no means an exceptional achievement last year by Mr. Robert Jones, the farmer in charge of the Government experimental work in agriculture and horticulture at Fort Vermillion on the Peace River in Northern Alberta. More than 50 varieties of fruit trees, small fruits, etc., have been successfully experimented with. Fine samples of wheat have been sent out from the district and Mr. Jones says that he thinks he is quite safe in estimating the wheat crop of the Fort Vermillion district for this year at 35,000 bushels, with an average of about 24 bushels to the acre, and oats about 4,000 bushels, with an average of about 50 bushels to the acre. This makes a total of about 44,000 bushels of grain for that district. An up-to-date flour mill serves the needs of the population of that far-away "land of promise" which will in days to come be known as a land of plenty.—Finances Chronicle.

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS

THE MARCH ROD AND GUN.

Fish and Game Protection work throughout Canada forms a prominent topic in the March issue of Rod and Gun and Motor Sports in Canada, published by W. J. Taylor, Woodstock, Ont. In addition to a sketch of the meetings of the North American Fish and Game Protective Association, the organizations of three provinces also receive attention while in Ontario it likewise comes in for special treatment. Although so much space is given to this important work of aiding the conservation of Canada's natural resources, sportsmen will not be disappointed in the usual fare provided for them. The Hon. Chas. Scott tells in graphic language of a successful moose hunt in New Brunswick, while the Finest Hunt of the Wolf River Hunt Club is one no sportsman will read unmoved. An incident of the wolf hunt now in progress in Northern Ontario should not be overlooked, while Dr. Hornaday's ideals of Sportsmanship will recommend themselves to all. These ideals will be cherished, aimed at and worked up to and cannot fail to have a marked effect on the future of sport throughout the Northern portion of the continent. A description of British Columbia's new game preserve, with many other articles, including a particularly good one on Fur Trading With Indians in the Far North, departments replete with information and a special account of the Hamilton trap shooting tournament, make up a number appealing to every lover of the great out-door and one full of vivid interest to them all.

STRATHCONAS SAY FAREWELL TO POPULAR PLAYER ON OCCASION OF HIS DEPARTURE FROM CITY

Presentation of Suit Case Was Made to Mr. Herb. Long on Saturday Night—Left To-day for Fort William.

A VALUABLE MAN.

An interesting event took place at the Examiner office on Saturday night when the players and officers of the Strathconas Hockey Club gathered to say farewell to Mr. Herb. Long, the clever centre man of their city league team, who left this afternoon for Fort William, where he has secured a good position at his trade of pattern maker. Mr. Long has been a member of the Strathconas team for the past two years and has been one of their most useful players as well as being a good fellow whose relations with the club have always been of a most pleasant nature. His fellow players and the officers of the club took advantage of the opportunity to show the esteem in which he is held by them by presenting him with a handsome suit case and an address. Nearly all the members of the club were present with President H Ellis in the chair. The latter in opening the meeting expressed the regret of the Strathconas that Mr. Long was leaving Peterborough and thanked him for the services that he had rendered the club.

Mr. P A Weatherstone made the presentation on behalf of the Club while Secretary F D Craig read the following address:

Dear Herb,—We, the officers and players of the Strathcona Hockey Club, felt that we could not allow you to take your departure from the city without expressing in some tangible manner, our appreciation of the services you have rendered our club during the past two years. As a player you have been of invaluable service to us, and have always done everything in your power to help us win the league race.

We regret that you are leaving us and hope that you will be successful in your new sphere of life. We are sure that you will be it you show the same persistency that you have displayed in hanging around the front of the nets in our league games.

We ask you to accept this token of our esteem for you, with the only regret that it could not be a better recognition of your services. Wishing you every success.

Signed on behalf of the Strathcona Hockey Club:

Charles Ray, W J Metheral, H McMillan, Chas. Curtis, Len. Dobson, C B. Wilson, Jack Seymour, P A Weatherstone, J H Ellis, Wm. Milburn, B Parnell, W Regan, F D Craig, J W Thornbeck, A McWilliams, Ben Dusty.

In conclusion Manager W J Metheral praised Mr. Long for his efforts on behalf of the Strathconas and wished him every success in his new home in the West.

Mr. Long will be missed in many circles, especially in the sporting line as he had played lacrosse and hockey here for a number of years. His many friends while regretting his departure will unite in hoping that he is successful in Fort William.

PETERBORO' BOOKSTORE'S PROFITABLE PUBLICITY

Its Advertising Reviewed by the Critic of "Bookseller and Stationer."

The January number of "Bookseller and Stationer" contains a page devoted to the reproduction of some of the best bookstore advertisements taken from different newspapers throughout Canada. Among these is the full-page holiday announcement of the Peterborough Bookstore, which appeared in the Examiner at Christmas, regarding which the critic of the "Bookseller" has this to say:

"Stratton's bookstore is one of the best advertisements shown. The use of more cuts would have enhanced its attractiveness. Becaus of its enlarged size it presents probably opportunities for effective publicity that is not within the reach of the user of smaller space."

ROUTLEY'S

Toronto — Peterborough — Montreal

"To Caesar The Things Which Are Caesar's And Unto God The Things Which Are God's"

Bishop Reeve of Toronto Preached Two Strong Sermons at All Saints' Church—"Whose Is This Image and Superscription?"

VERY PERSONAL QUESTIONS.

"Are we true or only sham Christians? Do we ring true like the good coin, or do we, when the test comes, sound dull and dead as the counterfeit?" These were important questions which Bishop Reeve of Toronto, charged the congregation of All Saints' Church during the course of his sermon last night, to individually take unto themselves, and to carefully consider. His Lordship spoke to large congregations at both the morning and evening services, his message at the latter being for a careful self examination to determine for ourselves whether we are living a life pleasing to Christ, and if not, to resolve in the future to follow in His footsteps to the best of our ability.

Bishop Reeve chose as his text the 20th verse, 22nd Chapter of St. Matthew: "And he saith unto them, whose is this image and superscription?" Also the relative passage: "Render therefore unto Caesar the things which are Caesar's but unto God the things which are God's." He referred to this attempt to entrap Christ, and then asked the members of the congregation to look into their mirror before retiring and calmly each one to ask himself or herself: "Whose is this image or superscription?" If you cannot answer from the bottom of your heart, this is the image of Christ, and not the superscription of the world, then you are in a dangerous condition, and no one should rest until they could make a satisfactory answer before God. Man was made in the image of God, but gradually lost that blessed heritage through the slow lapse of time, and the farther wandering from Him. But Christ was sent to renew it, and to bring man back into the fold of God, restoring unto him the likeness of his Creator. Many persons had failed in the promises made for them at baptism by their sponsors, and at confirmation by themselves. The likeness of Christ was not as clearly seen in them as it ought to be. The Sacraments and Services could not keep them in the right path, they must be baptized of the Spirit to show the true superscription of God.

Bishop Reeve stated that the real Christian ought to show in the face and figure whom he serves. One need not judge by a long face of a sanctimonious expression, but when there is a peace of God dwelling in the heart, its reflection is cast upon the face by look of happiness and rest which others do not possess. In this connection he urged young people to be careful about the thoughts which they treasure in their minds. Thoughts build up the character and as the young grow into maturity it is necessary that their thoughts be relative to good, that their characters may be thus developed. Bishop Reeve urged the congregation not to be followers, not to do things for the reason that others did it. That was generally a worldly path, wide, easy and pleasurable, and not the path that leads to God. We cannot help evil thoughts coming into our minds, but we can help their remaining there. They frequently come when the mind is engaged in holy things. The aim should be to have the mind centre upon the virtues, upon honesty, justice, purity, chastity, and it will be found that slowly but surely a character will be evolved which will ring true when the crisis comes. It will not be found lacking like the counterfeit, but will sound clear like virgin silver that knows not a debasing alloy.

THE AUTHOR OF "SALOME"

Another Letter Referring to the Much-Talked of Affair of Last Week.

WILDE'S OTHER NATURE.

To the Editor of the Examiner,—

Dear Sir:— As an interested spectator of the performance of "Salome," I should be obliged if you will kindly pardon the expression of my humble opinion of the rendering of this so-called immoral play.

As seen at the Grand Opera House last week, there was absolutely nothing to arouse any evil tendency in the mind of a person of even moderately sound morals. Respecting the libretto, I am sure that only the minds of evilly disposed persons would be affected evilly.

The play is undoubtedly clever, and if witnessed in a purely unbiassed mood, presents a moral which cannot be too highly preached.

The author, the degenerate, did not always deserve the latter name. Although I have no desire to protect his name or deeds, yet it must be admitted that even his bitterest enemies cannot fail to admire the superb and inspiring productions of his pen before his degeneracy. In a biography of Oscar Wilde, you will notice such as this: Mr. Wilde visited Italy in 1875. In Florence he became aware of the spiritual element in art and turned wistfully toward that religion which had inspired the great Italian painters. During this mood, he produced some fine poems, notably that entitled "Rome Unvisited," which won high praise from Cardinal Newman. This I quote to show that although the name of Oscar Wilde, coupled with a play, seems to stamp it as indecent, yet the author was not wholly and always the degenerate of later years. But to the point—I do not think for a moment that any person of sound morals and religious temperament can find fault with the production of "Salome" as it was presented at the Opera House in Peterborough.

You will notice I mention Peterborough, and I do so because I have only seen the production here and cannot give any opinion of its appearance elsewhere.

With apologies,

GEFAHRLOS.

N.B.—I am in no way connected with the company presenting this drama, nor with the proprietors of the house.

PREACHED AT ST. LUKE'S CHURCH

Provost Macklem of Trinity University Spoke at Both Services.

During the absence of Rev. E A Langfeldt, Provost Macklem, of Trinity University, Toronto, preached at both morning and evening services at St. Luke's church, East City. The Provost took for his text in his sermon at the evening service from the 30 verse, 12th chapter, of the Gospel of St. Mark: "Thou shalt love the Lord with all thy heart; with all thy soul; with all thy mind, with all thy strength." And on this he based a few well spoken words of exhortation to the congregation.

NOTES FROM THE BOYS' DEPARTMENT

Yesterday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. a large number of boys attended the boys' meeting.

A very interesting address was given by Dr. J. E. Middleton, which the boys appreciated very much.

These meetings are held every Sunday at 4.15. All boys cordially invited.

ORCHESTRA PROGAMME.

A Delightful Evening is Promised.

We have been furnished with the programme to be performed by the Toronto Symphony Orchestra, of which the following is a reproduction. Miss Bertha May Crawford, the soprano, is soloist at the Metropolitan Church, Toronto, and has a voice of great range. She is at her best in the numbers opposite her name, and both artists and orchestra will furnish a delightful programme.

Overture—"The Merry Wives of Windsor," Otto Nicolai.

Grand Valse—from "The Barber of Seville," Venzano; Miss Bertha May Crawford, Soprano.

The Unfinished Symphony — Franz Schubert.

Violin Concerto—Mendelssohn; Miss Lina Drechsler Adamson, soloist.

Vorspiel to the 3rd Act of "Kunihild," Kistler.

Elegiac Melody for stringed instruments, Edward Grieg.

Spanish Dance—Moszkowski.

Overture—The Hebrides, Mendelssohn.

Group of Songs—'Twas April, Nevin. When the Roses Bloom, Reichardt; May Morning, Denza, Miss Bertha May Crawford.

Three Dances from "Hery VIII., Edward German.

THE CLERGYMEN ARE DEFENDED

Correspondent Upholds the Action of Lakefield Ministers in Local Option Campaign.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir:— In the last issue of the Lakefield News there is a letter from an anonymous correspondent taking the Protestant Clergy off Lakefield to task for interfering in municipal affairs, or as the correspondent puts it, "striving for temporal power"; it is charged that our Ministers, who are paid for attending to the spiritual wants of their different congregations, take up much of their time in influencing electors and in trying to control and coerce the Municipal Council, and it is estimated that they, and not the Council, are responsible for the appointment of our present constable. Now, sir, I have the best of reasons for saying that the Ministers of Lakefield, Roman Catholic as well as Protestant, have the respect and confidence of all the law abiding and respectable citizens of the village. We know that they are always ready and anxious to act as true ministers of the Gospel of Christ, viz., for the uplifting and well being of their congregations in spiritual as well as temporal matters.

In criticizing the actions of public servants, either in private or public, the first essential should be perfect honesty of purpose and strict regard for the truth. I am sorry to have to say that in these virtues the news correspondent is lamentably deficient; in plain English, his letter from beginning to end is most unjust, and malicious and without foundation. The Ministers of Lakefield have neither influenced nor coerced the Council in the manner stated, and if the News correspondent will call a public (or "indignation") meeting as he threatens, or if he will write over his own signature, I am prepared to answer him and to prove what I have stated, and I would advise the News correspondent before he makes any further charges, to "look to the end."

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I will for the present sign myself,

FAIR PLAY.

Salvation Army Barracks To Undergo Extensive Improvements

Brigadier Hargrave and Major Miller the latter the architect of the Salvation Army, spent the week end in the city assisting in the services at the barracks. A special reason of the visit of the architect was to the purpose of forming an estimate of the costs of the improvements which are to be made to the Peterborough citadel. It is learned that the basement will be greatly changed transforming it into a modern Sunday School room with classrooms extending back from the main assembly room. Upstairs in the meeting hall there will be considerable changes. The present platform will be partitioned off, forming a seperate room which the band will use. The front part of the building will be added to the main hall. In the past it has been the quarters of the officers in charge of the corps. Its addition will replace the platform thus leaving the main hall practically about the same size. It is understood that a main entrance will be built in the centre of the front of the building, the two side entrances being closed up. These were most of the intended changes but nothing definite has yet been announced although it is expected that Major Miller will arrive at some decision before returning to Toronto. The cost has been stated to reach three or four thousand dollars.

REPLY MADE TO ANTI-CANT'S LETTER

Member of St. Paul's Church Defends Course of Rev. Mr. Pogue.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir:—Will you please allow me space in your valuable paper to make a reply to "Anti-Cant," who takes advantage of the Rev. Mr. Pogue's letter condemning "Salome," to let that reverend gentleman know that he does not appreciate his sermons.

I may say that "Anti-Cant" is not voicing the sentiments of the great majority of St. Paul's Church as is shown by the splendid advancement of that congregation during Mr. Pogue's partnership.

In reference to the play "Salome," if played in its old time fashion, is one of the vilest plays known to the operatic world, but through the protests of some society people it has been modified to such an extent, that it is not objected to by some theatre patrons. Therefore I say that Mr. Pogue was justified in condemning that which he knew to be injurious to his fellow creatures, and his reward on earth has been a letter of gross insult from a man signing himself Anti-Cant, but he has this assurance from the lips of our Saviour: "Blessed are ye when men shall revile you and persecute you for righteousness sake, for yours is the kingdom of God.

WEDDING BELLS

DEVLIN—DWYER

A pretty wedding was solemnized in St. Joseph's Church, Douro, this morning, when Miss Bridget Dwyer, daughter of the late John Dwyer, of Douro, was united in marriage to Mr. William Devlin, of Otonabee, son of Mr. Matthew Devlin. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Kielty. Miss Clara Dwyer, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and Mr. Thomas Flattery was best man. Many young people are very popular and numerous wedding presents were received. Mr. and Mrs. Devlin will reside in Otonabee.

BOOSTING CITY OF BRANTFORD

Successful Publicity Policy is Attributed to Peterborough by Outside Towns.

The Brantford correspondent to Hardware and Metal, points out Welland and Peterborough as having successfully instituted the "boosting the city" policy. Welland may deserve it, but the people of this city know to what extent it has been carried out here, or rather has not been carried out. The following is the reference:

A representative meeting of local merchants was held in the Y.M.C.A. rooms on Wednesday last to discuss the advisability of the formation of an organization among the retail body for protective purposes, and for the carrying out of plans that would prove helpful and profitable in the matter of bringing retail trade to the city. Nothing definite was arrived at. A committee, consisting of J M Young, W R Turnbull, C F Ramsay, Hugh Howie and F J Colbeck, was appointed to look into the matter. The alternative of either co-operating with the Board of Trade or forming a retail merchants' club will be considered, and a report will be submitted at a general meeting at a later date. The next meeting may take the form of a banquet or luncheon. Speaking of the proposed organization to your correspondent, a prominent dealer here said that the object of organizing was to boost Brantford, secure better railway facilities, better radial rates, and a rural telephone exchange throughout the country. These matters would redound greatly to the benefit of local retail trade, and such an organization will fill a long felt want.

The matter of appointing a publicity commissioner is being pushed ahead. local papers are advocating such an appointment, and the matter will be discussed at the next meeting of the city council. The success of Welland and Peterborough are pointed out as examples to follow.

AN AMATEUR'S ARTISTIC WORK

Mr. N. A. Howard Moore Has Splendid Photographs on Exhibition.

A splendid example of amateur photography is on display in the show window of the Tate-Taylor Optical Company. It is three views of Jackson Park done in Sepia on Royal Velox, the work of Mr. N A Howard-Moore. It is an artistic effort throughout, the frame even adding to the combined effect. Mr. Moore selected one of the prettiest spots in the park and has treated it from several view points with splendid results. This is a sample of the work which Mr. Moore will exhibit at the Toronto, Montreal and Ottawa Camera Club's exhibitions.

OBITUARY.

WILLIAM O. D. THROOP

The death occurred on Saturday of William Oron D Throop, son of Mr. John Throop, at the age of thirty years. The family resides in Douro near the canal on the extension of Smith street, and has lived near the city about a month. The father, one brother, Burton, and five sisters survive him. The funeral will be held to-morrow at 12 o'clock, proceeding to Zion Cemetery, Otonabee.

J. AUBREY THEOBALD

The friends of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Theobald unite in extending to them sincere sympathy on the loss of their youngest son Joachim Aubrey, who passed away on Sunday at the age of six months and nine days.

The funeral was held this morning from the family residence 472 Roger street to St. Peter's Cemetery.

ISABELLA PEARSON

The sad death occurred Sunday morning of Isabelle Pearson, beloved wife of Henry Pearson, 537 Elm street, at the age of 39 years. Mrs. Pearson's maiden name was Isabelle Dupree. She was born in Sussex, England, from there she moved to London, where she joined the Salvation Army 20 years ago, and was made an officer in London nine years ago. Mrs. Pearson is survived by her sorrowing husband, Henry Pearson, two children, Dudley and Dorothy, both living at home, three brothers, Rev. Charles Dupree, pastor of the Methodist church at Sherbrooke; George Dupree, 573 Walnut street, city, and Jesse, who lives in Sussex, England. The sympathy of the whole community is with this bereaved family, and many friends and acquaintances will miss the kind and gentle worker who went among them.

MANY LECTURES TO BE GIVEN SOON

Peterboro Branch of Royal Astronomical Society Will Hold Meetings During Lent.

The Peterborough branch of the Royal Astronomical Society intend to hold a series of lectures in the chemistry room of the P. C. I. starting on Friday night, Feb. 26th, when Professor C. A. Chant, professor of astronomy at the Toronto University, will speak on the "Universe of Stars." Prof. Chant has appeared here before and is a great speaker, being very popular at the University. On March 9th G. Parry Jenkins, F.R.A.S., Hamilton, will give an address on "Sky Land." On March 23rd, J. A. Patterson, M.A., K.C., will lecture on "Astronomy for Every body." Mr. Patterson is a lawyer who is very prominent in the Laymen's Missionary Movement and a good speaker. On April 6th Prof. Mitchell will give a lecture and on April 20th Dr. Warner, of Cleveland, the big millionaire manufacturer of telescopes, will give a lecture on the "Pyramids of Egypt". On May 4th Dr. Marsh will speak on "Photosphere"; this lecture will be illustrated.

The following was clipped from the Hamilton Times of February 20, G. Parry Jenkins, F. R. A. S., lectured on 'Remarkable Comets," last night, to a large audience, at a general meeting of the Hamilton association held in the museum. Special photos of the comets taken by Mr. Jenkins were exhibited and the address was instructive and interesting. "Remarkable Comets" gave the lecturer a wide field, but he confined himself to recent phenomena.

The meetings of the society are growing in public interest and the lecture hall at the Library building would hardly accommodate the number attending last night—a most disagreeable night.

IDENTITY HAS BEEN PROVEN

Philadelphia Prisoner Is Shown to Be Chris. M. Holland.

PLANNED HUGH SWINDLE

Said to Have Laid In Two Days the Foundation For What Looks Like a Gigantic Fraud Involving $80,000 on Toronto Banks—Several Other Charges Against Him—He Will Fight Extradition.

Toronto, Feb. 22.—Christopher M. Holland, arrested in Philadelphia by Supt. Walsh of the Canadian Detective Agency on Thursday, has been positively identified as the man posing as David Newhall of the Geo. M. Newhall Engineering Co., Ltd., of Philadelphia, who in two days laid what looks like the foundation for an $80,000 forgery swindle on a number of Toronto banks, and who got away with a marked check for $5,000 from the Imperial Bank branch at Queen and Yonge streets.

Inspector of Detectives Duncan was assured of the identification by the chief of Philadelphia detectives.

Holland will also be charged with theft of a book of Canadian Express Co. money orders, obtained from the company Aug. 11, 1908, by means of an order forged in the name of White & Co., Ltd., Toronto. Of these, it is claimed he cashed a number throughout Ontario, to the extent of $1,000. Robert Ford, an ex-employe of the company, was tried for the theft in the September session, but was acquitted, though at first it looked as though the case against him would be strong.

In addition to this Holland will be charged with obtaining at St. Thomas on Aug. 7, 1908, a book of Dominion Express Co. money orders on a forged order purporting to be signed by Thomas Bros., Ltd., of that city. Of these, $2,500 worth were forged and cashed in different parts of Ontario.

Inspector Duncan said Saturday: "All credit for this arrest belongs to Supt. Welsh. He did good work."

Holland is well known in Toronto. He was a prominent resident of Parkdale until some three years ago it came out that he was an embezzler from the firm for which he was accountant. He was arrested in England.

He was brought back and sentenced to the Central Prison. A week ago, a writ was issued by him here claiming $10,000 damages from a bank manager in British Columbia, alleging alienation of his wife's affections. Holland saw service in South Africa.

It appears that Holland, passing as an engineer of large mining interests, came to the city Feb. 11 and stayed at the King Edward. He brought letters of introduction, forged and genuine, from bankers and prominent legal firms in Philadelphia, Buffalo and other large American cities. He used the name of Newhall.

At the Imperial Bank, Queen and Yonge streets, he deposited a check for $10,000, drawn to his own credit on the First National Bank of Philadelphia, a forgery; another for $5,000 was deposited later in the day from another American bank, and still another for $5,000 on the Imperial Bank of this city to which was forged the name of Cassells, and the acceptance marking of the bank. He then obtaimed a marked check for $5,000, which he drew against this account. That was Friday, the 12th, and he left the city for Philadelphia at 3.45 that afternoon. He had made similar deposits with nearly all the city banks, but nowhere else, as far as is known, made any effort to draw any money.

The letter with which Holland introduced himself to Joseph Henderson, manager of the Bank of Toronto, and to whom it was addressed, is typewritten on the letter paper of Messrs. Bartlett, Chamberlain and Smith, a prominent firm of attorneys in Buffalo. It is signed in the name of the firm and reads:

"As we have had some very satisfactory dealings through your bank, we take pleasure in introducing to you Mr. David Newhall of the George M. Newhall Engineering Co., Ltd., of Philadelphia—a very good client of ours. Mr. Newhall is going to Toronto and thence north to the new silver district of Gowganda in the interests of himself, his brother, George M. Newhall, Senator Boice Pemrose of Philadelphia, Jacob C. Dold, Edward L. Hengerer and others of Buffalo."

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

The Princess Hotel Co., Limited, at Winnipeg has been incorporated, and will erect a big modern hotel there.

On account of a strike at Lethbridge, the C.P.R. have granted a year's extension of time to the Walkerville Bridge Co. on the big bridge there.

Another 20,000 acre block of timber, 200 miles north of the city of Vancouver has passed into the hands of the R. Pendleton, H. S. Gilkie and American Timber Co.

Michael C. Smith, a well-known rancher of Pincher Creek, Alberta, was killed between Hosmer and Fernie. He fell from a train, his arms and legs were cut off.

The police have knowledge of an organized gang for smuggling Chinese into the United States from Canada. Canada gets the head tax, United States the Chinamen.

The Senate of the territorial Legislature tabled the bill prohibiting aliens fishing in Hawaiian waters. The measure as introduced would have affected most directly many Japanese fishermen.

Rev. D. B. Harkness, M.A., of Winnipeg, has been appointed superintendent of Baptist missions in western Canada, in succession to Rev. W. T. Stackhouse, M.A., who becomes secretary of the Baptist Laymen's Missionary Movement, with headquarters in Toronto.

Quebec Opposition United.

Montreal, Feb. 22.—The town of St. Laurent, the chief town of the county of Jacques Cartier, witnessed the welding together of the several factions composing the Opposition in Quebec.

On the one hand were Bourassa and Lavergne, while the straight Conservatives were represented by Cousineau and Patenaude from Jacques Cartier and Laprairie.

Bourassa made a speech in which he said he was willing to work with all patriots and as the other two filled the bill the union was made complete.

Quite a number of priests from the college were on the platform and harmony reigned.

He Bought the Woman.

New Westminster, Feb. 22.—Representing that he could not get possession of a comely young woman whom he had purchased from her husband for $20, a man named Barker applied to the city police for assistance.

The sale of the young woman took place while she was in the maternity cottage at the Royal Columbian Hospital, she being, it is alleged, a party to the deal. The husband has since left town.

The trouble arose because the purchaser wished the woman to enter his home at once, she insisting on delay. The woman has been placed in the care of a female relative. All the parties are white.

Home Again.

Fort Monroe, Va., Feb. 22.—The returning United States battleship fleet reached the southern drill grounds, 50 miles off the Virginia Capes early, and left at 5 o'clock this morning, reaching the Capes by 10 o'clock, passing the Mayflower in good time.

The despatch boat Yankton, which slipped in last Wednesday, returned from Washington yesterday, a veritable treasure ship. In her strong room last night were golden eagles, double eagles and half eagles to the amount of $800,000 to be used in paying off the officers and men upon their arrival.

This Real Estate Pays.

Rome, Feb. 22.—Six months ago a Neapolitan bought for $2,000 a plot of land four miles outside of Rome, which was to be devoted to the growing of artichokes. While digging recently he discovered a large marble fountain six feet high and six feet in diameter with a frieze of dancing girls in bas relief around it, evidently the product of a Greek chisel. They are valued at $100,000.

Statue of Champlain.

Ottawa, Feb. 22.—There was placed for exhibition in the main entrance of the Parliament building Saturday afternoon the cast of a statue (heroic size) of Samuel de Champlain, to be erected in bronze in St. John, N.B. Hamilton McCarthy is the sculptor and the cost of the finished work will be $10,000. The bronze figure will be cast in New York.

THE POLICEMAN WAS MURDERED

Nelson Dessler of Berlin Caught Robbing Office in Olean, N.Y.

IS HIMSELF FATALLY SHOT

Ontario Man, When Surprised In Act of Looting Business Concern, Engages In Revolver Fight In Which He Kills One Man and Is Mortally Wounded by Another—Served Two Years for Theft.

Toronto, Feb. 22.—Nelson Dessler of Berlin, Ont., discovered in the act of burglary, shot and killed a police officer at Olean, N. Y., early Sunday morning and was himself fatally shot, it is believed, in a revolver duel with another policeman. He escaped, but was found practically dying in his room in a hotel during the afternoon.

The details of his murderous affray of yesterday are given in an Olean despatch, saying:

"In a hand to hand pistol duel with Nelson Dessler of Berlin, Ont., whom he caught in the act of burglarizing the office of the Droney Lumber Co. in the Masonic Temple yesterday, Police Captain Thomas Hassett was shot through the head and instantly killed. Dessler was shot four times. He escaped, but was caught yesterday afternoon in his room in the Olean House, where he registered yesterday from Pittsburg. He will probably die before morning.

"A night telephone operator in the telephone exchange which is located in the Masonic Temple, heard some one in the lumber company's office early to-day and called police headquarters. Capt. Hassett responded. As he entered the lumber company's office Dessler stepped from behind a door and grappled with him. Both men went to the floor and they struggled for supremacy for fully five minutes. Then shots were heard and Dessler came dashing down the stairs. He was met in the corridor by Patrolman Vollmer who had been summoned by the telephone operator. Dessler and Vollmer exchanged pistol shots, but the burglar eluded the officer and got away.

"Capt. Hassett was found on the floor with a bullet wound in his head. He had been instantly killed. Dessler escaped for the time, but was found at the hotel this afternoon. He had two bullet wounds in the abdomen, one in the arm and one in the leg."

In the circular issued by the Toronto police in 1905 Dessler is described as "alias Geo. McDonald," 30 years old, 5 feet 9 inches in height, weighing 175 pounds, with auburn hair and sandy complexion.

Dessler is 33 years of age. His parents are respectable residents of Berlin, but Nelson is given the reputation of having always been regarded as a "bad boy." Six years ago he was convicted of burglarizing a jewelry store and stealing some rings, and was sentenced to four years in the penitentiary at Kingston. He was released on parole after serving two years and came to Toronto on Dec. 20, 1905, and while employed at the Mason & Risch piano factory, a warrant was sworn out for him for the theft of a suit of clothes and an overcoat from Emil Niepage, a tailor at 95 Shaw street. He disappeared, and although Chief O'Neill of Berlin kept a keen lookout, it being thought he would turn up there, no trace was found of him.

Nelson, after leaving school, worked five years in the furniture factory.

Olean is 90 miles south of Rochester. Hassett, the dead policeman, leaves a large family.

Twenty Lives Lost.

Buenos Ayres, Feb. 22.—The Argentine steamer Presidente Roca from southern ports, according to reports received here, has been wrecked and sunk between Puerto de San Antoine and Puerto Madrin on the east coast. The steamer caught fire and it is reported that twenty lives were lost, 350 passengers and members of the crew being saved.

The Presidente Roca belonged to the Hamburg-South American line. She was the largest steamer trading regularly between Buenos Ayres and the southern ports of the republic.

No New Cardinals In 1909.

Rome, Feb. 22.—The correspondent of The Sun is reliably informed that the Pope has determined not to appoint any cardinals before the end of the year, hence there will be no consistory at Easter. Pius X. is reported to have said that the condition of the Vatican finances would not allow the creation of any new cardinals.

Besides, he consider that fifty-four cardinals will suffice for the government of the church.

Prince as Savage Member.

London, Feb. 22.—The true London Bohemianism was never better exemplified than at the Savage Club last night, with the Prince of Wales in the chair at the usual weekly dinner. The prince as an ordinary Savage showed himself to be of like passions as his brother Savages and there was an evening of unlimited fun.

The only speech of the evening was the prince's regulation announcement to his brother Savages: "You may smoke."

To Visit Dying Wife.

Winnipeg, Feb. 22.—Charles Rowe, a Belgian workman, has arrived here, on a desperate tramp across Canada in the heart of winter, in the forlorn hope of working his way back to Europe to see his dying wife, who is a victim of consumption, and is appealing to him to come home and see her before she dies. He has no money, but is determined to comply with her wish, nevertheless, or perish in the attempt.

Seven Killed Near Nipegon.

Winnipeg, Feb. 22.—Word has reached here of the killing of seven men employed on the new Transcontinental near Nipegon.

An explosion of dynamite was the cause.

TAFT'S SECRETARIES.

Next President Has Chosen All But One of His Cabinet.

Columbus, Ohio, Feb. 22.—J. M. Dickinson of Tennessee will be Secretary of War in the Taft Cabinet.

Chas. Nagel of St. Louis will be Mr. Taft's Secretary of Commerce and Labor; R. A. Ballinger will be Secretary of the Interior.

This statement is not made upon the announcement of Mr. Taft but its correctness may be accepted without question.

Mr. Dickinson is a Tennesseean, although temporarily residing in Chicago, where his duties as general solicitor of the Illinois Central Railway system required his presence. He is a Democrat, although always having opposed Bryan.

Mr. Taft admits he is making headway in the selection of a Secretary of the Treasury, but maintains that the place is not yet filled. Franklin MacVeagh and Byron T. Herrick are two of the men under consideration.

With this exception the Taft Cabinet is complete, and when officially promulgated shortly before his inauguration the other members will be found to be as follows:

Secretary of State, Philander C. Knox of Pennsylvania.

Attorney-General, Geo. W. Wickersham of New York.

Postmaster-General, Frank H. Hitchcock of Massachusetts.

Secretary of Agriculture, Jas. Wilson of Iowa.

In this list are five lawyers, of whom Mr. Taft believes, there are none better in the country.

JUDGE ANGLIN MOVES UP.

Promoted From Exchequer of Ontario to Supreme Court.

Ottawa, Feb. 22.—Mr. Justice F. A. Anglin of the Exchequer Division of the Ontario High Court has been appointed to the vacancy on the Bench of the Supreme Court of Canada caused by the retirement on superannuation of Hon. Jas. Maclennan. In making the appointment the Minister of Justice had adhered to the policy of promotion from the Provincial High Court followed in making the recent Supreme Court appointments. It is understood that promotion was first offered to Mr. Justice Osler, but the latter again decided not to leave Toronto. The vacancy on the Ontario High Court Bench thus caused will probably not be filled for some weeks.

Judge Anglin, who is the son of the late Hon. Timothy Anglin, at one time Speaker of the Commons, was appointed to the High Court Bench in March, 1904. He brought to the duties of his high office "an infinite capacity for taking pains," which is an admirable trait in a judge.

Castro Suspended.

Caracas, Feb. 22.—Cipriano Castro has lost his title as President of Venezuela, the high court having rendered a decision that sufficient evidence had been presented in the suit brought against him by the Attorney-General at the instance of Senor Alcantara, Minister of the Interior, on the charge of having attempted to bring about the assassination of Juan Vicente Gomez, the acting President.

In its decision, the High Federal Court transfers the suit to the Criminal Court and declares that Castro in consequence of this disclosures, is constitutionally suspended from the Presidency.

Body Is Cut In Two.

St. Thomas, Feb. 22.—Jas. Dickey, a yard employe, aged 42, was instantly killed in the local M.C.R. yards on Saturday morning. He was assisting to change engines on the express train and had just finished a coupling and stepped back on the opposite track, to be instantly knocked down by the uncoupled engine, which was backing up. Dickey's body was cut in tow. Dickey came from Corinth, Ont., six years ago, and had been on the railroad two years. Two sons and two daughters survive.

Roosevelt and the Catholics.

Washington, Feb. 22.—Rev. A. P. Doyle, rector of the apostolic mission house, called at the White House on Saturday and introduced to the President 25 young Catholic priests from all parts of the country, who are members of the class of 1909.

The object of the visit was to personally thank the President for what he had done for the Catholics of the country during his administration and the "square deal" they had received.

O. H. A. SERIES NEARING AN END PETERBORO MAY SEE BIG GAME

All three O. H. A. series are fast approaching the final stage, and, given favourable weather, the end of next week may see the different championships decided.

In the senior series T. A. A. C. must win from Osgoode Hall on Wednesday to tie Kingston for group honours. This they are likely to do, and the matter of the play off is now being considered. T. A. A. C. want a sudden-death game in Peterborough or Belleville, as they are having a great deal of trouble getting their players away. Kingston, on the other hand, desires home-and-home games. A general meeting of the executive ha been called for five o'clock to-morrow afternoon at President Turner's office to determine which it shall be. The winners will meet St. Michael's in the final, probably in home-and-home games.

In the intermediate ranks Milton plays to-day at Ingersoll and Wiarton at Stratford, and the winners will meet in the next round on the former's ice on Thursday and the latter's on Monday. To-morrow Beamsville and St. Kitts hook up in a sudden-death affair, which will dispose of the fight in the Niagara district. The winners will clash with Lindsay in Lindsay Thursday and at home Monday. Then will come the finals the following Wednesday and Friday.

The juniors are in a trifle more complicated state. Berlin are slated to travel to Stratford Wednesday, with the return battle in Berlin Friday. Eurekas journey to Picton today, and on Thursday Picton will make their bow at the Mutual Street Rink. Midland and Barrie will meet in the second game of their play off Barrie either to-night or to-morrow night, and the winners will go up against Haileybury in a sudden-death bontest at North Bay. Sargeant of Barrie will referee the latter game. When the smoke clears away three teams will be left, and their disposition will depend greatly on "geogra fical" conditions.

EDMONTON HOCKEY TEAM PLAYED GREAT GAME AGAINST NELSON

Referring to the Edmonton-Nelson game played in Nelson, but won by Whitcroft's seven by 6—5, the Edmonton Bulletin has the following:

Harry Bishop's work in goal was spectacular, and undoubtedly - saved Nelson from a snowslide. Winchester's goal work showed up well, but he is not in Bishop's class. Frank Patrick, Lester Patrick and Archie Bishop were the other stars on the home team. For Edmonton Whitcroft and Miller played magnificently. The two teams were so evenly matched that comparison is difficult, but Nelson's combination was inferior to the northerners. Frank Patrick's rushes were the features of the game.

Edmonton surprised the locals by scoring one minute from the start, and the game was furious for twenty-one minutes, until Nelson tallied and tied. Four times more Edmonton led, and the score was tied until, with only three more minutes to play, Edmonton scored the winning goal and Nelson failed to even up.

Whitcroft was conspicuous on the Edmonton attack, and Miller and Deeton also played a splendid game. Edmonton's passing was great, but Nelson's individual work was brilliant. Frank Patrick's unsupported rush when he made the score four all brought yells from two thousand throats. Lester Patrick was checked hard and closely watched all through the game, getting few chances to make his favourite rush. Ross, of Edmonton, worked hard and delivered the goods all the time, and Crowley, playing behind him at point, was not easy to pass. Boulton as rover showed up well for the Albertans.

THE IROQUOIS WON FROM THE B.A.C. PAUL JONES' INDIANS ARE COMING

The Pacifics are still in the lead in the Bowling League at the P.B.C. alleys, with the Bankers in third place. The Belmonts have been doing some nice bowling lately and they are in fourth place and only 81 points behind the Bankers. Things are beginning to get interesting. On Saturday night the Iroquois improved their standing a little by taking two games from the B.A.C.

Saturday's games resulted as follows:

B. A. C.—

Best	136	203	139—478
Moltge	140	134	159—433
Campbell	126	200	131—457

FRITZ MOHL ACCOMPLISHED TASK OF THROWING THREE MEN IN AN HOUR

Hamilton, Feb. 20.—Fritz Mohl certainly had his work cut out at the Armory rink last night when he attempted to throw Sam Zeller, Norman Chrysler and Charlie Conkle in an hour. Mohl did the trick all right, but was a tired man when he got through, and at that won with only three minutes to spare.

There was not a very large crowd present, but there was plenty of enthusiasm among the gallery boys, especially when Conkle was on the mat. Sam Zeller, the strong barber, was the first to go on, and Samuel made a good showing, bothering Mohl for twelve minutes, before his shoulders were finally pinned down. Mohl had too much weight for Zeller to handle. The German weighed 235 pounds, while Zeller was fully 70 pounds lighter, and Conkle and Chrysler lighter still.

Chrysler showed up to good advantage and for the first five minutes was on top. The German's superior strength and weight made it impossible for him to do anything with him, although when he finally got on top he found Chrysler a tough proposition for his weight. Chrysler broke away from many good holds and was finally captured by the scissors and arm hold.

When Charlie Conkle went on the mat the spectators were treated to a cross between a wrestling match and a Marathon race. Conkle would not give the German a chance to catch him at all, but kept running round the ring and using Referee Carroll as a dodging post. Mohl would get him in a corner and grab him, but the first chance Conkle got to break away he would start runnig around the ring again. When they finally settled down to business Conkle was on top as much as his opponent, but he could not handle the weight, and Mohl finally threw him after 24 minutes.

HOCKEY

The T. A. S. hockey team left this afternoon for Keene, to play the Trent Valley League team of that village. Leo Derocher was in charge of the team which was to line-up as follows: Derocher, Wade, Henry, Coughlin, Giroux, Hayes and Corkery. The boys drove down at five o'clock.

An important game will be played in the Junior Church League on Wednesday night, when Murray street and All Saints' play at Knox street. The championship depending on the result. Both teams have won five games with but one loss, and a great battle may be looked for. The game will be called at 7 o'clock.

Great interest is being taken in the Strathcona - Lakefield game in Lakefield on Wednesday night, and a number of fans will accompany the local team to Cemeniville. An exciting and rough contest is expected as both teams are determined to win, and the Lakefield seven have not been sparing in their statements as to what they are going to do to the Strathconas when they get them in Lakefield. The High Commissioners are not worrying any about the reports from Lakefield, and will go up with the intention of beating them on their own ice. They will practise tomorrow night at Brock street Rink and every player is expected to be out in uniform.

In an exciting game of hockey, played at the Park street rink, between the Beavers and Maple Leafs, the Maple Leafs beat the Beavers by 8 to 1. At half time it was 4—1 in favour of Maple Leafs. The stars of the winners were L Rose, H Rogers and J Gordon, while the stars of the losers were O Laplante and D Gordon. The line-up was as follows:

Maple Leafs.		Beavers.

Cupid on The Air Line.

By LITTELL M'CLUNG.

Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

"Look, Grant!" exclaimed the girl, touching the arm of her companion as they passed the exhibit of vegetables on the fair grounds. "There's the captive balloon they've all been talking so much about. Bessie and Sam went up in it yesterday, and they thought it simply dandy."

The young man glanced ahead to where a crowd surrounded some taut guys that stretched up to a big balloon floating gracefully in the air 300 feet over their heads.

A man stepped upon a platform and began to address his auditors in stentorian yet persuasive tones.

"All right, Lila, we'll see it through, too," declared Grant Allen, and they hurried up close to the speaker.

"This way, ladies and gentlemen!" he cried. "Who'll be the next to go up in the big gas bag? Here's a glorious chance to see the world as a bird sees it! This balloon is as safe as a trolley car and safer. Experts say so.

"It is fastened securely to the earth, ladies and gentlemen, and stays up ten minutes with each ascension, giving you plenty of time to enjoy the magnificent scenery. Come! Who'll be the next? The balloon holds only two at a time. Tickets are 50 cents apiece, two for a"—

"I'll take two tickets for the next trip," said Grant, pushing forward with the necessary dollar in his hand. The man handed him the coupons to fame and stepped down from the platform to engineer the next ascension.

By turning a sort of handle and wheel device that resembled a windlass the balloon was towed back to earth. A young man and a girl stepped out of the "basket" smiling triumphantly, and Lila and Grant stepped in. The wheel to which the guide rope was attached began to turn again, and slowly the balloon rose above the fair grounds. When the rope gave out the basket was high enough for its occupants to see the level country for miles around.

"Oh, isn't it just perfectly grand!" cooed the girl, clapping her hands and peering down at the upturned faces.

"Yes, it really is," he answered. "You feel apart from the world and above everything in more senses than one. No wonder aeronautics are almost epidemic."

The great bag above them swung off in a semicircle and then stood motionless, the basket swinging gently to and fro. Suddenly Lila glimpsed a thick cloud of dust whirling spiral fashion across the fair grounds.

"What is all that dust, Grant?" she asked innocently.

"Why, it's a whirlwind," he exclaimed, "and a big one at that, and, what's more, it's coming directly toward us. If it strikes us we'll get a lively little swing around in the air. I hope it does!"

But the girl seemed apprehensive and clung to his arm. Evidently his wish was about to be realized, for the whirlwind, gathering momentum every second, was bearing straight down on the guide ropes of the balloon, carrying with it a dozen or more hats it had gathered from the crowds.

In another second it hit the balloon, whirling it around like a bubble in a hundred foot circle. Lila gave a little shriek of fear, but Grant laughed.

"Don't be nervous," he said. "We're getting a fine ride."

Then his face whitened as the sound of snapping ropes struck his ears. He glanced below to see uprooted pegs and stakes flying into the air. Another crack followed, and the balloon tore loose the last line that bound it to earth.

For a second it paused; then, like a rocket, it shot cloudward several hundred feet and, encountering "upper currents," floated off across the fair grounds.

Over the girl's face flashed an expression of terror, but by a superhuman effort Grant kept calm. Below they could hear the wild shouts of the people who were running in the direction the balloon had taken.

"Keep your nerve, Lila," urged Grant quietly. "There is really no danger. Don't you see the gas can't possibly get out of the bag, and we'll begin to go down when the wind slackens a little."

But the wind continued strong, and the balloon declined to descend an inch. Neither did it rise. It simply floated along rapidly, but steadily, about six or seven hundred feet above the ground. In five minutes the fair inclosure was fading in the distance, and in another five minutes so was the town.

"Don't you see, Lila," said Grant, with assurance, "we are perfectly safe? We've joined the first class aeronauts, and we're going on a tour of the world. Just think how famous we'll be if we discover the north pole."

This forced levity dispelled Lila's terrified look, and gradually the color came back into her face.

"I'm glad of one thing," she said as her courage returned. "Papa, mamma and all the folks are up in the country today. Maybe they won't hear of our aerial disappearance until we land somewhere and start back. They'd be frightened to death if they did."

"Don't worry, Lila," he answered, feeling now that there really was very little danger, after all. "Just look out over the country and let's enjoy the trip. Maybe we won't have another one like this soon."

Their airship was sailing beautifully now, flying over orchards and farm lands and throwing into a state of intense excitement hundreds of peaceful country folk.

"It is simply heavenly," the girl suddenly exclaimed. "I'm not a bit afraid now, Grant, and I don't care much how hard we sail. I've always longed for some exciting adventure, and surely this is it, and you are with me. I'm so glad it's you!"

"Why are you glad it's me?" he demanded, seizing her hand and ignoring the cries of the farm hands in the valley below.

"Oh, I don't know exactly, just because—isn't that reason enough?" she questioned, her eyes a-twinkle.

"Guess it is, dear girl," he replied, and he might have, but at that second the careless balloon careened sharply to starboard, reminding him that he must keep the ship "trimmed" if he ever expected to land safely.

They were now passing over a good sized town, and hundreds of people were out in the streets gazing skyward. Of a sudden the wind died away, and the balloon sank within 200 feet of the housetops. Then, without an instant's warning, there was a violent tug at the basket, and its flight ended with startling abruptness. Grant felt his heart bob up in his throat, but he peered over the side; then he drew breath again. An iron peg dangling from the end of one of the ropes had caught under the edge of a slate roof.

"Well, Lila, we're certainly anchored at last!" he announced. "Guess they'll be hauling us down pretty quick, for they're running into the house."

His surmise was correct, for in a moment several men climbed out on to the roof through the skylight and seized the rope. Then hand over hand they began pulling down the balloon, while the street throngs shouted enthusiastically.

In another moment Lila and Grant clambered out of the basket, to be greeted by a dozen men, who bombarded them with questions. They did not know which way to turn until a tall, mild eyed man in clerical garb made his way through the throng.

"It's my house that caught you," he laughed. "We received a telephone message asking us to be on the lookout for a runaway balloon with two passengers which was drifting in our direction, and we are more than glad to have been able to rescue both you and the balloon."

Rapid fire thanks and introductions followed, with handshaking all around, and after the balloon was made fast to a chimney and a man set to guard it the minister led the way to the skylight. In a few minutes the young aeronauts found themselves in a spacious parlor hemmed in by an animated, questioning group.

"Lila," whispered Grant at the first opportunity.

The girl inclined her head.

"Lila, don't you think, dearie, it is sort of providential that—that we landed at a minister's house? Don't you hope so, at any rate?"

For a moment she was silent, the color deepening in her cheek.

"Don't you?" he repeated eagerly.

"No—that is, yes. Yes, I do, Grant, dear," she whispered back, giving his arm a little corroborating squeeze.

Five minutes later Grant Allen was hurrying up the street. On the corner he met a policeman. "Which way to the office of the marriage license clerk?" he asked breathlessly.

A Remarkable Benefactor.

A curious and interesting story is told concerning Mr. Benn Wolfe Levy, the noted English public benefactor who died recently. Some years ago he was visiting the London Hospital, and, seeing men in red flannel dressing-gowns, he asked Mr. Sydney Holland why they were so dressed. Mr. Holland told him that they were prepared for operation, but, owing to the fact that there was only one operating theatre, it was doubtful whether there would be time to do all the operations. The cruelty of preparing men for operations with all the anxiety involved to the patient, and then having to postpone them, appealed to Mr Levy, and he at once drew a check for $65,000, which he was told would build five theatres, and ultimately increased the amount to $75,000.

Insults For Lord Milner.

Lord Milner is said to possess such an even temper that it is almost impossible to ruffle it, and thereby hangs a tale. Many years ago he worked under Mr. W. T. Stead on a London newspaper, and one day young Milner addressed a meeting in the East End of London, when an insulting remark made by one of the audience roused him. Urged on by his natural indignation, he made an exceptionally brilliant speech. On hearing of the incident later, Mr. Stead remarked, "Well, Milner, I wish to goodness I knew how to insult you every day before you start work."

PROFITS FROM FORESTS.

Trees Produce Returns From Otherwise Waste Lands.

The benighted notion is still occasionally encountered that forest preservation means a stoppage of wood cutting and lumbering. That is about as accurate and sensible as it would be to suppose that the cultivation of corn meant that no more corn should be cut and husked. But even among those who know better, and who favor an enlightened forestry system, there is not always a full appreciation of the pecuniary value of cultivated woodland.

A writer in The London Daily Mail takes up this phase of the question effectively. There are in the United Kingdom about 3,000,000 acres of forests. He estimates that there are 7,000,000 acres more of land which is now waste and which could profitably be planted with trees at a cost of $15 an acre, or $105,000,000 in all. With such an area of 10,000,000 acres nearly 150,000 acres could be cut yearly for 70 years before all was cut over, by which time, of course, there would be a 70 years' old growth on the land which was first cut. The writer reckons the minimum value of the product to be $350 an acre in 70 years, making a total revenue of $50,000,000 a year from the 10,000,000 acres. In addition, forests up to 60 years old should yield $200, or $3.75 yearly an acre, for "thinnings," which would mean $37,500,000 for the 10,000,000 acres, raising the total yearly income from that area of forests to $87,500,000, or $8.75 an acre.

That is not a large income from land, though it is more than many farms average. But it would be an income from land which otherwise would yield none at all. There are millions of acres of mountain and swamp in Great Britain which are incapable of being put to any other profitable use. On just that ground of direct returns from systematic tree culture and cutting, therefore, forestry is to be commended. On the other hand, on the ground of the utility of forest areas for the storage of rainfall and the regulation of water flow, such a system is so indispensable that it should be established and maintained on an extensive scale, even if there was not a cent of profit, but an actual loss yearly on each acre.

Wearing Marble.

The activity of surrounding businesses may have jeopardized more than one portion of the sacred edifice of St. Bartholomew the Great, but it was not always safe even at the hands of its own congregation. In the seventeenth century the parishioners, in their combined wisdom, thought the cloisters would look better if they were whitewashed and promptly proceeded to carry out their original idea. They then found, however, that two marble statues, which may still be seen, did not show up well enough against the white background, so in order to remedy this defect they had the images tarred! The same people wanted to get rid of the fourteenth century baptismal font in the church on the ground that it was too old for use. The most curious monument is that in "weeping marble" to Edward Cooke, scholar and physician, with the inscription:

Unsluice, ye briny floods. What! Can ye keep
Your eyes from tears and see the marble weep?
Burst out for shame, or if ye find no vent
For tears yet stay and see the stones relent.

For a long time the marble "wept" without restraint, but since the church has been reroofed and heated its peculiarity of "relenting" through damp has ceased to exhibit itself.—London Globe.

Qualified.

Parke—I don't know what I am ever going to do with that boy of mine. He is careless and absolutely reckless of consequences, and he doesn't seem to care for any one. Lane—Good! You can make a taxicab driver out of him. —Life.

A Precaution.

"Dickey," said his mother, "when you divided those five caramels with your sister did you give her three?"

"No, ma. I thought they wouldn't come out even, so I ate one 'fore I began to divide."—United Presbyterian.

A Coincidence.

"I'm afraid, George," said his fiancee, "that you are going from bad to worse."

"Quite a coincidence," muttered George. "That's what Clara said when I threw her over for you."

To Suffer From Headaches Makes Life Miserable.

It takes a person that has had or is subject to headaches to describe the suffering which attends them.

The majority of cases are caused by constipation and dyspepsia. The dull throbbings, the intense pain, sometimes in one part, sometimes in another, and then over the whole head, varying in its severity by the cause which brings it on, purely indicates that there is something the matter with the stomach or bowels. To the fact that Burdock Blood Bitters reaches every part of the system is due its success in relieving and permanently curing headache. It has proven a specific for the malady in all its forms.

CONSTIPATION AND HEADACHES.

Mrs. Allison E. Brown, Summerfield, N.B., writes:—"I have been troubled with Constipation and Headaches for a long time. After trying different doctors to no effect, a friend asked me to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I find I am completely cured after taking three bottles I can safely recommend it to all."

MR. AND MRS. MILLER HONOURED BY PRESENTATION FROM FRIENDS

About fifty neighbours of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Miller, of Otonabee, who are in a short time to take up their residence in Keene, gathered at their home last week to express their regret at the departure of Mr. and Mrs. Miller from the neighbourhood.

A very pleasant evening was spent in games and in other ways, and during the evening a presentation was made to Mr. and Mrs. Miller of a very handsome mantel clock, the presentation being made by Miss Brailey, while Miss Beatrice Stark read the following address:

Your many friends and neighbours feel that they cannot allow you to depart from their midst without showing some mark of the general esteem in which you are regarded in the neighbourhood. During your sojourn among us you have contributed abundantly towards making life pleasant not only in your home but in the social gatherings where we have met from time to time, your genial presence has always made itself felt and we feel that as kind and sociable neighbours your place will be hard to fill.

We hope that your removal will not completely sever the bonds of friendship existing among us; but we ask you as a slight token of our appreciation to accept this clock, trusting that its presence may in coming years be an emblem of departed days and pleasant associations of the 7th Line. Let us assure you that our very best wishes go with you and your family to our new home where we trust and hope prosperity and happiness await you in a long life of continued usefulness.

Signed on behalf of your friends:
MISS J. HENDERSON,
MRS. W. BREALEY
MRS. J. STARKE.

STABBING IN TORONTO.

Italian Is Badly Wounded In Fight Over Cards.

Toronto, Feb. 22—Stabbed five times in the left shoulder, and three times in the middle of the back, two of his ribs broken, a cut on the back of his head, administered with a stick, a great contusion on his forehead, raised by repeated blows with a stove lifter, and, bleeding profusely, Liberato Pignotti, an Italian, was able to walk to No. 2 police station when arrested with two other Italians by P. C. Davidson at the conclusion of a Sunday evening game of cards.

The other prisoners are Raffale Madalino and Dominico Caperchino, living at 68 Edward street, where the row occurred.

The former declares that Pignotti attempted to murder him with a revolver which was discharged once in the melee and that he and his wife and brother-in-law used the knife and cudgels on him in self-defence. Pignotti, however, says he was attacked by the trio first and that he caught up the revolver from a table and fired it to protect himself.

Board Nailed to Face.

Buffalo, Feb. 22.—Mrs. Catherine Cooley of 202 Elk street was brought to the Emergency Hospital with a two-foot board nailed to her face. It took the surgeons nearly an hour to remove the nail, which was three inches long and very crooked.

The police are looking for Mrs. Kate O'Day of 47 Moore street. According to Mrs. Cooley she had words with Mrs. O'Day over family affairs. In a scuffle which followed, it is alleged, Mrs. O'Day picked up the board and struck Mrs. Cooley a powerful blow across the left side of the face. A nail in the end of the board pierced Mrs. Cooley's lower jaw. A doctor who was called found it impossible to remove it and called an ambulance.

The woman's condition is serious.

QUEBEC CELEBRATES ITS CENTENARY

Founding of Board of Trade in 1809 Commemorated.

THREE HUNDRED PRESENT

Many Prominent Men of the Dominion Attend Centennial of Historic Organization — Hon. Chas. Fitzpatrick Asks If City Is Preparing For the Influx of Trade Soon to Come to Her.

Quebec, Feb. 22.—The centenary of the organization of the new Quebec Board of Trade was observed Saturday night by a banquet, attended by many prominent men, and by delegates from Winnipeg, Toronto, Montreal and other Boards of Trade.

Among the speakers were Hon. Mr. Lemieux, Sir Charles Fitzpatrick, Premier Gouin, Hon. S. N. Parent and Sir C. A. Pelletier.

Major Hetherington, chairman of the board, outlined the history of the Quebec Board, which was organized at the request of the Halifax Trade Committee, in 1809 for the object of protecting Canada's trade with the West Indies against the United States, and its progress ever since.

Hon. R. Lemieux, in response to the toast to Canada, elucidated the growth and independence of the Dominion under English protection during the past one hundred years, likewise the country's vast resources and future prospects.

Sir Charles Fitzpatrick spoke of the drawbacks Quebec had to contend with in the past that retarded its progress, and pointed out that it was not until 1878 that the city obtained communication with the rest of Canada by the building of railroads, and only from this date did the prosperity of Quebec begin. He also referred to the G.T.P. and the building of the Quebec bridge, which was to benefit Quebec, and asked the Quebec Board of Trade if the city of Quebec were getting ready to meet the demand that those transportation interests would involve by the construction of terminals and docks to accommodate the shipping, etc. He showed how the people of Port Arthur were getting ready, and said Quebec should emulate their example if they desired to benefit by the Grand Trunk Pacific and Quebec bridge when completed.

HASTINGS CHILDREN HAVE ICE CARNIVAL

Hastings, Feb. 20.—Mr. William Baker and family of Warkworth, have moved into town and are occupying part of Mrs. Orr's house on Front street.

Miss Stinson has been visiting friends in Roseneath.

Mr. T. Whitred and family have moved to Birdsall.

Miss Reid, of Keene, has been visiting in town, the guest of Mrs. Wm. Warner.

Mr. J. Walsh is on a trip to Toronto and points west.

Rev. Wm. Burns took a trip to Toronto last week.

Mrs. Dr. Coughlan has leased her residence on Front street and has moved a few doors north.

Mrs. John Black, of Peterborough, has been spending a few days with friends in town.

The congregation of the Methodist Church have purchased a piano and had it placed in the basement of the church, for use in the Sunday School and Epworth League.

An interesting game of hockey was played here on Saturday, 13th, between Keene and the local team, which resulted in a score of 5-2.

The mail train was delayed for an hour on Monday in consequence of a derailed freight car at Drummond's Station.

The canal engineering staff have returned from Trent Bridge and are now working from the bridge up towards the lake. Chief Engineer Grant was down from Peterborough recently in connection with the new dam. Timber has been ordered and is soon expected to arrive for the construction of three scows and a dredge for use at the canal.

The children in connection with Rev. Father Bretherton's congregation were treated by him to an Ice Carnival on Thursday, Feb. 12th. About seven o'clock the children, in costume, assembled at the school and formed in procession before marching to the rink. All being ready the march began to the music of whistles, bells and horns, while some amongst the number carried flags and lanterns. Occupying a prominent position was little Miss Helen Howard as "Miss Canada" and Miss Kathleen Lambert as "Snow Fairy." Arrived at the rink games and races were held and the children thoroughly enjoyed themselves for an hour or more after which a march of those in costume, was held and the children dispersed not, however, before giving three lusty cheers for Father Bretherton. Miss Blanche Humphries, of Peterborough Normal School, was at home with her parents Saturday and Sunday.

At a special meeting of the council which was held last week, Mr. Dr. Ewing was heard in connection with the proposed route of the Electric Railway from Cobourg. It was moved by Clary, seconded by Hess, that this council views with favor the building of an Electric Railway from Cobourg to Hastings and would welcome the early completion of the same.

Mr. Wm. Humphries, of Dummer, was in town on Thursday last.

THE REAL TEST

Of Herpicide is in Giving it a Thorough Trial.

Many people, even into the present day of grace, consider baldness due to heredity influence.

Nothing is further from the truth—Baldness is caused by the onslaught of a minute organism which secretes itself beneath the scalp and attacks the roots of the hair—causing it to lose its life and fall out.

This organism cannot be got rid of except by the free and persevering use of Newbro's Herpicide.

No matter how badly the scalp is affected the Dandruff surely disappears and hair health is restored when Herpicide is applied.

"Destroy the cause you remove the effect."

PEOPLE FOUGHT MADLY TO SEE MURDERER PAY THE PENALTY OF HIS CRIME UPON GUILLOTINE

Examiner Special

Paris, Feb. 23.—The man Danvers, who was sentenced to death for the murder of his benefactors, was executed at the Carpentras at 7 o'clock this morning, amid the same unpleasant popular hysteria as was seen at Bethune a fortnight ago.

An immense crowd waited for six hours to see the execution, and fought desperately with the soldiers who kept them back. When the waggon with the guillotine arrived about 4 o'clock the crowd charged it, and, cheering wildly, attempted to force an entrance with it to the place of execution.

Men hung to the horses' necks, under the shafts, and to wheels like bunches of human grapes, and although M. Deibler, the executioner, and his assistants tried to beat them off, the waggon came to a standstill until a way was cleared for it by the soldiers.

Danvers gave no trouble. When one of the assistants of M. Deibler pointed out to him that he was putting on his boots without his socks he merely laughed, and, jerking his thumb at M. Deibler, said: "He won't give me time to get cold feet." He then heard mass, insisting on smoking a cigarette while it was going on, and a few moments afterwards he had paid his debt to society.

It is most likely that his execution will be the last one in France to take place in public. Public opinion is strongly in favour of future executions taking place inside the prison, and the scenes at Bethune and at Carpentras have strengthened the feeling.

Canadian Reads Of London Girl's Valour, Writes Her And Wedding Bells Pealed Later

Papers With Account of Girl's Bravery Reach Small Ontario Town and Cupid Followed Up His First Efforts With the Usual Result.

A ROMANTIC AFFAIR.

SIMPSON-AUSTIN—On the 6th inst., at St. Mark's Church, Kensington, Ethel Austin, of Fentiman road, Clapham road, to J. Simpson, of South Magnetawan P.O., Ontario, Canada. Canadian papers please copy.

This announcement from the Daily Telegraph of London, Eng., conceals a delightful little romance. It is the story of a brave London girl who found a husband thousands of miles away through a newspaper paragraph. On the night of March 14, 1908, there was a disturbance in Carroun street, South London, where a police-constable was being assaulted, not only by a man whom he was trying to apprehend, but by a number of the latter's companions. Seeing the policeman thrown to the ground and maltreated, Miss Ethel Austin, then a girl of 17, ran hatless from her home into the adjoining street, blew the constable's whistle and seized hold of his assailant. He struggled violently with the girl, but she managed to hold him, in spite of a stinging blow between the eyes, until a second policeman arrived. On the following Monday, in convicting the man of assault on the constable, Horace Smith, the magistrate, remarked: "I am surprised that a young lady should have been so brave." Sir Edward Henry, the chief commissioner, forwarded Austin a cheque, with the thanks of the force, and here the young lady and her parents thought the incident had ended. But a report of the case, with the magistrate's words of praise of a plucky girl, was copied into the Canadian papers and was read by Mr. Simpson, who is a hotel proprietor at Magnetawan, Ont.

He was a lone colonial bachelor about 34, and was so struck with the girl's bravery that he made up his mind to get into communication with her. He had only the name of the street where the policeman was assaulted, but the girl's parents were so well known in the neighborhood that a letter from the Canadian admirer eventually reached them, asking permission for the writer to be allowed to correspond with their daughter, Ethel. References were sent, and these proving satisfactory a correspondence followed. On Boxing Day Mr. Simpson landed in England from Canada and went straight to the girl's parents' house in Fentiman road and proposed for the hand of their daughter. He was accepted by the young lady and her family, and within a fortnight of his landing the marriage of the plucky girl, who helped the police and her Canadian lover, took place by special licence at St. Mark's Church. Mr. and Mrs. Simpson spent their honeymoon with some of the bridegrooms's relatives in Yorkshire, and have returned to their home in Canada.

HALLEN MOSTYN,
The well known baritone who is singing an important role in "Floradora" at the Grand, Thursday, Feb. 25th.

Grand Trunk Pacific Appeals To Patriotism Of All Canadians

Examiner Special.

New York, Feb. 23.—Ov Warman, author of "The Story of the Railroad" and a dozen of so other books about railroads and railroad men, was in town yesterday. During a talk on railroad matters with a reporter at the Hotel Astor Mr. Warman told of progress on the Grand Trunk Pacific railroad, which, when completed, will run through Canada from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Mr. Warman's present home is in Canada.

"While you of the United States," said he, "80,000,000 strong, are digging the Panama ditch, 5,000,000 Colonials, as Canadians are still called, are building a new national highway which will cost $100,000,000.

"It appeals to the patriotism of Canadians, this All Red Route. The builders of such a line are building for Canada and for the empire. It will thread every province, and string them like jewels on a strand of steel.

"One of the great things wrought by the construction of the Grand Trunk Pacific is the creation of a new port on the Pacific. This new city, which is to be a model city in every sense of the word, is called Prince Rupert, after the great pioneer and first governor of the Hudson's Bay company.

"In America the railway has produced a new system of education. It has enabled people who are comparatively poor to take their children on vacation excursions, to teach them to know their native land. It is the peaceful conqueror of time and space, carrying signals of civilization. It has raised up a new South out of the ashes and waste of the civil war.

"It is doing for the Dominion what it has been doing for the American West in the last half a hundred years. And when it has done for the Dominion what it has done for our West, Canada will become not only the granary of Great Britain, but the bread basket of the world."

THE STORY OF REUBEN AND HIS SWEETHEART

The story is about Frank Blandon, who, in order to receive his father's property, destroys the will which leaves the bulk of the large estate to his only son, Tom. Frank is a foster brother and is left but $1000. Tom learns more when a boy, did not know of Frank's crookedness. Bill Taylor a tramp and confederate of Frank's, turns against him and finds the pieces of the original will and uses it to extract money from Frank, who tries to burn Dayler, the tramp, and his valuable papers, in his uncle's barn. Having failed in his plans he tries to blow up the old powder mill, after locking Tom in. Reuben the hired boy, and Chick, the sweetheart, are always on hand, and thought a bit of strategy secured the original will, just as Frank tried to turn his uncle and aunt out of the home. Frank's wife meets Tom, the real heir, and after comparing notes, vow to be as they should, brother and sister. The sheriff arrests Frank, who is punished, and a great jollification and barn dance is held on the Cunningham estate and Reuben and his sweetheart are the heroes of the play.

The Old Boys' Association of the Grove School, Lakefield, is a flourishing organization. Its second annual dinner was held at McConkey's Restaurant, Toronto, on Saturday, Feb. 20th. The affair was a most enjoyable one. The chair was taken by Mr. J. H. Lownsbrough. Amongst those present were the following gentlemen: H. T. Strickland, Robin Crombie, Thos. Seagram, Chas. Keefe, Jack Harman, Gerald Wilkes, Stewart Leonard, M. VanAllen, Stewart Kersteman, Gwyllym Dumm, Douglas Stewart, George Hilliard, Jr., Fred Fearman, John Sibbald, Allan Young. Rev. A. W. MacKenzie was also present.

BEWARE OF BRIGHT'S DISEASE.

Says 'Lame Back and Urinary Trouble Are The Danger Signals.

TAKE CARE OF BACKACHE

More people succumb every year to some form of kidney trouble than any other cause. The slightest form of kidney derangement often develops into Bright's kidney disease, diabetes or dropsy. When either of these diseases are suspected the sufferer should at once seek the best medical attention possible. Consult only a good, first class physician.

There are many of the lesser symptoms of kidney trouble which can be treated at home as stated by a well known authority. For some of these, such as backache, pain in the region of the kidneys, weak bladder, frequency (especially at night) painful, scalding and other urinary troubles, try the following simple home remedy: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargol, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. These simple ingredients are harmless and can be obtained at any good prescription pharmacy, and anyone can mix them by shaking well in a bottle. The dose for adults is a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

There is no more effective remedy known to relieve all forms of rheumatism, because it acts directly upon the kidneys and blood. It clears the clogged up pores in the kidneys so they can filter and strain from the blood the poisonous uric acid and waste matter which if not eliminated remain in the blood, decompose and settle about the joints and muscular tissues causing the untold suffering and deformity of rheumatism.

Backache is nature's signal notifying the sufferer that the kidneys are not acting properly. "Take care of your kidneys," is now the physician's advice to his patients.

Fixing Things For Arthur.

By HENRY BERLINGOFF.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

"Mushy," he said shrewdly, "why don't you marry her?"

"You scamp!" began Arthur. Then he paused. Dick was only twelve, but more than once the busy little brain under the thatch of red hair had helped the big brother through a tight place.

"I wish I knew her, old chap," he went on in a different voice. "I'm not mushy, but—well, you know how it is yourself. I can't very well force myself on her, and when we have no women folks to call on her I don't see how we are going to make it."

"They certainly are hard folks to get next to," admitted Dick. "They've been here a month and two days now, and even gabby Mrs. Pitkin can't get in with them. I guess there isn't any chance for us, Art, just the three of us men."

Arthur smiled at the phrase "us men." But, after all, Dick was one of the three who had been very lonely in the big house since Mrs. Lynwood had answered the call of the great beyond. So, with an affectionate pat on the back and a brisk "Never mind, old fellow," Arthur watched Dick turn into the schoolyard.

"I WANT HIM TO MARRY A TOP NOTCHER LIKE YOU."

Dick swung around suddenly after Arthur and tugged at his coat sleeve. "Don't worry until I see what I can do for you," he commanded, then turned and sped back as the last bell was ringing.

The promise cheered Arthur oddly. Dick was fertile in invention and could be trusted to bring about even this coveted acquaintance if it could possibly be done.

The Shelbys had kept very much to themselves since they had come to town. Inquiring busybodies had been told by the maid that Mrs. Shelby was too ill to receive callers as yet.

She begged to be excused for a few weeks more, and the girl—Arthur had discovered that her name was Irma—had shared her mother's seclusion.

Despite his confidence in Dick, Arthur was rather surprised that evening when Miss Shelby came running out of the house as he passed. Evidently she had been watching for him, and Arthur paused uncertainly as she reached the gate.

"You are Mr. Lynwood?" she said, with questioning inflection.

"And you are Miss Shelby?" he returned. "I am at your service."

"It's about your brother—and my brother," she began in pretty embarrassment. "It seems that your brother made an entirely unprovoked attack upon mine away across this afternoon. Poor Robert was badly treated. He is not accustomed to mixing with boys—and he knows little about fighting. I understand that your brother promised him another thrashing tomorrow."

"I shall speak to Dick this evening," promised Arthur, but just as he gave the assurance Dick came tearing out of the Lynwood house, and Arthur called him across the street.

He came promptly, for Dick was not a boy to shirk responsibilities. He regarded Irma with mild amusement as Arthur repeated her statement.

"He started it," insisted Dick stoutly. "I guess no fellow's going to hear his brother called names. Your brother said mine was a dude and a pretty boy, and Art ain't that. It's different being just good looking."

"Never mind that," ordered Arthur hastily. "That is no excuse for you to hit him."

"That wasn't all," supplemented Dick. "He called you a big stiff and said that if you had any get up and get about you you'd get married and give me another mother to keep me from being lonely, and I told him that there wasn't anybody good enough for you, and he said anybody was good enough for you, and then I lammed him a good one, and there was a fight. It wasn't much of a fight, though," he added, with contempt. "I had to chase him four blocks to get in one punch."

"Do you understand that you will be thrashed if you lay hands on young Shelby again?" demanded Arthur seriously.

"I'll lick him if he talks about you," declared Dick truculently. He then proceeded to address his remarks to Miss Shelby.

"Art's just the best ever," he explained. "Ever since mother died he's done everything for me, and I ain't going to have any boy call him names and say that any girl is good enough for him to marry. When he marries I want him to marry a top notcher like you."

The girl's face went crimson at the praise and its suggestion, but she smiled into the freckled face before she turned to Arthur.

"I shall see that Robert is punished if he repeats his offense," she promised, "and I don't blame such a loyal little hero worshiper for defending his big brother. I don't blame him one bit," she added, coloring again as she let her eyes rest for an instant on the grave, handsome face. "I shall be glad to see you should you care to be neighborly, Mr. Lynwood. Mother is improving, but she wishes to be stronger before she faces the influx of the kindly and the curious."

"I shall be glad to run in this evening if I may," was the quick response, and Arthur was too eager for an answer to observe the elaborate wink with which Dick favored him.

The girl gave assent promptly, and the big and the little brother bowed. Dick hung back at the Lynwood gate.

"I got something to do," he explained reproachfully. "You were late this evening. You always come home about 5."

"A client came in at the last moment," explained Arthur. "Were you waiting to see me?"

"Only about an hour," answered Dick. "I figured she would lay for you at the gate, and I wanted to finish off the job. I'll be home in about an hour, Art."

He dashed off down the street and by a circuitous route reached the rear of the Shelby house, where the plump and somewhat cherubic Robert was playing by himself.

He started to run when Dick appeared on the scene, but the more active lad had his victim pinioned by the arms, while one mittened hand was clapped over the squirming one's mouth.

"I ain't going to hurt you—now," promised Dick. "I just want to talk to you. You told your sister that I punched you for nothing, didn't you?"

"That's just what you did," wailed Bob Shelby.

"That ain't so," corrected Dick. "I did punch you for something, but I ain't telling you what for. I told your sister that I licked you for calling my brother names, and if you ever dare say that it ain't so I'll get you in a corner where you can't run away and—you'll know how it feels to be in a dynamite explosion. I can do it, can't I?" he added fiercely, and the shrinking lad assured his lord and master that he certainly could.

"I don't want to have to do it," explained Dick. "You're so soft that if I beat you much you'll get out of shape, and you ain't got too much shape as it is. You'll make a fierce brother-in-law, Skinny, but I suppose that I'll have to stand you, for I've been fixing things for Arthur and—well, I guess you go with the family."

AN ARAB SURGEON.

His Own Story of a Wonderful Operation He Performed.

Mr. Walter B. Harris in his account of a journey to Tafilet tells the story of a wonderful operation in surgery as it was reported to him by a native doctor who was traveling in his company:

"I think the old man fancied that I doubted his skill. At least, he was always holding forth upon the subject and continually repeating the story that when in Algeria he had been offered a fabulous salary—the sum varied each time the tale was told—to remain in charge of the military hospital at Algiers, an honor which he had declined.

"He never tired of narrating the facts and details of his most successful operation. There is a sect in Morocco called Hamacha, who are followers of a certain saint buried near Mekinez. These devotees amuse their audience—and themselves, too, let us hope—by throwing into the air heavy cannon balls, which they allow to fall upon their shaven crowns. On the occasion in question a Hamadshi had unfortunately been wanting in religious power, for the cannon ball crushed his skull.

"My old shereef friend had been called to the rescue. According to his account, he removed the broken patch of skull, replacing it with the rind of a green pumpkin, and closed the skin over it. In a month's time, he said, the patient was not only convalescent, but was once more hard at work practicing his religio-acrobatic feats, with not only a remodeled and renovated skull, but even a new crop of hair."

THE SILVER FOX.

He Is a Glorified Freak of the Red Fox Breed.

Only those wise in the woodlore of the north can fully know the magic in the name silver fox. The silver fox is not of different kind, but a glorified freak of the red race. His parents may have been the commonest kind of red foxes, yet nature in extravagant mood may have showered all her gifts on this favored one of the offspring and not only clad him in a marvelous coat, but gifted him with speed and wind and brains above his kind to guard his perilous wealth. And need he has of all such power, for this exquisite robe is so mellow rich, so wonderful in style, with its gloss black and delicate frosting, that it is the most desirable, the most precious of all furs, worth many times its weight in gold, the noblest peltry known to man. It is the proper robe of kings, the appanage of great imperial thrones today, as was the tyrian purple in the days of Rome. This is indeed the hunter's highest prize, but so guarded by the cunning brain and the wind and limb of the beast himself that it is through rare good luck more than hunter skill that a few of these fur jewels are taken each year in the woods.

There are degrees of rank among these patricians. They range in quality even as diamonds range, and the hunters have a jargon of their own to express all shades between the cross and the finest silver black.—Ernest Thompson Seton in Century Magazine.

Influence of Food.

"What do you think of the theory that food has a potent influence in determining character?" asked Mr. Smithfield as he put three lumps of sugar in his coffee.

"I guess it's all right," replied Mr. Wood as he severed a portion of his beefsteak. "It always seems a little cannibalistic to me when you order lobster."

"Well," retorted Mr. Smithfield good humoredly, "I ought to have known it was dangerous to lend you money after I discovered your fondness for beets. But, seriously, if there were anything in the theory, wouldn't it make a man sheepish to eat mutton?"

"It would, and prize fighters ought to restrict themselves to a diet of scraps."

All in the Mind.

On the opening day of one winter session the late Professor Tait of Edinburgh university entered the natural philosophy class room in the midst of the uproarious applause common to those occasions.

Presently he looked up at the tumultuous benches above him with the smile of one who had known the ways of students for a lifetime. At last, when a momentary lull came, he remarked, his gray eyes twinkling:

"Gentlemen, I must remind you that there is really no such thing as noise. It is merely a matter of subjective impression."

No Flies on Him.

Two Irishmen, just landed, stopped at a private boarding house on one hot July night. Retiring early, they left the window open and the light burning brightly. The mosquitoes swarmed into the room and began biting.

Mike, awakening, called to Pat to put out the light. Pat got up and put it out and crawled back to bed again.

Pat awoke about an hour later and found the room full of fireflies and said: "It's no use, Mike. They are coming in with lanterns!"

Pleasure Trips.

"Going to the north pole is no pleasure trip," said the sympathetic friend.

"Well," answered the arctic explorer, "it reminds me somewhat of the average pleasure trip. Everybody is so anxious to start and so glad to get home."

They never taste who always drink. They always talk who never think.—Prior.

CARGO ABLAZE IN MID OCEAN

Elder-Dempster Liner Has Bad Time at Sea.

FOUGHT FIRE THREE DAYS

Five Thousand Bales of Sisal Hemp Become Ignited and Defy Every Effort of the Crew to Extinguish Flames by Injecting Steam Into the Hold—Men Rescued From Between Decks With Hooks.

Halifax, Feb. 23.—The Elder-Dempster liner Sokoto, Capt. Pierce, arrived from Mexico yesterday morning, with four passenger and a full cargo, including 5,000 bales of sisal. When the Sokoto was off the coast of Florida and three days' sail from Newport News, the sisal in No. 3 hold was discovered to be on fire. The hatches were battened down and steam was injected into the hold to smother the blaze. For three days the crew fought the fire, and when they arrived at Newport News it was still raging. Four fire-boats were alongside as soon as the steamer dropped anchor, and the hold was flooded. The fire was put out and the sisal was removed to pump out the water. Outside of the deck being slightly buckled there was no damage done the ship. The crew had a thrilling experience fighting the flames, which at one time were leaping over the top of the steamer's funnels. When the flames were subdued it was found that the hold in which was the refrigerator containing the food supplies was filled was gas. Two stewards and the chief engineer were overcome trying to get food out, and had not use been made of the electric fan, which was kept going in the face of a man lowered into the hold to ward off the gas, the crew and passengers would have fared badly. The gas was so overpowering that the men who went into the hold had to be dragged out with chain hooks.

Haven't Considered Merger.

Sydney, N.S., Feb. 23.—J. H. Plummer of the Dominion Iron & Steel Co. says that the present agreement with the Coal company expires in March and discussion of a new one will take place immediately.

Asked as to a possible merger, he said that the present was no time to discuss future action along that line.

Would the Steel company purchase from the Coal company?

He answered that such had not been considered, neither had a merger with the Coal company, but he did not consider that it was wise for the Steel company to carry on coal mining as a commercial proposition.

Doesn't Want Colonies.

New York, Feb. 23.—"In case of emergency, Great Britain would not spend $5 to hold Canada and Australia as her colonies," said Dean I. W. Russell of the University Law School, in a speech before the People's Institute.

"As a matter of fact, England has found the United States a much more profitable friend of hers as a separate nation than as a vassal, and she might not be unwilling to lose the Dominion and the Antipodes on the same ground."

How Waters Have Receded.

Vancouver, B.C., Feb. 23.—Workmen employed in digging a 15-foot cutting through a hill in Hastings Townsite on Rupert road, south of the Great Northern tracks, came across a layer of soft stone which was entirely composed of the petrified remains of sea worms and clam shells.

This discovery goes to show that Hastings townsite, which is now at a fair elevation, must at one time have been buried under the sea.

Looking For Bomb Makers.

Vancouver, B.C., Feb. 23.—B. Klein Singh, an educated Hindu in the service of the Imperial Government at Simla, recently visited Vancouver and adjacent cities for the purpose of investigating the alleged manufacture of bombs by East Indians for use in the revolutionary movement in India.

He proceeded from here to Seattle and thence to San Francisco. He is now in Honolulu.

Pullman Rates Too High.

Kingstonians are asked to pay 75 cents to Toronto, and 90 cents to Montreal. It is considered unfair and the Board of Trade will seek to have the old rate of 50 cents a seat restored.

Troops Fight Strikers.

Hong Kong, Feb. 23.—Laborers engaged in constructing the Canton-Hankan Railway began rioting yesterday because the wages of some of the men who had been absent from work were withheld. Troops were called out to suppress the disorder, and a clash which ensued 25 laborers were injured. Three soldiers are missing.

Indian Runs Amuck.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Feb. 23.—With an ear-splitting warhoop, a Navajo Indian war chief ran amuck in the Union Station on Sunday and fatally stabbed and cut Mrs. Anna Devord of Huntington, W.Va., and Max Meyers of Cincinnati, and seriously wounded Joseph W. Gordon of Cambridge, Ills. The Navajo with four Sioux chiefs from Kansas alighted from a crowded Chesapeake & Ohio train. As the passengers stepped from the train the Indian, with a yell, drew a long knife and started through the crowd slashing right and left.

The Indian, who had been to Washington to see the Secretary of the Interior, was sullen while in the train, passengers say, but he evinced no signs of frenzy, until the passengers were leaving the train.

Work of Bells at Sea.

New York, Feb. 23.—Fifty naval and shipping men were witnesses yesterday of experiments off Sandy Hook to demonstrate how a submarine signal bell can assist vessels to make port safely in foggy weather or to avoid collisions under like conditions. Although blindfolded at the wheel of a sea-going tug, a pilot brought the boat close up to the Ambrose channel lightship from three miles out at sea guided only by the tinkle of the lightship's bell. He had the receiver of this bell at his ear the whole three miles and he gave the order "stop her" to the tug's engine crew less than 100 yards from the lightship.

Seven Killed In Wreck.

Wilmington, Del., Feb. 23.—Seven men were killed or burned to death early yesterday in a head-on collision between an express train and two locomotives on the Delaware division of the Pennsylvania Railroad at Delmar, 100 miles south of this city. Two passengers were injured. Princess Trixie, the educated horse, was burned to death. She had been exhibited and appeared three times before King Edward, each time receiving a handsome present from His Majesty, the last one being a magnificent headpiece.

Was Holland Going West.

Winnipeg, Feb. 23.—It is believed that Chris. M. Holland, alias David Newhall, arrested in Philadelphia on a charge of forgery on an extensive scale, was about to visit Winnipeg. Two letters await a Geo. F. Newhall at the Royal Alexandria, one from Philadelphia, evidently written in a feminine hand marked "To be called for," and the other from the War Department at Washington.

UNUSUAL PLEA FOR DEFENSE

Malone's Lawyer Claims Client Has Been Acquitted.

FIRST TRUE BILL QUASHED

Counsel For Simcoe Chief of Police Has Indictment Quashed on Account of Magistrate's Bias and Then Says Prisoner Should Go Free—Judge Denies Motion and the Case Goes On.

Simcoe, Feb. 23.—The unusual procedure of a judge quashing the indictment of a prisoner charged with attempted murder and immediately ordering a new indictment and recalling the jury to bring in a true bill a second time, followed by a legal battle in which the defence claimed that the quashing of the first indictment and acquittal to an accessorial, was an occurrence in the Assizes of the High Court of Justice here yesterday afternoon, when Archibald W. Malone was placed on trial for the sensational shooting of William Wilkins on the early morning of Dec. 1 last year.

Magistrate Beemer, who committed Malone for trial, had previously moved in the sessions of the peace that Malone be discharge as a constable, and the prisoner's counsel, Mr. Kelly, yesterday objected to his commitment of the prisoner on the grounds of bias.

There were five indictments against Malone, two for arson, two for shopbreaking and one for attempted murder. The jury returned a true bill in each case.

Mr. Kelly moved that the indictment be quashed on account of the magistrate's bias. Though his lordship pointed out there was nothing to be gained, he decided, for safety, to quash the indictment. The jury was again given the indictment and returned a true bill.

Once more the prisoner was asked to plead, but this time his counsel, instead of allowing him to plead not guilty, put in the plea of "Autrefois acquit," contending that the prisoner had been tried and acquitted by the quashing of the first indictment. The legal battle continued over this point, but his lordship ruled that the prisoner, having never been tried nor having ever been in danger, had not been acquitted.

Mr. Blackstock, with dramatic effect, described the crown's version of the shooting as given at the preliminary hearing. He intimated that new evidence would be produced to show that immediately following the shots and screams, a man who lived within 60 feet of the place, looked out the window and saw a man whom he took for Malone. This man is Lloyd Barber, who was the second witness examined last night.

The first witness was S. M. Sovereen, whose place had been robbed of furs and who described the finding of some of them on his doorstep after Wilkins began to get better.

Then came Barber, a young man who lives near the scene of the tragedy. He testified to hearing the shots and looking out of the window when he saw a man running toward his house. He could not swear that he recognized him, but he thought he did. Counsel for defendant objected but his lordship said if the witness had reached a conclusion, however doubtful, it should be evidence.

Kills His Four Children.

Mondovi, Wis., Feb. 23.—Hans E. Hanson, a farmer living near Strun, cut the throats of his four children, a boy and three girls, whose age range from five to fifteen years, yesterday with a butcher knife.

He followed this crime by stabbing several horses and cows, firing the barn and house and then cut his own throat.

Vancouver as Wheat Port.

Vancouver, B.C., Feb. 23.—F. W. Peters of the C.P.R. is here to arrange terminals for the handling of the wheat. He says two million bushels have already been ordered to be shipped this way, some of it having arrived. He adds that practically all Alberta wheat must come this way, specially to relieve eastern pressure.

C.P.R. Pacific Service.

Vancouver, B.C., Feb. 23.—C. E. E. Usher of the C.P.R. made the announcement yesterday that during the coming summer there will be three daily trains each way on the C.P.R., but only two of them will be transcontinental. The third will be a direct connection between Vancouver and St. Paul, via Moosejaw.

New Zealand's Unemployed.

Auckland, Feb. 23.—Speaking to a demonstration of unemployed, who urged the stopping of assisted immigration into New Zealand, Premier Ward pointed out that the Government never assisted others than agriculturalists and domestic servants and that the country could carry twenty millions of people.

10,000 Cholera Cases.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 23.—The cholera, which has now been epidemic here for 100 days, yesterday reached the 10,000 mark.

There has been 3,923 deaths from this disease in St. Petersburg, the highest number of new cases in one day being 44 and the lowest nine.

Insurance men's views.

Ottawa, Feb. 23.—Messrs. J. K. Macdonald of the Confederation Life and Thomas Bradshaw of the Imperial Life, who presented the views of the life insurance companies last session, in regard to the proposed amendments in the Dominion Insurance Act, are in the city to-day in connection with the same subject.

Tornado In Kansas.

Wichita, Kans., Feb. 23.—The Missouri Pacific depot and four buildings at Essex, Kans., a village 40 miles east of Wichita, were destroyed by a wind storm yesterday. No one was killed and no one was seriously injured.

The property loss in the district northwest of Essex will be heavy.

STOLE WIRE FROM POLES.

Toronto Man Goes to Prison For Taking Two Miles of It.

Toronto, Feb. 23.—David Wells was sent to Kingston Penitentiary for three years yesterday, when he pleaded guilty in the Police Court to theft of about two miles of wire from the poles of the Electric Light Co. in broad daylight.

He, with George Wilson, a lineman, and Newton Snodden, an expressman, was arrested Saturday, charged with the theft. The latter two were discharged, as it was shown that they had assisted Wells, believing that he was employed by the company.

Wells, who is also an experienced lineman, and lived at 240 Delaware avenue, has served time before, having been sent to the Central for two years by Judge Winchester for theft in 1904.

Wells showed unusual nerve in his operations, as he not only risked detection on all hands, but he also braved death in cutting down "live" wires.

His mode of operation was to cut down the wires from the poles. Wilson called it as it came down, and Snodden carted it to a second-hand shop in West Adelaide street. In this way he secured over two miles of the wire, which was sold for only a small fraction of its value.

Militia Orders.

Ottawa, Feb. 23.—Militia orders issued yesterday are:

The Royal Canadian Regiment—Capt. H. Kemmis Betty, on completion of the staff college course, is seconded for employment on the imperial general staff for a period of two years, from Jan. 16, 1909.

19th Regiment, Royal Grenadiers—To be chaplain, with honorary rank of captain, Rev. Cato Enos Sharp, vice Honorary Major Rev. A. U. Baldwin, deceased.

21st Regiment, Canadian Highlanders—to be lieutenant-colonel and to command the regiment, Major W. H. Bruce, vice Lieut.-Col. W. A. Logie, who, on completion of his period of tenure of command, is transferred to the reserve officers; to be major, Capt. J. I. McLaren, vice W. H. Bruce, promoted.

Making Fake Butter.

Montreal, Feb. 23.—A factory which was turning out daily some 2,000 pounds of oleomargarine, which was sold as creamery butter to the trade, has been unearthed at Cote, St. Paul, a suburb of Montreal, and the proprietor, G. Dumas, has been apprehended at the instance of D. M. McPherson, inspector of dairy food for the Dominion.

The so-called butter, which was made from animal fats, was put up in 56-pound firkins and the factory had a capacity of 50 of these a day. It was sold to the trade for 20 cents a pound.

The proprietor, it is announced, has agreed to confess judgment, and will pay the maximum fine, which is $400. A few days ago a dealer in Quebec was fined $500 for selling the product.

Earthquake In Spain.

Alicante, Spain, Feb. 23.—Severe earthquakes, which came while the people were assembled at mass in the village church on Sunday, caused a panic among the congregation, who rushed to the doors, throwing down and trampling under foot a score or more of women and children. The furniture in the house was overturned and crockery and window panes broken.

At Crevillente, a town of 10,000 inhabitants, situated about 12 miles from Alicante, houses rocked and swayed at an alarming angle, and the people ran to the countryside in dire terror. They are now camping out in the open fields.

The Seventh Dreadnought.

Barrow, Eng., Feb. 23.—The battleship Vanguard, the seventh vessel of the Dreadnought class, was successfully launched here at noon yesterday. Mrs. Reginald McKenna, wife of the First Lord of the Admiralty, performed the christening ceremony. It is generally believed that the Vanguard will be ready before the end of 1909.

Kidd Again In House.

This is the seat R. L. Borden resigned.

100 Lives Lost In Blizzard.

London, Feb. 23.—It is reported here that more than 100 lives have been lost in a blizzard which has raged in southwestern Russia during the last three days. The tracks of the Southwestern Railway are blocked for 2,000 miles.

"Bronchitis"

Is generally the result of a cold caused by exposure to wet and inclement weather, and is a very dangerous inflammatory affection of the bronchial tubes.

The Symptoms are tightness across the chest, sharp pains and a difficulty in breathing, and a secretion of thick phlegm, at first white, but later of a greenish or yellowish color.

Neglected Bronchitis is one of the most general causes of Consumption.

Mrs. D. D. Miller, Allandale, Ont., writes: "My husband got a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup for my little girl who had Bronchitis. She wheezed so badly you could hear her from one room to the other, but it was not long until we could see the effect your medicine had on her. That was last winter when we lived in Toronto.

"She had a bad cold this winter, but instead of getting another bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, I tried a home made receipt which I got from a neighbor but found that her cold lasted about twice as long. My husband highly praises 'Dr. Wood's,' and says he will see that a bottle of it is always kept in the house."

It is put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, the price 25 cts.

Be sure and accept none of the many substitutes.

THE DOCTOR SAID "I CAN'T HELP YOU"

Suffered 10 Months with Kidney Complaint. Gin Pills Cured.

Danvegan, Inverness Co.

I am perfectly cured of Kidney complaint after using Gin Pills. Six hours after taking the first Pill I obtained relief, and now after three months I feel as well as ever.

I suffered ten months and the Physician attending me advised me to go to the Victoria Hospital at Halifax, as he could do nothing more for me. I may add that I used a great deal of medicine, and strictly followed my physician's directions regarding diet, etc., but without avail, until providentially I learned of your most excellent remedy. I am recommending Gin Pills.

PRACTICAL IDEAS for the BEDROOM of the YOUNG GIRL

NOTHING more clearly reflects the character and taste of a young girl than the furnishing of her own room, or if she be a member of a luxurious household, and provided with an entire suite of her own, then the decoration and arrangement of her particular portion of the house.

It might seem at first thought that the girl whose suite is furnished by a fashionable decorator could not be expected to show her individual taste in her apartment, but no matter how perfect the general style of furnishing the effect will be stiff and unattractive if the girl herself has added nothing to the suite after the decorator has finished it. Equally unsuccessful will be the outcome, if in her choice and placing of her own additional touches, souvenirs, &c., she has failed to bear in mind the general style and coloring of the room. Indeed, although the girl who needs must choose her own furnishings, and that with an eye to economy, may, thoughtlessly consider that her more elaborately housed chum has no problems to solve in the arrangement of her beautiful apartments, it is a question whether her problem is not really more difficult than that of the girl who plans the entire furnishing herself. For after all there is no task at which decorators themselves fail more often than the harmonising of period furnishing or very elaborate formal furnishing of any kind with what is homelike and comfortable in effect. With all their daintiness and beauty the rooms should look as though lived in or they will be lacking in charm. For these elaborate rooms the French period styles are in fashion, but there never was greater latitude in furnishing than there is to-day, and whatever style is personally desired may be selected so long as the designs of furniture and hangings are light and delicate and the colors equally dainty and suitable to the boudoir of the jeune fille.

After all, it is the girl who has the furnishing of her room in her own hands and is not dependent on the plans of a decorator who gets most pleasure and profit out of it. There is no room so unattractive that it may not be vastly improved by a small expenditure of money, provided good taste be exercised, and none which may not be made hideous by the most elaborate furnishings if care in their selection be not employed.

Consequently, furnishing is a serious business and every girl who makes a success of it may feel that she has scored a triumph not always attained by those older and wiser.

No matter how modest is to be the sum expended on furnishing, it is wisest to select a general scheme at the start, considering carefully the suitability of the scheme to the size and shape of the room, its lighting facilities and the furniture already provided or which may be obtained for the amount of money in hand. It is not necessary that the entire scheme be completely carried out at once, but the first plan must provide all the essentials within the financial limit, leaving the future to provide such other features as pictures, ornaments and additional pieces of furniture which are not absolutely necessary.

Just at present the white bedroom is very popular with young girls. Nothing could be fresher and sweeter, but a little care must be exercised lest it look too cold and severe. For this room the walls are usually white, or they may be papered with a sprigged pattern on which there are small, stiff buds or leaves at intervals on a white ground. White enamelled paint and furniture of white enamel and cane or entirely of enamelled wood are used in the white rooms. The dressing table may be without drapery or draped with thin white material or with a sprigged cretonne or chintz. When the dressing table is of cane and enamel, with some ornamentation of raised wreaths in the wood, &c., it is usually not draped, as it is sufficiently decorative without the curtains. When it is of plain white enamelled wood, however, it is usually draped, as otherwise it looks a little bare and cold.

The white room may have painted or papered walls. An attractive wall is made by painting in a light ivory, just off the white, and then panelling the room with strips of moulding also painted ivory. The panelling is close or far apart, as is desired. It stops at some distance from the ceiling, being finished with a transverse moulding. Above this the wall is plain. This wood panelled wall gives an excellent background for pictures and other ornaments.

White Bedroom.

When a white paper is chosen it may be plain, satin striped or decorated with flowers and conventional designs all in white satin on a mat ground or the opposite. These all white figured papers are growing more and more fashionable and are most attractive.

If a girl is anxious to achieve the very last word of daintiness and delicacy she may complete her white room by adding to her white walls and ivory furniture hangings of diaphanous mull, lawn, net or linen, draping the dressing table and the bed in the same transparent material. The only contrasting note of color will then be furnished by the coverings of such chairs as are upholstered or the cushions used on cane chairs and couches. Such a room with cushions and upholstery of striped, flowered or figured brocade, chintz or cretonne is most charming. It is necessary, however, to choose just the right tones of white in order to have it attractive. The enamel furniture should be an ivory white instead of a blue white, and yet care must also be taken to keep the effect white rather than deep ivory.

For the girl who begins refurnishing her room with the principal articles of furniture already on hand, especially if these be happily of old mahogany or black walnut, there is nothing more attractive than a flower room. The French and English papers made to represent old chints and cretonne patterns are wonderfully fascinating, and there are many beautiful patterns being shown for this spring.

In making her room a flower room the owner should settle upon one flower at the beginning, or if not one flower, then a group of flowers should be carried out in all the decorations, for now many of the papers and chintzes have charming formal bouquets of varied blossoms instead of the one flower. It is really more charming to select a flower as the guiding note to decoration rather than a color, for the possibility of harmonious variation is greater, while at the same time the shapes of things as well as their colors are selected according to a general rule.

It is not so difficult to carry out a floral idea in the room as one might at first imagine, because chintzes and cretonnes are now made to match wall papers. Therefore, if the room to be refurnished has an old mahogany or a black walnut set there may be a wall paper of old fashioned garden roses scattered over a white ground and tied with blue ribbons, and cushion covers and upholstery of the same. The hangings of the window would not be attractive if of the same design as the side walls, and so with the flowered side walls the hangings should be of white or the plain blue to match the ribbons in the paper, of plain rose of the shade of the flowers, or of plain green of the shade of the leaves.

An attractive device for using the flowered paper and at the same time the flowered chints for hangings is to have the side walls plain and the flowered paper used for the frieze and ceiling, creating the effect of a bower. The flowered chints may then very effectively be used for window hangings. To make this style of papering effective it is necessary that the flowered paper have a large, open design, with lattice work or long branches to give the effect of an arbor. This style of papering has the advantage of leaving the side walls plain, so that pictures may be used successfully. The paper for the side walls is usually plain white or ivory, or perhaps a pale tint of green. Plain side walls and ceilings with flower friezes also are popular. The cut-out friezes are expensive, but ordinary flowered paper can perfectly well be used for the frieze, and if it is cut out by the girl herself will not be at all expensive. In the flowered papers this season, although the rose is still a favorite, apple blossoms, cherry blossoms, daisies, buttercups and myriads of other flowers are her rivals. Delicate birds are also poised among the blossoms.

When a room is furnished with flowered chints and paper the colorings, rather than the designs, are carried out in the rugs. Plain green rugs are also attractive in a room with a flowered paper in which there is a good deal of green. The white hangings and the bed coverings, valance or canopy, have the same flower pattern, although usually all in white. It is a favorite fad with young girls also to have even the towels used in their room embroidered with this design, be it rose, pansy or daisy.

However fashions change, there is one kind of room which is always attractive and always a favorite with girls. That is the blue and white room, which can so easily be carried out in inexpensive materials and always looks fresh and sweet. The walls of this room are usually white or plain blue, the chambray paper, which looks so like a fabric, being used. Pale blue is not a desirable color for a room, the fairly deep linen blue being the most satisfactory shade. There are charming blue and white chintzes for hangings and upholstery, and this is varied by cushions of plain blue, or perhaps plain blue draperies are used with figured chints upholstery. Two or three shades of blue, all harmonious in tone, are more effective than one unvaried tint. White enamelled furniture is charming in such a room, as indeed is mahogany, walnut or almost any other kind of wood. The woodwork should be white and the bed is best entirely in white. For the dressing table there may be drapery, either of the figured chints or white. The dressing tables now used have the colored curtains outside, these being lined with plain white material and finished with cotton braid or fringe. The mirror is oval and the frame is covered with the figured material put on full. It is quite possible for any girl to make one of these dressing tables for herself. Provided the mirror is good its frame may be of the most ordinary description, since it is to be covered. The lower part of the dressing table can be made at very small expense by an ordinary carpenter.

Two things which should not be missing from a girl's room are the low dressing table chair and the pier glass. The chair should be a simple straight one, as this is the most comfortable for sitting before a dressing table. If not upholstered it may have a flat cushion or pad of chintz or silk. A good way of providing for the long mirror is to have it hung inside the closet door. There are also on sale in many shops small corner wardrobes which have these mirrors set in the door.

One thing must be borne in mind in furnishing a room which is to be both dressing room and bedroom, and that is the necessity for a large number of different places in which to stow away one's belongings. The sets of boxes covered with chintz or linen are invaluable in this capacity, and besides the regular sets for gloves, handkerchiefs and the other small items of the wardrobe there are now to be had pieces of furniture covered with chintz, &c., in which provision is made for hats and shoes.

SOCIAL AMENITIES FOR THE SCHOOL GIRL

PERFECTING one's self in the rules of etiquette is a continuous occupation of a most interesting kind, for though the fundamental principles never change there is a constant change in minor matters due to the fads and fancies of Madam Grundy. And not to keep abreast of the caprices of that autocratic lady is to be behind the times, indeed.

Madam Grundy this season frowns upon the exhibition of excessivity in any form, and so it is not the fashion now to gush, though it wasn't so long ago that gushing people were thought most attractive. But the proper tone of to-day is to have a manner which is cordial and sincere, but distinctly quiet, and this requires considerable drilling to attain.

When you invite your friends to do anything, show the sincerity of your desire to have them accept by a manner which is warm but not urgent. If they accept quietly show your pleasure, but if they decline or if they show an uncertainty do not be insistent or try to tease them into doing what may be quite impossible. And, on the other hand, when you are the person invited do not gush over your acceptances or your regrets, but make your replies brief and simple with complete avoidance of explanations as to why you can or why you cannot—explanations of any sort now being considered extremely bad form.

So much embarrassment would be eliminated if girls would strive unceasingly to acquire the tone of moderation now in vogue, for every one has experienced the awkwardness of being gushingly urged to say yes when one has said no, and being expected to give reasons for declining when often the reasons were quite too personal to give.

At the table it is a marked evidence of good breeding not to urge food upon a guest. It is an unwritten law of hospitality that what is yours is your guest's, and this pertains to all matters, but it transcends good taste when you are over-solicitous about the things they do or do not eat. It is, of course, your duty as hostess to see that things are properly served to your guests, but having offered, make no comment on what they do. Some persons are small eaters, others are large, some like everything, and others like only a few things, but all are sensitive to remarks and object to having attention called to their idiosyncrasies.

If you are on intimate terms with your hostess and the occasion is an informal one it is quite proper for you to make comments of a personal character, such as praising the good things she has to eat, or the decorations for a party, or expressing your appreciation of the good time she has given you. But do not employ all the expletives in your vocabulary in doing so, for such excessive effusion is artificial and condemned, as all artificiality is, on the score of insincerity and bad taste.

On occasions of a formal character it is not good form to make personal remarks of any sort in regard to the matters pertaining to your entertainment. Though there may be some particular dish at the table which is a favorite of yours, you should not comment on the fact, nor should you ask to have it passed to you a second time. At a dinner or at a luncheon the idea is that you are in the hands of your hostess, and your cue is to follow her lead, on no account asserting yourself or taking the initiative in any way. When things are arranged in courses there is no question of second serving, but when the meal is less formal it is customary to have everything passed twice except the soup, and it is quite proper for you to take things a second time they are offered if you desire to do so.

When you are hostess never stop eating until every one of your guests has finished, for etiquette requires you to save your guest the embarrassment of making herself conspicuous by being the last. And when you are the guest do not thoughtlessly dally with your food in a dilatory fashion, for this is not only bad form but selfish, as you cause not only your hostess but the others to wait for you.

Save Your Cotillon Favors.

A POPULAR girl whose cotillon favors are so many that they used to be spread all over her room has hit upon the clever idea of putting them into a glass cabinet which she purchased especially for the purpose. Enclosed in this way the favors make a most decorative effect and are safe from the devastating hand of the housemaid, who, as many a girl laments, is apt to play havoc with the delicate baubles in her daily task of dusting the room.

Novelties in Leather Hand Bags.

MOTTLED pigskin, seal and enamelled leather are employed to about an equal extent for the development of the flat but capacious strap trimmed and strap handled English mail handbag, which was designed primarily for shoppers and therefore has an eminently practical air. Another substantial bag of sensible size is of enamelled leather and is finished with brass edged corners. Of similar pelt is one of twelve inch frame, having double strap handles that buckle into the sides. A large square handbag, which carries a strap handle at the back and a pocket in front, comes in pin seal of all colors as well as in patent leather, while a walrus bag made over an eight inch frame has a back handle, two side pockets and a separate purse.

Muff handbags, supposed to have originated in the Middle West, are of seal, calf and the various fashionable pelts over twelve inch frames. They are of the conventional type, with the addition of a large pocket of padded silk on one side. This pocket has openings slightly below the upper portion of the frame into which one or both hands may be slipped. Or the bag may be carried in the ordinary manner, as it is handle equipped.

Sioux handbags, which also suggest the Western regions, are of suede, trimmed with bead threaded thong fringe, with "jewels" and with tiny furry animal heads. But the latest developments in handbags are made over ten inch pelt bound frames and show combinations of several sorts of leather, such as goat seal, with black enamel or suede with morocco. In Paris it is a fad to carry a leather handbag which has a watch set into its inside lining or exposed through a circular aperture cut in the flaps decorating the outer side. Some of the larger mesh handbags of German silver have miniature timepieces set in the centre of their frames precisely as they are on a few of the lizard skin purse bags of the more expensive class.

For those occasions which it is inconvenient to carry a handbag there are unique metal buckles holding a concealed purse. These are only a trifle more bulky than are the average belt fastenors of an ornamental order.

Practical Suggestions for the Girl Who Sews

Printed Cretonnes for Decorative Work.

SO wonderfully decorative are the printed cretonnes that they are used for a vast number of articles which the young girl, possessed of a certain amount of ingenuity combined with patience, may make for herself. Capacious laundry bags are evolved from a yard of cretonne, which is so wide that only one seam is necessary, although both sides of the bag should be doubly stitched in order to afford additional strength. The lower end is similarly treated, while the upper one is folded back to form a lined ruffle above a triply stitched hem when the cordage strings are drawn taut.

Folding shirt waist boxes are composed of five pieces and a lid of cretonne pasted over heavy cardboard. The corners of the four upright pieces are joined by bowed tapes or narrow ribbons, and the lid is hinged with the same materials. For a small sum any carpenter will construct and paint with enamel a skeleton frame for a five drawer toilet case, intended to accommodate pins of various sizes and classes. As the drawers are merely cretonne covered boxes of equal size, fitted with tiny brass handles, any girl may do that portion of the work.

Any box of convenient size and shape may be cretonne covered and used for handkerchiefs, gloves and veils, but the daintiest of them have ribbon bound edges and are lined with muslin embroidery over sachet cushions of delicately tinted sateen.

Four sectioned scrap baskets are merely panels of cretonne covered pasteboard, joined at intervals with tape, while whisk brooms topped with colored mammy heads have cretonne petticoats, which may be turned back when the article is in use.

Laundry lists, post card albums and book calendars have cretonne covers modelled after those used to protect magazines, and writing pads are backed and cornered with the same material.

Cretonne covered work boxes are shaped and closed like suit cases. They open on both sides and are fitted with every utensil that the fancy worker will be likely to require.

Pin cushion tops, scarfs and even the entire dressing table are covered with cretonne decorated with gold, black or colored gimp wherever an edge must be concealed. Bedroom desks are sometimes small, square topped stands entirely covered with cretonne and fitted with paper racks, blotting pads and boxes, concealing ink and gum bottles decorated with the same material, or they are in the shape of huge portfolios mounted upon folding nursery clothes bars, so that when not in use they may be placed almost flatly against the wall.

Dainty Ribbon Stocking Supporters.

A NEW and original scheme has been devised by one clever girl which if adopted by many would do away with much annoyance and trouble. The annoyance and trouble are caused by the holes torn in the tops of girls' fine (and even heavy) stockings by the metal clasps on their stocking supporters. How many girls have not often found one or two holes in a new pair of silk stockings that have come in this aggravating way?

Well, this can be entirely avoided by this new scheme, which is quite simple. It consists of sewing little tape loops on the hem of the stocking in the places where the clasps are generally fastened, cutting the clasps from the elastic of the supporters and sewing in their places a piece of strong ribbon long enough to run through the tape loop on the stocking and tie in a bow knot.

The elastic may have to be cut a little shorter than it has been, for most stockings are long enough to make it necessary to fasten the clasps considerably below the the hem. But each girl can measure her own quite easily and make the length right. The effect of these little bows is very dainty, certainly much prettier than metal clasps.

Theatre Bag of Kid.

ALMOST novel and fascinating theatre bag is made of strips of blue and of white kid woven together in just the in and out way that children learn how to do. The strips are half an inch wide and there are thirty of them of each color. The white ones run up and down, and the blue, of a delicate shade, are woven across them. When both sides are woven the two are put in the machine and stitched around two inches from the edge on three sides, the top, of course, being left for an opening. The edges of the strips which remain outside of the stitching are slashed each piece three or four times, which makes a fringe. The inside of the bag is lined with blue or white satin, and this faces the top of the opening, which is drawn up with kid bands matching the lining in color. When finished the bag is beautiful and unique. The use of kid in this way being unusual, and the making of it is not difficult to any girl with clever fingers.

BILL TO DO AWAY WITH THE SENATE

Lancaster's Bill to Abolish Upper House is Discussed.

TELEGRAM ACCOUNTED FOR

Mr. Borden Presents Full Confession of Man Who Altered Famous "Asiatic Exclusion" Message Sent to Victoria Colonist—Bishop Perrin Received Admission — Senate Well Supported by Conmons.

Ottawa, Feb. 23.—E. A. Lancaster's Senate abolition resolution had the right of way after the preliminaries in the House yesterday afternoon. He ered too drastic, and found few supporters. The Senate was shown to have a big following of friends and admirers in the House after all. Reform, not abolition, seems to be favored.

Mr. Lancaster desired that the question be discussed in a non-party spirit. It was a wrong thing that the Senate should be in a position to refuse supplies to the Government and if there was no other reason for abolition that would be sufficient. Even the Senators themselves agreed that the Senate was not working well, and as it appeared there could be no agreement as to the best way to bring about reform, the best thing to do was to remove the institution altogether.

It would be no good to reduce the number of Senators. Why should you give fewer men the veto power over 231 commoners who are responsible to the people? The veto power would still be in the King, through his representative.

The cost of the Senate was about $318,009 a year and this amount would go a long way to establish free rural mail delivery, cheap rural telephones, or to abolish level crossings.

E. W. Nesbitt (N. Oxford) defended the Senate, declaring it to be a necessary and useful body. There were measures rushed through the Commons which should properly be stopped and if the Senate was not doing the work it should do, Sir Wilfrid Laurier could be relied on to bring about reforms. The Senate included some of the ablest men in Canada, and if a board of directors were required for a great corporation, it could be better furnished from the Senate than from the House of Commons.

Mr. Turgeon (Gloucester, N.B.) strongly opposed abolition and suggestions of reform did not meet with his approval. He preferred an appointive to an elective Senate.

Dr. Sproule thought what the Senate required was reform, not abolition. The Senate had been debased by the character of the political appointments made by the present Government.

The last word has been said in connection with the alteration of the now famous telegram which R. L. Borden sent to The Victoria Colonist, assuring the people of the Pacific province that he believed in "a white British Columbia," and to which the words were surreptitiously added, "and the absolute exclusion of Asiatics."

Rising in the House yesterday to a question of privilege, Mr. Borden said the following document had been sent to him by the management of The Colonist, to whom apparently it had been delivered by the Bishop of British Columbia:

To whom it may concern:

"After hearing a full statement in the nature of a confession from a man who altered a telegram sent to this city by Mr. R. L. Borden, so that the telegram was read to the public and published on a basis of untruth, I have been requested by this man to make public the fact that this telegram was handed to him by the telegraph editor of The Colonist, to be delivered at a public meeting.

"That instead of going directly to the meeting he went into an office, copied out the telegram as altered by him and destroyed the original and had this altered telegram sent to the meeting, passed on to the platform, before it came into the hands of those in charge of the meeting, and was read to the public and published.

"The man guilty of the act had no confederate or confident. No one knew of his act or had any reason for suspecting him, and the only reason for making this public is to remove all suspicion from the management of The Colonist newspaper and from members of the executive of the Conservative party, at whose meeting the telegram was read.

"It was an individual act arising from misguided political zeal, and not due to any incitement or persuasion.

(Signed) "W. W. Columbia."

Distinguished Passenger.

Pau, France, Feb. 23.—The Minister of Public Works, Barthou, was a passenger yesterday with Wilbur Wright in a flight of five minutes. Mr. Wright made several sharp turns and went through other movements.

Great Boom For the Wireless.

London, Feb. 23.—Winston Churchill, President of the Board of Trade, announced in the House of Commons yesterday that as an outcome of the recent collision off Nantucket of the steamers Republic and Florida, he was considering the introduction of legislation to require all British-owned ocean steamers to carry an efficient wireless telegraph equipment.

Chinese In Bonded Car.

San Luis Obispo, Cal., Feb. 23.—What is believed to be an organized plan to smuggle Asiatics in this country, has been unearthed as a result of the discovery of 22 Chinese in a box-car in this city on Sunday. The most peculiar feature of the discovery was that the Chinese were in a bonded car, sealed with the Government stamp.

Jeweler Becomes Millionaire.

Glace Bay, N.S., Feb. 23.—J. W. Brown, jeweler, here, received a letter Saturday from a sister in London, England, informing him of the death of his mother, and that as one of her three heirs he is entitled to a fortune. His share is estimated at $1,500,000. A few years ago he worked for Henry Birks & Son of Montreal.

County Judge to Investigate.

Woodstock, Feb. 23.—The special committee appointed by the County Council to investigate charges of graft in connection with the building of roads in Oxford reported yesterday. They have got a lot of information, and this they want to be repeated in the form of evidence under oath. The county judge will investigate.

Premier Scott's Departure.

Regina, Sask., Feb. 23.—Premier Scott's return from the east and almost immediate departure for the east Sunday night, revived rumors that he will take the vacant place on the Railway Commission. He, however, has left for Jamaica and the Burmudas, where he will spend the balance of the winter months.

Gold at Sturgeon Lake.

Montreal, Feb. 23.—A gold discovery was announced at the office of the G.T.P. It is at Sturgeon Lake, and there will be a rush into the country as soon as the snow is off the ground to permit traveling.

The lake is reached by the G.T.P. through a lake station 150 miles west of Fort William.

Manitoba's 'Phones.

Winnipeg, Feb. 23.—The statement of the result of the first year's operations of the Government telephone system will be made public this week, probably to-day, by Hon. Robert Rogers. A substantial reduction in prices will likely be announced.

Girl Drowned.

Coboconk, Feb. 23.—The eight-year-old daughter of Henry Bradford went down to the river to get a pail of water, when she slipped on the ice and fell into the hole and was drowned. Her body was found half a mile down the river under the ice.

Dessler May Recover.

Olean, N.Y., Feb. 23.—Nelson Dessler, who killed Police Capt. Hassett Sunday morning, rallied well after an operation at the General Hospital Sunday night, and the doctors say he will recover unless gangrene sets in.

The Poor Sheep.

Mr. Foolish—Why are sheep the most dissipated animals? Mr. Silly—Because they gambol all their lives, spend most of their time on the turf, many of them are blacklegs, and all are fleeced in the end!

Endeavor to do thy duty and thou wilt know thy capacity.—Goethe.

Her Idea of It.

"So you are going to marry Swellhead?" asks the erstwhile suitor.

"I am," replies the beauteous creature.

"I don't see how—pardon me for being so frank—I don't see how you can admire him at all. He is so insufferably conceited."

"Well, if you were engaged to me it would make you insufferably conceited yourself."—Chicago Post.

What Our Trade-Mark Means to You

IT means that the flour contained in bags and barrels so trade-marked is decidedly whiter, a great deal stronger and more nutritious than other flours.

It means that the flour has been properly aged to mature its full strength.

It means

"More bread and better Bread" and better pastry, too.

It means elimination of uncertainty—"your money back" if Purity fails to give entire satisfaction.

Costs more than the other kind, but worth the difference.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Steady—Hogs 5c Lower at Buffalo and Chicago.

LONDON, Feb. 22.—London cables for cattle are steady at 12½c to 12¾c per pound, dressed weight; refrigerater beef is quoted at 10½c to 10¾c per lb.

GLASGOW, Feb. 22.—Edward Watson and Ritchie report 320 States and Canadian cattle offered. Top steers, 12c to 12¼c. Secondary, 12c to 12¼c; bulls, top quality, 10½c; secondary, 9½c to 10c per pound.

Toronto Junction Live Stock.

TORONTO JUNCTION, Feb. 23.—The receipts of live stock at the Union Stock Yards were 36 carloads, consisting of 791 cattle, 67 sheep and lambs and 7 calves.

Exporters.

There was one load and only one load of 23 export cattle that reached $5.60. But they were the best seen on the market for some time, being corn-fed and weighing 1300 lbs. They were sold by Dunn & Levack. The next highest price reported was for a load of 21 steers, 1320 lbs. each, sold by Corbett & Hall, at $5.40 per cwt., and $10 over on the lot; Maybee & Wilson sold one lot of 15 steers, 1280 lbs. each, of very choice quality at $5.40. These were the only three lots that reached $5.40 and over, the rest selling at $5.35 down to $5 for medium light exporters. Bulls sold at $4 to $4.65, the bulk selling at $4 to $4.25.

Butchers.

Prime picked heifers and steers, 1050 to 1150 lbs., were quoted as being worth $4.85 to $5.10; loads of good, $4.50 to $4.85; medium light cattle, $4 to $4.40; common, $3.80 to $4; cows, $3 to $4.25, with a very few good enough to export at $4.60; canners and common cows, $1.50 to $3.75; bulls, $3 to $4.

Milkers and Springers.

A limited number sold at $35 to $53 each, and better quality would have sold for more money.

Veal Calves.

Prices steady at $3 to $7 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Receipts light, prices firm. Grain-fed lambs sold at $6.50 to $7 per cwt.; common lambs, $5.50 to $6 per cwt.; export ewes, $4 to $4.50; rams, $3.25 to $3.75.

Hogs.

Gunns and H. P. Kennedy reported prices unchanged at $6.60 for selects, fed and watered at market, and $6.40, f.o.b. cars at country points, to drovers.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Feb. 22.—(Special.)—At the Montreal Stock Yards, West End Market, the receipts of live stock for the week ending Feb. 20, were 2126 cattle, 681 sheep and lambs, 1098 hogs and 231 calves. The offerings for local consumption this morning were 1650 cattle, 150 sheep and lambs, 700 hogs and 180 calves. A firm feeling prevailed in the market for cattle, owing to the fact that the supply was smaller than a week ago and the quality of the stock better, but on account of the near approach of the Lenten season the demand was not so keen as the consumption of beef for the next few weeks will be curtailed to some extent. There was some demand from exporters for small lots to complete shipments with, and this coupled with the buying for Quebec account, helped the market considerably, and on the whole a fairly active trade was done. Cables from Liverpool on Saturday reported trade in cattle firm and noted an advance in prices of ½c per lb., as compared with those of last Monday. Choice steers here sold at 5½c to 5¾c; good, at 5c to 5½c; fair, at 4½c to 5c; medium, at 4c to 4½c; common, at 3c to 3½c.

PROMINENT SINGER PROSTRATED BY LA GRIPPE

Thomas P. Macdonald, a prominent singer of Teeswater, tells how PSYCHINE restored him to perfect health after a severe attack of La Grippe, which robbed Him of his voice. He says, "Six years ago I became a victim to La Grippe and had it in its worst form. The attack was unusually severe, and left me in terribly bad shape. I was utterly prostrated; weak, and run down entirely. My voice also completely gave out, and my lungs seemed to be seriously affected. People who knew me, thought I was not long for this world."

"I had for years been a member of our Church choir, and accustomed to singing at concerts and other entertainments, but the doctor told me that I could never hope to do so any more, as it was impossible to cure me in the state I was then in."

"One day I saw in the paper what PSYCHINE had done for others, and thought I would give it a trial, so I sent for a sample bottle. This gave me such immediate relief, and helped me so, that I determined to keep on with it at all cost, and in spite of what the doctor had said. In an incredibly short space of time I was completely restored, and my voice was soon in grand shape again. They used to tell me that a breath of wind would blow me away, I had got so thin, but PSYCHINE built me up in no time; I am a pretty solid specimen of humanity to-day, having gained in weight and put on flesh all the time."

"I am stronger and better to-day than I have ever been in my life before. PSYCHINE did wonders for me, and really I do not think there is anything like it for combating the after effects of that scourge LA GRIPPE."

Whistler and a Sponger.

Though frequently hard up, Whistler had an income which seemed princely to students who lived on nothing at all. If Whistler had money in his pockets, Mr. Ionides says, he spent it royally on others. If his pockets were empty, he managed to refill them in a way that still amazes M. Oulevey, who, in proof of it, told us of the night when, after the cafe where they had squandered their last sous on kirsch had closed, he and Lambert and Whistler adjourned to the Halles for supper, ordered the best and ate it. Then he and Lambert stayed in the restaurant as hostages while Whistler, at dawn, went off to find money to pay. He was back when they awoke with 300 or 400 francs in his pocket. He had been to see an American friend, he said, a painter, "And, do you know, he had the bad manners to abuse the situation; he insisted on my looking at his pictures."—"The Life of James MacNeill Whistler," by E. R. and J. Pennell.

MANY DON'T KNOW HEART AFFECTED.

More People than Aware of It Have Heart Disease.

"If examinations were made of everyone, people would be surprised at the number of persons walking about suffering from heart disease."

This startling statement was made by a doctor at a recent inquest. "I should not like to say that heart disease is as common as this would imply," said the expert, "but I am sure that the number of persons going about with weak hearts must be very large."

"Hundreds of people go about their daily work on the verge of death, and yet do not know it. It is only when the shock comes that kills them that the unsuspected weakness of the heart is made apparent."

"But undoubtedly heart weakness, not disease, is more prevalent nowadays. I should think that the stress of living, the wear and rush of modern business life, have a lot to do with heart trouble."

There is no doubt but that this is correct, and we would strongly advise any one suffering in any way from heart trouble to try a course of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

"A BRITON" ON LAST NIGHT'S MEETING

Says That the Conference Reminds Him of the Song, "Everybody Gives Me Good Advice."

Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I was among those who were present at the meeting last night between the Charity Board and some of the men who have been receiving charity from the city and I was struck with the fact that while there was any amount of good advice tendered there were no suggestions as to how a man was to obtain work. There is lots of work said the speakers. Cut out your drinking and your smoking and your luxuries and save every penny and then you may be able to scrape through the winter. But they didn't say where the work was to be got. There are many of us who would work if they would show us something to do. We don't like asking for and accepting charity, but we have wives and children and they must be fed and if we haven't the money to obtain the necessities of life for them what other course is open to us but to come to the city for help. It is not a nice sensation to feel that you are an object of charity, but neither is it a pleasant spectacle for a husband and father to see his wife and children suffering from hunger. Some of the speakers said that they had never asked for charity, but what else could they have done had they been situated like some of us? We came out here, the most of us with little or no money. Glowing promises had been spread before us; we were led to believe that there would be work for all at high wages, that there would be no such thing as want. We came, believing all this and landing in the summer, while we did not find it a land of milk and honey, yet we had no difficulty in finding work. We did not realize what a Canadian winter meant and we spent our money as we earned it. It was foolish, perhaps, but we had no experience to guide us, and accordingly when winter came and there was no work we had no money to carry us through and we went into debt for rent and other things. Last summer work was scarce and it kept us busy paying what we owed, with the result that this winter has found us no further ahead and we have had to fall back on charity. There may be some among the immigrants who have not deserved charity, who have spent in drink what they have earned but the great mass of the needy can not be judged by them. Then their wives and children are guiltless. Are they to be allowed to starve because the husbands are worthless?

Last night's meeting reminded me of the song that I have heard since I came out here which runs something like this:

"Everybody gives me good advice,
But no one seems to offer me the price.
Well, a glad handshake and a good kind word,
Wouldn't buy a dinner for a humming bird.
Consolation may be very nice,
But money cuts an awful lot of ice.
When you're feeling very blue and you haven't got a sou,
Everybody gives you good advice."

Thanking you for the space, I am,

Yours truly,

"A BRITON."

Interesting Havelock Budget

Examiner Special

Havelock, Feb. 23.—The "Big 5" At Home on Tuesday evening, Feb. 16, was indeed a success, and was more largely attended than in former years. Guests from Toronto, Peterboro, Norwood, Smith Falls, Marmora, and other towns, were present.

The hall was tastefully decorated for the occasion with bunting. The programme opened with "The Grand March," under the direction of Mr. A. Moore, of Peterboro, who officiated as floor manager during the evening. Sprague's orchestra of Belleville, was highly appreciated by all, and in many of the up-to-date waltz and two-step music were heartily encored and had to repeat on several occasions. The supper, which was served at 9 o'clock, was most elaborate, everything desired was in abundance. Dancing was indulged in until the wee small hours and one and all left for their homes very much satisfied with the evening's event. Some of the out-of-town guests in attendance at the "Big 5" ball were: Mr. and Mrs. Goulding, Marmora; Miss Jean Robson, Norwood; Mr. McDonnell, of Belleville, Messrs. Deegan, Jenner, Richmond, White and Warner, of Smith Falls; Misses Choate, and McCaul, Peterboro, Miss Dorricott, Mr. Jno. Barlow and Mr. Bowan, of Toronto, and several others.

On the 19th of February, 1869, Mr. and Mrs. John Knox were united in marriage in the village of Marmora, and on Friday night last the anniversary of that eventful and happy occasion was most fittingly celebrated at their residence, when over one hundred and twenty-five guests gathered to honour the event. Mrs. Knox received in a gown of Nile green silk coline, trimmed with Irish lace. She was ably assisted by her sister Miss McQuigge, wearing a pretty gown of mauve silk. After the guests had all arrived Rev. D. Balfour called on the bride and groom to come forward, and in a short ceremony, returned thanks for their happy married life and prosperity, after which all adjourned to the dining room, where a most elaborate dinner awaited them. The tables were daintily arranged and prettily decorated with pink and white carnations, interwoven with smilax and fern. After all had partaken of the many good things Mr. Jas. Thompson, M.P.P., was appointed chairman, and in a happy little speech proposed the toast of their host and hostess, which was most enthusiastically honoured by all, and responded to in fitting terms by Mr. Knox. The "Dominion Government" was responded to by Mr. J. A. Sexsmith, M.P.; "The Legislature," by Mr. Thompson; The "Educational Department" by Messrs. Matheson, Joyce, and Brewster; "The Municipal Council" by Messrs. Wood, Phillips and McMaster, and last, but most important, "The Ladies," Messrs. Andrews, Brereton, Marks, and Howe. The remainder of the evening was spent in various kinds of entertainments, games and music. Many costly and beautiful presents were received by Mr. and Mrs. Knox, among them a handsome china dinner and tea set; others were also exceedingly beautiful, and will be treasured by that estimable couple in after years as souvenirs of an eventful epoch in their lives. Some of the out-of-town guests present were: Mr. and Mrs. D. McQuigge, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall, of Belleville; the Misses Mannis, of Kingston, Mrs. S. Knox, Mrs. Wm. Ellis, and Mr. Howard Knox, of Fenelon Falls; Mr and Mrs. T. McQuigge, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Robson, Mr. and Mrs. D. Little and Miss McQuigge, of Blairton; Miss D. Robson, of Marmora; Mr. and Mrs. D. McQuigge, Mr. and Mrs. B. C. McQuigge, of Belmont; J. A. Sexsmith, M.P., of Picton; Miss Bessie and Mr. Jas. Ellis, of Peterboro, and Mrs. L. M. Stewart, of Syracuse, N. Y.

Mr. Isaac Barlow was severely scalded on Monday night while at work on the yard engine, by the guage glass bursting. His face and neck were exposed to the steam, and he is suffering very much.

Mrs. W. F. Lenihan, who has been ill for the past nine weeks, is showing no signs of improvement, and on Tuesday to attend the Legislative Toronto General Hospital, where she will be under the care of a specialist. Her friends in town will hope for her quick recovery.

No services were held in St. John's church on Sunday last, but will be this Sunday, and will be conducted by Rev. C. W. Holdsworth, of Rosemont.

Mr. Jas Thompson, M.P.P., left on Tuesday to attend the Legislative Assembly, which opened on that day.

A concert will be held in the opera house on Monday night next, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society, Miss Tozer, Belleville, elocutionist, will be the chief entertainer of the evening. Solos will also be contributed by Miss Jean Robson, of Norwood, a sweet soprano singer; Master Standley McGuire, of Toronto, and Mrs. Tuck of Peterborough. Othe members, including male quartettes and choruses will be contributed by local talent.

Mrs. A. E. Barrett & Co.'s new store was formerly opened for business on Wednesday. Sprague's Orchestra of Belleville, was in attendance from 11 o'clock in the morning until 9.30 in the evening. Many people availed themselves of the pleasure of visiting this pretty store and admiring the many beautiful and extensive lines of new spring goods, which they have placed in stock. A. E. Barrett & Co. have now a store up to date in every way, and a great credit to the town. Millinery and dress-making rooms will be opened up in connection with this store on the second flat.

Child Prays For Grace To Kill Men Now On Trial For Murder Of His Father

His Grandmother Was Repeating That He Ask for Grace to Forgive But Little Lad Did Not Notice This Supplication — A Childish Hatred Expressed.

AN IMPORTANT TRIAL.

New York, Feb. 23.—A little boy in a grey sailor suit, standing beside the black-robed figure of a grief-broken woman on the witness stand in the Criminal Court of Davidson County, Nashville, Tenn., put a lasting imprint of himself and the tragic scene of which he was a part on the memory of every man and woman who had eyes to see. As he stood there, his big blue eyes, glistening with forced back tears, sought out and fixed themselves upon the face of an old man who sat fifteen or twenty feet away.

Once the old man's eyes and those of the child met. The old man's dropped. A cloud of passion went over the boy's features. His lids glowered. His body heaved. His left hand, which rested on one of the woman's closed in a grip which drove the blood from it. The fingers of his hand folded in a clench which made the skin look purple, so fierce was the tensity.

Once the arm drew up along his side half way with a convulsive contraction. There were men who watched who turned thetir heads away. Hate was triumphant in the child's face.

Child of Carmack

He hit his lips and the baby throat laboured with something which would not down. But no cry came from him. So the child of Senator Carmack stood for nearly ten minutes in the trial of the men whose lives the State contends should pay the forfeit for the killing of his father. It was his mother whom he had followed to the witness stand and whose hand he held.

The old man upon whom he glowered in hate was Col. Duncan Brown Cooper, who, with his son, Robin, and John D. Sharp, is defending his life against the accusation that as one of a conspiracy he accomplished on Nov. 9, 1908, the assassination of Edward Ward Carmack, who was then the editor of the Nashville Tennessean. The tragedy of his father's hurrying hence has put iron into the soul of this child.

His brilliant father was his idol and the shadow upon him has accentuated a natural precocity. Delicate of build, and the man who is dead must have been much like this youngster when at the same age of ten he was following a plow for twenty-five cents a day.

The stock of the Carmacks and Darringtons from which he springs is deeply religious, and to repeat an incident which was told to the New York World corraspondent to-day will serve to furnish a viewpoint from which the boy may be observed. It is only a few days ago that little "Ned" was with his aged grandmother at her prayers and heard her say: "Oh, God, I ask that you put grace in my heart to forgive." The supplication hardly had been finished when the child exclaimed: "Oh, God, I ask only that you put grace in my heart to kill."

"Satis" Defends The Englishman From His Canadian Critics

The Editor, Daily Examiner:

Dear Sir—There were two items in the "Examiner" last week that particularly arrested my attention and made me resolve, if opportunity offered, to "have a finger in the pie."

First, in Friday's (?) issue, the little skit on the ubiquitous Englishman amused me, and again, on Saturday evening, the unwarranted attack on one of the city's clergymen annoyed me somewhat.

Now, friendly (?) criticism, like lesser evils, is, presumably, designed for our good, but it shows poor taste, to say the least, when private spleen, (or prejudice) is allowed to manifest itself in public print; a kind of "hitting below the belt," in fact, that certainly does not commend itself to any lover of fair play.

As to the Englishman and his "smug complacency, don't you think Mr. Editor, that things are just a little exaggerated? We all know that this particular brand of the "genus homo" is not so adaptable as he might be, but there are always two sides to every question.

How would the average Canadian or American get on if he were transported across the sea and dumped down with, say, ten dollars in his pocket in London, Liverpool, or Glasgow, and told to set about earning his living. Can you imagine the situation and do you think he could do it? With all defeasence to him I venture to say that, at the end of a week, he would be at the end of his resources, and wits and looking for a passage home.

There is one thing about the Englishman that I have noticed, in the course of my wanderings, and that is, go where you will, wherever he has wandered to, you will find that he is very cordially hated and (sometimes) feared, with, perhaps, the exception of Japan, to prove the rule. And just here let me state a few of the many points of similarity between the two races. Both are island peoples and, consequently, Maritime powers; both seem to thrive under the monarchical form of government, and both are peoples of rather diminutive stature and, finally, but not least, both are passionately fond of their respective countries. Is it not a strange coincidence that Americans should have a dislike to the Islanders across the Atlantic to the East, and likewise to those across the Pacific to the West? But to return to our study of the Englishman; the very quality that makes him so unpopular abroad, in my humble opinion, is the very thing that has given the English speaking race the high position it holds in the world to-day, and that is his abounding self-confidence. One thing that has struck me very forcibly in connection with the unnatural dislike manifested by a considerable section of the Canadian people towards everything English, is that it is most pronounced where least expected.

I have been surprised to find it in men whose immediate forbears "were English or Irish."

After all is said and done the question resolves itself down to this; it's only by the "accident of birth," so to speak that Canadians are not Englishmen and Englishmen Canadians. I mean by that, the great section of the people of this fertile Dominion whose mother tongue is the English language is of the same sturdy stock that has established itself firmly in every known habitable part of the earth.

And this brings me to the thought of patriotism and to a serious question: Are Canadians patriotic?

Personally, I am afraid they are not, at least, in the same sense that an Englishman, a Welshman, or even a benighted Scotchman is. Passionate love of country is the Britishers worst fault (?)

Will you kindly allow me to digress here by quoting part of a stanza of "The Lady of the Lake" by Sir Walter Scott, the "Wizard of the North."

"Breathless there a man with soul so dead
Who never to himself hath said,
This is my own, my native land,
Whose heart within him ne'er has burned
As home his footsteps he hath turned
From wandering on a foreign strand?
If such there be, go mark him well,
For him no minstrel raptures swell,
Tho' high his titles, proud his name
Boundless his wealth as wish could claim,
The wretch, concentered all in self,
Despite his titles, power and pelf
Living, shall forfeit fair renown,
And, doubly dying, shall go down,
To the vile dust from whence he sprung,
Unwept, unhonoured, and unsung,
O, Caledonia, stern and wild, etc., etc."

But to descend again to practical everyday life, why is it that the Englishman is not highly appreciated in Canada? is the fault entirely his?

Every summer large numbers of Englishmen, recruited mostly from the large cities and generally speaking, almost entirely unsuited to the country, are exported to Canada under the impression that they are going on a pleasant picnic. What's the cause of it? Well, the most apparent cause is the books and pamphlets that are scattered broadcast up and down the country, presenting Canada in the most favourable light possible.

Perhaps it may be news to some that the Canadian Government keeps agents in all the big centres of the British Isles, part of whose duty it is to give, from time to time, during the winter months free lectures, illustrated by limelight views, depicting for the most part, harvest scenes in the Great Northwest.

I have no fault to find with this system but I think it could be greatly improved upon.

If Canada must have immigrants why can't she begin at the very beginning and educate them, up to the requirements of the country. Do away with the fancy (and sometimes fanciful) pictures and substitute in their place good practical talks to intending immigrants on, "What not to do, and say." I venture to assert that a wonderful improvement would at once be noticed in the demeanor and disposition of the English immigrant.

Just now as things are it's a clear case of "the survival of the fittest" and that is an inexorable law of nature.

A little of the milk of human kindness goes a long way in taking some of the bitter out of life's hard experiences and our farmers might take a hint (those that need it) for their guidance during the coming season always remembering that most men emigrate in the hope of bettering themselves, and if nobody had ever ventured across the seas in search of a "better land" then Canada would still be in its primitive state. Hoping I have not encroached too much on your space, dear sir, I am,

Yours, etc.,

"SATIS."

PARTIES AGREE ON SETTLEMENT OF CASE—PLAINTIFF GETS $400

Spring Assizes Dwindled Down to One Case, Which, on the Suggestion of the Judge, Was Settled by Those Concerned—Smith Farmers Present.

JUSTICE CLUTE PRESIDED.

Of the four cases that were on the ticket for the spring assizes only one were heard by the judge and after twelve witnesses were examined His Lordship Justice Clute urged the parties to settle the matter out of court. This case was that of Jas. H. Fowler vs. Fanning and Brumwell of which the statements of claim were published a few days ago. Justice Clute's suggestion that this case should be settled betwen the parties concerned was acted upon. The plaintiff, Mr. Fowler accepted $400 in settlement of his claim for $1,560. Mr. F. D. Kerr appeared for Mr. Fowler and Mr. D. W. Dumble, K.C., and Mr. H. A. Draytom K.C., of Toronto, represented the defendants. A large attendance of farmers from Smith listened to the evidence. The two jury cases were settled out of court as was also one non-jury case.

The Plan for the Toronto Symphony Orchestra will open Wednesday Morning for Subscribers only. Thursday morning for non-Subscribers.

BROTHERHOOD OF ST. ANDREW HAD A SLEIGH DRIVE

The members of St. John's Junior Chapter of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew held a sleigh ride party last evening. The drive which was around the city was heartily enjoyed, the boys spending the time in song and story, winding up the evening by a visit to the home of Mr. and Mrs J. Ball, Park street south where refreshments were served and a general good time enjoyed.

The cordial spirit existing between the three local junior chapters was manifested by the presence of several members from St. Luke's and All Saints' chapters.

THE EVIDENCE WAS VERY SENSATIONAL

Simcoe, Feb. 23. — Ex-policeman in the trial of Chic Malone for attempted murder to-day, stating that the latter set fire to a number of buildings, and made him take stolen furs home.

THAWING OUT DRAIN PIPES

Fire Engine Called Into Commission to Force Ice and Dirt From Pipes

TThe fire engine was called into commission during the afternoon to thaw out the drain pipe at the corner of Read & McDonald street. Steam was soon got up after arriving on the ccene, and when it was applied soon bored through the ice and dirt collected in the pipe. This is the first time this year that any have had much difficulty in getting rid of the water caused by the many thaws of the season.

GAVE LECTURE ON PAINTING TO THE YOUNG PEOPLE

Miss A. Bennett gave an address on the works of two celebrated painters at the meeting of Knox Young People's Society last night. It was literary night and the subject proved a very enjoyable one. Miss Bennett presented her subject in a lucid manner that appealed to all. The president Mr Futter thanked the lecturer and expressed the hope that they would have the opportunity of hear her again in the near future. Miss M. D. Cilla will give an address on March 1st on the subject "Life Lessons from the Book of Genesis."

The primitive operations employed in China and Japan are in marked contrast with the cleanly machine methods of preparing tea in Ceylon. The purity and cleanliness of "Salada" is absolutely delicious flavour will please you. 101

REMAINS OF LATE GORDON MILNE ARE BEING SHIPPED

Examiner Special.

Brandon, Feb. 23.—The Sun says: The remains of the late Gordon Milne, who suicided in the Brandon Hotel on Saturday last, were shipped east by Vincent & Co., on the 4.25 this afternoon to connect with the Toronto express. The remains, which were accompanied by the deceased's two brothers, Frank of Cranbrook, and David, of Port Perry, and his sister, Mrs. W. E. Warden, of Cranbrook, will be taken to Port Perry, the old home of the deceased, where they will be interred on arrival of the train.

RURAL MOUNTED POLICE FORCE IS BADLY NEEDED

Examiner Special.

Cobourg, Feb. 23.—Mr. Jas. Russell, President of the West Northumberland Agricultural Association, was the mover of the resolution passed by the Ontario Fairs' Association regarding the appointment of a county constabulary. It is felt by many that a rural mounted police force is needed. The resolution will be forwarded to the Legislature.

THE NEW BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS FOR TORONTO IS PASSED

Examiner Special.

Toronto, Feb. 23.—The new Board of License Commissioners for Toronto has been announced, as follows: Ex-Mayor Coatsworth, chairman, ex-Ald. Sheard, D. Millar.

EX-CHIEF MALONE WAS INDICTED ON THREE CHARGES

Examiner Special.

Simcoe, Feb. 23.—Ex-Chief A. W. Malone was indicted by the Grand Jury yesterday afternoon on five counts, namely: the attempted murder of Wm. Wilkins, constable, and two charges of arson and breaking into stores.

BEAUTIFUL SOUVENIR OF MONTREAL CARNIVAL

The Examiner has received the Canadian Pictorial official souvenir of the great Montreal Carnival. It is a publication of the publishers and worthy of the event which is under the patronage of their Excellences, Earl Grey and Countess Grey who have removed the official residence to Montreal for the carnival. It is profusely picturesque including portraits of Earl and Countess Grey, pictures of the ice palace, not only of the present, but of those of '83 and '85, and of the winter pastimes peculiar to Canada. The souvenir number is a beautiful one, a fitting commemoration of a great event, and the publishers of the "Canadian Pictorial" are to be congratulated on the enterprise as well as on account of their production.

COUNTY COUNCIL LEAVE FOR OTTAWA TO OBTAIN AID IN BUILDING BALL LAKE BRIDGE

The members of the council of the county of Peterboro, accompanied by a deputation from the Bobcaygeon Board of Trade and Council left on the noon train for Ottawa this morning to seek assistance financially towards building a floating bridge over Ball Lake Narrows in the township of Harvey. They will be introduced by Hon. J. R. Stratton, M.P. The structure proposed will be over a third of a mile long and will cost, it is estimated, from $10,000 to $12,000. It is expected to be of great benefit to the people of Harvey, as it will lessen their drive to Bobcaygeon and to the nearest railway connection by 15 miles.

It is the intention of the council to ask the Government for a grant of $7,000 for the building of the bridge, and if the request is erased the matter will not be further proceeded with. In the event, however of the half the amount being granted the Ontario Government will be asked to assist by granting the remainder.

The committee on bridge inspection reported to the council last night as follows:

Ball Lake Narrows.

Your committee visited the above site with members of the Council of Harvey, members of the Council of Bobcaygeon, and members of the Board of Trade, Bobcaygeon.

The length of proposed bridge is 2130 feet. By erecting the bridge the distance to Bobcaygeon for a large number of ratepayers of Harvey would be shortened by 15 miles also the distance from points of North Harvey to Buckhorn, would be shortened by 15 miles, and on the other hand access to the city of Peterborough would be made easier by 10 or 12 miles to a large number ofratepayers of the county, from the above observations we would strongly recommend the County Council to assist the ratepayers interested, to urge upon the governments to assist towards building proposed bridge.

RING PRESENTED TO MISS C. BRISBIN

Interesting Event at the Residence of Miss Winnie O'Brien Last Evening

A very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Miss Minnie O'Brien, Driscoll street, when she entertained a number of her friends. During the evening a presentation was made to Miss Carrie Brisbin by Willie O'Brien, while Miss Mabel Tighe read the following address:

Dear Carrie:—Having learned of your intended departure from our midst, we, the members of the Social Club, could not let this opportunity pass without expressing our regret at losing one of our most amiable and most highly esteemed members, and to show our appreciation of one who, during the pleasant evenings spent together, has contributed so much to our progress both materially and intellectually.

We assure you that our best wishes will follow you to your new home in that far land, and trust that your new life with God's blessing will be bright and joyous.

We ask you to accept as a slight token of our regard, this ring, and hope it will remind you in the days to come of the loving friends at home, who will always cherish kindest memories of you.

Signed on behalf of the members of the Social Club:

MISS EVA FREDENBURG.
MISS MARY CLARKE.
MISS MABEL GODFREY.

WOMEN START A FLYING CLUB

Wife of Parisian Ship Constructor is Planning Its Formation

Paris, Feb. 23.—Mme. Saroouf, wife of the well known French airship constructor, has, with a number of her friends, started an aeronautic club for women, known as the "Stella Club."

Explaining her interest in aeronautics, she said: "My husband took me with him on a ballooning trip, and from that day I was an enthusiast. Altogether, I have made twenty-five trips. I am the only woman who holds the French Aero Club's pilot certificate. I have been for six balloon trips with ladies only. Then the idea of a woman's aero club took shape.

"Some twenty-five or thirty women form the club. There are at the present time in France about 100 women aeronauts. The subscription for active members, entitling them to one balloon flight each year, will be $20.

"The Aero Club has placed its balloon park at St. Cloud at our disposal, and it is there that we shall make our ascents, using the Aero Clubb balloons until we have but balloons of our own.

"We do not intend to have any special kind of costume or uniform—perhaps later on a badge, but nothing more. We shall wear short skirts and warm, but light clothing.

"Ballooning," went on Mme. Surcouf, "is infinitely finer than motoring. One of our great features will be midnight balloon trips. I can conceive nothing more poetic than moonlight trips in the air, but as we realize that many men will object to their wives or sisters going up alone, we have decided to admit male members to our club, though they will have no voice in the management.

"When aviation becomes more advanced we shall also take up aeroplaning. In the meantime it is by no means improbable that in a year or so you may see an airship entirely manned by women crossing the channel."

CANADIAN GENERAL GETS BIG END OF BIG CONTRACT

Hydro-Electric Commission This Afternoon Awarded Two-Thirds of Contract for Twelve Stations, To the Local Firm.

THIS MEANS A BIG THING FOR THE CITY OF PETERBOROUGH

Examiner Special (3.30 p. m.)

Toronto, Feb. 23.—The Hydro-Electric Commission this afternoon awarded the contract for electrical equipment of twelve stations on the transmission line. Two-thirds goes to the Canadian General Electric, and one-third to the Westinghouse people. It is stated that the Commission saves $350,000 on original estimate.

An Indian War Chief Runs Amuck, Killing Two People

Examiner Special.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Feb. 22.—With an earsplitting warwhoop, a Navajo Indian war chief ran amuck in the Union Station yesterday, and fatally stabbed and cut Mrs. Anna Devord, of Huntington, W. Va., and May Meyers of Cincinnati, and seriously wounded Joseph W. Gordon, of Cambridge, Ills.

The Navajo, with four Sioux chiefs from Kansas, alighted from a crowded Chesapeake and Ohio train. As the pasengers jumped from the train the Indian, with a yell, drew a long knife and started through the crowd, slashing right and left.

Mrs. Devord was walking along the station platform with a child in her arms. The Indian had buried the blade in her back and then slashed her across the body and arms. She fell insensible to the platform. The child was not hurt. After the Indian had attacked Meyers and Gordon, passengers rushed on the madman and hurled him prostrate to the platform. He was taken in charge by the police.

The Indian, who had been to Washington to see the secretary of the interior, was sullen while in the train, passengers say, but he evinced no sign of frenzy, until the passengers were leaving the train.

Three Children Were Burned To During The Absence Of Parents

Examiner Special (2.45 p. m.)

St. John, N.B., Feb. 23.—Word has reached here that while the wife of Thomas Greatoveys, C.P.R. station agent at Hoyt, in this province, was away from home last night, making purchases at the village store, fire started from some unknown cause, and the home was destroyed; the Greatveys' three children, all boys, being burned to death.

Unfounded Rumour That The T. Eaton Co. Had Made Purchase

It has been rather widely rumoured that the T Eaton Co., of Toronto, had purchased from the city the store on Simcoe street, formerly occupied by Richard Hall &son, and more recently given by the trustees of the Nicholls Estate to be used as a public library. A reporter was informed by City Clerk Armstrong that he had heard nothing in regard to the matter and the rumour was otherwise found without substantial foundation.

Post Office And "Central" At Gow Ganda Is In Conroy's Store

According to a recent despatch to a Toronto paper, Conroy Bros., of East City, will have charge of the Post Office and Telephone Central. It states that the mail is brought from Elk City by willing teams and is distributed at Dave Conroy's store. The Silver Bell Telephone Co. have already connected Elk City with Charlton, and are now on the road to Gowganda with a large gang of men, ten tons of wire having been shipped in recently. Manager Joy expects to "Hello" Gowganda in ten days, and have instruments installed at all the stopping places. The Central will be installed in one of Conroy's stores.

Italian Weds Countrywoman He Has Known But Two Weeks

A wedding in which the circumstances are somewhat unusual, was solemnized by Rev. Father McColl in St. Peter's cathedral this morning. The bridegroom was Rocco Morocco, a young Italian from the Province of Chieti, who came to Peterboro two years ago, and who has, since his residence here, come to realize that single blessedness is not as blessed as some people state. Accordingly he began to make arrangements to alter conditions, and his ambitions were realized when Grazia Lapenna arrived two weeks ago from the Province of Foggia. He had never seen the young Italian girl until she came to Peterborough, but the course of true love in this case ran smooth, and this morning the two were made one in the presence of a large number of fellow country people. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Febbo, of this city. The young couple will take up their residence in Peterboro.

After the ceremony the usual wedding feast was enjoyed with the gayety that characterizes such events among the natives of sunny Italy.

DUCK HUNTERS TO ASK THAT THE GAME LAWS BE AMENDED

REV. H. J. KEITH,
Who delivered an address at the Annual Banquet of All Saints' Men's Association

Want Law Changed so That Ducks May be Shot Over Decoys in the Rice Beds—Petition is Largely Signed.

HELP TO IMPROVE SPORT

A petition is being widely circulated, and signed in Peterborough asking for a change in the game laws, pertaining to the shooting of wild ducks. A short time ago the statute was amended so as to prohibit shooting over decoys placed within 250 yards from the shore. There have been many complaints from duck hunters over the change and they state that the duck shooting was practically spoiled at Rice Lake last fall because it was impossible to shoot the ducks in the rice beds unless it was done from a concealed canoe. The petition points out this fact and states that nothing was needed to protect the duck shooing at Rice Lake, but the prohibiting of night shooting and frogging.

Mr. F. Hartley is circulating the petition in Peterboro, and is meeting with no difficulty in securing signatures as the local sportsmen think that shooting over decoys in the rice beds should not be prohibited, and feel that if it is there will be no shooting of any account at Rice Lake. Similar petitions are being circulated in Cobourg and other places affected, and the result is the same—the hunters seem unanimous in objecting to the recently adopted law which went into force last fall for the first time.

The petitions will be presented to the Ontario Government during the present session and the sportsmen are hoping that the law may be restored to its old form.

WANT TO SEIZE MAYOR'S CHAIR

Examiner Special.

Winnipeg, Feb. 22.—The writ of execution was issued against the city through the solicitors of Kelly Brothers and Co., Kenora, who built the Redwood Bridge.

The city held back part payment, alleging that the fair wage clause was violated. The courts ruled that this was illegal. The matter has never been adjusted, and the company took out a writ.

The sheriff went prepared to seize the Mayor's chair and other furniture in the Council Chamber.

Postponement was secured until to-day to see if some settlement cannot be made.

Robbed Of $15 Worth Of Old Rubbers During The Night

About $15 worth of old rubbers was stolen from the shed at the rear of Abraham Low's residence on Simcoe St., during the night and only very faint hopes are intertained for their recovery.

"They broke into my shed by taking out a window," Mr. Low said, "and this morning when I went out I found the pile gone. The old rubbers which are a part of every junk business had been in a pile and were valued at about $15.00. The police were communicated with and are working on the case.

Victoria House Changes Hands To Run Under New Management

The Victoria House, the summer hotel at McCracken's Landing, Stony Lake, has been purchased from Messrs. Freeman and Carveth by Mr. E. Pickens, of Lakefield, who will be in charge of the popular Kawartha Lake tourist home during the coming season. Mr. Pickens is well and favourably known in Lakefield and with the capital reputation attached to the Victoria House, should have no difficulty in making a success of his new venture. He has in mind comprehensive improvements that will make the building even more commodious and comfortable than it has been hitherto.

Mr. Pickens has also purchased the trim steam yacht, the Alberta, one of the neatest and fastest of the Kawartha Lakes' smaller craft, and he will use the boat in connection with the hotel, so that his guests may depend upon having many enjoyable outings during the season of 1909.

BELMONT "AT-HOME" ONE OF THE SEASON'S SOCIAL SUCCESSES

The "At Home" given by the Belmont Club in the Conservatory of Music Hall last night was one of the most successful and enjoyable social events of the season, and the new club are to be congratulated upon the success that attended their efforts. It is safe to say that no more well planned and successfully carried out affair of its kind has been given here for some time, and the many young people were loud in their praises of the occasion. The hall was artistically decorated with the Belmont's colours, mauve and purple, while the stage was fitted out as a drawing room, the effect being delightful. Charming music was supplied by the Grand Opera House Orchestra, under the direction of Mr. R. J. Devey, and encores were frequent. A delightful luncheon was served during the evening and the gathering dispersed at about three o'clock this morning.

Hon. President—Dr. A. W. MacPherson.

Hon. Vice-President—J. T. C. Lang, President—O. Sisburn.

First Vice-President — Harold Tansley.

Second Vice-President—N. Greenhalgh.

Secretary—W. T. Bellegbem.

Treasurer—Wilbert Thornton.

Executive Committee—W. Martin, L. Mendel, G. Miller, R. McKee, H. Clarke.

House Committee—G. Wesley, B. Miller.

HE HAS SECURED GOOD POSITION IN TORONTO FIRM

Mr. H. C. MacDonald, who for the past two years has been in charge of the window decorating and card writing department of the Rich, Hall & Son store, leaves on Monday next to take a similar position with the big firm of W. A. Murray & Co., and his many friends in Peterborough will wish him every success in his new location. Mr. McDonald is one of the cleverest window dressers that has ever been employed in Peterboro, and his windows have been greatly admired, being the subject of favourable comment from visitors from outside cities. That he will succeed in Toronto is the confident expectation of his many Peterboro friends. He has just returned from a visit of ten days in Chicago, and this will be his last week in Peterboro.

CONGRATULATIONS.

A despatch appearing in another column states that the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission has awarded contracts for twelve stations of the Niagara Falls Power transmission line, and that the Canada General has received two-thirds of the contract the balance going to the Westinghouse people.

Congratulations are due the Company and the people of Peterborough, which will both benefit the one directly and the other directly and indirectly in the fulfillment of the contract, which involves a sum in the neighborhood of a million dollars. Though this estimate is not official, it is believed that the figures will closely approximate the sum mentioned.

FREE TRADE IS STABLE.

We have from time to time been told of the tremendous inroads the doctrine of protection has been making upon free trade in Great Britain. Had these fairy tales furnished any ground for alarm it has been removed by the result of the vote on the subject taken in the British House of Commons on Friday. By a vote of 276 to 107, the Unionist tariff proposals were rejected. To further slow the retention of free trade in popular sympathy, it may be stated that the principle of high taxation is supported by the friends of the privileged classes, but that the more popular political elements, Liberals, Labour and Socialism, adhere to free trade. And this is natural. A tax on breadstuffs will make spare the tables of the people that is those comprising the industrial and working classes. The retention of free trade is of interest to Canada. Its displacement by protection will tend to close the British markets to Canadian produce. The Canadian manufacturers want to exclude British products by high taxation on the same principle that British agriculturists want Candian farm products barred by the same means. The British preference given by a Liberal Government has been an important factor in saving the British market for the Canadian farmer, and insuring the British workman cheap bread.

Great Britain is Canada's best market for the agricultural products of Canada, as it will continue to be so long as it is left open.

OPTIMISM AND ENTERPRISE.

Manager Franz of the Lake Superior Corporation, which was recently taken over by English capitalists, has issued a statement to the effect that the company would immediately commence extensive additions to the open hearth furnaces at the Algoma Steel plant in the Canadian Soo. Other improvements are to follow fast, the intention being to make it the greatest steel concern in Canada. It is reported that the company will erect new blast furnaces and a structural steel plant. These additions will make the Soo steel plant the greatest in Canada. Here we have another of the fruits of optimism, translated into enterprise. The Liberal Govrnment of Ontario, by a wise exercise of liberality launched the original Soo industres. The Ross Government, with a similar wise exercise of liberality, saved these industries from collapse, and British enterprise and capital coming into play are responsible for the splendid outlook of these great industries. The action of the Ross Government saved these great steel industries from the tentacles of the United States steel corporation octopus, and has given Ontario the pronounced distinction of possessing the greatest steel centre of the Dominion.

A tree is known and judged by its good fruit and not by a few defective apples.

PROTECTION AND PRECAUTION.

The duty of a municipal corporation is to provide effective protection for the citizens, and to take such precautions as will ensure this protection. There are evidences of a neglect in this connection, especially in relation to the effective dealing with contagious diseases. Peterborough is not alone subject to criticism in this matter, but other places furnish evidence of, if not neglect, at least of the necessity of vigorous and effective administration of a preventive character. There must have been and must be some grave dereliction of duty on the part of the municipal and health authorities of Cobourg to permit of the small pox becoming entrenched in the town to the number of sixteen cases, one having developed a day or two ago. Port Hope, from which the disease is said to have been communicated to Cobourg, may have been more careful, for its spread seems to have been arrested. The presence of small pox in the Cardova district is another plea for the necessity of always being on guard and having preventive conditions under practical organization. If the disease had been handled in Cobourg with the energy and thoroughness which was possible its spread might easily have been prevented.

In every large centre of population contagious diseases are nearly always present, but with effective precautionary measures their spread is preventable. There must have been neglect in Buffalo to have permitted scarlet fever to have run up a score of victims of four hundred. Is it lack of precaution and preventive arrangements that has contributed to the prevalence of scarlet fever in this city to the extent that it obtains? We all know that the only effective means of preventing the spread of scarlet fever is isolation. We all know, too, that without an isolation hospital there is impossibility of enforcing isolation in the average house. In this respect we provide the conditions that conduce to the spread of the disease and also promote the concealment of its existence. It is stated that scarlet fever exists in homes that are not placarded—that is have not been reported to the authorities. This is not surprising. The prevalent disease is said to be of a mild type and in the ignorance or indifference of those concerned, the disease is not reported, since in the absence of an isolation hospital, that would mean quarantine for six weeks, with all the attendant inconveniences which it would impose upon persons, of small means, especially.

The solution of the problem is an isolation hospital, which would permit of effective treatment, and that measure of isolation which would stamp out the disease with all the expense and hardship which its treatment in private houses entails.

What is agitating the public mind is the attitude and intention of the city authorities in the matter of an isolation hospital, recognized as a necessity in the interests of the public health.

SAVE THE FORESTS.

(Ottawa Free Press.)

While the Federal and Provincial Governments have not been unmindful of the importance of guarding against the destruction of forest areas in Canada from fire, each year sees the disappearance of much valuable timber while in growth.

People who consider the forests of Canada to be inexhaustible make a great mistake. Those who are qualified to speak on the subject declare that if the present rate of destruction and exploitation is kept up, practically all trees of commercial value will have disappeared before the present generation has passed away.

Dr. Fernow, of the faculty of forestry of Toronto University, told the Canadian Forestry Association some wholesome truths at its annual meeting recently. He declared that the fundamental want of the association acting for the people of Canada, was thorough protection of the forests from fire. Although governments have undertaken to check forest fires, he said, they have done so without adequate conception of the difficulty or importance of the undertaking or of regard for the future. This lack of proper attitude is most characteristically exhibited by the story of what an official in charge is said to have remarked regarding the forest fires of the past season, namely, that they had done no damage, as they had "merely run through slash." It is here, says Dr. Fernon, that the future lies. The old timber is mostly not damaged beyond usefulness by any single fire, but the young growth, the promise of the future, is surely killed, and it is the repeated fires running through the slash that make the deserts.

The present Ontario Government is spending about $180,000 a year on fire protection, but to little purpose, as can be seen from the fact that last year the provincial reserves fire-swept, standing timber as well as young growth to the value of millions to the next generation being destroyed.

A suggestion made by the Toronto Star in this connection is worthy of consideration by the Government. That paper urges the organization of an efficient forest ranging system, by means of which the loss by fire could be reduced to a minimum. What is needed is a permanent force of intelligent, well-trained woodsmen, whose qualifications for the work have been determined by a rigid examination, supplemented in the dangerous summer season by less experienced apprentices. Divided into small groups, placed systematically in the territory to be protected and subjected to a thorough and continuous inspection each a force would, the star contends, become a factor in the conservation of the province's timber.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The civil service reform policy of the Whitney Government is represented by crowding out all Reform officials.

One joke about the waterways treaty, says the Ottawa Free Press, is that the hold-up by Senator Smith of Michigan is founded upon a misapprehension. He thinks that the St. Mary's River mentioned in the treaty is the St. Mary's River at the "Soo," whereas it is the St. Mary's River in Alberta.

The House of Commons on Friday decided to add three to its standing committees, namely upon Marine and Fisheries, Mines and Minerals and Forests, Waterways and Waterpowers. All three will have important work to do and will aid materially in the popular understanding, if not practical treatment, of the economic problems with which Canada has to grapple.

The total immigration into Canada for the ten months of the current fiscal year, April to January, was 126,653, as compared with 240,892 for the same period of 1907-8, showing a decrease of 48 per cent. The immigration for January was 4,097, as compared with 5,567 for January last year. The immigration via ocean ports was 1,801, and from the United States 2,296.

In England, Ireland and Scotland there are private estates of 8,000, 10,000 and 15,000 acres, yet the people of the northwest object to distributing a few thousand acres among the few surviving members of the Fenian Raids. This protest comes from a country of continental expanse, while the single Province of Saskatchewan is equal in area to ten Englands, fifteen Irelands and seventeen Scotlands.

Mr. Edward Kidd was elected by acclamation on Monday for Carleton, the seat resigned by Mr. Borden, leader of the Conservative Opposition. Mr. Kidd had no opposition for a very good reason that opposition of any kind except another Conservative would have been futile. Carleton Conservatives are Ephriams joined to their idols with an obstinancy proof against reason, patriotism, or any other consideration.

The Manitoba Free Press claims that Premier Roblin is disqualified as Premier of Manitoba and liable to a fine of $2,000 per day according to chapter 96 of the statutes of Manitoba. This law disqualifies from sitting or voting in the Legislature any person who holds an interest in any firm receiving money from the Government. Mr. Roblin is a partner in the Eli Sand Company which, according to the public accounts, received money from the Provincial treasury, thus making the Premier of the Province liable to a fine of $2,000 for every day he sits and votes under such conditions.

One would think that a great nation like the United States would not be guilty of the vulgar offence of smuggling, to save a few cents of duty. There lies before us a copy of a petition from "the merchants, bankers and business men" of Colon and Panama in the Republic of Panama to President Roosevelt. The petition recites that duties are not paid on goods imported into Panama in connection with canal construction and resold to employers from the commissary stores, to the prejudice of local commercial interests, and the revenue of the isthmian republic.

Some idea of the huge extent of the trade in grain shipment which await the development of the port at Vancouver may be gathered from a glance at the figures covering grain production in Alberta in recent years. Seven years ago the total grain yield of Alberta was 200,000 bushels; in 1908 it had increased to 23,000,000 bushels. Closer examination reveals that of this quantity 14,000,000 bushels was in oats, 7,000,000 bushels in wheat, and 2,000,000 bushels in barley, flax and rye. Of the whole quantity 13,300,000 bushels were exportable; that is to say, they were not required for feed, seed or home consumption. More than half of the grain available was shipped by the Atlantic. The most significant fact presented by the situation in Alberta, however, is that it is anticipated next year's crop will be from thirty to fifty per cent. greater than last year's.—Vancouver World.

FIFTY-TWO DOLLARS A YEAR FOR LIFE TO THE WINNER

If you have not yet entered the Orange Meat contest, you are missing an excellent opportunity to win a most valuable prize. They will give Fifty-two Dollars a Year for Life, or Seven Hundred Dollars in Cash, besides several other large cash prizes, to the persons sending in the largest number of bottoms of Orange Meat boxes before May 31st, next. Here is a chance to earn a larger prize than perhaps you ever had the opportunity before, but it will require a genuine and immediate effort on your part to win.

Full particulars on private post card found in every package of Orange Meat.

THE INTHON BIBLE CLASS MEETING

Sunday afternoon brought out no less than 85. The best former record was 73. May the class keep up the good work and see many more record Sundays. The standing of the three sides of the contest is 168 for the Reds, 138 for the Whites, and 151 for the Blues. It behooves the Whites and Blues to get a move on and not let the Reds hold their present standing. "Dig in" fellows, and show the Reds.

The class were glad to see Mr. P. M. McCarrell back again and pleased to note that he didn't look much the worse in having to nurse a sprained ankle for three weeks.

The Inthons will be sorry to learn that Mr. Geo. Deprose's sister, who was reported sick on Sunday, has been taken away from this earth.

Rev. E. A. Pearson was the teacher, as usual, and the lesson was of much benefit to all.

Mr. E. G. Clarke is doing well with his Sunday evening Prayer Circle. Don't forget it, fellows; give him all the help you can, every Sunday evening between 6.30 and 7 in the Primary Parlour.

ONE BAD MISTAKE

Is Frequently Made by the Wisest of Peterborough People.

It's a serious mistake to neglect backache. Backache is the first symptom of kidney ills. Fatal complications may follow. Booth's Kidney Pills act quickly to overcome kidney ills, do not delay until too late, it may mean Diabetes, Bright's Disease. Read what a Peterborough resident says.

Mrs. R. Duncan, of No. 115 McDonel street, Peterborough, Ont., says: "Some thirteen years ago I suffered with a severe attack of la grippe that had until this spring left me in a weakened and miserable condition. The kidneys had been disordered through this and became so inactive that doctors had pronounced it Bright's Disease, and termed my case incurable. My back was very weak and the pains across the kidneys were most excruciating. The urine was highly coloured and contained a quantity of whitish sediment. I had become so discouraged through my years of suffering that I had no care for anything. Booth's Kidney Pills were advertised at the Market Drug Store and I tried them. The first box convinced me of their merits. I used five boxes of the remedy and I have been entirely cured. I am like a new person, well and strong and can sleep through the night and awake refreshed and ready for the day."

Unemployed Are Handed Some Advice By Members Of The Central Charity Board

Are Advised to Save Their Money When They Are Earning and Prepare for the Winter in This Manner.

CONFERENCE WAS HELD

As the result of a suggestion from Relief Officer Miller, a conference was held last night between the Central Charity Board and a number of the men who have been receiving charity from the city. The proceedings were somewhat of a surprise party to the unemployed, who came expecting to hear propounded to them some scheme by which they could obtain work and on the contrary had to listen to a lecture upon economy and temperance from a number of the members of the Board. Twenty-seven men responded to the invitation, and all but one were from the old country, who listened patiently to the advice that was distributed impartially to them.

Mayor Rush, chairman of the board, was in the chair and opened the proceedings by remarking that the meeting was in the nature of a friendly conference to see what could be done. The men present were not accustomed to the ways of the country, he was sure, but he assured them that many other people who were now doing well, had come to Canada in the same plight as they were. The giving of charity in Peterborough was becoming a serious thing. Taxes were growing. The Board was not composed of millionaires and he advised the men present to try and take care of themselves.

Mr. R. C. Hiraund, one of the members of the Board, remarked that it was a delicate question. The trouble was that often those men who needed charity the most did not come for it, while on the other hand, people who did not deserve help often came to the Board for it. A great deal of the trouble was caused because they did not make provision for the winter. They made good wages in the summer and did not take care of their money. He had often found in his business that people who could not really afford them bought the most luxuries. They wanted the best as long as they had money. People had come into his store and asked him to telephone for beer and other drinks, and those people some months afterwards were looking for charity.

Some of the new comers were fond of a social glass. He didn't say they were old sea salts, and he remarked that if they were used to such things in their own country, people here were not used to them, and he advised them to save their money. The Board had to be careful to give charity to the people most deserving of it, as there was a limit to what they had to give. The Board wanted to say that the people who drank and spent their money foolishly in the summer time couldn't expect to be helped through the winter.

Father McColl said that after visiting England he could understand the customs there better. He thought that nearly everyone there drank beer or whiskey, and seemed to consider that sort of thing necessary. It was not considered necessary in Canada, but, on the other hand was considered injurious. A large number of Englishmen were accustomed to receive charity, and they looked for it here. There was lots of work in the summer with wages three times as good as in the old country, and if they dropped the luxuries which were not needed, he thought that they would get along all right. "You look as if you are able to do a pretty good day's work," he remarked. "Have a little of the spunk of the Briton and you will get on at least fairly well."

Mr. Geo. Cochrane remarked that he had found that the great trouble lay in the fact that some of the new comers, if they could not get the job that they wanted the would not work at all. He advised them if they could not obtain just the sort of position they wanted, to take the next best thing to it. He was rather surprised in seeing so many young men out of work, and he noticed that most of the new comers smoked cigarettes. Cigarettes were all right if people could afford them. Mr. Cochrane suggested to the men that when work commenced in the spring that they should begin to save, give some money to their wives to lay by for them and when winter came they would find themselves with a balance to draw from.

Mr. Wm. Kempt remarked that the customs and ways of this country were not the ways and customs of the old country. He had known it to be the case that when new comers were being shown by their "boss" how to do a thing because it was not the way they did it in the old country. "It doesn't matter how you did it in the old country," Mr. Kempt remarked. "Do it as they want you to do it here and you will get along better."

Mr. Malcolm McIntyre remarked that the men present asking aid had never been hard times, such as there were here some ten years ago, and he told of his experience at that time. He had never had to ask for charity, although he had had to work for twelve and fourteen hours per day. He advised the men in need to refrain from cigarettes, beer and whiskey.

Mr. Wm. Fowler, in re-iterating the advice of the other speakers, said that the Charity Board did not want to refuse anybody in want, but they had to carefully consider the people to whom charity was to be given.

Mayor Rush then asked the men present if they wanted to say anything, and three of them took advantage of the opportunity.

The first remarked that he had been in Canada three years and had never asked for charity before. He had had a bad summer with sickness in the family, and hadn't been able to do anything more than pay last winter's debts. He was unable to get any work, but didn't throw what money he got away in drink.

The second explained that he did not have much money when he landed. It was in the summer and he was enabled to earn money and he spent it as he earned it, not knowing what this Canadian winter meant. As a result he had run into debt and there were just as bad this winter. He had a wife and three children and they had to be fed. It was hard to ask for charity but they had to have it.

The third speaker said that he had lived twenty-one years in Canada, and there were times when he had worked hard and never got a cent for it. He had a family of four and never had to ask for charity before. There was a doctor's bill to pay and he had to come to the city for help.

COUNTY COUNCIL DECIDES TO REBUILD HOPE'S BRIDGE AT A COST OF $3,000.00

Special Session Was Held to Consider the Report of the Bridges Inspector---Will Help Norwood Secure Agricultural College if Possible.

The County Council met last night in special session to consider the right of the conection at the various bridges under its jurisdiction.

Those present were: Warden Smith, Councillors Breault, Hall, Knox, Comstock, Russell, Tucker, Hales, Darling, Moher, Perdue, Cohen, Shaw, Brown, Fife, Stewart and Graham.

Mr. George Fitzgerald asked the County Council to solicit the Game and Fisheries Department of Ontario to consider the question of taking bass on the staff again. On motion of Messrs. Moher and Breault the request was granted and the Ontario Government will be notified.

Mr. Lees, the public school inspector, was allowed to address the council and explained the system employed in paying public school inspectors, suggesting that Peterborough Council advance more money. On motion the matter was referred to the June Session.

On motion Messrs. McWilliams and Armstrong were heard in reference to the Orange Order using the court room this summer for their annual convention. On motion the request was granted.

On motion of Messrs. Breault and Comstock the account of the Havelock Standard of $16.56, balance on minutes of 1908, and $60 on account of assessment schedules 1909, was passed.

Warden Scott brought up the matter of the caretaker of the Burleigh bridge. Mr. Bates was appointed overseer of the work done there and rendered good service. He was never paid anything, and was entitled to something. On motion he was given $5.

Agricultural School

Mr. R. Lees notified the council that it was the intention of the Ontario Government to establish three more agricultural schools in the province. Norwood was trying to get one located there and the East Peterborough Agricultural Society and Board of Education were working it up and it was desired to have the county co-operate with them. The council was favourably impressed and a committee composed of Messrs. Breault, Comstock and Darling were appointed to work with the Norwood people and to go with them to the Ontario Government during the present session.

Roads and Bridges

The special committee appointed to inspect the different bridges in the county, made the following report:

To the Members of the Council:

Gentlemen,—We, your committee appointed at the January session to inspect certain bridges with a view to report on the same at this a special meeting called for the purport:

Hope's Bridge, Otonabee

We found as expected an old bridge that now, and has been for some time, a county bridge, in a bad state of repair. The timbers are rotten and in such a condition that all traffic of heavy loads have ceased to pass over it. The old bridge is 100 feet long at present, but would not only recommend the rebuilding of a permanent bridge, but the shortening of the same to 75 feet between abutments.

Steel's bridge and Davidson's bridge your committee also visited. Steel's bridge being a county bridge at present we would recommend the same to be scraped and re-painted.

With reference to Davidson's bridge we found a wooden one that is in our opinion adequate for the traffic at the present time, and with small expenditure would do for several years yet.

Wolfpit's Bridge

The above is a county bridge, 100 feet long and requires re-flooring and possibly some new stringers.

Robson's Bridge

The above bridge is at present a county bridge and the flooring and upper part of the bridge is completely gone. The piers apparently being in good condition. We would recommend new top on bridge, also shortening by one span and fill in where shortened.

Hynes' Bridge

Your committee visited the above bridge and found a bridge 46 feet in length.

The same not being a county bridge and your committee do not feel that they should recommend the assuming of the bridge, do not express any opinion as to what repairs should take place.

Your committee also visited Shellgrove bridge, in Smith, and do not consider this should be assumed by county, it being some 40 feet long. We do not say as to what repairs should take place for the same reason as in the case of the Hynes' bridge.

McColl's Bridge, Anstruther

Your committee visited the above bridge and find that it is now 95 feet long and in so far as bridge is concerned, rotten, but the west abutment being natural rock and the centre pier sound, would only necessitate the building of one abutment.

We would recommend the assuming of this bridge by the county and have it rebuilt at a length of 75 feet, using west abutment and present centre pier.

A wooden structure from the fact that timber is plentiful in that municipality would be the most advisable structure.

Lockie's Bridge, Monaghan.

We herewith express ourselves with regard to this bridge, for the same reasons as in the Hynes bridge, that we could not recommend the assumption, by the county, the bridge being only 35 feet long in a comparatively quiet place in so far as much traffic is concerned."

It was decided to rebuild Hope's bridge at a cost of $300, and Messrs. Graham, Comstock, Moher, and Fife were appointed a committee to look after it.

Steele's bridge will be scraped and repainted, and Mr. Comstock will also look after this.

Robson's bridge will be repaired. It will be in charge of Messrs. Darling and Comstock.

McColl's bridge will be rebuilt, and made 75 feet long instead of 95 feet.

The Council read a by-law providing for issuing debentures for $4,000 for the construction of Hope's bridge at a cost of $3,000. Robson's bridge $400, and Anstruther bridge $600. The by-law was given two readings and will be read a third time and passed at the June session. They are 4 1-2 per cent. debentures.

An invitation was extended to the City Council to send a committee to Ottawa with the county at the expense of the city, to interview the government in connection with the new bridge in Harvey.

Man Who Shot Policeman Had Model House In Berlin Was Idolized By His Mother

Examiner Special

Berlin, Feb 22— The manner in which Nelson Dessler who yesterday shot and killed a police captain at Olean, N.Y., after a desperate fight, being terribly wounded himself, has capped off his career is not a very great surprise to people here. He has had criminal instincts ever since he was a young boy, the general belief being that he went astray in the first place as the result of reading cheap paper-backed tales of murder and robbery.

His aim has apparently been to be a gentleman thief of the Raffles order. He was polite as a boy, and growing into manhood was fond of dress, even to extremes of fashion. His parents who are exceptionally fine people, provided him with a musical education, and the home life of Dessler was ideal.

His mother doted upon him and could not believe reports against him while Nelson idolized her. It came out that many gifts he had made her had been stolen by him in his raids.

He was guilty of a series of Sunday night burglaries during church hours and nearly every house in Adrens street, where he lived, received visits from him. He would accompany his parents to church and slip out at the time of the first prayer, but would be back at church, going home with his parents at the usual time having committed burglary.

He is also believed to have been the incendiary who set fire to half a dozen barns about the same time of these robberies. Dessler, it was marked, was always one of the first at the fire, helping to lead out the horses and generally playing the hero.

When he was finally caught, the evidence produced was so strong that he got five years at Kingston, but the fact that he was allowed out on parole after serving only two years, attests to his ability in the good behavior line. He had exceptional powers of fascinating himself with friends.

Mrs. Dessler is lying at a precarious condition with heart disease and has not been told of the escapade. Mr. Dessler was called to his wife's bedside from his work at Hibbard's furniture factory on Saturday afternoon, and it is feared if she learns of the affair it will mean her death.

Besides Nelson, they have two other children, a boy and a girl, 11 and 14 years of age.

When Dessler was home a couple of weeks ago, he told his parents he was on the road representing a number of implement houses, which he named, and located in Detroit, and other United States cities. He was as spruce as ever, and left the impression that he had reformed completely, and was getting along well.

Mr. D. Hibner, where Nelson Dessler's father is employed as foreman, received a message from Toronto on Sunday evening giving brief details of the affair, and when Mr. Dessler arrived at work this morning Mr. Hibner informed him of Nelson's misdeed, and the news was gently broken to the boy's mother by her husband. Naturally, they are grief-stricken, and are anxiously awaiting the result of the bullet wounds received from the revolver of the policeman.

Dessler's parents received a letter from their son last week stating that he was doing well, and had a good job selling fruit at $25 a week. He asked them to send a reply to the general delivery, Buffalo. Dessler kept his parents informed of his movements from the time he visited them three weeks ago, and they were under the impression that he was living an upright life.

I Can't Praise Them Too Much

So Says Charles Bell of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

He Had Rheumatism for Ten Years and the Old Reliable Kidney Remedy Cured Him Completely.

NORTH RANGE, Digby Co., N.S., Feb. 22.—(Special).—"I am so filled with gratitude to Dodd's Kidney Pills that I cannot praise them too highly." These are the words of Mr. Charles Bell, well known here, and they are echoed by many another who has been freed from the tortures of rheumatism by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I suffered terribly from rheumatism for ten years,' Mr. Bell continues "I was so bad I could scarcely get in and out of bed. After trying various medicines without getting relief, a friend advised me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. Six boxes cleaned the Rheumatism right out of me."

That's what Dodd's Kidney Pills do to Rheumatism—clean it right out of you. They do this simply and naturally. Rheumatism is caused by uric acid out of the blood. With no kidneys are healthy they strain this uric acid out o the blood. With no uric acid in the blood there can be no Rheumatism. Consequently to cure Rheumatism, cure your kidneys. Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure the kidneys.

Annual Banquet Of The Men's Association At All Saints' Church A Success

Bishop Reeve of Mackenzie River Spoke on the Missionary Work in That District---An Address That Was Bright and Enjoyable---Other Eloquent Speeches Made.

The annual banquet given by the Men's Association of All Saints has a two-fold purpose. It serves to bring the men of the congregation together under the most favourable auspices and the speakers of the evening are given the opportunity to point out the necessity of the men of the congregation putting their shoulders to the wheel and taking an actual and effective part in the work for the spiritual and material welfare of the church. The second annual banquet was held last night in the basement of the church and a profitable and thoroughly enjoyable time was spent. Rev. H R. Trumpour, the pastor, occupied the chair, and His Lordship Bishop Reeve, of Mackenzie River, was the principal speaker. Mr. W. H. Hoyle, M. P. P., of Cannington, was to have addressed the meeting, but for some reason he was apparently unable to put in an appearance. The topic Mr. Hoyle was to have dealt with, "The Laymen's Missionary Movement" is one of vital importance in connection with the missionary department of the church, and the chairman expressed regret that Mr. Hoyle, who is competent to deal with the subject in a lucid and practical way, was not in attendance. Expression of regret was also made that Rev. Dr. Langfeldt could not be present on account of his absence from the city, and Rev. Canon Davidson was also unable to attend owing to sickness in the family.

Bishop Reeve's address was one of considerable length, and was given after those assembled had done full justice to the most excellent spread arranged by the ladies of the congregation. The Bishop has much magnetism as a speaker and had his hearers very much interested throughout his discourse, which told of his missionary work in the Mackenzie River territory and the speaker's quiet touches of humour kept the gathering in splendid spirits.

Mr. Trumpour in making the chairman's address solicited the earnest support of the men of the church in all its undertakings, and spoke of the great necessity of all leading clean, straightforward, Christian lives.

He called upon several others who made brief speeches preliminary to the bishop's address. Mr. Davis, one of the delegates from All Saints' to the election of the bishop in Toronto, gave an interesting account of the procedure in connection with the election. The other speakers were Messrs. J J Howden, Rev. Mr. Keith, Ald. Buller, R E Layfield and Jas. Edgar.

Mr. Keith told of the great advantage of the churches of the city working together for the common good of the cause of religion. He spoke strongly in favour of the erection of the new All Saints' church, and as a representative of a sister church, extended his congratulations on the excellent progress the congregation of All Saints' had made and was making.

Bishop Reeve

His Lordship was given an ovation upon arising to speak. The bishop said he was sure it had given him very great pleasure to come to Peterborough to speak at the anniversary services on Sunday and to address the men assembled at the banquet. He heartily endorsed the speakers who had urged the men of the church to rally around their rector, and admonished them to build the new church with as little delay as possible.

His Lordship referred to the great Marathon race between Shrubb and Longboat, and said he could not help but admire the athletes for their persistence in training and the self-denial necessitated in preparing for that wonderful race. But after all, while athletic events gave physical strength and healthy manliness, our greatest efforts and denial should be in the cause of the great work for the furtherance of the religion of Christ.

Bishop Reeve greatly interested his auditors by an account of missionary work in Mackenzie river district. He spoke of the privations and disadvantages of pioneer missionary work in the field in which he has for so many years been a leader and worker. The speaker's account of his experiences in the west were bright and entertaining and many incidents he related were of a very humorous nature. The word pictures of the bishop's outing of his travels with his dogs, his visits to the Indian camps, and his relations with the redskins were descriptive and entertaining. It was a hard matter to secure food of a sustaining character in the Northwest which there were no railways or quick and satisfactory means of transportation. Fish rabbits and reindeer formed practically all the rations and the bishop and his family had had to go for weeks without what might be called a square meal.

The listeners were deeply interested in what the speaker had to say and his recital was indeed as interesting as a page from a book of adventure. Mission work in the frost-bound regions of the northern west is one of great labor and there are many privations and hardships in connection with it. The speaker said the work of Christianizing the Indians was one of great difficulty as the work of mastering their language was very difficult. And then each tribe had a different dialect which made the labour one of additional difficulty.

His Lordship sang a verse of an Indian hymn in dialect of the tribe his auditors showing much interest in the chanting of the simple Indian melody.

In conclusion the bishop referred to the country where he was engaged in his ecclesiastical work telling of the vegetation, the climatic conditions, the mineralis of Mackenzie river and the wild animals which roamed in those cold regions. Wolves and bears were found there, but, fortunately, unlike Russia, the wolves did not roam in savage packs and instances of them attacking travellers were isolated.

The speaker in referring to the lack of medical aid, when he was stationed at Fort Simpson, caused a laugh among the audience by saying the people died a natural death — that was work without medical aid.

Great advance however, had been made in civilization and Christianizing of the Indians since the days when Bishop Reeve had first commenced his labours in the west when they were practically cannibals and lived in their savage and unrestrained way.

A hearty vote of thanks to His Lordship was carried amid great applause. A vote of thanks was also given to the ladies for their appreciated efforts in connection with preparing and serving the supper. The evening was brought to a close by the singing of "God Save the King."

City Is Once Again Urged To Make Provision For Its Poor

Grand Jury Makes Presentment This Morning---Duties Were Very Light — Satisfactory Conditions Found in Hospitals, Jail and Homes for the Poor.

CONGRATULATES JUDGE.

The Grand Jury made their presentment this morning after visiting the usual institutions for the purpose of preparing a report on the existing conditions. In keping with presentments of the past there is a recommendation to the city to provide accommodation for the por and aged instead of having them placed in jail. The report was presented this morning being read by the foreman, Ald. Phelan, and signed as follows: Wm. Bulesr, Wm. Brown, R. J. Devey, R. J. Edmison. J. E. Fitzgerald, J. C. Hope, John Lancaster, Thos. Mahoney, Dennis Maloney, A. Montezambert, R. C. Strickland, Robert Trotter and Harry Phelan. The report was as follows:

To His Lordship Mr. Justice Clute:

May it please Your Lordship:

The Grand Jurors beg leave to present as follows:

This being the first time you have presided at a court in Peterborough, we wish to congratulate you upon your elevation to the bench and to express our gratification because the bar of Canada continues to furnish men learned in the law who carry on the best traditions of the British Judiciary.

We are pleased that this county is so free of crime that we have had no case to consider, and, even although the Police Magistrates deal with a number of criminal cases, the fact that no case of a criminal character has come before this court is a matter upon which the county is to be congratulated.

We visited St. Joseph's Hospital and were greatly pleased with the excellent equipment and management of that institution. An addition has been erected at this hospital, and it is admirably adapted for caring for the sick.

We also visited the Nicholls Hospital and found everything in that hospital in excellent condition and giving evidence of the best provision for caring for the patients. This city is to be congratulated upon having two such institutions as these hospitals.

At the Children's Shelter there were six children at the time of our visit, aged from 16 months to 10 years. Everything about the Shelter was very clean and comfortable and seemed well adapted for the good work the Children's Aid Society is doing.

At the Protestant Home there were twenty inmates, five male and fifteen female, and they all seemed happy and well provided for.

At the Gaol, which we also visited, we found everything clean and in good order and every evidence of proper care and attention. While here we saw that, as Your Lordship had mentioned to us, there were twelve persons imprisoned as vagrants, some of whom appeared to be old and helpless and to have not committed crime. Although the city has two excellent institutions in the Protestant Home and the House of Providence, that some further provision for the aged is necessary is shown by the fact that these persons are in the gaol. It is to be regretted that the County and City cannot make an arrangement for the care of the poor of both municipalities in one House of Refuge, but as the City has several times made proposals in that direction and the County Council cannot see its way to join in such an arrangement, we think it is the duty of the City to no longer delay in making adequate provision for the care of the poor and aged that it should look after, and we would urge that steps in this direction be taken at once.

We did not think it necessary to visit the County House of Refuge, as it is several miles from the city and was recently visited by a Grand Jury.

Respectfully submitted,

Foreman.

OBITUARY

CHARLES GLOVER

Word was received in the city yesterday of the death in Gloversville N.Y., of Charles Glover, son of the late Chas. F Glover, of Gloversville. The deceased was twenty-three years of age and had been ill for some time, although his death had not been expected by his relatives in Peterborough. His father predeceased him about three months ago. He is survived by a sister, Mrs. Chas Delaney, of Elmira N. Y., from whose residence the funeral will take place on Wednesday. The deceased was a grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Glover, East City.

HUGH O'CONNOR.

One of Douro's old landmarks passed away this morning in the person of Hugh O'Conor at the age of 56 years.

Death took place at his own residence, Lot 1, Con. 9, Douro. He has been ill for about thre months. Mr. O'Connor was married to Miss Maria O'Reilly 18 years ago, who still survives him. There are also two daughters, Mary and Sarah, both living at home and one brother, James O'Connor, of Otonabee. The funeral will leave the family residence, Douro, Thursday morning at nine o'clock and proceed to St. Peter's Cathedral, and interment will take place in the Roman Catholic cemetery.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

IMPERIAL OPERA COMPANY

Unusual interest is being taken by the lovers of opera by the announcement that The Imperial Opera Co. is to return to us on Thursday next, Feb. 25th, in that beautiful Opera "Floradora." By special permission of Mr. George Edwards of the Gayety Theatre, London, Eng., the management will present the very tempting and beautiful Opera "Floradora," with the original New York scenery and costumes, so it is safe to say quite a treat is in store for the patrons of the Grand Opera House, and that a royal welcome will greet this splendid company of singers, which includes such favourites as Agnes Cain Brown, Sabery Dorsell, Harry Girard, Allen Mostyn, W. H. Pringle, Eloia Croix Seabrooke, Harry St. Clair, Laura Christopher, W. L. Doyle, and many others.

To-Morrow a Charming Group of New Tailored Suits will Reveal Spring Fashion Secrets

Spring Suits have arrived. Here—first, as usual—the authentic new styles may be seen to-morrow. They're going to surprise you—delightfully.

In grace, in trimness, and smartness, in fabric beauty in perfection of beauty their equals have not been.

The style changes from those of the past season are subtle rather than radical. Hipless Jackets, tight fitting sleeves and long skirts again predominate.

But we want to particularly emphasize the values. There isn't a suit in our collection that you wouldn't be glad to pay $18.00 or $20.00 to obtain. And, think of it, you may take any one you choose at ONLY $15.00.

We can't speak too highly of these values. The makers, it seems, didn't ask as big profits as in the past, and we decided it was better policy to take only a very small margin of profit—and sell more suits.

No question about our selling more of them, though. They are almost irresistibly purchase-compelling at $15.00. At no other store can you match these values at anything near our price.

MRS. MARGUERITE WALSH AT ROYAL THEATRE

Last night the celebrated Boston mezzo soprano, Mrs. Margaret Walsh, vocalist, was heard by about fifteen hundred people in the Royal Theatre. This talented lady, who has just completed important engagements in Toronto and other centres, has a magnificent voice of rare sweetness and timbre, as well as exceptional strength. Mrs. Walsh sings at the Royal this week daily. She is accompanied by her little daughter, who, although only ten years old, is already an accomplished singer.

HE APPRECIATED THE DEBATE GIVEN

Writer Would Like to See Students Meet Again—Suggests Course of Debates

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I greatly enjoyed the inter-school debate last night in the Collegiate Hall and like many others I am pleased to note the progress that has been made by the students of the Collegiate, and the debate of the Normal School young people was quite successful. I am taking this opportunity, Mr. Editor, to suggest to the staffs of the two institutions that another debate be arranged in the near future, before the Easter term. It is good practice for the students, and is appreciated by large numbers of admirers of the young people.

Thanking you.

ROSTRUM.

POST CARD COLUMN.

Editor Post Card Column:

Dear Sir,—It is suggested the Council should pass a bylaw compelling Ghouseholders to have pails at the corners of their dwellings, so that the thaw should not affect the sidewalks. Seriously, except where the snow has been quite cleared away, the cement walks are a miserable failure; wood is much better. The city should leave the snow alone or do the thing properly.

Yours truly,
W. A. BAILEY.

Peterborough, Feb. 23rd, 1909.

INTER-COLLEGIATE DEBATE

The students of the Collegiate Institute and the teachers in training at the Normal School provided an interesting entertainment last night in the form of a debate, held in the Assembly Hall of the former institution. The subject was "Resolved that a lawyer is not justified in defending a prisoner of whose guilt he is assured," and while the judges decided in favour of the Institute representatives, the two speakers from the Normal School presented an argument which left a rather difficult task to arrive at a decision. The large representative gathering was a compliment to the students, who have reason to congratulate themselves upon the entire success of the affair. The teachers and students alike from both seats of learning were present almost to the individual and with their friends and others interested in their success taxed the accommodation of the spacious hall almost to its capacity.

The literary portion of the programme was enlivened by a piano solo by Miss Genevieve Sanderson, a vocal solo by Master Murray Carlysle, a very pleasing recitation by Miss Katie Leary and a selection by the Collegiate Orchestra. This last number received a well deserved encore. The orchestra is composed of the following players: Violins, Miss K. Wallis and E. Palmer, Messrs. Vincent McCabe and Roy Rankin; mandolins, Messrs. Adams and J. Brightman; banjo, Mr. M. Dobbin; pianiste, Miss Katie Leary. This musical departure on the part of the students received many compliments, the hope being expressed that the orchestra will enjoy future success, a hope which bids fair to be fully realized judging from present efforts and indications.

The Debate

Mr. Arthur Roseboro, president of the Philomathean Society of the Collegiate, fulfilled the duties of chairman in a most acceptable manner. He welcomed the assembly and hoped that the students would have future affairs as largely attended, and that the interest in the welfare of the young people would become a matter which the whole city would share. He then introduced the debaters as follows: Affirmative, Collegiate Institute, Mr. Michael O'Brien and Miss A. Stenson; negative, Normal School, Mr. Patterson and Miss Fair. With all due respect to the ability of the latter debaters it was generally considered that the Collegiate Institute had the better representatives, Mr. O'Brien with a little more spirit should make one of the best speakers the Collegiate has developed in recent years. He is fluent and resourceful, and his ideas are expressed in fine language. He strongly entrenched his side in a position which with Miss Stenson's aid was made secure. The latter young lady displayed exceptional talent and was thoroughly conversant with her subject, difficult and weighty as it was.

For the negative side Mr. Patterson, as leader, was very good, and with more experience should make a capable debater. Miss Fair, in closing the argument for the Normal School's contention, was cool and collected, offering not a few good points which counted. She was responsible for the main strength of the negative argument.

The judges were, Rev. E. A. Pearson, Mr. John Crane and Mr. W. G. Morrow. The former announced the verdict in favour of the Collegiate Institute or affirmative side. A future debate between the two schools will be awaited with interest and a return "engagement" should prove highly entertaining.

The plan for the Toronto Symphony Orchestra will open Wednesday morning for Subscribers only. Thursday morning for non Subscribers.

MAY ANNOUNCE RETIREMENT HERE

Telegram Says There is Intimation That Grand Master of Orange Association May Retire.

It has been intimated that Dr. T. S. Sproule, M.P., desires to retire as Grand Master of the Orange Association of British America. When Grand Lodge met in Toronto three years ago Dr. Sproule the announced his desire to retire, but was persuaded to postpone his anouncement. Since then Lieut.-Col. J. H. Scott, K.C., of Walkerton, Past Grand Master of Ontario West, has been chosen Deputy Grand Master, and the succession to the chair has been satisfactorily arranged.

Hughes, Dane or Hocken?

If Dr. Sproule carries out his intention when Grand Lodge meets in Peterborough in May, a sharp contest may ensue for the deputy chair. Col. Sam Hughes, M.P., Fred Dane and Controller Hocken, of Toronto, editor of the Sentinel, are mentioned as possibilities. When Col. Scott was elected at Vancouver Colonel Hughes was a close second.

C. O. F. HOLD BENEFIT GONCERT LAST NIGHT

Rev. Father Fitzpatrick Gave a Splendid Lecture.

Between four hundred and five hundred people were in attendance at the benefit concert given in the Assembly Hall of St. Peter's School last night, under the auspices of the Catholic Order of Foresters.

The special feature of this concert, was an address given by Rev. Father Fitzpatrick, of Emmismore, which was listened to with much rapture by the audience. There was a splendid programme, also given by members of the church, which was well rendered, and these numbers were a great delight to the audience. Father P. J. Galvin occupied the chair, and in a few chosen words introduced Father Fitzpatrick, who spoke on "Liberalism in Religion." In beginning this lecture he thanked the Foresters for having asked him to be present to deliver a lecture in aid of the society, and said the subject to be talked of was is one religion as good as another? This the reverend gentleman pointed out to be entirely wrong, as Christ established a church on earth and that church was here still and could not be overcome because Christ said to the Apostles, when he sent them out into the world to preach the Gospel to everyone, he said that he would be behind them and that they could not be shaken.

The following programme was rendered:

Instrumental duet—Misses Doris.
Solo—Mr. J. King.
Solo—Miss L. Hallihan.
Solo—Mr. George Lynch.
Lecture—Father Fitzpatrick.
Dialogue—Messrs. McLaren and Redgrave.

DAVID HARTLEY IS OFFICIALLY ACCEPTED AS ONE OF THE STARTERS IN THE BIG INTERNATIONAL RACE

New York, Feb. 22—Thirteen of the greatest long distance athletes in Europe left Liverpool Saturday on the Cunard Line steamer Lucania to compete in the international six day go-as-you-please race at Madison Square Garden during the week of March 8-13.

The European representatives were selected from over one hundred and fifty applicants, and the list includes several runners who have played important parts in recent professional races throughout Europe. The countries represented by the athletes who sailed yesterday are England, France, Ireland, Italy, Holland and Belgium.

The race marks a departure in the history of professional athletics. Unlike the old time six-day walking matches, this event will be a six-day Marathon contest in all that the name implies, and as it is a team competition new world's records will probably be hung up for all the distances after the first fifty miles.

Smallwood in Race

To meet the European champions the best men in the United States have been selected, and although the pairing of men has not yet been completed the teams already selected give every indication of putting up a stiff argument with the foreigners. In addition to the American teams, which will probably number ten and comprise the greatest distance runners in the country, Percy Smallwood, champion of Wales has entered the contest, with James Curran, champion of Scotland, as a partner.

The list of entries also includes teams of Indians, Canadians, Germans, Greeks, Swiss, and an extra Italian pair. The United States army will also be represented by the best endurance men in the service and it is probable that a Hindu combination will be added to the list.

The Teams Entered

The teams officially selected up to date are—

Italy—Ettore Ferri and Guido Pallanti.

Holland—W. W. Walker and C. Jansen.

France—Louis Orphee and Edouard Cibot.

Belgium—Alexander Ravez and Albert Dons.

Ireland—Frances Curtis and Pat. Feegan.

England—Jack Sapsford and Fred Wooledge.

Canada—David Hartley, Peterborough and Anthony Higgins, Montreal.

Italy—Mario Roverre and Umberto Roverre.

Indians—W. Davis and partner.

Greece—N. G. Athanasiades and Andrew Devaris.

United States Army—Harvey Endlish and G. Hunt.

United States—Mike Spring and Ed. Adams, Frank Annable, and J. P. O'Driscoll, P. J. Dunes, and Albert H. Corley, Henry Shelton and James Frazer, George Harrington and Jerry Sullivan, Edward Connal and Irving Coleman.

LONGBOAT DECLARES THAT HE WILL NOT RACE UNTIL HE GETS $5000

Desoronto, Feb. 22.—C-A-S-H. That is Tom Longboat's only motive now.

Every man has his price, say the wiseacres. Well, Tom's is five thousand dollars—win, lose, or draw—and no rebate for cash.

So plank down your little quite, Alfie, and you can race the Indian tomorrow at any distance you may name.

Twenty-thousand dollar legs? Nix! Longboat has a corner on championship legs, and the price has been boosted sky high.

That's a fact, and you can take it from the great Onondaga himself, for he gave it straight to the Star reporter Saturday night, in the course of a long talk. The Indian may be untutored, but he is wise in his generation, and when he has something to say he says it. Just at present he wants the world to know that he will run any man for $5,000.

Also, the Indian knows that at present he has a corner in championship legs, and those legs will not be exercised until Alfie Shrubb, Fred Appleby, or those who want a race hand up the price. And when they do Longboat promises to "beat the blocks off them."

Appleby Will be First.

Longboat himself expects that his first appearance will be in Toronto, and his opponent will be Fred Appleby. The manager of the latter communicated with the Indian, asking for a series of three races in Toronto, to be run in March, April, and May. Longboat replied: "For five thousand," and he confidently expects that Appleby will toe the mark. Longboat can get in shape for the first race, in March without trouble, although at present he is not in any too good condition. He is not training now, nor will not until he sees $5,000 on the horizon.

"The Mysteries Of The Sea" The Subject Of An Enjoyable Lecture By Professor Cornish

Last evening before the Charlotte Prot. Cornish, of the Normal School, Street Methodist Epworth League, gave a most interesting and instructive address on the Mysteries of the Deep Sea.

It was a novel subject and because so little is known of the real conditions of deep sea life the address was quite unique.

Mr. Cornish dealt with his topic in a manner that left no doubt but that he had spent much time in years past in striving to obtain at first hand, knowledge of the great ocean. His own observations added spice to the talk as all like to hear a story from the lips of the participant.

Commenting on the fact that we who live in the day have knowledge of "the daylight animals and birds, must remember the fact that there is a night variety of probably just as large a family. And as we know of the land animals and their numerous characteristics, there is the great family in the sea of which we have but fragmentary knowledge.

A common error was the statement that parts of the ocean were bottomless. This is not so as the ocean has been measured in thousands of places and bottom always found, sometimes as far as 5 to 7 miles, though. The enormous pressure of the ocean is noteworthy. Mr. Cornish illustrated this by a personal experience. A bottle had been prepared by his party of investigators with the object of obtaining a sample of ocean water at a depth of several hundred fathoms. The cork was to remain in position until the proper depth was reached, when by a device it could be removed, the water allowed to enter and the cork return to its position. The bottle was lowered, but on its return was found to be crushed to atoms. The enormous pressure from without had broken it. To obtain water thus iron bottles of several inches thickness were necessary.

Samples of the sea bottom had been obtained in numberless places. All analysed practically the same. A thousand miles from land no land dust blown by wind was known. However that finest of dust the ashes of volcanic origin were often thrown to great heights where the upper swift moving currents carried them to great distances. These settled on the ocean and as ages have passed formed quite a layer of the sea bottom. Meteoric matter, the dust of so-called "shooting stars" also formed a considerable proportion of the bottom. Then in certain parts of the ocean the countless shells of tiny animals, the microscopic life of the upper waters, became the main portion of the bottom of the ocean in the nature of chalk.

Light penetrates the ocean but a few hundred feet. The depths of the ocean are black as darkest night. While there is no vegetation at these great depths, there are countless varieties of animal life. And the fish here have eyes, large well developed ones. Why? They possessed a light of their own, or could produce a phosphorescence by movement in the water.

Among many interesting animals of the sea the Squid was described. This fish, a first cousin to the devil-fish, was of prime importance to the cod industry. It is the bait. Its peculiar shape with its arms and sucker bands declared its relationship to the ferocious animal, the larger devil-fish. Mr. Cornish, described the habits of this fish, its seasons, and the methods employed in capturing it. This led to some incidents in the habits of the fishermen of our Nova Scotia shores which were most entertaining.

One of the very peculiar of the ocean animals was the "All-mouth," as commonly called. A very large mouth indeed that enabled it to engulf a goose swimming on the surface. The body seems covered with what appears to be a mass of weeds. The fish rests on bottom, its body thus easily mistaken, and drawing forward its wonderful long narrow back fin with its silvered point so that it comes just over its mouth it awaits the curious little fish who wants to investigate the cause of the light. He is indeed a curious fisherman.

On conclusion of the lecture a hearty vote of thanks was passed on motion of Mr. Herbert Collier and seconded by Mr. Cox.

During the evening Mrs. Collier sang a solo in good voice.

FRANK GOTCH IS IN TORONTO

Toronto, Feb. 22.—Good morning, Frank."

This to the world's champion wrestler, Frank A. Gotch, whose cheery reply and smile put Tom Longboat's famous ditto completely in the shade.

Frank certainly looks a dandy athlete, healthy, active, and alert, just the kind of a man all kinds of championships look easy to.

"Nw, don't ask me about 'Hack,'" said Gotch, "I am just tired of saying he didn't want any kind o a match. Understand, too, I am not the only wrestler he refuses to fix up with. Why, Zybsco and Padoubly are just as anxious, but there is nothing doing. I am more interested in my work here just now. It is pretty hard work, this $50 for 15 minutes' stunt I am doing, for one never knows who may be around town, and everybody should understand that I cannot get away with all my opponents. Look, for instance, here last week, when Shad Link was at the theatre. My old opponent Yankee Rogers went on with him, and of course took his money. I have beaten this big Yankee boy three times in straight matches; once in Buffalo, it was a hard struggle too, and, of course, had he stopped over for me, there would have been some tall hustling, but I guess at that, if I got my toe-hold on gabd, I could fix him all right, all right.

Tell all your local boys that I am not here to break their toes or limbs, I am here to wrestle, and wrestle I will, according to the rules."

T. A. S. HOCKEY TEAM IN KEENE

Defeated by Trent Valley League Team By Rather Large Margin

The T. A. S. hockey team journeyed to Keene last night where they were defeated by the Trent Valley League team of the village. The score at full time was 9-1 in favour of the homesters. The teams lined up as follows:

T. A. S.—Goal, Derocher; point, Wade; cover point, Seymour; centre, Giroux; rover, Coughlin; left wing, Henry; right wing, Corkery.

Mill McIntosh, referee.

The visitors were at sea on the small rink and offsides are reported to have been apparently unconsciously overlooked.

Pancake Social
—Final arrangements have been completed for the Pancake Social to be held in the school room at St. John's church this evening. A first class programme has been prepared including some of the best talent in the city and Coleman Brothers will serve the usual Shrove Tuesday pancake feast at the end of the entertainment.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

Mrs. Douglas Lundy will not receive again this season.

Miss Maggie Brown, of Hastings, is at the home of Mr. James McGhee, 330 Water street.

Mr. T. F. Matthews' travel talk has been postponed from Thursday until Tuesday, March 2nd.

Mrs. John Dillon, of Warkworth, was the guest of Miss Maggie McGhee, 230 Water street, on Sunday last.

Miss Rennie, of the R Fair & Co's millinery department, is in New York studying the latest designs in millinery for the well known local firm.

HOCKEY

There was a very exciting game of hockey played at Brock Street rink last night from 7 to 8, when the Gay Cats and the T. A. C. came together, the score being a tie, 3 to 3, with the Gay Cats, scoring 3 the first half and the T. A. C. scoring 3 the last half.

T. A. C.—Goal, Killingbeck; point, Hopkins; cover point, G. Barrie; rover, S. Tisdall; centre, Chambers; right wing, G. Godfrey; left wing, Dickie.

Ben. Dusty, referee, was satisfactory.

In the intermediate it looks like Lindsay and Stratford to fight it out in the finals, with the result a guessing match, while Picton are generally picked as the likely ones in the junior series. However, weather conditions will play a prominent part in determining the champions, for, as far as ice goes, who shall say what a day may bring forth.

There will be two big games in the Church League series at the Brock St. rink on Thursday night when George St. met Knox Church, while St. Andrew's and Park St. clash in the second game. Both are senior fixtures and have an important bearing on the championship so that they should prove great games. Much interest has been taken in the Church League this season and the appearance of the teams at Brock St. rink should attract a big crowd. The standing of the league at present is as follows:

	Won.	Lost.
St. Andrews,	4	1
Knox,	3	1
George St.,	0	2
Park St.,	0	3

Manager Pillings, Gay Cats, challenges the Fresh Air Club to a game of hockey, to be played on the Brock street Rink at any time that is suitable to that aggregation.

RUNNING.

As announced last week, Dorando Pietri will substitute Longboat if the Indian fails to meet Shrubb at Buffalo Feb. 25.

Harry Pollok says Johnny Hayes and Dorando are matched to run the Marathon distance March 15 at Madison Square Garden.

Th all-star international Marathon for March 17 at New York has been abandoned.

A Pittsburg 10-mile race for boys brought out 4,000 starters, and 3,000 finished. The winner, a 15-year-old lad, did the distance in 1.00.01.

Mason & Risch Piano
Will be used at the Toronto Symphony Club's Recital next Friday evening.

Mr. Frank S. Welsman
Musical Composer and leader of the Toronto Symphony Club writes of the Mason & Risch Piano as follows:

THE MASON & RISCH PIANO CO.

Gentlemen: Allow me to thank you for the Grand Pianos you have supplied for my recitals during the past season. The instruments have very materially assisted me in interpreting to my own satisfaction the compositions my programmes have called for. Not only have your instruments a large volume of tone, but have what I might call a pervading quality, which I have found in no other piano.

The lightness and perfect repetition of the Action permits one to bring out the tonal qualities referred to above with such ease that it is with the greatest of pleasure I have used the Mason & Risch Pianos.

It is gratifying to find that it is not necessary to go outside our own country to secure an instrument of the highest excellence.

Yours sincerely,
FRANK S. WELSMAN

Mr. Welsman is the young musician who has made such a sensation in Toronto for some seasons past with his Symphony Orchestra.

TONS OF NEW GOODS
HAVE ARRIVED at the
"Golden Lion" Store

The British Isles—almost every country in Europe—the United States and our own Canadian Factories—have contributed of their best products—and the best is none too good for this Store to offer its patrons. For several years we have not been able to show such splendid values. COTTON, WOOLLEN, LINEN and SILK FABRICS are lower in price and better in quality than formerly.

DRESS GOODS and SUITINGS
Have never before been shown in Peterborough in such surpassing beauty, and the lowness of price is a predominating feature.

PRINTS, GINGHAMS and WASH SUITINGS
in abundance. In best English Prints alone, you can make your selection from over 400 patterns and in Cotton and Linen Suitings in plain colours and checks make the grandest showing ever attempted in this city.

SHANTUNG RAW SILKS
By Dame Fashion's decree, are more popular this season than ever. We are showing them in the natural colour and every wanted shade. Ask to see these at our Silk counter.

For PURE IRISH LINENS
"Fair's" is the objective point of all shrewd buyers. If we say it's all Linen, it is all Linen, and in value and lowness of price we outdistance all competitors. If you have not bought Linens here you have not bought them right.

PROGRESSIVE EUCHRE PARTY LAST NIGHT

The Knights of Pythias Entertain Their Friends in Castle Hall.

Another pleasant evening was spent by the Knights of Pythias and their friends last night. After the regular meeting the boys welcomed their friends in Knightly fashion.

Progressive Euchre was the first item of the evening's amusement after which an excellent programme of instrumental music, songs, speches and friendly intercourse whiled away the time. At its close a dainty luncheon was enjoyed.

The musical programme was as follows:

Instrumental.—The Mandolin Club.
Song.—Bro. Freeland.
Piano solo.—Mr. H. Nichol.
Song.—Mr. John King.
Speech and song.—Bro. J. A. McDonald, of Ottawa.
Duet.—Bro. W. A. Greenslade and Mr. Jno. King.
Song.—Mr. Baggs, of Toronto.
Selection.—The Mandolin Club.
God Save the King.

Bro. Jim Squires acted in the capacity of chairman, and kept everyone in the best of humour with his witty sallies.

The accompaniments were played with artistic taste by Mr. Nichol and the various numbers on the programme were appreciated by all present. The fourth social evening was voted by all an evening profitably spent.

At the close a vote of thanks was extended to all who had contributed to the evening's entertainment.

'ROUND THE STORES.

There is probably many a fellow who is scrupulous in making a twice-a-week call on his lady-love, and who is wise enough never to go without a neatly tied and dainty looking box of confections in his overcoat pocket. To avoid the danger of the cheap, stale chocolates, it is satisfactory to know that Coleman Bros. have become a safe store to patronize, and that their advertising is always truthful. They are direct importers of Fry's English Chocolates in which they enjoy a large trade.

The only trouble about doing as you please is that it isn't a good paying job. You hear occasionally about some of our "smart gents" passing over the genuine offers made by our own reliable tailors, and allowing some agent for a Toronto tailoring shop to take their measures, who knows as much about taking proper measurements as a cow does about churning. Afraid of getting bit in their own town, they take the risk of being handed "a lemon" from Toronto. Serves them right. With first class tailoring establishments like Evans', LeBrun's, Merrell & Meredith's, there is no excuse for sending out of town. But man is born to prejudice as the sparks fly upward. There are people in some parts of Ontario who have never been along the Don, who are foolish enough to believe that Torontonians walk backwards to keep their pants from bagging at the knees.

These shop windows make a delightful looking glass for the ladies—a full sized mirror. Have you ever noticed them? They appear to be interested in the bargains, but on closer scrutiny you can see that quite often it is themselves they are looking at. Is their hat on straight? Is that coat fitting snug around the neck? Is their skirt hanging properly? Is their hair down behind? Things are not always what they seem. But at "the Store that Never Disappoints," where so many of the fair sex are attracted to the enticing window displays, things must be what they seem, for the goods are all ticketed, and the price takes away all chances for deception. Have you attended Clearman's much talked of "Mark-Down" Sale?

Peterborough has a wonderfully productive soil for bargains. Scarcely a week passes that The Turnbull Store has not added a new trade sale that attracts the economic shopper. Judging from the offerings this week at this big store, the manufacturer's must have allowed the Turnbull buyers to buy at their own price. The tickets on the goods are the most convincing arguments, and account for the large number of shoppers to be met in this store any day of the week.

Among other good values noticed this week at Adams' store for women, are a line of cream skirts offered for $3.98. They make a good skirt for evening wear, and the price really looks like half their regular value.

So you, lady fair, with your shimmering hair;
Yes, all of you, misses and madams,
Your wants will be met without fever or fret.
If you seek their fulfilment at Adams.

Delightful Operetta At The Conservatory Of Music Hall

"Princess Chrysanthemum" Splendidly Presented by About Eighty Young People in Aid of Building Fund of All Saints' Church—Credit to Ability of Conservatory Staff.

MUSIC VERY TUNEFUL.

"Princess Chrysanthemum" a dainty operetta of Japanese setting was presented to a fairly large audience at the Conservatory of Music last night under the auspices of the Young People of All Saints' Church. The cast together with choruses and attendants included eighty or more of the younger set, the majority of whom were pupils of the Conservatory or friends of that Mecca of Music. The presentation was under the direction of Mr. Rupert Gliddon, whose work was in evidence in the choruses. A pleasing feature of the operetta was the fact that the music which carried the action along through its entirety, was delightfully tuneful and melodious. The solos were also very pretty and were invariably well sung. Although the weather was disagreeable there was a fair attendance. Many compliments were passed upon the ensemble work which throughout was bright and effective. The piece savours of San Toy or the Mikado in its Oriental costumes, songs and music.

The Carte

The principal roles were taken as follows:

Princess Chrysanthemum. — The Emperor's Daughter.—Miss Carrie White.

Maidens Attendant on the Princess. —Misses Geraldine Rudkins, Phyllis Dunne, Helen Henry, and Verna Devlin.

Fairy Moonbeam.—The Princess Good Genius.—Miss Maud Titterson.

The Emperor What-for-Whi. — A Merciful (?) Monarch.—Mr. Mortimer Johnston.

Prince So-Tru.—Mr. Jas. Bogue.

Prince So-Sli.—Mr. H. Wilmot.

Top-Not.—The Court Chamberlain. —Mr. Jas. O'Brien.

Saucer-Eyes.—Mr. Roy Wilson.

Emperor's Attendants. — Bruce Marshall and Gordon Matthews.

Guards.—Egbert Kelly, Grant Potter and Willie Morris.

Sprites of the Night, Courtiers, Populace, Attendants, Fairies, etc.

Locale

Scene I.—The Emperor's Garden.
Scene II.—The Cave of Inky Night.
Scene III.—Same as Scene I.

The Action

Act I.—A great fete is being held in honour of the coming of age of Princess Chrysanthemum. She is loved by Prince So-Tru, and returns his affection; but he has a rival in the person of Prince So-Sli, who seeks the aid of Saucer-Eyes, the Wizard Cat, who carries off the Princess to the cave of Inky Night, leaving the Emperor and Prince So-Tru distracted at her strange disappearance.

Act II.—The Princess in the cave of Inky Night with the aid of a magic ring summons he Fairy Moonbeam, who is about to help her when she drops the ring and cannot find it. Fairy Moonbeam disappears at the loss of the ring, and the unhappy Princess is left to bewail her fate. Prince So-Tru manages to obtain entrance to the cave, and finds the ring, which at once causes Fairy Moonbeam to return and aid him.

At this moment the Emperor arrives with his attendants, and takes Saucer-Eyes prisoner, bearing him in triumph to his palace.

Act III.—Threatened with torture, Saucer-Eyes confesses the complicity of Prince So.Sli, whom the Emperor orders to instant execution. This is, however, frustrated by the appearance of the Princess, accompanied by Prince So.Tru and Fairy Moonbeam with her band. The Emperor pardons Saucer-Eyes and So-Sli at the Princess' request, and gives her hand in marriage to Prince So-Tru,—and they lived happy ever after.

Incidental Songs

The operetta was replete with dainty songs which were very acceptably sung by the different members of the cast. There were besides choruses and finales all combining to unweave the slender thread of the plot. The particular solos were as follows:

"The Golden Butterfly"—Mr. Jas. O'Brien.
"Which Shall It Be"—Miss Carrie White.
"I Am the Emperor What-For-Whi"—Mr. M. Johnston.
"Lullaby Land"—Miss V. Devlin.
"A Kitten's Tale"—Mr. Roy Wilson.
"The Path of Love"—Maud Titterson.
"Love's Kingdom"—Mr. Jas. Bogue.
"Home of My Childhood"—Miss Carrie White.
"Whether You Like It Or Not"—Mr. M. Johnston.
"A Jolly Little Japanese Sailor Man"—Mr. Wilmot
"The Dawn of Love" (duet)—Miss White and Mr. Bogue.

Miss Mabel McCaw, one of the Conservatory Staff presided at the piano for the entire score. Her ability and taste was manifest in the drills which were prepared under direction. That of the sprites and the fairies were particularly well carried out. The choruses had been instructed by Mr. Gliddon and gave a decided operatic tone to the piece, being well balanced and harmonized. The finale was especially strong and provided a splendid closing.

Miss Myrtle Kline introduced as an extra number a vocal solo entitled, "Somebody," which was rendered in a most pleasing manner.

Mr. Mortimer Johnston as the Emperor interpreted his lines in a very creditable manner, particularly when it is considered that he had only a week's study of the piece, having been called in to fill a vacancy.

Mr. Gliddon and Miss McCaw received numerous congratulations upon the success of their efforts and the operetta will likely be reproduced after Lent.

MISS FLORENCE BURDETTE,
From the Gaiety Theatre, London, Eng., now with the Imperial Opera Co.

FLORADORA TO-MORROW NIGHT

We are to have the favourite Imperial Opera Co. with us to-morrow night and every theatre-goer and lover of good music is waiting to tender them a royal welcome as the opera to be presented is Floradora, arangement for its production having been made with Mr. Geo. Edwards of the Gaiety Theatre, London, England.

While this company has delighted many thousands of people with San Toy and other operas, it is said the real treat is in store for us in Floradora as it is the favourite opera with the management and company alike. Special scenery has been painted and new costumes made for this tour, and aside from the many favourites seen here in San Toy, the services of Miss Florence Burdette from the Gaiety Theatre in London, England, and Mr. Herbert Salinger have been engaged, thus assuring a rare musical treat.

The company numbers seventy-five players.

Prices 25c to $1.00.
Seats now on sale.

STILL RUSHING TO GOWGANDA

New Silver Camp Claims Many Prospectors.

North Bay, Ont., Feb. 23.—A citizen of North Bay, who has just returned from Gowganda describes the rush into the new silver camps as passing all comprehension. Sixteen stages leave Charlton, the terminus of the T. & N. O. railway, every day, and each stage has a minimum capacity of seven passengers. Besides this, many of the mine operatives keep their own vehicles.

A new railway siding is being constructed at Charlton one thousand feat long and the loading of freighters never ceases day or night. The railway's freight staff is being rapidly increased to cope with the unparalleled situation. The Upper Ontario Steamboat Company, of Latchford, of which Mayor Blair, of New Liskeard, is president, are building three additional steamers to augment their fleet besides two large freight boats which will ply between Latchford and Elk Lake. The freighters on the Gowganda trail balk at no task, however herculean, it seems, as is evidenced by the transportation of an 8,000 pound bank safe from Charlton in one and one-half days, and the 6,000 pound boilers for the Otisse-Cobalt. An 18,000 pound boiler was noticed on a car at Englebart, billed to the Gowganda district besides two small boilers for the same destination.

A MOTHER'S TALK TO MOTHERS

What Zam-Buk Did in a Western Home.

Here is just one illustration of the wisdom of keeping a box of Zam-Buk always handy. It is a true record of the varied uses to which this great balm was put—with highly satisfactory results in every case—in just one family, and during a few months only. Mrs. C. J. Irlam, of 907, William Avenue, Winnipeg, makes the report as follows:—

"I have found Zam-Buk so very useful as a household balm that I want to make its merits still more widely known. Some eight weeks ago my brother, Mr. C. Proctor, happened a serious accident. While at work, a rusty nail penetrated the palm of his right hand. The rust of the nail poisoned the flesh and inflammation set in quickly. He sent to the General Hospital and consulted a doctor, who advised poulticing to draw out the poison. This was applied, but when there was no improvement after a few days, I began applying Zam-Buk balm, leaving off poultices.

"The effect was almost magical! Zam-Buk soothed the pain, drew out the poison, and allayed all inflammation. Healing then commenced, and in a few days he was able to resume work.

theerM$:Jmeof dfeEN vff ,.:; ;;;;;

"Six weeks ago my husband, Mr. C. J. Irlam, while returning from work quite late in the evening, was bitten by a dog, the dog's teeth penetrating the flesh on his thigh just above the knee. Directly he came home Zam-Buk was applied to the wound, and in a few days the soreness was gone and the wound thoroughly healed.

"A third instance of the healing power of Zam-Buk was provided when my little boy had a nasty fall. He is five years old, and was playing one day when he fell. His head struck on a sharp stone, which cut a nasty gash. As soon as I had washed the cut I applied Zam-Buk in the usual way, and it was really wonderful how quickly it relieved the little fellow's pain. Within a week the cut—a deep one—was quite healed.

"Every mother who once proves the all-round value of Zam-Buk will never again be without it."

Zam-Buk is a pure herbal balm, and cures cuts, burns, bruises, abscesses, ulcers, eczema, scalp sores, ringworm, chapped hands, cold-sores, frost-bite, bad leg, inflamed patches, etc. It also cures piles. Used as an embrocation it will be found to remove rheumatism, sciatica, and neuralgia. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. a box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

LYDIA E. PINKHAM

No other medicine for Woman's ills in the world has received such wide-spread and unqualified endorsement as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs.

No other medicine has such a record of success for woman's diseases, or such hosts of grateful friends as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For more than 30 years it has been the standard remedy for feminine ills, Inflammation, Ulceration, and consequent Spinal Weakness.

It has relieved more cases of Backache and Local Weaknesses than any other one remedy. It dissolves and expels tumors in an early stage of development.

Irregularities and periodic pains, Weakness of the Stomach, Indigestion, Bloating, Nervous Prostration, Headache, General Debility, quickly yield to it; also deranged organs, causing pain, dragging sensations and backache. Under all circumstances it acts in harmony with the female system.

It removes that wearing feeling, extreme lassitude, "don't care" and "want-to-be-left-alone" feeling, excitability, irritability, nervousness, dizziness, faintness, sleeplessness, fatalency, melancholy or the "blues." These are indications of Feminine disorders, which this medicine overcomes as well as slight derangement of the Kidneys of either sex.

Women who are sick and want to get well should refuse to accept any substitute for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

THREE OUTSIDE SEATS.

By ELIZABETH R. CUTTER.

When I took the omnibus for St. Germain des Pres at the Place Clichy and mounted to the imperiale there were already seated there two priests, a bareheaded working woman with a filet of marketing in her hands, two schoolboys carrying the usual black portfolios under their arms and an old gentleman who was reading the Petit Journal. Next to the latter I found a place.

A moment later the omnibus stopped again, and I heard the voice of one of my countrywomen exclaiming nervously, "I never can climb up that ladder—never!"

Then a girl spoke. "Oh, do try, Aunt Martha! They say the outside seats are so pleasant."

"Is it—do you think it's perfectly safe, Mr. Henley?" asked the anxious voice.

"Perfectly safe," came a reassuring masculine echo, and there was a half second's pause, in which, I suppose, Aunt Martha tried to ascend and failed, for the conductor broke in impatiently: "En voiture! En voiture! Une place en bas! Neuf places en haut!"

"Take the seat inside, Miss Percy, do," urged the man's voice. "Your niece and I can go on top."

The omnibus started forward, and two Americans came up outside—a very pretty girl, elegantly dressed, followed by a tall, athletic looking man. They seated themselves directly behind me, and she exclaimed:

"How delightful it is up here! And what a shame that we've been in Paris two weeks without ever taking the bus! Isn't it too bad that Aunt Martha stayed down below?"

"On the contrary," he replied, "I find it extremely agreeable to be alone with you for once. I've been trying for days to have a word with you by yourself, but your aunt is a perfect wonder at keeping the party in strict triangular shape whenever I go out with you. Today I purposely urged her going inside so that I could talk with you in peace up here on top."

"Now I understand what is meant by 'wickedness in high places,'" retorted the girl playfully.

"Don't try to put me off, Miss Ware, for it's no use. You know perfectly well that I love you and"—

"Ss-sh! What are you thinking of, Mr. Henley? You certainly aren't going to make love to me here, on the top of an omnibus, right before all these people?"

"Why not?" he persisted. "They don't any of them understand English. Look at that femme de menage and those boys and the priest. They're all French. We are as safe here as if we were in the parlor at home."

"But that girl behind us"—she lowered her voice as she spoke—"do you think she looks French?"

"A Parisian unmistakably," he answered. "She doesn't understand a word we say."

I a Parisienne—I, who had been away from New England only six months and who thought my nationality as plain as if it were stamped upon me in red, white and blue! It was a shock certainly, but the blow was softened somewhat by the compliment to my clothes. Aren't the Parisiennes considered the best dressed women in the world?

But the mistake had touched my Puritan conscience as well as my feminine pride. I was listening to a conversation manifestly not intended for my ears. Ought I to get down from the omnibus? That would be quixotic surely. I could not afford to be late to my appointment for the sake of two perfect strangers who would never know of my delicate kindness to them. Ought I to speak out frankly and say, "I beg your pardon, but I understand everything you are saying?" That would be embarrassing for us all and really cruel to Mr. Henley, who had been trying for so long to propose. When a man is in such straits that he has to make love on the top of an omnibus he ought not to be wantonly interrupted. It was plainly my duty to keep quiet.

"But young French girls don't go out without a chaperon," objected Miss Ware. "She is all alone."

"Not at all," he answered. "There's her father right beside her reading the newspaper."

I trembled with fear. It seemed as if my neighbor must have understood that, but a glance showed him to be happily ignorant of the American daughter so suddenly thrust upon him. He was reading a serial story in the Petit Journal, perfectly unconscious of the romance going on behind his back.

"Well, haven't you anything to say to me?" asked the young man.

"What can I say? I don't think you've known me long enough to ask such a question."

"Not long enough!" he repeated. "I've known you all summer."

"Nine days on the steamer," she counted deliberately, "two weeks in London and two weeks here. It's easy to see that you didn't study arithmetic in your youth."

"You are trifling with me," he exclaimed. "It doesn't take ten years to find out that you're in love when you meet the right person."

"Yes, but what is it to be in love?" she asked. "And how are you to be sure that you've met the right person? In the old fairy story one knew the true prince by the halo around his head, but I don't see any halo about you. I see a young man in a straw hat sitting on the top of a bus. It's not romantic in the least."

"Well, never mind if it isn't romantic," he retorted. "Who cares about love being romantic if it's real? Love doesn't need to be announced by a band of music and brought in on a silver platter. It's much bigger and more serviceable than that. It's for all times and occasions, and it means just as much on the top of an omnibus as anywhere else." She made no answer, and after a moment of silence he spoke again: "Is there any rule about when and where a man should propose?"

She was silent. We were passing the opera house at this moment, and the busy line of the boulevards came in sight. The omnibus stopped in front of Cook's office on the corner, and the two priests go down, but no one else came up to take their places. More than half the broad Avenue de l'Opera was behind us before the young man asked once more:

"You know I could make you happy, don't you?"

Still she did not answer.

"Don't you?"

"There's the Rue de l'Echelle!" she exclaimed quickly. "We must get down here for the Hotel Normandie."

"Don't stir," he said peremptorily. "Your aunt won't get out without us, and you and I are going to the head of the line. We must settle this question once for all."

I was delighted at this decision. The head of the line was my destination also, and now I knew that I would hear the end of the story. I no longer questioned whether I ought to announce myself or get down from the bus. All my scruples had vanished in the absorbing interest of the situation. What woman ever left a novel in the middle of a proposal?

"Well, Miss Ware, is it 'Yes' or 'No?'" asked Mr. Henley as we moved on.

"I don't know," she answered hesitatingly. "I like you very much, but I'm in doubt, and when people are in love they don't doubt. Therefore I can't be in love."

"How very disagreeable logical women are!" he retorted.

"I can't decide my whole life in a minute," she went on. "I must have time to reflect."

"You may reflect," he replied, "all the way from here to St. Germain des Pres. I'll keep still so that you can think better." The omnibus was jolting across the court of the Louvre as he spoke.

"But I can't think at all when you sit there devouring me with your big eyes," she complained.

"Then I'll look the other way," he said.

"I don't know why it is, but whenever any one makes love to me"— She broke off as if abashed at the implication of her words.

"Go on," he said. "I'm not such a fool as to think that I'm the only man who ever made love to you."

"Well, then, there's a mocking little evil spirit inside of me that always rises up and makes fun of love. I thought when the right man came he would silence that voice, but I hear it speaking now."

"Don't listen to it," he answered promptly. "You say yourself it's an evil spirit."

Neither spoke for the moment, and then she remarked, as if thinking aloud:

"I shouldn't make at all a good wife. I hate sewing and fussing about a house."

"Is it a question of a housekeeper?"

"I can't even cook oatmeal"—

"Have I asked you to cook for me?"

"And I have a great many faults."

"I hope so. I detest angels."

There was another pause. Then as we rounded the corner on to the Boulevard St. Germain she asked, half laughing, "Tell me just one thing, please—what will you do if I say 'No?'"

"Oh, don't worry! I shan't kill myself. I shall make love to Aunt Martha."

"I couldn't help admiring the young man's spirit. After an acquaintance of only one-half hour I was almost ready to say "Yes" to him myself. Unfortunately he had chosen Miss Helen. We rode up under the big chestnut trees of the boulevard in silence. It seemed a long way to me, but at last the old spire of St. Germain des Pres came in sight. We had reached the head of the line.

"Helen, is it 'Yes' or 'No?'"

I listened, breathless, for her answer. Now, at the very last, was she going to disappoint him—and me? People were starting to get down from the imperiale and stumbled over me as they went, but I was only dimly conscious of their feet and their apologies. In trembling suspense I waited Miss Helen's word.

"It is 'Yes,' Edward," she said. "It was 'Yes' all the time. Men are so stupid!"

"But women are so cruel, dear!"

I descended in front of the fiances, but I had scarcely put my foot on the ground when I heard an exclamation of horror behind me.

"Edward, look at that young French girl! She has on a short skirt! She's an American!"

FRUIT JUICES CLEAR THE SKIN

The skin mirrors faithfully the state of the blood, and the blood shows how well—or how badly—the liver, bowels, kidneys and the millions of tiny glands in the skin are doing their work. If these organs are not properly clearing out the waste matter, the blood will be poisoned and the skin sallow, "muddy" and sprinkled with pimples.

Plenty of ripe fruit helps more than any other food to cure this condition, but even more effective, as well as less expensive, are "Fruit-a-tives." These are little tablets of concentrated fruit juices, combined in such a way as to many times increase their action on those organs that eliminate impurities. One or two "Fruit-a-tives" a day will keep the blood pure and give the skin the clear glow of health. 25c for trial size box—50c for regular size—6 for $2.50. Dealers everywhere should have both sizes. If you are unable to obtain "Fruit-a-tives" in your neighborhood, they will be sent on receipt of price. Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

I FLEE MY PEN.

I flee my pen when heavy grows the brain,
When for a nappy rhyme I search in vain.
The ink well closed, the pen laid in its place,
I seek for other scenes in outer space.
What though the wind be keen, what though it rain?

I asked a change, nor can I well complain
If by a wetting I my end attain.
So at a steady, blood awarming pace
I flee my pen.

Yes; just as piglets see a tempting lane
Leading to meadows ripe with golden grain,
Break from their sodden sty and, grunting, race,
Glad to escape their confines, pent and base,
I—for the taste of freedom that I gain—
I flee my pen.

Easily Arranged.

The eminent musician halted the seedy looking man.

"Sharp," he said, "you are just the man I want to see. I have an engagement to play at an afternoon affair at Mrs. De Plunk's, and I can't possibly go there. It means a couple of hundred. If you'll take my place I'll divide with you. Wait; I'll see that you are made up so nobody can detect the difference."

"But the playing! They will detect the difference there."

"Not a bit of it. This is a fashionable gathering, and everybody talks so loud that nobody hears a note!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Why and Wherefore.

A minister one day found a little boy in tears and questioned him as to the cause of his distress. The youngster replied that his father had punished him for being naughty, and he was mighty glad that his mother had not done it.

"Why do you prefer to have your father whip you?" questioned the minister. "Is it because he is less severe than your mother?"

"No," replied the boy, "but when he licks me ma says he's a brute and always gives me money to buy candy."—Harper's Weekly.

Drinkers' Logic.

"Men drink," said a temperance lecturer, "because they are happy, because they are sad, because they are too warm, because they are too cold. Is there any logic in that?

"When I see men drinking I think of a little boy at the seashore.

"This little boy, at play with his bucket and shovel in the sand, suddenly ran to the edge of an advancing wave and, scooping up a handful of salt water and foam, drank it greedily.

"'Oh, don't drink that,' said his nurse. 'It will make you thirsty.'

"'What if it does?' said he. 'There's plenty more.'"

DAILY BATH INJURIOUS.

Cherished Custom of Anglo-Saxon Race Knocked on the Head.

One of the most cherished traditions of the British race, the "cold tub every morning," is mercilessly criticised by Dr. J. H. Clarke of London in "Vital Economy; or, How to Conserve Your Strength," published recently.

Dr. Clarke contends that in the matter of health we are enslaved by words and phrases. "The pores of the skin" is a phrase at the shrine of which many feeble folk are sacrificing the last flicker of their energy in the daily morning tub. "Plenty of fresh air" is another tyrant which has claimed numberless victims.

"I once lost a good patient, who was always ailing, by cutting off his daily morning tub," says Dr. Clarke. "He grew strong and put on weight, and it is one of his delights to shock his friends by telling them how many years it is since he had a bath!"

Too much soaping and scrubbing, according to Dr. Clarke, remove the lubricating material secreted in the glands of the skin to make it soft and supple, and the removal leaves the skin more sensitive to atmospheric changes.

The skin is a self cleansing organ. By soaking the body the self cleansing cells absorb water, swell up and die.

"One has only to rub oneself after a bath and they come off in little rolls. These do not consist of dirt, as is the popular idea, but of dead skin cells. I often tell people that it is quite possible for them to wash themselves dirty. They remove so much of the protecting surface that they give the dirt a real chance of getting into their skins."

Dr. Clarke recommends as a substitute for a bath a folded towel, wetted in the center and passed rapidly all over the body. This will "open the pores" sufficiently without entailing any shock.

WOMEN BUTCHERS.

An Unusual Feminine Occupation Followed in Paraguay.

The butchers in all parts of Paraguay are women. In the public slaughter houses the cattle are dispatched by men. This is the only part of the work done by men. The animal is skinned and otherwise prepared by women who are dexterous in the use of the saw and knife. It is served out to the customers by women—not generally by weight, but by the piece—and the price is very low.

Women of all ages act the part of butchers. Some are young and pretty, others old and wrinkled. The women are great bargainers and keen to pull a new rival almost to pieces in the hope of secuing his custom. These women butchers earn good wages, and many of those in business on their own account acquire modest fortunes.

The cause of this state of things is the brolc war waged by Paraguay more than thirty years ago against the overwhelming forces of Brazil, the Argentine Republic and Uruguay combined. This war, which lasted five years, bore many similar points of resemblance to the recent Boer war. It ended in the almost total annihilation of the ablebodied male population of the country.

When the war was over the people had been reduced to the most abject poverty and were on the verge of starvation. Worse still, owing to the destruction of the male population, perfect anarchy prevailed, and all the work formerly performed by males fell on the fair sex. They rebuilt the houses which had been burned down, tilled the fields and wove for themselves rough homespun clothing from the cotton grown in their own fields.

The Same Old Way.

Miss Madeline Edison, daughter of Thomas A. Edison, is said to be following in her father's footsteps as an inventor. For several years she has been his comrade in working out experiments in electricity. As her own invention she has put on the market an automobile map.

Chrysanthemum's Centenary.

Just a century ago, in 1809, Blanchard introduced the chrysanthemum to Europe and America. Blanchard, a native of Marseilles, brought the chrysanthemum with him from Japan and succeeded in interesting the Empress Josephine in the odorless but splendid flower. Its success was instant. The chrysanthemum of a century ago was very small. It compared in no way with the enormous silken flowers of today.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

NEEDLEWORK NOTES.

Whenever possible, one should mend woolen clothing with the ravelings of the goods. This makes a much neater mend, and if neatly done the rest will be almost invisible.

When sewing a collar to a waist do not allow any fullness to occur across the back of the waist, unless the waist is designed for it. If the neck has stretched a little and is too large for the band let the fullness come from the front of the waist to a little in front of the shoulder seam.

For a handy needlebook a piece of blue satin ribbon eight inches long and two inches wide is pointed at each end and finished with a small blue silk tassel. It is then stitched to a second piece of ribbon the same size and sewed across to form three small needle pockets. Into the three pockets are thrust small papers of needles.

White cotton crape is a serviceable and pretty material for the house wrapper. It can be made rather full if the fullness is supplied by having numerous tucks in the waist portion. The wrapper is made in an empire mode with the girdle placed below the bust line. Any dainty trimming in blue or pink would be pretty. An applique of apple green or apple green lace insertion would serve nicely for outlines. For a cheap wrapper select a pink flowered lawn and make it with short sleeves, finished at the elbow with bands. Plait the shoulders and have it double breasted and collarless. Outline the neck, waist front and front seam with a lace insertion. Tie at the waist with a pink silk ribbon.

CURE IT IN ONE DAY

Coughs and Colds Disappear Like Magic When Hyomei is Used.

If the thousands of people who suffer from hacking coughs and agonizing colds would arouse themselves sufficiently to follow this advice, they would cease to complain within 24 hours.

Here is the advice, if you take it and you are afterwards sorry that you did, it won't cost you a penny.

Go to Wm. Madill, the druggist, and purchase from him a Hyomei (pronounced High-o-me) outfit. It will only cost you $1.00. Take it home; use it according to directions and if it does not cure your cough or cold, take it back and he will refund the purchase price.

Mrs. I. Coon, of John street, Acton, Ont., says: "I had a swelling come near my eyes which was caused by the catarrhal condition. I had to cough up the bad impurities that dropped into my throat, and it felt as if a hard cold had attacked me, right in my head, nose and glands near. A week's treatment of Hyomei overcame my trouble. I am glad to endorse Hyomei."

When you use Hyomei you don't swallow nauseating drugs. You simply breathe in the soothing, pleasant and antiseptic Hyomei air through the little pocket inhaler that comes with each outfit. As this medicated air passes over the inflamed parts, relief comes almost at once and cure follows.

Hyomei is also guaranteed by Wm. Madill to cure catarrh croup, grip and asthma.

Toward the Pole.

Ice eight feet thick on the ocean and snow falling even in summer—such is the weather experienced in the polar regions. When the air is dry and still it is remarkable how low a temperature can be borne with ease. One explorer tells us that with the thermometer at 9 degrees it was too warm for skating. The summer weather in this region is, moreover, in some respects pleasant and healthful. Within the arctic zone there are wonderfully colored sunrises and sunsets to be seen. They are both brilliant and impressive, says a writer in the Penny Pictorial. But the nights—the nights are monotonous and repelling, a rigid world buried in everlasting snow, silent save for the cracking of the ice or the wail of the wind. Travelers in these regions experience many discomforts. The keen air causes their skin to burn and blister, while their lips swell and crack. Thirst, again, has been much complained of, arising from the action of the low temperature on the warm body.

The Lady and the Sheep.

Some of the members of the British legation were talking about the late shah of Persia.

"When the shah was in London," said a young man, "he amused himself at a dinner party at a local residence in Park lane by appraising the beauty of the ladies present in number of sheep. Thus for a blond countess he said he would give 1,200 sheep; for a tall, slim baroness he said he would give 2,000 sheep; for a peeress of middle age he said he would give 250 sheep, and so on.

"Finally the shah came to the beautiful Mrs. Willie James. Everybody waited in anxious silence to hear the old heathen state her value in sheep, for she was thought to be the most beautiful woman in London.

"The shah looked at Mrs. James tenderly. He shook his head and sighed.

"'This lady,' he said, 'is out of the question. Neither I nor any other man in the world owns as many sheep as she is worth.'"

LADY SNAKE CHARMER.

Lady Constance Stewart-Richardson Partial to Serpents.

Sir Edward and Lady Constance Stewart-Richardson, who are on a round of visits to friends in America, are fond of unconventionality. Their marriage, five years ago, was a romantic one. The banns were published in the quaint little town of Tain, in Ross-shire, and the world at large knew nothing of the event until after the nuptial knot had been tied. A few guests were invited by telegraph, and the instruction to the clergyman was so delayed that in the end some difficulty was experienced in getting one to officiate. To crown the unconventional procedure the bagpipe took the place of the organ, and played the bridal pair in and out of church. Sir Edward derives his title from Nova Scotia, and is the fifteenth holder. The family motto is "Honor gained by valor." At one time Lady Constance was partial to snakes and other denizens of the creepy world. She used to carry a pet serpent twined round her wrist or nestled in the bosom of her dress. Not so very long ago she showed her prowess in the United States as a huntress of big game. Among the wild hogs of Texas she had a startling adventure. She started in pursuit of her first animal—a kind which has been known to kill or maim every one of a pack of dogs within a few minutes—and when near enough drew a revolver and fired. The shot struck the animal, but did not disable it. It turned with an angry roar on its fair pursuer. Lady Constance leaped from her horse, and running towards the maddened beast, met the attack half-way. When the animal was within springing distance she fired again, and with a great shudder, it rolled over dead.

RAILWAY TRAVEL IN AFRICA.

Engineer Stopped Train While He Bagged Two Lions Near the Line.

The dark comes down with African swiftness, and at 8 o'clock the train stops for the night at Choma, writes Gertrude Page in The London Daily Mail. Instantly all is life and bustle. In an incredibly short time all the natives on the train—and they often number a hundred, either going to or returning from the mines—are busy making fires by the side of the track upon which to cook their evening meal. Our own boy is busy with the rest, making a fire also and boiling water for tea.

In fifteen minutes you have the new experience of a dark African night, with its brilliant southern stars and the blazing fires, each within its circle of laughing, chattering natives, whose white teeth gleam in the firelight as they throw their heads back in huge enjoyment of any joke. They are almost uncanny, those gleaming white teeth! Everywhere just firelight and black, indistinguishable figures and rows of gleaming teeth!

The second evening we stop at 6 o'clock, while it is still daylight, and so we get a longer stroll. We have now made friends with the one or two other travelers, and a little friendly gossip passes the time until a meal is ready. It is so interesting to know why these other travelers are there, each in his way so different from the traveler at home, who excites neither interest nor surprise.

Here is a Belgian going to the Congo, manager, of course, of some big rubber plantation or mine, whose wife is brave enough to accompany her husband into the Back of Beyond. Here is a native commissioner for Northeastern Rhodesia taking his wife and child to some distant outpost only to be reached after perhaps ten or twenty days trek. One looks at the woman with a sense of awe. She is young, pretty and charming, and out there where she is going there is no other woman, no doctor within perhaps eighty miles, no other child for her child to play with—nothing but days and weeks of monotony and the silence one can hear. We look at her with awe because we know she is a heroine. We know she is going in a measure to a silent martyrdom, unless the man for whom she goes can be all things to her.

Later on the station master regales us all with an excellent phonograph, and the rows of glistening teeth glisten more persistently than ever as the natives gather around both awed and delighted.

Then once more we all retire to sleep and next morning awake refreshed to the contemplation of the loveliest part of the whole route, the hilly district between Kafue and Lusakas. Kafue we had passed the previous afternoon and gazed in surprise at the fine bridge across the river, the longest bridge in Africa.

All through the last day the scenery is again chiefly forest, and at one place the spot is pointed out where the engineer recently alighted from his caboose and shot two lions while the train waited. He explains himself how there were three or four playing together quite near the line, like huge dogs, and how, being at the back of the train, he got in the first shot and killed one instantly. The guard and engine driver came hurrying along then, but before they arrived he had put in his second shot and begged a second animal.

DON'T BE TOO CLEVER.

Men Fight Shy of the Intellectual Woman.

Why are so many clever girls unmarried? Is it because the mere man has his own conceit and naturally does not wish to be overridden by his wife? Perhaps he wants people to consult his opinion and not appeal to his wife for everything.

Then, too, a man does not fancy the possession of a clever wife in his home. Of that abode he must be the chief head, and for a wife to be continually thrusting her cleverness down his throat would be very unpleasing to the average husband.

Men fight shy of the clever girl as a wife, and, after all, surely in many cases it is her own fault. You can be clever without obtruding your views upon other people. They will find out your attainments for themselves without your indirectly telling them of your wonderful stores of knowledge. But it is not fair to confuse the world be blue-stocking with the girl who has taken up some special line and tried to perfect herself in that direction only.

Thus, to sum up in a nutshell, it is only the obtrusively all around clever girl that finds herself outside the pale of love's domain.

The clever girl fails to attract men in her home life. A womanly woman is a man's ideal, and the girl who can take a servant's place in the kitchen or look after the little ones in the nurse's absence appeals far more to a man than the woman who could take the chair at a scientific meeting.

So be warned, and if you want to crown your life with the greatest of all happiness—a man's love—don't let him know that you are overclever.

Roosevelt's Nephew Killed.

Cambridge, Mass., Feb. 22.—Stewart Douglas Robinson, 19 years of age, a nephew of President Roosevelt, and a sophomore of Harvard College, fell from a six-storey window of Hampton Hall, a dormitory on Massachusetts avenue, yesterday, and was killed.

And Well Developed.

"CAN I GET WELL?"

If Your Trouble comes from the Kidneys, or from Kidney Poisons in the Blood,

YES!

And if you have been ailing a long time don't lose your courage. It takes a little time—takes some constitutions longer than others. But Doan's Kidney Pills will gradually drain the poisons out of your system; the pain in your back will stop; the sediment in the urine will cease; there will be no rheumatic pains; you will feel freer and brighter; and when the last of the poisons have gone you will be well.

There is no way of getting the kidney poisons out of the system except through the kidneys, and no medicine so effective in taking them out as Doan's Kidney Pills.

Mr. W. Perkins, South Maitland, N.S., writes: "I feel it my duty to let you know of the great cure I have obtained by using Doan's Kidney Pills. For six months I could not obtain a good night's rest, had to get up four or five times to urinate, and the urine was very thick and red. I commenced using Doan's Kidney Pills and in a very short time I was right and fit again. I am very thankful to have found so speedy a cure."

Price 50 cents per box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

In ordering specify "Doan's."

A PROCLAMATION

Whereas, the people of our city have been led to purchase so-called remedies from which they have received no benefit whatever, and having thus wasted so much hard-earned money, it has come to pass that they know not what to believe.

Inasmuch as this unsatisfactory state of affairs exists, KNOW, THEREFORE, ALL PERSONS who are in need of such a medicine that we will supply them with VINOL on a POSITIVE GUARANTEE that if it does not succeed in benefiting them we will refund the entire amount of money paid us for it.

There is no one medicine that will cure everything, but there are some we know to be honest, reliable, and of great curative value. Such is VINOL; it is not a secret medicine,—just peptonate of iron, wine, and all the curative extractives of cod liver oil, combined. We are familiar with every particle of it, and KNOW that it should benefit every one who uses it.

Could any offer be more fair than this? You are ill; we offer you medicine which we believe will help you, and if it does not we will return your money. Is there anyone foolish enough not to accept this offer? You owe it to your family, to your friends, and yourself to try this medicine which we give you our pledge is a genuine cod liver and iron preparation of great merit.

We unhesitatingly recommend Vinol as a Body Builder and Strength Creator for Feeble Old People, Delicate Children, Frail Women, All Run Down Persons, and Those Needing a Good Tonic after the Grippe or any Severe Illness, and for Chronic Coughs, Colds and Bronchitis.

Do you think we could afford to lend our name to its praises, as we have been doing in the newspapers, if we did not know VINOL to be an honest and unusually valuable remedy for the ills for which it is prescribed? We certainly could not; we therefore ask you, our neighbors, friends and acquaintances to accept our assurances that this is a genuine offer, and that any and all persons who need a medicine of this character should feel a sense of security in accepting it.

You will absolutely be under no obligation to us whatever, if after you have tried one bottle of VINOL, and have not received any benefit, you have only to tell us so, and we will return the entire amount of money you paid us for it.

VINOL is an old and valuable remedy improved by modern science—tastes good and agrees with every one.

Call and get a bottle to-day. You won't be sorry.

SPREADING THE SEEDS.

Nature's Methods of Distributing Plants Over the Earth.

Nature has provided almost countless ways of scattering and distributing the seeds of plants so that the various species may be propagated. Some seeds are borne on the wind, as those of the dandelion and the thistle, the elm and the ash. Others are thrown from their pods by the explosion of the latter when the time comes. But these methods are effectual for only a limited area. Where a wider distribution takes place, say from one part of a continent to another, or even from one continent to another, or from island to island, birds, animals and men are the carriers.

It has been noticed that many plants not native to the region grow in and near the yards of trunk line railroads, showing that the seeds have been brought by the cars in one way or another. The new soil suits them, and they thrive and gradually spread over the surrounding country. Many plants, for example, are found in the Mississippi valley that were brought by railroads from the Atlantic seaboard, from the gulf region and from the west side of the Rocky mountains. All through the east are found weeds and grasses that are peculiar to the west and the southwest, and there is no doubt that the seeds from which they sprung were brought in the hoofs of cattle imported by the meat dealers.—Chicago News.

A Pretty Superstition.

Among the superstitions of the Senecа Indians is or was a beautiful one connected with the death of a maiden. When this occurred, they imprisoned a young bird and kept it so until it began to try its powers of song, and then, loading it with caresses and messages, they set it free over her grave in the belief that it would not fold its wings or close its eyes until it had flown to the spirit land and delivered its burden of affection to the loved one.

A Picture Play.

FIRST APPEARANCE.

SECOND APPEARANCE.

The Bitter End.

The teacher was drilling her little pupils in the meaning of words and requested them to form sentences containing the words "bitter end." Directly a little girl submitted this: "The dog chased the cat under the piazza and bit her end."

A BALANCING TRICK.

Seemingly Impossible Feat May Be Easily Performed.

Can you balance a plate on the point of a needle? Very likely you will think not, but you will be able to perform this trick—after you've learned the right way. There may be a number of wrong ways, but usually there's only one right way. So it is in this case.

Stick a needle through a stout cork lengthwise, allowing the point to protrude a little above the top of the cork. That part of the needle which protrudes at the base of the cork cut off with a pair of sharp pinchers on a level with the cork. Insert the cork firmly in the neck of a good sized bottle.

Split two other corks in half along their length. Run a needle through each half cork, having it enter on the long, freshly made surface and almost at right angles to it. By this arrangement you can fasten the four half corks to the rim of a plate, making sure there is an equal distance of rim between each. Insert the prongs of a table fork in the bottom of each half cork.

You will now be able to balance your plate on the point of the needle, as a trial will prove to your satisfaction.—Philadelphia North American.

FACTS ABOUT THE FROG.

How the Reptile Aids Thirsty Travelers in Australia.

Travelers in Australia have a queer way sometimes of getting water to quench their thirst, says the Chicago News. Under a certain kind of bush they dig down a foot or two and bring up a hard clay ball. When the ball is broken, out jumps a frog, and the traveler then proceeds to drink the pure, cool water that the creature had provided in its clay retreat as its beverage during a drought. Another method of storing water is one that nature has given to most members of the frog family. It consists of an interior sack in which water is kept for the emergencies of thirst, just like the arrangement of the camel for a similar purpose. The water so preserved is as pure and tasteless as that from a spring.

This suggests a peculiarity about the frog's skin that is interesting. The cold and clammy condition of the skin is due to its constant absorption of water. A frog has been known to soak up one-half its own weight of water in a short time. A singular result of this skin moisture is the ability of the frog to stand a sudden application of dry heat. If, for example, a redhot rod be held quite close to a frog's body, the frog will not at once feel the heat, because the skin moisture forms a sort of vapor film, through which it takes a little time for the heat to go.

One of the Three.

A boy of eight said to his mother:

"Well, there were only three boys in school today who could answer one question that the teacher asked us."

"And I hope my boy was one of the three," said the proud mother.

"You bet I was," answered young hopeful, "and Sam Harris and Harry Stone were the other two."

"I am very glad you proved yourself so good a scholar, my son. It makes your mother proud of you. What question did the teacher ask, Johnny?"

"'Who broke that glass in the back window?'"

Conundrums.

What is the difference between a person late for the train and a schoolmistress? One misses the train and the other trains the misses.

Which is one of the longest words in the dictionary? Smiles, because there is a mile between the first and last letters.

What character in Shakespeare's works killed the greatest number of chickens? Hamlet's uncle, because he did "murder most foul."

Bigger Than He Looked.

"Dear me, Tom, you eat a good deal for such a little fellow!" remarked Uncle John to his nephew. "I s'pect I aren't so little inside as I looks outside," was Tom's ingenious explanation.

The Alert Japanese.

Another little illustration of the mental alertness of the Japanese. Every one of the American flags which they displayed in welcoming the United States fleet was provided with the full number of forty-six stars. Every one had been made to order for the occasion. No wonder the Japs use the rising sun as their emblem. They get up early in the morning. [illegible]

LINEN DRAPERIES.

Inside Curtains of This Material Are Very Smart.

For inside curtains heavy linen, either natural linen color, in white or colors, is very popular. They are selected, of course, in accordance with the fittings of the room and are trimmed either with applique of linen in contrasting colors, with braid or embroidery in heavy linen thread. Chintz hangings are also very popular, and chintz and cretonne are now shown in a more remarkable variety of colors and designs than ever before. There is quite a fad at the moment for the blue and white or the red and white chintz hangings for use, of course, in rooms suitably decorated. The walls of a room, for instance, may be in pale gray or white and gray when blue and white, or red and white chintz will be used for hangings and upholstery. These chintzes are not quite so striking as they sound, the red chintz, in fact, being quite mild in effect. The color is a light and rather dull red, and the patterns show a great deal of white. For some bedrooms, such, for instance, as have a rather chilly aspect, these chintzes are admirable. They seem more suitable for men's rooms than the flowered chintzes in pink and green, lavender and yellow, which are so charming.

DIGESTS ALL THE FOOD IN THE STOMACH

Give Your Stomach a Good Eat Without Fear of Distress.

If your meals don't tempt you, or you feel bloated after eating and you believe it is the food which fills you; if what little you eat lies like a lump of lead on your stomach; if there is difficulty in breathing after eating, eructations of sour food and acid, heartburn, brash or a belching of gas, you can make up your mind that you need something for a sour stomach and indigestion.

To make every bite of food you eat aid in the nourishment and strength of your body you must rid your stomach of poisons, excessive acid and stomach gas which sours your entire meal—interferes with digestion and causes so many sufferers of dyspepsia, sick headache, nauseous breath, and stomach trouble of all kind; putrefying the intestines and digestive canal, causing such misery as biliousness, constipation griping, etc. Your case is no different—you are a stomach sufferer, though you may call it by some other name, your real and only trouble is that which you eat does not digest, but quickly ferments and sours, producing almost any unhealthy condition.

A case of Pape's Diapepsin will cost fifty cents at any pharmacy here, and will convince any stomach sufferer five minutes after taking one triangle that fermentation and sour stomach is causing the misery of indigestion.

No matter if you call your trouble catarrh of the stomach, nervousness or gastritis, or by any other name—always remember that a certain cure is waiting at your pharmacist any time you decide to begin its use.

Pape's Diapepsin will purify the sourest and most acid stomach without any fuss or discomfort all in five minutes and digest promptly

A Record Parliamentary Debut.

J. P. Farrell, British M.P., who spent his Christmas in prison on account of certain alleged boycotting notices in his paper—The Longford Leader—once performed a Parliamentary feat which has no parallel. On his return for North Longford for the first time, in 1900, Mr. Farrell took the oath and his seat and addressed the House three times on the day of his first appearance within its walls. What is more his speeches were made as coolly as if he was one of the oldest of Parliamentary hands.

Joke on Literary Holton.

A Holton, Eng., literary club recently indulged in a spirited discussion of Ibsen and his writings. After the case had been argued "pro and con. each way," as the distinguished Co. Maj. Jeltz used to say, a sister confessed that she didn't know anything about Ibsen, but said she wanted to learn, and asked if some member would lend her a copy of the noted author's "plays." It then developed that there is not a set of Ibsen's plays in the town of Holton.

PUTNAM'S PAINLESS CORN EXTRACTOR

NOTE ETIQUETTE.

Nothing More Indicative of Breeding and Education Than the Signature.

It is useless to know what to write in a note if one does not understand the manner of doing it.

For example, no other small detail is more indicative of breeding and education than the signature. Under no circumstances should the prefix Mr., Mrs. or Miss be used unless it go in parentheses. Even then it is only to indicate whether it is a man or woman and, if the latter, married or unmarried, which makes it permissible. In writing to total strangers or to those who have not this information it may appear. In writing to a social inferior the prefix is always possible, but even then it must be parenthesized.

If a married woman is writing to a social equal who does not know the status of her correspondent the writer should sign her own name in full, as "Mary Jane Smith," and underneath write her formal name, "Mrs. John James Smith," putting parentheses about the lower signature. To a social equal upon whom for some reason she has not called, but would wish to, a married woman signs her own name and incloses her visiting card.

It is desirable that all letter and note paper shall be stamped either with monogram and address or both. According to the newest way of placing it, if only the monogram is used it is in the upper left hand corner. A note should begin always with "My dear," not "Dear" without the "my." If the writing must continue beyond the first page it is the fourth that should next be used. If more space is needed, then the paper should be turned so the right edge becomes the top and the second page becomes the third.

To end a note the formal way is "Cordially" unless the person to whom one is writing is an old acquaintance, and then "Sincerely" is employed.

For all invitations "Cordially" is to be preferred. For letters to old friends the words "Faithfully" and "As always" are most commonly used, "Sincerely also being good form. "Affectionately" and "Lovingly" are for old friends or relatives. Envelopes should be addressed with the utmost precision. It is permissible to put the word "To" or "For" before the name, but it is a continental rather than an American custom. It is always better form to write the full name, as "Miss Mary Jane Smith" or "Mrs. John James Brown," rather than to substitute initials.

If a note or letter is to be delivered in the city in which it is mailed, "Town" is now used in preference to the city's name. This is not a fad that commended itself to the postoffice, but it is sanctioned by society.

The postage stamp must always be exactly in the upper right hand corner, for to put it at an angle or on any other spot is considered ignorant or vulgar.

A Valuable Asset.

Dr. William A. White, superintendent of the Government Hospital For the Insane near Washington, was walking about the asylum grounds one day when he met a patient.

"Doctor," said the insane man, "how many crazy folks are there here anyhow?"

"A great many," the doctor replied—"two or three thousand."

"Well," continued the questioner, "you'd have a hard time making a living if it wasn't for us, wouldn't you?"—Cleveland Leader.

Scheme to Abduct Princess.

Coombe Abbey, Coventry, where Lord Craven celebrated his fortieth birthday, is a famous old place, which has its place in history. Had the plans of the plotters been carried out it would have been more notable still. The Gunpowder plotters designed to abduct a daughter of James I., from Coombe Abbey. It was arranged that while Earl Percy seized young Prince Charles, Catesby should secure and carry off the princess. The Catholic nobles of his neighborhood were to be assembled at Catesby's place at Ashby St. Leger, and then, the scheme having been explained, they were to make a dash on the abbey, overpowering such of the guard as would not join them, seize the princess, and hold her with a view to eventualities. Lord Craven succeeded to the title a few days before celebrating his fifteenth birthday.

A Radium Institute.

Under the auspices of King Edward, there will shortly be established under royal charter the Royal British Radium Institute.

The purpose is to facilitate research work, and in connection therewith there will be a medical department for the treatment of various cases by the radium cure. His Majesty has taken the greatest interest in this departure, which has been made possible by a handsome money gift by Sir Ernest Cassel.

A syndicate has been formed in connection with the institute to extract radium from the pitchblend deposits of an old copper mine recently reopened at St. Ives, Cornwall. The claim is made that this is the only place where radium can be procured outside of Austria.

The Largest Will.

The longest will on record has just been proved in London, Eng. It consisted of 26,000 words, and was the testament of Edward Bush, a retired engineer of Gloucester, who left about $725,000. There was nothing extraordinary in the terms of the will—a few small benefactions to charity and private annuities, etc.

"All to mother" were the words of the shortest will on record. They were left by Frederick Thorne, who died in London in 1905.

A Queer Will.

While reading a Bible which he had bought in a second-hand shop, a Herne Hill, London, Eng., gardener named Wallace, recently thrown out of work, came upon two £5 notes and the following inscription "I gathered this money with great difficulty, but, having no relative who is in absolute need, I make thee, whosoever shall read this Bible, to be my heir."

Sealed Tenders addressed to the undersigned and marked in the envelope "Tender for Shops," will be received at the office of the Commissioners of the Transcontinental Railway at Ottawa until 12 o'clock noon of the 10th day of March, 1909, for the construction and erection complete, in accordance with the plans and specifications of the Commissioners, of shops east of Winnipeg.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied by the Commissioners, which may be had on application to Mr. Hugh D. Lumsden, chief engineer, Ottawa, Ont.

Each tender must be signed and sealed by all the parties to the tender and witnessed, and be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank of the Dominion of Canada, payable to the order of the Commissioners of the Transcontinental Railway for the sum of one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000).

The cheque deposited by the party whose tender is accepted, will be deposited to the credit of the Receiver General of Canada, as security for the due and faithful performance of the contract according to its terms. Cheques deposited by parties whose tenders are rejected will be returned within ten days after the signing of the contract.

The right is reserved to reject any or all tenders.

By order,
P. E. RYAN,
Secretary.

The Commissioners of the Transcontinental Railway,
Dated at Ottawa, 30th January, 1909.

NET OF EVIDENCE DRAWN CLOSER

Wilkins Sticks to His Story in Trial of Chief Malone.

NEW TESTIMONY ADDUCED

Two Young People Swear to Having Seen Malone on Street Half an Hour Before the Shooting—Expert Says Pistol, Although Fully Loaded, Had Been Recently Discharged—Is Sure It Was Malone.

Simcoe, Feb. 24.—The crown got near to the end of its witnesses by adjournment at 6.30 last night in the case of King v. Malone, following the long examination of former Night Watchman Wilkins, who was the victim of the shooting.

The cross-examination of the principal witness yesterday against the accused was a hard-fought one, but Wilkins persistently kept to his story, as told at the preliminary hearing.

The chief evidence was the statement that Wilkins had loaned Malone his electric flashlight on the day preceding the shooting, telling him it needed a new battery. Wilkins says Malone showed it to him fixed while in the park.

Drs. Bennetto and Bowlby were also called and testified to the dangerous condition of Wilkins' wounds.

Wallace Walsh and John Davis swore to seeing Malone at 12.10, or 46 minutes before the shooting.

Wilkins was brought from the jail, where he is serving a five months' term for theft, to give evidence. He had one eye shot out, and other bullet wounds in the body, he says, by Malone.

On the night of June 16, while on patrol with Malone, the latter had suddenly said he wasegoing to have some fun, and a few minutes later had set fire to Madden Bros.' store. Then Malone told him to turn in the fire alarm and 'phone to Malone's house for him. Several othere fires were set and "discoveered" in a similar way.

In October they found the door of Sovereen's store unfastened. Malone went to the till, but found only a few coppers. He then went to the back of the store and took from the hook a fur-lined coat and a fur coat and from a box a fur stole.

"This will do for my wife," he said. "Don't you want one for your wife?"

"I said, 'No, sir, my wife wouldn't wear it.'"

He then made me try on a fur coat. It didn't fit me very well, so he tried it on. "This is about my style," he said. He then put the two coats and the stole out on some boxes in the lane and shut the back door and left by the front door. He forced Wilkins to take one coat.

In setting fire to Agar's barn, he said he was getting even for a charge of $5 for making out our affidavit in a case in which Malone was after a reward. Malone had used his jimmy to pry his way into Schuyler's store, where groceries were stolen and the place set on fire.

The night of the shooting he had met the chief by appointment at 1 a.m. at Lynnwood Park, where, after a few words, Malone suddenly opened fire. Wilkins had fallen and lay there for a time, fearing that the chief was still standing over him with the revolver. He knew the motive for the shooting.

Cross-examined by Mr. Kelly, Wilkins, asked why he did not complain about other habits of Malone, as well as his drinking habits, said the drink habit was responsible for the other bad habits. Mr. Kelly suggested that it was not until the goods were found at Wilkins' that the thought occurred to place the whole matter on the shoulders of the chief, whose job Wilkins might now covet.

The reports in the record book as to the causes of the fire, "unknown," "probably set on fire," etc., had been supplied by Malone.

"I was entirely under Chief Malone and did entirely what he told me to do. I was afraid of the man, because he told me to keep my mouth shut, and that if I let anybody pump me my life would not be worth a candle. He said more; he told me that any man who crossed his path his life would be worth little, that he would shoot him down like a dog."

Justice Mulock: "It might be that you are mistaken in the identity of the man who shot you?"

Wilkins: "There is no shadow of a doubt in this case. I am positive, and I am speaking the truth."

Last night's session produced the most important evidence of the trial, with the exception of that of the star witness and complainant, Wilkins.

Stanley Wilson, Ottby Matthews and Margaret Nicholls, three young people who were going home from a party, each swore they saw the prisoner, Malone, about the streets within half an hour of the time of the shooting. The first named lad said that he might have been mistaken, but the other two were quite certain that the man they saw was the then chief of police. Warren Potts heard the shooting and saw a man with a long overcoat on, but he declined to swear to the identification of the man.

Alex. McQueen, jr., and Lewis Barber, who arrested Malone, told how they seized him and took his weapon from him. There was an old useless revolver and a modern 32 long, with every chamber loaded and the trigger cocked.

Mr. Cameron, who has made a study of odors from discharged revolvers and other weapons, said that Malone's revolver had been discharged within 24 hours before he got it, notwithstanding that the weapon was fully loaded when it was seized.

Mrs. Effie Berrie, who keeps a store near the police station, heard a footstep she thought was Malone's going up the stairway of the police station about 2 o'clock the morning of the shooting.

County Constable Collamore found six empty cartridges of the size used in Malone's revolver scattered about the police station shortly after the shooting affray.

Must Get Vaccinated.

Kingston, Feb. 24.—There is trouble ahead for citizens who do not get vaccinated. Owing to the fact that there are four new cases of smallpox the Board of Health yesterday decided to make vaccination compulsory, and sanitary officers will be asked to see that the bylaw is carried out. Offenders will be summoned to the Police Court.

Some time ago action was taken to make it compulsory, but it never was pressed, because the disease was soon stamped out. Now that the Isolation Hospital has reopened the board have taken these steps as a safeguard.

Montreal Investigation.

Montreal, Feb. 24.—A special from Quebec says:

At a meeting of the Cabinet yesterday, Jos. Morin, ex-M.P.P. for St. Hyacinthe, was appointed general auditor for the province, to succeed H. Verret, who retires.

The Cabinet also considered the demand for a royal commission to investigate Montreal civic affairs.

Premier Goulin declared that such a commission would be appointed only when the Cabinet was satisfied that it is necessary.

Made Insane by Beef.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Feb. 24.—John Dwight Gorham, one of the most prominent men of Marshall, was brought to the Michigan asylum as the result of insanity, due, it is believed, to eating too much beefsteak. For some time past the man has developed a mania for eating steak, sometimes, it is said, eating nine pounds at one meal.

Editors Shoot at Each Other.

Rock Island, Ill., Feb. 24.—W. W. Wilmerton, owner of The Tri-City Journal and John Looney, owner of The Rock Island News, exchanged seven shots across a street at each other yesterday. Looney was slightly wounded. Both men were arrested.

The shooting was the result of a personal quarrel which had been carried on in print.

Suffragettes Reach Boston.

Boston, Feb. 24.—British suffragette methods of agitation, even to the point of provoking the police to violent interference, were given an exact reproduction here on the state house steps yesterday afternoon.

Under the lead of Miss Rachel Costello, a British leader, in the "Votes for Women" movement, an immense meeting was in progress there when it was about time for a legislative session to begin. Sergeant-at-arms Remington called in the police to disperse the women. They were obliged to use force.

Welland's Industrial Boom.

Welland, Feb. 24.—The Bemis Bag Co. of Boston, who bought a $25,000 site and were to commence building a $15,000 spindle mill here in the spring, have notified the authorities that they will not come until the depression has lifted across the line. A $50,000 trunk sewer was built to accommodate the factory. The Dain Manufacturing Co. of Ottumwa, Iowa, will, however, commence the erection of three large factories next month, and the Page-Hersey Co. will put up a large tube mill.

Bank Manager Acquitted.

Montreal, Feb. 24.—W. Graham Browne, late local manager of the Sovereign Bank, was yesterday discharged on the charge of making false returns to the Government. Judge Leet held that under the Bank Act the manager signed the statements as correct to the "best of his belief and knowledge."

Curtailing Copper Output.

Boston, Feb. 24.—It is reported here that copper producers intend to curtail the output by ten per cent. An agreement to this effect has already become operative in some of the Montana, Utah and northern Ontario properties.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Higher—Hogs Shade Higher at East Buffalo.

LONDON, Feb. 23.—London cables for cattle are steady at 12¾c to 14c per pound, dressed weight; refrigerator beef is quoted at 10¼c to 10½c per pound.

Toronto Live Stock.

TORONTO, Feb. 23.—Receipts of live stock at the City Market were 59 carloads, consisting of 862 cattle, 582 hogs, 338 sheep and lambs, 71 calves and one horse.

Exporters.

There were a few lots, not loads, of shipping cattle sold up to $5.40, which is lower than the tops sold for at the Union Yards on Monday, but the quality was not as good at the City Market. In fact, there were too few exporters on sale to make a market. Bulls sold from $4 to $4.50, with an odd one or two at $4.75 to $5. There were export cattle sold at $5.40 that cost $5.50 per cwt. in the country.

Butchers.

Prime picked steers and heifers sold at $4.80 to $5; loads of good sold from $4.50 to $4.87½, the latter price being paid for the best load of butchers' cattle on the market; medium light cattle, $4 to $4.40; common, $3.50 to $4; canners and common cows, $1.50 to $2.65; bulls, $3 to $4.25.

Feeders and Stockers.

H. & W. Murby report nothing of any account doing on the market, with prices unchanged as follows: Best feeders, 900 to 1000 lbs. each, at $3.75 to $4.25 per cwt.; medium, from $3.60 to $4; stockers, $5 to $7, and $2.75 to $3.

Milkers and Springers.

There was a fair delivery of milkers and springers, with some few good cows among the number. The bulk of those offered were bought up for the local trade. Prices ranged from $30 to $60.

Veal Calves.

Upwards of 100 calves sold at $3 to $7 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Receipts of sheep and lambs were light, with prices firm, as follows: Grain-fed lambs sold at $6.50 to $7 per cwt.; common lambs, $5.50 to $6 per cwt.; export ewes, $4 to $4.50; rams, $3.25 to $3.75.

Hogs.

Receipts light. Mr. Harris quoted prices unchanged at $6.60 for selects fed and watered and $6.40 f.o.b. cars at country points to drovers.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, Feb. 23. — Cattle — Steady; prime steers, $5.15 to $5.50.

Veals—Receipts, 50; active and steady.

Hogs—Receipts, 5100; slow; heavy, 5c higher; heavy, $6.70 to $6.80; mixed, $6.60 to $6.70; yorkers, $6.30 to $6.60; pigs, $6.15 to $6.25; roughs, $5.50 to $5.60.

Sheep and lambs—Receipts, 1600; active; sheep steady; lambs, 10c higher; lambs, $5 to $7.95.

New York Live Stock.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—Beeves—Receipts, 927; nothing doing; feeling steady; dressed beef, in moderate demand and steady. Liverpool and London cattle markets higher at 13¾c to 14c, dressed weight; refrigerator beef, lower and selling at London at 10¼c to 10½c; exports to-morrow, 7380 quarters of beef.

Calves—Receipts, 183; feeling steady; veals, $7.50 to $10; fed calves, $5; dressed calves, firm; city dressed veals, 10c to 16c; country dressed, 9c to 14c.

Sheep and lambs—Receipts, 2629; sheep, almost nominal; lambs, full steady; common sheep, $4.50; lambs, $7 to $8.

Hogs — Receipts, 2630; feeling about steady; no sales reported.

A Naval Captain "Detached."

Fort Monroe, Va., Feb. 24.—The battleship Kearsage came home without Capt. Hamilton M. Hutchins.

Capt. Hutchins was detached from the command of his ship by Admiral Sperry late on the evening of Feb. 1, in Gibraltar. The fleet sailed the next morning at 10 o'clock.

A Priest Weds.

Denver, Colo., Feb. 24.—Disregarding his vow of celibacy, Father J. A. Ryan, until recently connected with St. Leo's Catholic Church in Denver, was married to Miss Sadie Moran of Ogden, Utah, on Jan. 30, at Colorado Springs. The fact was discovered yesterday.

The Boy and the Apples.

Here is the latest from Dr. Macnamara's budget of schoolboy stories. When he was Parliamentary Secretary of the British Board of Trade he visited a school and asked a boy, who was learning vulgar fractions, which he would prefer — the fifteenth or sixteenth part of an apple. 'Thinking, perhaps, that it sounded more, the boy replied the sixteenth part. "I looked pained," said Dr. Macnamara, "and the boy hastened to add, 'But, I don't like apples.'"

PHILOSOPHY OF WOMEN.

It is what we will to will, not what we will,
That makes us what we are.
There is no death but that which we do bring
Upon ourselves while yet we seem to live.
—Amelie Rives (Princess Troubetzkoy.)

When pain grows sharp and sickness rages
The greatest love of life appears.
—Mrs. Thrale.

Space is against thee—it can part;
Time is against thee—it can chill;
Words—they but render half the heart;
Deeds—they are poor to our rich will.
—Jean Ingelow.

We speak of saints and enthusiasts for good as if some special gifts were made to them in middle age which are withheld from other men. Is it not rather that some few souls keep alive the lamp of zeal and high desire which God lights for most of us while life is young.—Mrs. Ewing.

The most popular people during the last decade of the nineteenth century were the people who had had influenza and so could discuss it in all its various stages, but whose recorded temperature had always kept one degree lower than the temperature of those with whom they conversed. There is a subtle flattery in a slight inferiority of temperature which even sanctified human nature cannot resist.

The common lot is the best thing that this life has to offer, and, luckily for us, the best of us are fit for nothing better, since there is nothing better this side of heaven.—Ellen Thorneycroft Fowler.

When Tired—

Don't grit your teeth and work harder. Ease up a little.

Don't talk any more than you can help. Talking takes vitality.

Lie down in a dark place, if only for fifteen minutes.

Don't read anything in which you are not interested.

Don't feel that everything must be done in one day. There are 364 more.

Realize that it is better to leave things undone than overdo yourself.

Avoid people and their woes at that time. Seek some one frivolous.

Don't try to improve yourself. Give your mind a rest.

And don't forget that a little lemon juice in cold water in the morning is a great help.

The Toad Survived.

An experiment bordering close to the wonderful was recently made in the clay testing department of a machinery company at Bucyrus, O., in which a toad was placed in a twenty ton brick press and was four times subjected to a pressure of 11,000 pounds without injury. The question at issue was whether such a pressure would kill the toad or whether its ability to compress itself was sufficient to allow it to come out of the ordeal alive. The toad was first placed in a lump of granulous clay and the whole pressed into a brick. After the huge press had done its work the solid brick was lifted from the machine, and the toad winked its eyes contentedly, stretched its legs and hopped away.—Popular Mechanics.

A Parliamentary Scene.

Talking about dramatic scenes in parliament, of which we have had several in both houses this session, we wonder if our readers have heard of the scene some weeks ago in the assembly of South Australia. During a debate the prime minister stated that some gamblers had cut off a comrade's finger because he had joined the Salvation Army. A member questioned the truth of this statement, when the prime minister astonished the house by dramatically stretching forth his hand with a bottle in it, exclaiming, "Here is the finger and the deposition accompanying it!" Our daughter parliament has beaten us for grewsomeness this time.—London Chronicle.

Whistling Sign of Contempt.

A Moroccan shows his contempt of anything by whistling. A conflict between tribesmen and a battalion of French troops was recently precipitated by the whistling of a locomotive on a railway being constructed near Casablanca. "The glaours are laughing at us," said a chieftain when the construction engine gave a toot to warn the natives at work on the line to look out. The Arabs went wild, mounted their horses and rode on the whistling enemy. They had to be calmed with the whistling of rifle balls.

Eczema, Salt Rheum.

Eczema or Salt Rheum, as it is often called, is one of the most agonizing of skin diseases. It manifests itself in little round blisters, which contain an extremely irritating fluid. These break and subsequently a crust or scale is formed.

The intense burning, itching and smarting, especially at night or when the part is exposed to any strong heat, are almost unbearable.

The pre-eminent success which Burdock Blood Bitters has met with in permanently curing a disease of such severity is due to its wonderful blood cleansing and purifying properties.

No other remedy has done, or can do, so much for those who are almost driven to distraction with the terrible torture, as our thousands of signed testimonials can testify to.

Mrs. John O'Connor, Burlington, N.S., writes:—"For years I suffered with Salt Rheum. I tried a dozen different medicines, but most of them only made it worse. I was advised to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I got a bottle and before I had taken half a dozen doses I could see a change so I continued its use and now I am completely cured. I cannot say too much for your wonderful medicine."

Two Young People Swear to Having Seen Malone on Street Half an Hour Before the Shooting—Expert Says Pistol, Although Fully Loaded, Had Been Recently Discharged—Is Sure It Was Malone.

Simcoe, Feb. 24.—The crown got near to the end of its witnesses by adjournment at 6.30 last night in the case of King v. Malone, following the long examination of former Night Watchman Wilkins, who was the victim of the shooting.

The cross-examination of the principal witness yesterday against the accused was a hard-fought one, but Wilkins persistently kept to his story, as told at the preliminary hearing.

The chief evidence was the statement that Wilkins had loaned Malone his electric flashlight on the day preceding the shooting, telling him it needed a new battery. Wilkins says Malone showed it to him fixed while in the park.

Drs. Bennetto and Bowlby were also called and testified to the dangerous condition of Wilkins' wounds.

Wallace Walsh and John Davis swore to seeing Malone at 12.10, or 46 minutes before the shooting.

Wilkins was brought from the jail, where he is serving a five months' term for theft, to give evidence. He had one eye shot out, and other bullet wounds in the body, he says, by Malone.

On the night of June 16, while on patrol with Malone, the latter had suddenly said he was going to have some fun, and a few minutes later had set fire to Madden Bros.' store. Then Malone told him to turn in the fire alarm and 'phone to Malone's house for him. Several othere fires were set and "discoveered" in a similar way.

In October they found the door of Sovereen's store unfastened. Malone went to the till, but found only a few coppers. He then went to the back of the store and took from the hook a fur-lined coat and a fur cost and from a box a fur stole.

"This will do for my wife," he said. "Don't you want one for your wife?"

"I said, 'No, sir, my wife wouldn't wear it.'"

He then made me try on a fur coat. It didn't fit me very well, so he tried it on. 'This is about my style," he said. He then put the two coats and the stole out on some boxes in the lane and shut the back door and left by the front door. He forced Wilkins to take one coat.

In setting fire to Agar's barn, he said he was getting even for a charge of $5 for making out our affidavit in a case in which Malone was after a reward. Malone had used his jimmy to pry his way into Schuyler's store, where groceries were stolen and the place set on fire.

The night of the shooting he had met the chief by appointment at 1 a.m. at Lynnwood Park, where, after a few words, Malone suddenly opened fire. Wilkins had fallen and lay there for a time, fearing that the chief was still standing over him with the revolver. He knew the motive for the shooting.

Cross-examined by Mr. Kelly, Wilkins, asked why he did not complain about other habits of Malone, as well as his drinking habits, said the drink habit was responsible for the other bad habits. Mr. Kelly suggested that it was not until the goods were found at Wilkins' that the thought occurred to place the whole matter on the shoulders of the chief, whose job Wilkins might now covet.

The reports in the record book as to the causes of the fire, "unknown," "probably set on fire," etc., had been supplied by Malone.

"I was entirely under Chief Malone and did entirely what he told me to do. I was afraid of the man, because he told me to keep my mouth shut, and that if I let anybody pump me my life would not be worth a candle. He said more; he told me that any man who crossed his path his life would be worth little, that he would shoot him down like a dog."

Justice Mulock: "It might be that you are mistaken in the identity of the man who shot you?"

Wilkins: "There is no shadow of a doubt in this case. I am positive, and I am speaking the truth."

Last night's session produced the most important evidence of the trial, with the exception of that of the star witness and complainant, Wilkins.

Stanley Wilson, Otiby Matthews and Margaret Nicholls, three young people who were going home from a party, each swore they saw the prisoner, Malone, about the streets within half an hour of the time of the shooting. The first named lad said that he might have been mistaken, but the other two were quite certain that the man they saw was the then chief of police. Warren Potts heard the shooting and saw a man with a long overcoat on, but he declined to swear to the identification of the man.

Alex. McQueen, jr., and Lewis Barber, who arrested Malone, told how they seized him and took his weapon from him. There was an old useless revolver and a modern 32 long, with every chamber loaded and the trigger cocked.

Mr. Cameron, who has made a study of odors from discharged revolvers and other weapons, said that Malone's revolver had been discharged within 24 hours before he got it, notwithstanding that the weapon was fully loaded when it was seized.

Mrs. Effie Berrie, who keeps a store near the police station, heard a footstep she thought was Malone's going up the stairway of the police station about 2 o'clock the morning of the shooting.

County Constable Collamore found six empty cartridges of the size used in Malone's revolver scattered about the police station shortly after the shooting affray.

Must Get Vaccinated.

Kingston, Feb. 24.—There is trouble ahead for citizens who do not get vaccinated. Owing to the fact that there are four new cases of smallpox the Board of Health yesterday decided to make vaccination compulsory, and sanitary officers will be asked to see that the bylaw is carried out. Offenders will be summoned to the Police Court.

Some time ago action was taken to make it compulsory, but it never was pressed, because the disease was soon stamped out. Now that the Isolation Hospital has reopened the board have taken these steps as a safeguard.

Montreal Investigation.

Montreal, Feb. 24.—A special from Quebec says:

At a meeting of the Cabinet yesterday, Jos. Morin, ex-M.P.P. for St. Hyacinthe, was appointed general auditor for the province, to succeed H. Verret, who retires.

The Cabinet also considered the demand for a royal commission to investigate Montreal civic affairs.

Premier Goulin declared that such a commission would be appointed only when the Cabinet was satisfied that it is necessary.

Made Insane by Beef.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Feb. 24.—John Dwight Gorham, one of the most prominent men of Marshall, was brought to the Michigan asylum as the result of insanity, due, it is believed, to eating too much beefsteak. For some time past the man has developed a mania for eating steak, sometimes, it is said, eating nine pounds at one meal.

Editors Shoot at Each Other.

Rock Island, Ill., Feb. 24.—W. W. Wilmerton, owner of The Tri-City Journal and John Looney, owner of The Rock Island News, exchanged seven shots across a street at each other yesterday. Looney was slightly wounded. Both men were arrested.

The shooting was the result of a personal quarrel which had been carried on in print.

Suffragettes Reach Boston.

Boston, Feb. 24.—British suffragette methods of agitation, even to the point of provoking the police to violent interference, were given an exact reproduction here on the state house steps yesterday afternoon.

Under the lead of Miss Rachel Costello, a British leader, in the "Votes for Women" movement, an immense meeting was in progress there when it was about time for a legislative session to begin. Sergeant-at-arms Remington called in the police to disperse the women. They were obliged to use force.

Welland's Industrial Boom.

Welland, Feb. 24.—The Bemis Bag Co. of Boston, who bought a $25,000 site and were to commence building a $15,000 spindle mill here in the spring, have notified the authorities that they will not come until the depression has lifted across the line. A $50,000 trunk sewer was built to accommodate the factory. The Dain Manufacturing Co. of Ottumwa, Iowa, will, however, commence the erection of three large factories next month, and the Page-Hersey Co. will put up a large tube mill.

Bank Manager Acquitted.

Montreal, Feb. 24.—W. Graham Browne, late local manager of the Sovereign Bank, was yesterday discharged on the charge of making false returns to the Government. Judge Leet held that under the Bank Act the manager signed the statements as correct to the "best of his belief and knowledge."

Curtailing Copper Output.

Boston, Feb. 24.—It is reported here that copper producers intend to curtail the output by ten per cent. An agreement to this effect has already become operative in some of the Montana, Utah and northern Ontario properties.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Higher—Hogs Shade Higher at East Buffalo.

LONDON, Feb. 23.—London cables for cattle are steady at 13¼c to 14c per pound, dressed weight; refrigerator beef is quoted at 10¼c to 10⅝c per pound.

Toronto Live Stock.

TORONTO, Feb. 23.—Receipts of live stock at the City Market were 59 carloads, consisting of 862 cattle, 582 hogs, 338 sheep and lambs, 71 calves and one horse.

Exporters.

There were a few lots, not loads, of shipping cattle sold up to $5.40, which is lower than the tops sold for at the Union Yards on Monday, but the quality was not as good at the City Market. In fact, there were too few exporters on sale to make a market. Bulls sold from $4 to $4.50, with an odd one or two at $4.75 to $5. There were export cattle sold at $5.40 that cost $5.60 per cwt. in the country.

Butchers.

Prime picked steers and heifers sold at $4.80 to $5; loads of good sold from $4.50 to $4.87½, the latter price being paid for the best load of butchers' cattle on the market; medium light cattle, $4 to $4.40; common, $3.50 to $4; canners and common cows, $1.50 to $2.65; bulls, $3 to $4.25.

Feeders and Stockers.

H. & W. Murby report nothing of any account doing on the market, with prices unchanged as follows: Best feeders, 900 to 1000 lbs. each, at $3.75 to $4.25 per cwt.; medium, from $3.60 to $4; stockers, $3 to $3, and $2.75 to $3.

Milkers and Springers.

There was a fair delivery of milkers and springers, with some few good cows among the number. The bulk of those offered were bought up for the local trade. Prices ranged from $30 to $60.

Veal Calves.

Upwards of 100 calves sold at $3 to $7 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Receipts of sheep and lambs were light, with prices firm, as follows: Grain-fed lambs sold at $6.50 to $7 per cwt.; common lambs, $5.50 to $6 per cwt.; export ewes, $4 to $4.50; rams, $3.25 to $3.75.

Hogs.

Receipts light. Mr. Harris quoted prices unchanged at $8.60 for selects fed and watered and $8.40 f.o.b. cars at country points to drovers.

The Boy and the Apples.

Here is the latest from Dr. Macnamara's budget of schoolboy stories. When he was Parliamentary Secretary of the British Board of Trade he visited a school and asked a boy, who was learning vulgar fractions, which he would prefer — the fifteenth or sixteenth part of an apple. Thinking, perhaps, that it sounded more, the boy replied the sixteenth part. "I looked pained," said Dr. Macnamara, "and the boy hastened to add, 'But, I don't like apples.'"

PHILOSOPHY OF WOMEN.

There is no death but that which we do bring
Upon ourselves while yet we seem to live.
—Amelie Rives (Princess Troubetzkoy.)

When pain grows sharp and sickness rages
The greatest love of life appears.

Space is against thee—it can part;
Time is against thee—it can chill;
Words—they but render half the heart;
Deeds—they are poor to our rich will.
—Jean Ingelow.

We speak of saints and enthusiasts for good as if some special gifts were made to them in middle age which are withheld from other men. Is it not rather that some few souls keep alive the lamp of zeal and high desire which God lights for most of us while life is young.—Mrs. Ewing.

The most popular people during the last decade of the nineteenth century were the people who had had influenza and so could discuss it in all its various stages, but whose recorded temperature had always kept one degree lower than the temperature of those with whom they conversed. There is a subtle flattery in a slight inferiority of temperature which even sanctified human nature cannot resist.

The common lot is the best thing that this life has to offer, and, luckily for us, the best of us are fit for nothing better, since there is nothing better this side of heaven.—Ellen Thorneycroft Fowler.

When Tired—

Don't grit your teeth and work harder. Ease up a little.

Don't talk any more than you can help. Talking takes vitality.

Lie down in a dark place, if only for fifteen minutes.

Don't read anything in which you are not interested.

Don't feel that everything must be done in one day. There are 364 more.

Realize that it is better to leave things undone than overdo yourself.

Avoid people and their woes at that time. Seek some one frivolous.

Don't try to improve yourself. Give your mind a rest.

And don't forget that a little lemon juice in cold water in the morning is a great help.

The Toad Survived.

An experiment bordering close to the wonderful was recently made in the clay testing department of a machinery company at Bucyrus, O., in which a toad was placed in a twenty ton brick press and was four times subjected to a pressure of 11,000 pounds without injury. The question at issue was whether such a pressure would kill the toad or whether its ability to compress itself was sufficient to allow it to come out of the ordeal alive. The toad was first placed in a lump of granulous clay and the whole pressed into a brick. After the huge press had done its work the solid brick was lifted from the machine, and the toad winked its eyes contentedly, stretched its legs and hopped away.—Popular Mechanics.

A Parliamentary Scene.

Talking about dramatic scenes in parliament, of which we have had several in both houses this session, we wonder if our readers have heard of the scene some weeks ago in the assembly of South Australia. During a debate the prime minister stated that some gamblers had cut off a comrade's finger because he had joined the Salvation Army. A member questioned the truth of this statement, when the prime minister astonished the house by dramatically stretching forth his hand with a bottle in it, exclaiming, "Here is the finger and the deposition accompanying it!" Our daughter parliament has beaten us for gruesomeness this time.—London Chronicle.

Whistling Sign of Contempt.

A Moroccan shows his contempt of anything by whistling. A conflict between tribesmen and a battalion of French troops was recently precipitated by the whistling of a locomotive on a railway being constructed near Casablanca. "The giaours are laughing at us," said a chieftain when the construction engine gave a toot to warn the natives at work on the line to look out. The Arabs went wild, mounted their horses and rode on the whistling enemy. They had to be calmed with the whistling of rifle balls.

Eczema, Salt Rheum.

Eczema or Salt Rheum, as it is often called, is one of the most agonizing of skin diseases. It manifests itself in little round blisters, which contain an extremely irritating fluid. These break and subsequently a crust or scale is formed.

The intense burning, itching and smarting, especially at night or when the part is exposed to any strong heat, are almost unbearable.

The pre-eminent success which Burdock Blood Bitters has met with in permanently curing a disease of such severity is due to its wonderful blood cleansing and purifying properties.

No other remedy has done, or can do, so much for those who are almost driven to distraction with the terrible torture, as our thousands of signed testimonials can testify to.

Mrs. John O'Connor, Burlington, N.S., writes:—"For years I suffered with Salt Rheum. I tried a dozen different medicines, but most of them only made it worse. I was advised to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I got a bottle and before I had taken half a dozen doses I could see a change so I continued its use and now I am completely cured. I cannot say too much for your wonderful medicine."

Under the lead of Miss Rachel Costello, a British leader, in the "Votes for Women" movement, an immense meeting was in progress there when it was about time for a legislative session to begin. Sergeant-at-arms Remington called in the police to disperse the women. They were obliged to use force.

Welland's Industrial Boom.

Welland, Feb. 24.—The Bemis Bag Co. of Boston, who bought a $25,000 site and were to commence building a $15,000 spindle mill here in the spring, have notified the authorities that they will not come until the depression has lifted across the line. A $50,000 trunk sewer was built to accommodate the factory. The Dain Manufacturing Co. of Ottumwa, Iowa, will, however, commence the erection of three large factories next month, and the Page-Hersey Co. will put up a large tube mill.

Bank Manager Acquitted.

Montreal, Feb. 24.—W. Graham Browne, late local manager of the Sovereign Bank, was yesterday discharged on the charge of making false returns to the Government. Judge Leet held that under the Bank Act the manager signed the statements as correct to the "best of his belief and knowledge."

Curtailing Copper Output.

Boston, Feb. 24.—It is reported here that copper producers intend to curtail the output by ten per cent. An agreement to this effect has already become operative in some of the Montana, Utah and northern Ontario properties.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Higher—Hogs Shade Higher at East Buffalo.

LONDON, Feb. 23.—London cables for cattle are steady at 13¼c to 14c per pound, dressed weight; refrigerator beef is quoted at 10¼c to 10⅝c per pound.

Toronto Live Stock.

TORONTO, Feb. 23.—Receipts of live stock at the City Market were 59 carloads, consisting of 802 cattle, 582 hogs, 338 sheep and lambs, 71 calves and one horse.

Exporters.

There were a few lots, not loads, of shipping cattle sold up to $5.40, which is lower than the tops sold for at the Union Yards on Monday, but the quality was not as good at the City Market. In fact, there were too few exporters on sale to make a market. Bulls sold from $4 to $4.50, with an odd one or two at $4.75 to $5. There were export cattle sold at $5.40 that cost $5.50 per cwt. in the country.

Butchers.

Prime picked steers and heifers sold at $4.80 to $5; loads of good sold from $4.50 to $4.87½, the latter price being paid for the best load of butchers' cattle on the market; medium light cattle, $4 to $4.40; common, $3.50 to $4; canners and common cows, $1.50 to $2.65; bulls, $3 to $4.25.

Feeders and Steckers.

H. & W. Murby report nothing of any account doing on the market, with prices unchanged as follows: Best feeders, 900 to 1000 lbs. each, at $3.75 to $4.25 per cwt.; medium, from $3.60 to $4; stockers, $3 to $3, and $2.75 to $3.

Milkers and Springers.

There was a fair delivery of milkers and springers, with some few good cows among the number. The bulk of those offered were bought up for the local trade. Prices ranged from $30 to $60.

Veal Calves.

Upwards of 100 calves sold at $3 to $7 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Receipts of sheep and lambs were light, with prices firm, as follows: Grain-fed lambs sold at $6.50 to $7 per cwt.; common lambs, $5.50 to $6 per cwt.; export ewes, $4 to $4.50; rams, $3.25 to $3.75.

Hogs.

Receipts light. Mr. Harris quoted prices unchanged at $6.60 for selects fed and watered and $6.40 f.o.b. cars at country points to drovers.

A Naval Captain "Detached."

Fort Monroe, Va., Feb. 24.—The battleship Kearsage came home without Capt. Hamilton M. Hutchins.

Capt. Hutchins was detached from the command of his ship by Admiral Sperry late on the evening of Feb. 1, in Gibraltar. The fleet sailed the next morning at 10 o'clock.

A Priest Weds.

Denver, Colo., Feb. 24.—Disregarding his vow of celibacy, Father J. A. Ryan, until recently connected with St. Leo's Catholic Church in Denver, was married to Miss Sadie Moran of Ogden, Utah, on Jan. 20, at Colorado Springs. The fact was discovered yesterday.

The Boy and the Apples.

Here is the latest from Dr. Macnamara's budget of schoolboy stories. When he was Parliamentary Secretary of the British Board of Trade he visited a school and asked a boy, who was learning vulgar fractions, which he would prefer — the fifteenth or sixteenth part of an apple. Thinking, perhaps, that it sounded more, the boy replied the sixteenth part. "I looked pained," said Dr. Macnamara, "and the boy hastened to add, 'But, I don't like apples.'"

PHILOSOPHY OF WOMEN.

It is what we will to will, not what we will,
That makes us what we are.
There is no death but that which we do bring
Upon ourselves while yet we seem to live.
—Amelie Rives (Princess Troubetzkoy.)

When pain grows sharp and sickness rages
The greatest love of life appears.
—Mrs. Thrale.

Space is against thee—it can part;
Time is against thee—it can chill;
Words—they but render half the heart;
Deeds—they are poor to our rich will.
—Jean Ingelow.

We speak of saints and enthusiasts for good as if some special gifts were made to them in middle age which are withheld from other men. Is it not rather that some few souls keep alive the lamp of zeal and high desire which God fights for most of us while life is young.—Mrs. Ewing.

The most popular people during the last decade of the nineteenth century were the people who had had influenza and so could discuss it in all its various stages, but whose recorded temperature had always kept one degree lower than the temperature of those with whom they conversed. There is a subtle flattery in a slight inferiority of temperature which even sanctified human nature cannot resist.

The common lot is the best thing that this life has to offer, and, luckily for us, the best of us are fit for nothing better, since there is nothing better this side of heaven.—Ellen Thorneycroft Fowler.

When Tired—

Don't talk any more than you can help. Talking takes vitality.

Lie down in a dark place, if only for fifteen minutes.

Don't read anything in which you are not interested.

Don't feel that everything must be done in one day. There are 364 more.

Realize that it is better to leave things undone than overdo yourself.

And don't forget that a little lemon juice in cold water in the morning is a great help.

The Toad Survived.

An experiment bordering close to the wonderful was recently made in the clay testing department of a machinery company at Bucyrus, O., in which a toad was placed in a twenty ton brick press and was four times subjected to a pressure of 11,000 pounds without injury. The question at issue was whether such a pressure would kill the toad or whether its ability to compress itself was sufficient to allow it to come out of the ordeal alive. The toad was first placed in a lump of granulous clay and the whole pressed into a brick. After the huge press had done its work the solid brick was lifted from the machine, and the toad winked its eyes contentedly, stretched its legs and hopped away.—Popular Mechanics.

A Parliamentary Scene.

Talking about dramatic scenes in parliament, of which we have had several in both houses this session, we wonder if our readers have heard of the scene some weeks ago in the assembly of South Australia. During a debate the prime minister stated that some gamblers had cut off a comrade's finger because he had joined the Salvation Army. A member questioned the truth of this statement, when the prime minister astonished the house by dramatically stretching forth his hand with a bottle in it, exclaiming, "Here is the finger and the deposition accompanying it!" Our daughter parliament has beaten us for grewsomeness this time.—London Chronicle.

Whistling Sign of Contempt.

A Moroccan shows his contempt of anything by whistling. A conflict between tribesmen and a battalion of French troops was recently precipitated by the whistling of a locomotive on a railway being constructed near Casablanca. "The giaours are laughing at us," said a chieftain when the construction engine gave a toot to warn the natives at work on the line to look out. The Arabs went wild, mounted their horses and rode on the whistling enemy. They had to be calmed with the whistling of rifle balls.

Eczema, Salt Rheum.

Eczema or Salt Rheum, as it is often called, is one of the most agonizing of skin diseases. It manifests itself in little round blisters, which contain an extremely irritating fluid. These break and subsequently a crust or scale is formed.

The intense burning, itching and smarting, especially at night or when the part is exposed to any strong heat, are almost unbearable.

The pre-eminent success which Burdock Blood Bitters has met with in permanently curing a disease of such severity is due to its wonderful blood cleansing and purifying properties.

No other remedy has done, or can do, so much for those who are almost driven to distraction with the terrible torture, as our thousands of signed testimonials can testify to.

Mrs. John O'Connor, Burlington, N.S., writes:—"For years I suffered with Salt Rheum. I tried a dozen different medicines, but most of them only made it worse. I was advised to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I got a bottle and before I had taken half a dozen doses I could see a change so I continued its use and now I am completely cured. I cannot say too much for your wonderful medicine."

MISS GREEN MARRIES.

Millionaires' Daughter Weds Former Galt Man.

Morristown, N.Y., Feb. 24.—Miss Sylvia Green, daughter of Mrs. Hetty Green of New York, one of the wealthiest women in America, was married at noon yesterday to Matthew Astor Wilks. Mr. Wilks, who is about 65 years old, is the great-grandson of John Jacob Astor. Mrs. Green, and her daughter have been living in a modest apartment in Hoboken, but yesterday morning came to this city with a wedding party of about 50 persons in a special car.

Arriving somewhat in advance of the hour of the wedding, the party went to a Morristown inn and remained there until shortly before noon, when the party proceeded to St. Peter's Episcopal Church, where the marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. Philsmon Sturges, the rector. Miss Green wore a simple brown traveling dress, while Mrs. Green wore her customary black satin.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilks will start on a wedding trip, and it is understood will visit Galt, Ontario.

It is said that not until Sunday last did the daughter gain her mother's consent to the marriage, although Mr. Wilk's courtship had been in progress for some ten years. It is said Mrs. Green's objections to Mr. Wilks was his age—he is 65.

When Mrs. Green dies her daughter, who is her only heir, will have an income of about $5,000 a day. Mr. Wilks is worth about $2,000,000.

MAY GET A FORTUNE.

St. Catharines' Resident May Be Heir to Millionaire.

St. Catharines, Feb. 24.—Romance in the life of a millionaire touches the life of a resident in this city in a peculiar way.

When the will of Samuel Roebuck, a wealthy manufacturer of Brooklyn, N.Y., was read last Thursday his wife and children were astonished to find that he had left a bulk of the estate to children of a daughter of whom they had never heard, Elizabeth Bird of Northampton, England. Enquiry in that city revealed the fact that Mrs. Elisabeth Bird is the keeper of a small grocery, and that she is about 60 years old, and declares that Roebuck deserted her mother when the daughter was about 10 years old.

To a son of Mrs. Bird, now living in this city, his mother sent a number of the Christmas cards that Roebuck had sent her of recent years, and the son hopes to share in the inheritance from a grandfather, of whom till now he knew next to nothing.

Manitoba's 'Phone Profits.

Winnipeg, Feb. 24.—Hon. Robert Rogers laid on the table of the Legislature the statement of the Telephone Department for the first eleven and a half months of Government operation. It showed that there was a surplus of $380.001. The receipts were $722,612.67, and the expenditures were $342,617.57.

During the period mentioned from Jan. 15 to Dec. 31 the work of telephone construction and addition of new subscribers has resulted in the increase of 1,468 miles of long-distance lines, 418 miles of new long-distance poles, the opening of 29 new exchanges and offices and a net increase of 2,158 telephone subscribers' stations, the whole increasing the annual revenue by $81,231.

THREE TRAINMEN FOUND GUILTY

Stratford Railroaders Are Convicted of Manslaughter.

RECOMMENDED TO MERCY

Jury In Trial of Grand Trunk Men Find That Harriston Disaster Was Due to Criminal Negligence—Verdict Arrived at Late This Morning—Sentence Will Be Delivered on Saturday Morning.

Guelph, Feb. 24.—After being out for nearly four hours the jury trying Conductor Fleming, Engineer Kennedy and Fireman Lane, the Stratford trainmen, here, yesterday on charges of manslaughter in connection with the fatal wreck near Harriston on Jan. 14, brought in a verdict of guilty of criminal negligence against the three men. The jury in returning their verdict added a strong recommendation for mercy. Mr. Justice Riddell, in remanding the men for sentence until a week from Saturday, promised that he would give the recommendation due consideration.

The verdict was brought in at 1.45 a.m. this morning, a great crowd waiting into the morning hours to hear the disposal of the case. At 1.30 a.m. the jury came in, and stated that they had agreed on a verdict in one case, but were in doubt concerning the other. His lordship again charged them strongly, and sent them back to the jury room. The evidence in the case was concluded at 6 o'clock. Mr. T. C. Robinette, K. C., occupied fifty minutes in summing up the case for the defence, and Mr. Nicol Jeffrey, crown counsel, took the same time to make his address. His lordship in an address of an hour's length charged very strongly against the prisoners, reminding the jury of the necessity of safeguarding public life and property, and pointing out the clear neglect of duty on the part of the prisoners as shown by the evidence.

The three trainmen gave evidence during the day, their stories being the same as brought out at the inquest and preliminary hearing. Sentence will be imposed on Saturday week. Meantime they are released on the same bail as before.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

King Edward held his first levee of the season at St. James' Palace at noon yesterday, which was well attended.

The Lindsay Daily Free Press, which began publication last May, has given up. There are two others in the field.

Nelson Dessler, who shot and killed Police Captain Hassett early on Sunday, died at 7.30 o'clock yesterday from wounds in his fight with the police.

Rear-Admiral Goodrich of the U. S. navy believes that battleships twice the size of the largest now building will be launched in the not far distant future.

There is a move on foot to have Canada's next Governor-General sworn in at Ottawa instead of at Halifax or Quebec, which, with one exception, has been the custom in the past.

The Maple Leaf Hotel at Lumsden, Sask., was completely destroyed by fire yesterday. The loss is $15,000, with $8,000 insurance. The town recently passed a local option measure.

Charles August Tiroux, second vice-president and local manager of the Banque d'Hochelaga, Montreal, dropped dead yesterday morning on the way to his office. He was about 50 years of age.

It is charged that owing to the overcrowded condition of the fever wing of the Hamilton City Hospital, scarlet fever patients were put in the diphtheria ward of the hospital with patients suffering from that disease.

Dr. Bell's New Airship.

Sydney, N.S., Feb. 24.—Dr. Alexander Graham Bell's new tetrahedral airship Cygnet II. made a trial trip over Bras d'Or Lakes, with Douglas MacCurdy as navigator. The final was made from an automobile running along the ice. Shortly after the machine had got under way one of the propellors broke, and the ship came slowly down, scarcely damaging the huge, yet fragile, framework.

The Cygnet is constructed on the tetrahedral principle, having upwards of 5,000 cells, and is the first of its kind ever sent up with a motor and man aboard.

The Vansickle Will.

Hamilton, Feb. 24.—That there was no cause for the rumors of foul play in connection with the death of the of the Vansickle family at Lynden about a month ago is proven by the will left by Philip Vansickle. By its provisions the beneficiaries share alike. Owing to the death of the three of the beneficiaries the estate is being divided as evenly as possible. The estate was worth about $3,000.

Indicted For Graft.

Utica, N.Y., Feb. 24.—A grand jury sitting in this city for the purpose of investigating irregularities discovered in the conduct of business of the county, as disclosed by the report made by former State Comptroller Martin H. Glynn, yesterday reported indictments against Fred E. Swancott, John W. Peter, John Collins and Samuel H. Jones.

Tariff For Revenue Only.

Washington, Feb. 24.—The Democratic Senators are going to be divided when the tariff bill reaches them next session as to the best policy to be pursued. They are a unit on the general principle that the tariff should be based on the demands of the Government for revenue, rather than on protection.

Chatham Is In Darkness.

Chatham, Feb. 24.—The City Council have decided to advertise for tenders for the installation of either a magnetite or an alternating system at the local civic electric light plant.

The dynamos at the local plant all went to pieces a few days ago, and Chatham is now in darkness every night.

EASIER REFERENDUM.

New Municipal Act Designed to Simplify Popular Vote.

Toronto, Feb. 24.—In the Legislature yesterday, the program outlined by Premier Whitney last week, of diligent application to business, was carefully followed. Quite a large instalment of routine was cleared off, including second readings for five of the new revision statutes, and the advance through the committee stage of thirteen others. The bill to provide prompt punishment for personation at election was under consideration. After deciding that the measure would apply to all towns over 5,000 inhabitants it was left for further consideration.

Sir James Whitney, in moving the second reading of the bill to amend the Municipal Act, stated that the object of the bill was to enable municipal councils to hold elections on questions on which they desired to have the mandate of the people at any time during the year. At present these are held in conjunction with the general municipal elections, and the delay was often inconvenient and embarrassing, as was the case in connection with the Cataract power contract in Hamilton.

The bill changing the fiscal year was also advanced a stage.

Hon. Frank Cochrane introduced a bill to amend the Forest Reserve Act, providing for the town site of Gowganda. As the site is in a forest reserve, special legislation is required to enable the Government to grant title to purchases of lots.

Phil Bowyer introduced a bill to amend the Pharmacy Act.

A. E. Fripp will introduce a bill to amend the Assessment Act.

KING EDWARD'S GIFT.

His Majesty Presents Turkish Ruler With a Charger.

London, Feb. 24.—King Edward is making the Sultan of Turkey a present of a charger once the property of Richard Croker.

Some weeks ago the Sultan was asked by high officials to proceed sometimes to the mosque on horseback instead in his carriage, in order that his subjects might have a better chance seeing him. The Sultan replied with a smile.

"Yes, if a bay horse can be found with three white spots on his feet, one on each hind foot and one on a fore foot, a white spot between the eyes and a tail reaching to the ground."

This was reported to King Edward, who telegraphed throughout the United Kingdom enquiring if such a horse were procurable. A beautiful animal answering the description was found in the stud of Lord Ribblesdale and was secured by the King.

The horse formerly belonged to Mr. Croker and took first prize at the Dublin Horse Show. The King, The Chronicle says, has christened the charger with his own title "Rex, Imperator."

B. C. Hotbed of Indian Sedition.

Victoria, B. C., Feb. 24.—Sensational statements regarding the collection of funds with which rifles and ammunition are purchased by a Bengalese in Seattle to arm disaffected natives in Bengal against the British Government, were made in the Police Court by Narain Singh, a Sikh giving evidence in an assault case. It was alleged that a local teacher and a Vancouver priest are collecting the moneys to send munitions of war to Bengal.

Investigation is being made by the Attorney-General's Department.

To Harness Fundy Tides.

St. John, N.B., Feb. 24.—With the idea of harnessing the world famous tides of the Bay of Fundy and utilising the latent power therein contained for mechanical purposes, a company has been organized and will petition the Dominion Parliament for an act of incorporation.

In its petition the company indicates that its purpose is to develop electric power, and it seeks authority to construct dams across a large number of rivers in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia subject to the laws with reference to navigable rivers.

Wife Fights Annulment.

Montreal, Feb. 24.—Judge Martineau of the Superior Court yesterday annulled the marriage of Augustus H. Agnew, son of a rich family, who married while under age, and a cadet in Kingston to a Miss Gober, a school teacher.

Miss Gober is a southerner, and the Agnews have prominent connections in Ontario and Quebec.

The fight has been going on on behalf of the boy's parents for several years now, and will probably be continued, as the wife intends to appeal to the Privy Council.

Children Burned to Death.

St. John, N.B., Feb. 24.—About 7.30 yesterday morning Mrs. T. S. Greatorex of Hoyt, went out to a store, leaving three boys, aged 5, 4 and 2 years, in the house. Returning in fifteen minutes she found the house in flames, probably caused by the upsetting of a lamp. The boys were burned to death.

May Be Earl of Dudley.

Ottawa, Feb. 24.—It is unofficially stated here that the Earl of Dudley may succeed Earl Grey as Governor-General of Canada when the latter's term expires next fall. In official circles there is no confirmation of the rumor, although Earl Dudley's appointment is considered as a probability.

Toronto Man Killed.

Winnipeg, Feb. 24.—Two men were killed and one seriously injured in a freight wreck early yesterday on the C.P.R. main line at Ingolf, 90 miles east of here.

Their names are given as Myers Goldstein, O'Brien and Wm. Robinson of Toronto.

Didn't Work Third Degree.

Newark, N.J., Feb. 24.—Chief of Police Michael Corbitt denies the accuracy of the report published on Feb. 4, stating that Mrs. Mary J. Wilhelm had been subjected by the police to what is known as the "third degree." An investigation shows that the so-called "third degree" was not made use of. Her request to view the body of her murdered husband was complied with, the visit to the undertaker's being made at night to avoid publicity.

SAYS CANADA HAS BEEN EASY

Major Currie Criticizes Dominion's Treaty Record.

AYLESWORTH BILL DEBATED

Minister of Justice's Illicit Commissions Measure Comes Up For Discussion and Is Given Its Third Reading—North Simcoe Member Says Canada Is Being Continually Cheated by the U. S.

Ottawa, Feb. 24.—Have Canada's interests been sacrificed to the United States in the making of treaties? The boundary treaty of 1908, Major Currie (North Simcoe) claims, gives a part of islands in boundary waters declared by the Ashburton treaty to be in Canada to our neighbor, and, according to the major, it looks like a trick perpetrated by Uncle Sam's negotiations.

On the motion to go into supply yesterday afternoon Major Currie brought up the question. In previous negotiations Canada had lost the states of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Missouri and Michigan, and when the recent boundary treaty was negotiated he had made up his mind that we would be gold-bricked. As a matter of fact, we had been. He found that in the recent boundary treaty we had suffered the loss of more territory to the state of Minnesota through the diversion of the line to interest the islands on the boundary. This territory was Hunter Island, in the Pigeon River.

The Ashburton treaty gave Hunter Island to Canada. The two drafts of the 1908 treaty declared that the boundary line "should not intersect islands lying along its course." In the treaty, as signed and published as a sessional paper the word "not" is dropped out, so that Hunter Island and other islands in boundary waters will be divided, and one-half given to the United States.

"The less we had to do with the United States' in treaty-making the better, because we invariably got the worst of it," remarked Major Currie, who also criticized the Japanese treaty, saying it had been entered into hurriedly, to the sacrifice of Canadian interests. He was as anxious as anyone to preserve peace and he hoped there would not be trouble. England was under the shadow of a great war and we, as loyal Canadians, must seek to preserve peace."

Sir Wilfrid Laurier complained that Major Currie had not given notice of his intention to bring up the subject. It was six months since the treaty had been before him, but he would refresh his memory and give an answer on another occasion. As to the Japanese treaty, the criticism was not warranted by the facts. This treaty had been lived up to, and no one regretted that it had been entered into, as it had preserved the trade between the two countries, and the Japanese Government had faithfully carried out its agreement as to the restriction of emigration to this country.

The waterways treaty, Sir Wilfrid observed, was fair and reasonable, giving equal justice to both countries.

The Prime Minister was unable yesterday afternoon to inform Mr. Borden when the budget speech would be delivered.

The House went into committee of Mr. Aylesworth's bill to prevent the payment or acceptance of illicit commissions. Mr. Aylesworth said he had considered the objections to the bill. He agreed that the general provisions of the criminal code should apply and he had no objection to Mr. Crothers suggesting that two magistrates should sit at the summary trial of an offender under this statute. This was an additional guarantee of a fair trial.

The public accounts committee got down to work in the morning and discussed a dredging contract in Quebec.

Valiquette, engineer of the Public Works Department at Quebec, testified that Dussalt & Lemieux received a contract for dredging in Quebec harbor at 75 cents per cubic yard in places and 32 cents for filling. The Government supplied one dredge and got a rebate of 20 cents per cubic yard; but the contractors also had three dredges at work.

Mr. Northrup said the contractors reaped 55 cents per cubic yard for doing nothing, but the Liberal members objected to this line of procedure, and a lively discussion arose, in which several of the new Conservative members objected vigorously to the witness being interrupted.

Valiquette insisted that, considering the class of work, the prices "were fair and just."

It is expected that Hon. Mr. Fielding will bring down in the Commons in a few days the insurance bill as revised according to suggestions made by the committee of the House which had the original draft of the bill under consideration last session.

While the chief features of the bill have been retained in the redrafted measure in respect to the provisions for securing more readable and detailed reports by insurance companies to the Government as to details of investments of funds, it is understood that there has been some modification of the provisions specifying the class of securities in which these funds may be invested.

Too Poor to Be a Pastor.

Chicago, Feb. 24.—"I leave the ministry for money. I cannot afford to preach the gospel. I am too poor."

Such statement was made by Rev. Ferdinand S. Rockwell, organizer and pastor of the Sheridan Park M. E. Church, after he had talked to Bishop William F. McDowell. He has given up the ministry for the automobile business.

Babe Accidentally Shot.

London, Feb. 24.—Hugo Stott, the three-year-old baby boy of Mr. John Stott, a machinist of Maitland street, in some way got a loaded 45 calibre revolver from a draw, and in playing discharged it, the ball entering his heart and killing him instantly.

PETERBOROUGH WEDNESDAY FEBRUARY 24 1909

TAX RATE FOR PETERBORO LIKELY TO BE 20 MILLS ESTIMATES FOR THE YEAR HAVE BEEN BROUGHT IN Council Confirmed Ald. Morrow's Figures in Committee of the Whole Council on Tuesday Night—Majority of the Aldermen Favoured Increase in the Rate This Year to Prevent Overdrafts From Committees.

THE FINANCE COMMITTEE RECOMMENDED THAT IT BE 19 MILLS

It is altogether likely that the rate of taxation for Peterboro this year will be struck at 20 mills on the dollar, an increase of three mills over last year's rate. Finance Minister Morrow brought down his budget at the meeting of the Committee of the whole Council, submitting his estimates for the year and giving the recommendation of the Finance Committee that the rate should be 19 mills. There was considerable objection to this from a number of the aldermen. Ald. Hicks thought that the estimates had been cut down too low, and that at least 20½ mills would be necessary. Ald. Turner thought 20 mills would be sufficient and the Mayor and other members agreed with the suggestion. It looked as if 20 mills would be adopted, but a motion to leave the matter over until Monday night's meeting of the council was carried.

By-law For $10,000 For Board Of Education To Be Submitted

That $10,000 asked for by the Board of Education for the additional cost of building the Collegiate Institute came in for some more raps at the hands of some of the members of the council when it was introduced at the meeting of the committee of the whole council on Tuesday night. It was brought up with the report of the finance committee in recommending the estimates for the year, the committee recommending that a by-law be issued to raise the money by debentures. Alderman Hicks characterized the action of the Board of Education as a very smooth way of doing business. The Board has asked the people for an addition amount of $50,000, which was defeated and then they modified their request to $21,000, which was granted. In asking for that amount the Board had stated that they would have $2,000 to come and go on. They did not mention that they would need $10,000 for furnishing and equipment and yet they must have known of it at the time. Alderman Hicks said that he would oppose the passing of a by-law for $10,000 before the first of next year. He thought the council should wait until then and let the Board pay interest on their deficit until such time as the by-law was submitted.

Alderman Buller said that the city would have to pay the amount out of current rate, unless the debentures were issued.

Alderman Morrow expressed himself as being in favour of the by-law being passed now. The money had been expended and the city would have to provide. It would be better to do it now and save the city the extra cost of holding it over until next year.

Alderman Bradburn remarked that at a previous meting he had agreed with Alderman Hicks in the matter, but that he had changed his mind after going into the question with the finance committee of the Board of Education. He thought the people should pay more attention to the election of school trustees.

Alderman Hicks moved, seconded by Alderman Duncan, that the by-law for $10,000 for the Board of Education be submitted at the municipal elections next year.

Alderman Morrow moved in amendment, seconded by Alderman Phelan, that the recommendation of the Finance Committee, that a by-law be passed this year, and the amendment was carried.

ASH WEDNESDAY.

This is Ash Wednesday and the beginning of Lent. It is interesting to know the origin and the rites of the day. Ash Wednesday, so-called because on this day the faithful within the Holly Catholic Church have ashes of palms placed on their foreheads as a sign of penitence.

The ceremony began, probably, under Gregory the Great in the sixth century, A.D.; it was sanctioned by Pope Celstin in the 12th century, and has prevailed in the Catholic Church ever since.

The ashes used are the burnt residue of the palms carried in the procession by the faithful, in celebration of Christ's triumphal entry into Jerusalem (Palm Sunday). After the procession the palms are taken home and kept a year and then burnt for the rites of Ash Wednesday.

This solemn service of the Holy Catholic Church properly introduces the 40 days of Lent in commemoration of our Divine Lord's time of fasting in the wilderness of Judea.

During mass on Ash Wednesday the faithful advance to the altar railing. There they kneel, while the priest takes up between finger and thumb a pinch of palm ashes and places them on the forehead of each penitent in the sign of the cross, repeating as he does so the words, Memento quod cinis es, et cinerem reverteris—Dust, thou art and into thou shalt return.

The Calvinistic Protestant Church and the other sectarian Protestant branches do not observe Ash Wednesday. In the Anglican Church, however, it is observed, but without anything of the ceremony from which the day derives its name. It is a beautiful and spiritualizing ceremony. And Lent itself is spiritually apprehended and fulfilled will purify any soul, and fit it for better living in this coarse world where material pursuits eyes away from heaven.

THE EXAMINER WILL ENDEAVOUR TO HELP UNEMPLOYED OBTAIN POSITIONS

In another column of this issue appears an offer from the Examiner to publish free of charge advertisements from unemployed people who are seeking situations. There are very many people in Peterboro just now who are out of employment, and the Examine has decided to throw open its advertising columns to them in order that they may be helped to find positions. Until further notice the Examiner then will publish all ads. of this kind that may be sent in with no charge to the person submitting them. People wanting positions as labourers, mechanics, book-keepers, clerks, cooks, house maids, or in any other line are invited to make use of the advertising department of this paper. They should understand that there is no charge whatever, and that the Examiner will do everything in its power to secure positions for them.

BY-LAWS FOR $120,000 FOR NEW WATER WORKS DAM AND $15,000 FOR POWER HOUSE TO BE SUBMITTED

Matter Was Taken up by the Committee of Whole Council—Recommendation of the Finance Committee Was Adopted.

PASSED ON MONDAY NIGHT.

The committee of the whole Council decided at its meeting on Tuesday night to submit to the ratepayers bylaws providing for the borrowing of $120,000 for the construction of a new water works dam and the erection of a power house to be situated at the site of the new dam. The decision followed the recommendation from the Power Committee, which had taken up the matter with the Water Commissioners at a meeting recently.

Ald. Morrow read the recommendation from the Power Committee, which was to the effect that the two bylaws, as mentioned above, should be submitted to the people at as early a date as possible. The Water Commissioners were anxious to get the work under way as soon as it could be arranged.

The clause in regard to the water works dam was accepted without comment, but there was considerable discussion in connection with the building of a power house at that point.

Ald. Morrow stated that the engineers had given the information that the erection of the power house at the same time as the dam was being built would prove cheaper and more satisfactory and he was in favour of submitting the bylaw at the same time as the other and get the building erected as soon as possible. He pointed out that there would be some 700 h.p. available for use by the city either for lighting the streets or for sale to small manufacturers, who might require power.

Ald. Hicks did not think that there need be any hurry in building the power house, and thought that it would be soon enough to submit the by-law in January next. Another by-law to provide for the cost of equipping the plant would be necessary, and if action was delayed the two might be resolved into one. He was in favour of submitting the water commissioners' by-law at once and saving the other over until next year.

Ald. Morrow moved, seconded by Ald. Morgan, that the recommendations of the Power Committee be adopted.—Carried.

On motion of Ald. Morrow and Duncan, Ald. Hicks was appointed a member of the Power Committee.

Port Hope Townspeople In Fear Of Smallpox Leave The Streets Almost Deserted Traveller Gives Reporter Usual Account of the Way the Disease Broke Out—Quarantined in the Hotel.

FROM HOSPITAL TENT.

"We're here because we're here" coming in chorus from young men at upstair windows of a quarantined hotel in Port Hope was one of the unusual sights a traveller witnessed a short time ago in that town.

To an Examiner reporter he stated that the great majority of the people are so frightened at the outbreak of smallpox that they scarcely ever trust themselves out-of-doors. This may be an exaggeration but the traveller maintained it to be a fact and further stated that the effect of this condition was evident in the deserted streets in comparison to what existed before the outbreak. When a case was reported in this hotel it was placed in quarantine and the boarders were under seige. It was rather amusing to see the young men at the windows lustily singing "we're here, etc."

The traveller was asked how the outbreak occurred and one of the accounts that is popularly entertained is rather strange if true.

Several years ago the town had a case which was isolated in an hospital tent. When the patient had recovered it is stated that the tent was not burned. It is further claimed by many of the people that this tent was brought out some time ago and was hung up over some men engaged in municipal work. Not a few of them refused to work, and of those who remained one contracted the disease.

This is the travellers statement of how Port Hope was inoculated with its present epidemic of smallpox, an account which the traveller stated was in circulation in the Lake Shore town.

PROSPEROUS OUTLOOK FOR CANADIAN GENERAL

The Canadian Courier is printing from week to week the opinions of prominent industrial and financial Canadians as to the outlook for 1909. The following reply forwarded before the awards of the Hydro-electric contract to the Canadian General Electric) vice-president of the Canadian General Electric Company, will be of especial interest to Peterborough as indicating a prosperous future for our largest industrial establishment.

Sir,—In reply to your letter of 6th instant will say, I do not think this will be one of Canada's big years, but I know the trade conditions have materially improved during the past few months, and expect that from this time forward they will continue to improve, with the result that the year's average will be quite satisfactory.

In manufacturing establishments, contracts received for production generally take from weeks to months to complete, after receipt of order, according to the nature of the transaction, so that no matter how many contracts may be closed during the latter half of this year, they will mostly inure to the benefit of 1910.

This company has secured more new business during the last two months than during the preceding six months, and we have more inquiries on our books than we have had since 1906, and are therefore looking to the future with confidence.

Yours truly,
FREDERIC NICHOLLS.

Peterborough May Get Annual Convention Of Hardwaremen

Examiner Special.

Toronto, Feb. 24.—The next annual convention of the Ontario Retail Hardwaremen's Association may be held in Peterborough. Secretary Weston Wrigley stated to-day that there were but two places under discussion—London and Peterborough—and as yet the Association was undecided as to which would be chosen.

If Peterborough can provide a hall to accommodate some 250 or 300 persons as well as a hall for an exhibit and has sufficient hotel accommodation it will be seriously considered.

The convention this year met at Hamilton and was a big success, hardwaremen being present from all parts of Ontario. Mr. Wrigley, the secretary of the Association, is the editor of Hardware and Metal, Toronto.

Canadian Pacific To Rush Its New Line On To Peterboro

Referring to the C.P.R. grain route from Toronto to Sudbury and the connecting link from Coldwater to Peterborough, the Midland Argus says:

That branch of the C.P.R. from Toronto to Sudbury commenced about two years ago and completed and opened for traffic late last year together with the short line from Coldwater to their connection on Georgian Bay, between Victoria Harbour and Midland, being out of the way, the company are taking steps to push forward the construction of the connecting link between Coldwater and Peterborough, for which surveys and other preliminary work have been going on for some time.

There has been some little difficulty regarding right of way and water lots at Orillia, together with crossings, but only a few days ago this was settled to the satisfaction of the town and company, and the announcement is now made that the work of construction will go on during the coming summer. Large quantities of material for dock work and the like at Flat Point have been delivered during the past few months and work is being pushed west of the Grand Trunk Tracks, presumably to the elevator, but so far no contracts have been let for this latter work, and no material that would signify has been brought forward.

There does not appear any particular desire on the part of the company to push the elevator construction just at present, and it would not be surprising to see them withdraw active operation at this end in the spring and direct their attention to this new piece of road from Coldwater to Peterborough. There is no particular hurry for their elevators until this line is completed, or at least well under way, and by that time there may be very material changes in their plans regarding their elevator locations on Georgian Bay. There has been a waiting game played in connection with the Flat Point location for two years now, which is apparently all being done for a purpose, and this purpose will be revealed before a very great while now.

Norwood Will Try To Secure Agricultural Teacher For School

Having lost its Model School, the village of Norwood is going to make a vigorous effort to secure an Agricultural Department for its High School. This is a new branch of education which is being tried in only a few places, Lindsay being one of those towns to obtain it. The aim is to teach communities which are situated centrally in a good farming district. A teacher of agriculture is added to the staff, the government providing for his salary. A pure seed office is instituted in connection with the school, which proves a great benefit to all the farmers.

The Norwood School Board has taken up the question and intends to try and secure this advantage. The Village Council will likely assist in the matter, and the County Council is expected to help in the matter. A deputation will in all probability be formed to wait on the Government before the present session is concluded.

DORANDO TO TAKE LONGBOAT'S PLACE IN THE BIG RACE

STREET WATERING BY-LAW HELD OVER FOR AWHILE

Ald. Phelan had an idea in his mind last night at the meeting of the committee of the whole Council of having a by-law prepared ready for an early arrangement of the street watering service, but he had to withdraw his motion to that effect. He had no sooner mentioned the subject than some one wanted to know if the streets to be watered were the same as last year. Nearly all the aldermen had some streets to mention that they thought required attention and accordingly the chairman of the Board of Works thought it would be better to withdraw his motion for the time being until the matter has been arranged.

GAVE AN ADDRESS AT MURRAY STREET CHURCH

On Monday night Mr. Duncan Walker gave an address at the meeting of the Young People of Murray street Baptist Church. His subject was "Characters from Dickens," and were confined to David Copperfield. Mr. Walter Garbutt occupied the chair. During the evening Miss Hardill and Miss Routly sang. Mr. Walker's address was greatly appreciated.

BRAKEMEN GO ON SUSPENDED SENTENCE

Examiner Special (2.45 p. m.)

Guelph, Feb. 24.—Brakemen Burgman and Alexander pleaded guilty on a negligence charge in connection with the Harriston wreck to-day and were released by Judge Riddel on suspended sentence. Jackson pleaded not guilty and will be tried by fall assizes.

LENTEN SERVICES WERE CELEBRATED THIS MORNING

The beginning of Lent is being celebrated to-day at St. Peter's Cathedral and in the Anglican Churches. In the former masses were celebrated at 8 and 9 o'clock this morning and this evening there will be service at 7:30 o'clock. At St. John's Church this morning lenten service was celebrated at 11 o'clock by Rev. Cannon Davidson, assisted by Rev. Mr. Soward. To-night at eight o'clock there will be services at which Rev. H. R. Trumpour will preach at St. Luke's Church. Rev. Dr. Langfeldt will preach at the sermon during the services, which begin at eight o'clock.

PANCAKE SOCIAL AT ST. JOHN'S WAS A SUCCESS

The Pancake social at St. John's church last evening was a success fo evemry standpoint. Despte the inclement weather and a large number of counter attractions, a good attendance was present.

The Mandolin Club rendered several elections in a very pleasing manner; Mr. Roe gave two very enjoyable readings; Messrs. Greenhalge and Chandler, in their usual efficient style, gave a vocal duet, and Mr. F. R. Clarke gave some excellent selections on the banjo. Mr. Roy mystified the audience with his series of sleight-of-hand tricks, much to the satisfaction of the audience.

A party of seventeen young ladies took part in the tableaux, Reveries of a Bachelor, which part of the evening's entertainment was specially enjoyed. A sumptuous feast of pancakes, furnished by Coleman Bros., made a fitting end to a pleasant entertainement

Hockey Team Upset Into A Roadside Pond Of Cold Water

The journey of the T.A.S. Hockey Team to Keene on Monday evening was one succession of experiences which have been indelibly stamped on the minds of those who composed the party. The boys had engaged a sleigh, but the roads, owing to the rain and mild weather, were bare in many places. It was evident at the outset trouble would be experienced, but not in such large doses as were subsequently served. On the way down they had only proceeded about four miles on the trip when the sleigh canted to one side and turned turtle, hurling the husky seven into a miniature lake on the road side which was even superior to some of those found in the city. According to report there was not a man to escape the water, many being wet higher than the waist. But an even worse feature was that all the grips and travelling bags were badly soaked, and the players went on the ice in Keene with wet sweaters, stockings and all, and was partly responsible for the nine goals that Keene scored.

The boys walked about eight miles each way, and at one time four of them were absent a half an hour, having run on ahead in Marathon form. Altogether it was a trip never to be forgotten, and particularly the spectacular upset into the ice cold water by the roadside.

WILL NOT GO TO LAKEFIELD TO-NIGHT

The Strathconas will not journey to Lakefield to-night for the final game of the home and home series with the Cementville team. The High Commissioners were prepared to go in spite of the weather outlook, but word was recived from Lakefield at three o'clock this afternoon that there was water on the ice and that there would be no use in attempting to play the game to-night. It will likely be pulled off on Friday night. Both teams are confident of winning the game.

MAY PURCHASE BANK BUILDING FOR CLUB

It is understood that the Peterborough Club is discussing a plan to purchase the old Bank of Montreal building at the corner of Simcoe and Water streets, for use as a club building for the members. It is thought that the old bank building could be re-modelled so is to make an excellent and roomy club, such as the members of the flourishing local organization have been desiring for some time. The club rooms now used in the Bank of Commerce building, while well equipped and cosy, are not thought commodious enough and it is likely that the club will decide upon the purchase of the other building which, it is expected, would meet all the requirements of the organization.

SOCK SOCIAL WAS A SUCCESS

The Young People of St. Luke's Church Spend Pleasant Evening.

On Monday last a very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Archambault, No. 453 Elm street, when a party assembled to the number of twenty for card playing and other games, after which refreshments were served. The party broke up by Mr. and Mrs. Archambault singing Auld Lang Syne.

POST CARD COLUMN.

Editor Post Card Column:

Dear Sir,—If a foreigner has lived in Canada for a number of years and has never taken the oath of allegiance, are his children considered as Canadians or foreigners?

Very truly,

ENLARGE ELECTRIC WORKS.

A rumour is current to the effect that the works of the Canadian General Electric Company will have to be enlarged. What gives weight to such a rumour is the fact that if the large contracts awarded to the company are filled with the proper degree of promptitude, the present manufacturing capacity of the works will have to be substantially increased. The contract for Niagara Falls power transmission as announced exclusively in Tuesday's issue of the Examiner, is a big thing in itself. But when we come to add the big contract for the same work, awarded to the Canadian General Electric Company, a day or two before the general elections, last October solely through the direct influence of Mr. J. H. Burnham, the Conservative candidate and his powerful party allies, Messrs. T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P., and Mr. Jas. Kendry, the rumour of enlargement of the works is to be accounted as reliable as the statement of the award, and the means of the award, of last October.

One may fool some of the people all the time; but it is impossible to fool all the people all the time.

WHO IS RESPONSIBLE.

Assize after Assize and County Court after County Court brought references in Grand Jury presentments to the evil of making poverty a crime and confining destitutes with criminals. This Assize the jury is at it again, but this time the condemnation falls upon the city authorities. The county has provided a good House of Refuge where the destitute are sheltered and fed and such as are able-bodied enough given employment. The Grand Jury points out that the presence of seventeen vagrants housed in the jail, herded with criminals for no other crime than poverty indicates the necessity of some arrangement with the county authorities by which the city destitute and homeless should be accommodated at the County House of Refuge. The explanation for such a failure of arrangement should be provided. Will the county or city authorities tell us who is to blame? Who is responsible for a working arrangement of the kind in question not being long ago effected?

The most effective way of doing a thing is to do it.

THE MISSIONARY MOVEMENT.

The Canadian National Missionary Congress, to be held in Toronto, March 31st, to April 4th, is attracting much of the attention its importance calls for. Whatever inspiration and impulse to liberality, may be supplied by the addresses of men of outstanding authority as speakers seized of the pith of their subject will be conspicuously in evidence. Amongst the speakers will be Rev. Charles Gordon, D.D., ("Ralph Connor"), Sir Andrew Fraser, Lieut.-Governor, of Bengal; Mr. R. W. Allen, on behalf of the Anglican Church; Mr. W. T. Stackhouse, of the Baptist Church, and Mr. J. A. MacDonald, editor of the Globe, who will speak on the "Christianization of Our Civilization."

This subject strikes the key-note of the chief raison d'etre of the revived missionary movement as it should affect this country. We are filling up the Northwest with a heterogeneous population which needs the moulding influences, which Christian Missions are qualified to supply. The withholding of such influences spells menace to our future, political and moral. Unless these new people scattered over wide areas, necessarily dependent on the influences and means of Christian civilization, are closely looked after they will transplant and engram in our population the undesirable moral and other conditions which made their European homes good places to leave. The foreign elements planted in well settled communities like Ontario are provided with an environment making for their assimilating to the different forms of civilization and citizenship. In the Northwest these conditions are wanting and hence the necessity of concentrating missionary enterprise upon our Northwest. If the new population is not supplied woth the influences of Christian civilization as they come in it will make an undesirable element in our citizenship. And if the new comers from Christian lands are not supplied with religious privileges and facilities, their degeneration is only a matter of time.

Without disparagement of the importance of foreign missions, it is to be held that the first duty of Canadian Christians is to the Canadian West—practically involving both the home and foreign mission idea. If we bring in foreigners who require the ministration of missions we create a foreign mission field in the home field.

The divine commission to the first Christian Missionaries required them to begin their work at home—first in Jerusalem, then in Judea and to the uttermost parts of the earth.

RAILWAY BAITING

The following from the Montreal Herald is timely. An apology for railways is not needed; they are their own justification. When we consider the part they play and are playing in the development and growth of the country, in its progress and prosperity the country enjoys; when we consider the part they play—the indispensable part—in the industrial, agricultural, commmercial and social activities of the country, we get some idea of their value in the national economy, and are justified in making many allowances for whatever shortcomings railways, in common with all enterprises under human control, may be charged with. As the Herald points out an obsession obtains in some quarters of hostility to railways, simply it would seem because they are under corporation management. We have done much for railways, have spent much money in their construction, and we have received a splendid quid pro quo. Canada would not be the country it is, would not be attracting world-wide attention for its achievements, for the important place it is playing and is destined to play to a much greater extent in contributing to the supply of the food wants and commercial prosperity of the rest of the world, were it not for her railways. We need and we are building more railways. They are a national need, as indispensable in the scheme of national development, as is the plough to the farmer, the axe to the lumberman or the anvil to the blacksmith. The Herald says:

While in the main the debates of the past two weeks, on a variety of subjects affecting railways, have been conducted with good temper, it is nevertheless to be observed that here and there a taste for railway bashing has been developed. Reading some of the more aggressive newspapers, one would get the idea that it is very unpatriotic to say a good word for a railway company, to place any limit on its burden-bearing capacity, or to regard it as other than a public enemy. No doubt, active vigilance is useful, and nobody complains that the country is suffering for the want of it. But, after all, how easy it is to see the essential soundness of the position, as stated by Mr. Hays at Stratford:

"Unless we can go to the financial centres of the world and show the investors something in return for their money, we can not secure the funds for additional facilities. Parliaments may legislate, commissions may order, but neither can force the investor to buy our securities, and they will not buy unless they can be shown a safe margin. There is no chest around the general manager's office, where by simply putting in his arm, he can withdraw all the funds necessary. On the contrary, he must see where the funds are coming from, and to what end they are being spent.

Don't let anyone urge upon you hasty and inconsiderate action in regard to railways. Give us our chance, and if we have to take the medicine, we must do it with the best of grace, but remmember that the investor is not answerable to law."

If one were to be called upon to name the one work done in Canada in recent years in face of the most serious difficulties, he would probably admit that the making over of the Grand Trunk from a dilapidated road into one of the finest transportation machines on the continent, on the basis of a credit that had practically ceased to exist, about fills the bill. Again, the most stupendous single enterprise has been the spreading out of the Canadian Pacific Railway until its roads serve an enormous territory and its influence, direct and indirect, upon other business has become all pervading. There are a number of people very sure of themselves, most of whom would not be able to make a success of a milk route, but all of whom see in the operation of the Canadian Pacific the easiest of undertakings. Twelve years ago the common stock of the railway was selling below fifty cents on the dollar, despite all that could be done. When the turn came for the better, the management moved heaven and earth to get the stock selling over par, because they knew they had to get it there before they could interest the people who have money to invest. They got it there, and they kept it there, and they are keeping it there, and they are able, whenever they need it, to get as many millions for new investment as they ask for. It has all gone into the work of opening up the empty spaces and making new business for the Canadian people to do. And yet to-day the company and its officers are being attacked on the ground, for it comes to that, that its excellent credit is a menace to the welfare of the people. Its excellent credit is precisely that "cheat around the general manager's office," into which he plunges his arms when the demand comes for some new development.

It will be expected, of course, that if there is any just ground for complaint against the Canadian Pacific for holding on to their lands beyond reason, a remedy will be applied. Similarly, where the abolition of the grade crossing becomes, as it does at some places, an immediately necessary reform, it will have to come even at some cost to the railways as well as to the public. But in these and all other conditions the railways are entitled to fairness and even to solicitous consideration. After all, it is the greatest of our organized industries, and all other industry depends on it, the pleasures of life are multiplied by its agency, and those who put their money into it are content with a lower return than would satisfy any of the rest of us.

Transportation is the keystone of the arch of Canadian development and prosperity, and its materials are, railways, canals and good roads—their perfection and efficiency the measure of their relative usefulness.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Montreal Gazette questions the profit of the British Columbia Government passing laws "to regulate immigration," and the Dominion Government disallowing them. "If the British Columbians will persist in passing laws contrary to good policy and, to this extent at least, beyond their jurisdiction, they must expect disallowance. Dominion and imperial interests must take precedence of provincial prejudices and party interests.

The Lindsay Free Press has suspended publication, after a bright and vigorous existence of about nine months. While this non-success of our contemporary is to be regretted it is not unexpected. The failure to establish a footing in a narrow constituency, demonstrates the difficulty of a new journalistic enterprise succeeding, even under energetic management, in a field effectively served, by two well established newspapers. Newspaper readers are like all of us creatures of habit and are not easily divorced from allegiance to journals to which they have become accustomed.

Canada is daily gaining in dignity and national importance, pari passu with its great natural development. We practically make out own treaties and now we are dispensing with the diplomatic middleman. A new department of the Dominion public service has been created—the Department of External Affairs. This new department is charged with the duty of handling all communications from the British Secretary for the Colonies and the British Ambassador at Washington. This is far away from the day which some still living remember, when the Home Government managed and in most cases muddled most of our domestic affairs.

A long decussion followed the reading of the estimates and the Board of Works came in for some criticism for its expenditure last year.

Ald. Buller contended that the appropriation of $11,500 for the Fire, Water and Light commttee was not enough as it did not provide for any extra hydrants or electric lights for which there would likely be a demand during the year.

Ald. Morgan thought that there was no use in keeping the rate at nineteen mills if it would not cover the expenditure. He was in favour of raising the rate and lowering the assessment, in order to catch the people with fixed assessments and then catch them by lowering the assessment and raising the rate.

Ald. Hicks did not think that a nineteen mill rate would prove sufficient and suggeted that the rate should be at least 20.1-2 mills.

Ald. Phelan favoured the nineteen mill rate. The Finance Committee had thoroughly gone into the matter and thought that the rate would be in the best interests of the city for the present year.

Ald. Hicks pointed out that the Board of Works had sent about $24,000, and of this amount only about $9,000 was spent on permanent work. He asked what there was to show for it.

"The roads," replied Ald. Phelan. "They were never in better shape than last year."

Mayor Rush explained that he had never known so many men to be out of work as there were last year and it was a question either of giving them work or giving them charity, and it had been thought advisable to provide work, hence the unusual expenditure.

The year before he thought that when there was plenty of work to be had the civic work might quite well have been stopped.

Ald. Duncan, who was chairman of the Board of Works in 1907 took this statement as a reflection on his policy and grew angry. He stated that the Board of Works last year had made just as many mistakes as the boards of others years.

Ald. Phelan explained that he had done the best he could last year, especially on street work, and he had this meeting.

Ald. Morrow stated that in placing the rate at 19 mills the Finance Committee had considered that the present year was one in which economy should be practised.

Ald. Phelan moved that the recommendation of he Finance Committee be adopted and Ald. Bradburn seconded the motion.

Ald. Hicks and Morgan moved that the rate be 20¼ mills.

Ald. Turner and Ald. Gillespie moved that the rate be 20 mills.

A compromise was suggested to the effect that the other motions should be withdrawn and that Ald. Hicks should move twenty mills and this was agreed upon.

Ald. Duffus, however, moved, seconded by Ald. McIntyre, that the matter be left over until the meeting of hte Council on Monday night next and the motion carried.

"BENIGHTED" SCOT REPLIES TO "SATIS"

Takes Exception to Some of the Statements Made by the Latter in his Letter.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir:— I was rather amused on reading the article in defence of the "smug complacency" of the Englishman in last night's Examiner by "Satis," to notice the friendly (?) manner in which he speaks of his fellow-Britisher as the "benighted Scotsman."

Does he assume, in his "smug complacency," that the English are the only ones who are NOT "benighted"?

Supposing that he knows the meaning of the word, he goes on to show how "benighted" they are by quoting from Sir Walter Scott, a Scotsman and a scholar."

Is he aware that in regard to education, Scotland stands FIRST among the nations, and that her system of education is a pattern for others to copy?

Need he ask why Englishmen, as a rule, are not highly appreciated in Canada? Is it not because they are not taken at their own valuation? He should remember that old saying: "When in Rome, do as the Romans do"—and act up to it. Learn—don't teach. Thereby hangs the tale.

With the rest of the article I have no comment to make, but would advise "Satis" in the future to refrain from calling his fellow Britisher,

A "BENIGHTED" SCOT.

N.B.—Ye micht git a jag frae the Thistle, ye ken.

NOTE.—It might be stated for the information of "Benighted," Scot, that the writer of the letter signed "Satis," claims to be a Scotsman, as his real name, if it were permitted to be given, would clearly indicate.

"Beginnings In Medicine" Was Discussed By Dr. McCulloch Before The Historical Society

An Able and Instructive Address Showing the Progress Made in the Healing Art From the Earlier Days---Was Much Appreciated Although the Attendance Was Not as Large as it Should Have Been.

A very interesting lecture was given last night in the Chemistry Room of the Collegiate Institute, under the auspices of the Historical Society, by Dr. Malcolm McCulloch, on "Beginnings in Medicine." His address was most instructive and interesting.

After the paper had been read a vote of thanks was passed to Dr. McCulloch for the able way in which the paper was written and for his sacrifice of time in being present to read and explain his work.

Dr. McCulloch's paper was as follows:

Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen.

When requested by a member of your committee to present a paper before this society, I was at some loss for a subject—not because my repertoire was so extensive, but rather on account of the paucity of my information with regard to the local setting of the community, regarding the history of which, I was under the impression this society existed especially for. However, I was assured I had free scope in my choice of subject, and considering that you would expect something of a medical nature from one who has chosen medicine for his profession, and that there is a certain degree or romance connected with the origin of all movements towards the improvement of medical knowledge, I have attempted to give a short outline of some of the early discoveries of many facts which are now regarded as matters of household information, but which at the outset had to be proven, and, in the process, had to combat the ingrown prejudices of centuries of superstition, ignorance and mysticism.

The experiment of bringing up a child in total ignorance of religion and ethics until he has arrived at an age of reason has been carried out and the longings after some higher power and some guide of conduct noted. It would be probably more interesting to bring up a child to the age of reason without any knowledge of science, and see how his mind, matured as it would be, would regard the various natural objects. We have our knowledge of natural phenomena not from our own finding out of the same, but because they are the discoveries of our predecessors and we have been told them. We can smile at the ancients in their explanations of natural phenomena, because such phenomena and their explanations have become engrained in us and are part of our being. But to any of us from our own observations and deductions the earth would still be flat and the stars would be only hundred candle power lamps at only a short distance. Let us then think charitably of our early scientists, truly struggling after the light, and give due credit to those pioneers, who leaving certain traditions handed down to them, hewed out a path for themselves, established theories which, though often wrong, yet to their minds better suited the explanation of the observations they had made.

Earliest Records

Our earliest record of the practice of the healing art is probably contained in Scripture, where we are told that Joseph commanded his servants and physicians to embalm him, in 1700 B. C. This process of embalming probably gave them some anatomical knowledge. The Egyptians originally exposed their sick in public, so that if any persons passing by had suffered from the same symptoms they might give advice for the benefit of the sufferers. Later if thus cured were required to go to the temple, inscribe their symptoms and what had helped them. These records were carefully kept and studied by the priests, who endeavored to found upon the mass of facts thus collected an exclusive practice of medicine. In this way was formed their sacred book or medical code from whose directions they were not supposed to deviate.

The Hebraic system of medicine is outlined in the Book of Leviticus, where the rules concerning public health show a very advanced state, suited to the condition of the climate and the people.

The Indian and Chinese systems were very primitive, the Chinese existing continuously, however, for about 4000 years.

The Greek system is that from which our present system traces its origin mainly. Its most famous exponent was Aesculapius, whose origin is enshrouded in mythology. Temples were erected to his honour and schools of instruction established there. His followers and the priests in the temples dedicated to him, soon formed a separate caste, transmitting their medical knowledge from one to another as a family heritage.

After the Trojan war navigation became free and the worship of Aesculapius passed from Greece into Asia, Africa and Italy. The temples were placed among groves, near thermal springs and fountains. Pilgrimages were made to them and the pilgrims were stimulated in their faith and imagination. They were purified by prayer, abstinence and sacrifice, and sometimes were required to lie in the temple for one (or more nights. Sometimes, at least, the grossest frauds and basest trickery were relied on for the purpose of influencing the minds of those weakened by their abstinence or influenced by drugs. In the neighborhood of the temples serpents abounded, non-venomous and easily tamed, and these were employed by the priests in various supernatural performances by which to impress the ignorant. It is probably due to this that the serpent became a symbol along with the Aesculapian staff in medicine.

Temples of Healing

These temples were very successful and their claims and cures put Christian Science quite in the shade. A man who had only one eye was visited by the god during the night and ointment applied to the empty orbit. On awakening he found that he had two sound eyes. Another man had no hair on his head. He prayed to the god to make it grow again. Aesculapius applied some ointment and next morning there was a thick growth of hair. What a business we could do if we knew that ointment! His method of curing dropsy was simple. He cut off the patient's head, held up the patient's body by the heels to let the water run out and then clapped on the head again!

Later the temples practised good, sound, common sense therapeutics, prescribing simple food, gymnastics, riding, friction, massage, counter irritation, baths, poultices. Among drugs were iron, hellebore, squills, lime. For diet of indigestion we read that a diet of bread and curdled milk, milk and honey, lemons boiled in water, parsley and lettuce was prescribed. Recently Metchnikoff, the Russian scientist, has pointed out the value of sour milk in intestinal disorders.

In the period of Greek philosophy, charms, incantations and magic play a less important part. The bond between medicine and theology is loosening and that between medicine and philosophy is being formed. The early Greek thinkers regarded motion as the only criterion of life and stars, fires, waves, winds were living things the same as man's body, and their endeavour was to reduce the body and the universe to the same physical laws. The king of physicians of this period was undoubtedly Hippocrates, usually called the Father of Medicine. In this age the Greek mind was emerging from myth and superstition to distinguish between fact and fiction. Navigation, exploration and conquest extended the borders of the natural world and the supernatural receded. The myths were exploded and reason rose and shook the foundations of the temples of the gods.

In the gods no thinkers believed, but, as usual, the thinkers were few and the mass of men clung to their superstitions and were ready to stone their prophets. Anaxagoras was condemned to die. Euripides was cursed as a heretic. Aeschylus narrowly escaped being stoned to death. Pericles was accused of atheism and Socrates was given the cup of hemlock. Geography, history and logic mattered not to the mob.

History of Hippocrates.

Into this atmosphere was born Hippocrates—said to have been a descendant of Aesculapius, certainly one of his followers. He crystallised and systematised and developed doctrines and ideas which, up to his time, had been ill-defined, and separated the chaff from the wheat. He did much to put medical practice and theory on a scientific and reasonable basis. He had nothing but scorn for the "windbags" and "street corner prophets," who dealt in incantations and purifications and sought to conceal their own ignorance and impotence under the mantle of the divine. He believed in a deity and saw that natural law was not incompatible with a divine law-giver.

He endeavoured to base a doctrine of disease on the humors of the body. There were four cardinal humors—blood, phlegm, black bile, yellow bile. The tissues were formed by putrefaction and coagulation, condensation and rarefaction, melting and boiling from the warm, the cold, the moist, the dry, the fat and the gelatinous. Man enjoyed health when each humor was in due proportion of gravity and force, but especially, when properly commingled. Disease became when any humor was excessive or deficient, or if the humors were not duly blended.

In practice Hippocrates appears to have relied more on general measures than drugs. He poulticed, bled and dieted, he gave purgatives and diuretics and in quite a modern spirit prescribed baths and change of air. His special attention was to diet, and he considered invalid diet should be evolved from the coarse diet of the primitive man. The first efforts at experimental physiology may be considered as arising with this school when they gave man foods of various kinds and induced vomiting to observe what advance digestion had made in each case. His knowledge of anatomy was defective. He recognized blood vessels as continuous with the heart but did not distinguish between veins and arteries. Ligaments, tendons and nerves were the same to him, and muscles were classified as flesh and not individualized, which is rather peculiar as statues of that period show that the great sculptors of that day indicated muscles individually.

Study of Symptoms.

The great feature of the Hippocratic system was its study of symptoms—inferences were drawn from the expression, complexion, posture, manner, voice and quantity of secretions, and though they were often wrong they served to show how much could be inferred from symptoms. His descriptions are picturesque and accurate, and to this day the facial signs of impending death are spoken of as the Facies Hippocratica, because of their being so vividly described by him.

The intellectual improvement of medicine under Hippocrates was commensurate with the moral. The so-called Oath of Hippocrates enacts that the physician, among other things, is to help the sick according to his knowledge and power, to rigidly abstain from every evil, criminal abuse of the means and instruments of his art, to supply no poison, to keep an inviolable silence about the secrets which he learned in his calling or even outside it.

His writings enjoin the physician to have good manners, dress neatly, and avoid perfumes—he must be temperate, honourable, humane, modest, just, affable and clean; he must oppose fraud and superstition, show courage in adversity, must have a due sense of the divine power and recognize that to Heaven he owes his success. How much higher have our ideals risen since or I wonder how much nearer have we come to reaching them?

On the death of Hippocrates he was promptly deified and thus he who abjured magic when living was reputed to perform magic dead.

Aristotle was Inaccurate.

After Hippocrates came Aristotle, a distinctly retrogressive step. As a scientist he had some of the worst attributes of a modern physical investigator, indistinctness of ideas, confusion of mind, and a confident use of language, which led to a delusive notion that he had really mastered his subject, when he had as yet failed to grasp the elements. He preached induction without practising it passing from the general to the particular instead of from the particular to the general. Many of his statements are inaccurate, and he made no experimental researches. He owes his scientific reputation to his garrulity and the ignorance of his audience just as many reputations are thus won.

Alexander the Great, a pupil of Aristotle, founded at Alexandria a museum or school, which became the greatest university the world has probably ever seen. Under its roof were poets, astronomers, engineers, chemists, botanists, biologists, the literary dandy and the grim theologian, and in this environment medicine spent the second part of its infancy and throve in the dissecting room of the Alexandrian museum. The Egyptians had practised embalming for thousands of years, but were opposed to dissection of the human body, but Ptolemy Philadelphus allowed his professor of anatomy not only to dissect dead human bodies, but to vivisect animals and criminal. The dissecting undoubtedly put both medicine proper and surgery on a more accurate and scientific basis. Erasistratus, one of the first anatomists, distinguished between nerves of motion and sensation; he was aware of the valves of the heart and seems even to have seen lacteals, which were not rediscovered for nearly 2,000 years. Herophilus, his colleague, dissected 600 bodies and also some live animals. At the same time, as advances were made in anatomy, surgery and pharmacy were progressing. New drugs and preparations were introduced and new operations and instruments were evolved.

Galen the Next Genius.

The glory of the Alexandria school passed with the Ptolemies and Rome now became the centre of the civilized world and when the next genius in medicine appeared in the 2nd century, A.D., Rome was his theatre. Galen was educated at Alexandria, though by birth a Greek, and gravitated to Rome. He was a great anatomist, but it was chiefly as an experimental physiologist he acquired fame. He demonstrated that the cords in the heart, which Aristotle called nerves, were not nerves, and have no connection with nerves. But the argument that the heart was not the seat of the soul was met by saying that a man laid his hand on his heart to give emphasis to the assertion of self. The doctrine of Aristotle, regarding the brain, was that it was merely a kind of sponge to cool the heart, but Galen proved by ingenious experiments that serious injury to a part of the brain affected the opposite side of the body. He showed that injury to the cord at various levels produced different forms of paralysis. Unable to understand why, he concluded a sort of air or subtle spirit ran down the nerve and there were 3 kinds—vital, animal, natural, and this classification and idea persisted for centuries. Galen also made many other discoveries in physiological chemistry.

Thus was a good beginning made under Hippocrates, Erasistratus, Herophilus and Galen, but the development was arrested after Galen's death. Greece was no more, Rome was unfavourable soil for the growth of science and Alexandria was in decline. The logical controversies were raging and neo-platonism arose. The aim and end of existence was a mystical union with God—the body was a delusion and a lie, a strait-jacket of the soul. The Church took upon itself the power of arbiter and all teaching had to conform to Scripture. Hence died geography, engineering, astronomy, and history, and moral and intellectual progress became impossible. Medicine fell with the rest. The world was dying of dogma. But just as it is surprising to see such a brilliant beginning in progress ending so disastrously, so aid came from an unexpected quarter. While creeds were contending for mastery Mohammed was born in 569 A. D. His battle cry: "There is but one God and Mohammed is his prophet," together with a sharp scimitar in a few years extended the rule of the Arabians east and west so that all the cities of western Asia and northern Africa were in their hands. When they took Alexandria the great libraries were burned by order of the Khalif, who said that if they disagreed they were wicked. Legend asserts that the books were so numerous as to heat the baths (40,000 in number) of the city for 6 months. Though this occurred, the Arabs were not opposed to literature and in a short time they became patrons, custodians and cultivators of ancient learning. They did not accept the beliefs of the Fathers of the Church, owing to their antagonism to the Trinitarian doctrines, and so they went to the ancient Greeks for their science and philosophy. The Nestorians, who had been expelled from Constantinople in 431 A. D., on account of their heresies with regard to the Trinitarian doctrine, had settled in the valley of the Euphrates and had taken great interest in learning, taking a special interest in medicine. They are said to have been the first to write books dealing in a systematic way with the employment of medicine. These were invited by the Arabs to translate the Greek words into Arabic, and later their learned men were made teachers of the sons of the more important Arabs. Learned men were given a place at Court and no mosque was built unless with a school attached to it, and one of the most magnificent and enlightened civilizations the world has ever known was being developed.

Medicine With The Arabs.

In this atmosphere medicine throve in some ways, and in others ceased from growing. Chemistry was the Arabs' hobby, pursuing it with a view to make or to obtain the elixir of life. There was advance in pharmacy and surgery, but their anatomy suffered as to the Mussulman it was sacrilege to touch a corpse. Consequently their anatomy was based on the writings of the Greeks, and from this time onward Galen came to be considered almost as a God. Hence we find his views governing all thought up to 1,500 years after his death and thus it took a man of some backbone to question things which had been accepted for so long. Meanwhile Europe was bound hand and foot with the vain philosophies and theologies which paralyzed the reason of men. In a roundabout way the writings of Galen reached them. The Greek writings were translated into Syriac, then into Arabic, sometimes through the Hebrew into Latin. This process did not improve the quality of the science, but it was at least a rush light in the darkness. In the 10th, 11th, 12th, and 13th centuries the immigration of Jews learned in Arabic medicine, added to the influence of the writings. Roger Bacon, in the 13th century had the courage to believe his own senses rather than Aristotle, and his scientific spirit was remarkable for the age. He was not a medical scientist, but he prepared the way for truth. His scientific work was rewarded by 10 years of imprisonment.

In 1453 Constantinople was captured and a remnant of learned Greeks moved to Italian soil, stimulating the revival of Greek learning. The original writings of Hippocrates and Galen were revealed and many discrepancies between them and their Arabic commentators noted. Men began criticism and argument, and then had to use their long-neglected reason and choose. Sides were taken and Christian ranged against infidel in the controversy. The invention of the printing press had its influence, but more important as a stimulus to independent scientific thought was the advance in discovery by Columbus and Magellan, and the publishing of the heresy that the earth revolved on its axis by Copernicus, Bruno and Galileo, upsetting the dogma of the geography of the fathers.

Paracelsus' Attack.

In 1526 Paracelsus began an attack on the medical dogma of the time. Imitating Luther, he began a course of medical lectures at Basle by lighting a basin of sulphur and in the flames casting the books of Galen and others less noted with the words "So will ye burn in Gehenna." He is sometimes described as a reformer, but his real character was that of an audacious and sensational quack, whose influence had very little effect. He happened to live at the time when various discoveries and revolutions of thought had given an impetus to a revival of anatomical research. An anatomical school was started in Paris and there Sylvius lectured in 1538. He was a famous miser and anatomist. One of his brightest pupils, Vesalius, may be given the credit of being the originator of modern anatomy and the layer of the foundations of modern medicine.

Vesalius encountered difficulty in obtaining material for dissection in his student days. He tells of fighting with hungry dogs for the possession of human bones exposed in the Paris cemeteries or climbing the gibbet and removing a corpse from which the birds had cleaned all the flesh, he even visited the graves as modern body snatchers have done. But later he was given the bodies of criminals to dissect and executions were arranged that the corpse might suit his requirements. He worked for five years at anatomy as Padua as Sir Michael Foster says. Five years he wrought, not weaving a web of fancied thoughts, but patiently disentangling the pattern of the texture of the human body, trusting to the words of no master, admitting nothing but that which he himself had seen and at the end of five years while he was as yet not 28 years old in 1542 he was able to write (the dedication to Charles V. of a folio work entitled "The structure of the human body" adorned with many plates and wood cuts which appeared at Basle in 1512."

This roused the wrath of his old master Sylvius, in that he had dared to contradict Galen. Fierce storms broke out from all quarters and, discouraged he burned his unpublished manuscript and accepted a position as Court Physician at the Court of Charles V. of Spain. Here the Inquisition had full sway, and, though they tortured men living, they permitted not the dissection of the dead. Vesalius says he could not as much as lay his hand on a dried skull, much less make a dissection. He endured this till 1561, when his enthusiasm was again fired by a perusal of a book of anatomical observations and he wrote a review of it in which he expressed the hope of again returning to the study of that true Bible Nature—of the human body and of the nature of man.

In 1563 he performed a post-mortem on a nobleman and when he had opened the body, the heart still beat. The Inquisition laid a penance of a pilgrimage to Jerusalem on the unlicensed vivisectionist and on the way back Vesalius died. He had done his work and with his work medicine passed from the fairy tales of the nursery to the realities of the laboratory. Medical practice and doctrine did not become at once scientific and systematic. Anatomy is only the foundation of medicine.

LETTERS FROM WOMEN About Pe-ru-na.

MRS. CLARA L. MILLER. MRS. S. L. JEWELL. MRS. MAHALA REID.

The following testimonials represent actual experience of every-day life. They are the truthful utterances of women who have been ill and have found a reliable remedy in Peruna.

It means a great deal to the women of America to have at hand a remedy capable of giving such relief. Constipation, rheumatism, kidney trouble, bronchitis and a host of other catarrhal conditions are relieved by Peruna. At least this is what the women say. They have no object in saying such things, except to render truthful testimony to their suffering sisters.

Peruna is making such friends every day. It is the testimony of the people that has made Peruna so justly famous Chronic Bronchitis.

Mrs. Clara L. Miller, Box 71, Columbia Sta., Seattle, Wash., formerly vice president of Skoogay Country Club, writes: "Nine bottles of Peruna cured me of a protracted case of bronchitis. There is no superior remedy that I know of, as the action of Peruna on the vaso motor system of nerves is very beneficial. It increases the tone of the system and aids nature to perform her functions.

"I have recommended it to a number of my friends, who speak in the same high terms of it. I have certainly found it a most efficacious medicine."

Nervous, Tired and Weak.

Mrs. Christine Smukalla, 490 Winslow Ave., Buffalo, N. Y., writes: "I trust every one suffering from systemic catarrh will read this and profit by it.

"I was in a very bad condition indeed, when I began to take Peruna, and my friends as well as myself were very much alarmed over my condition. I was always nervous, could not sleep at night, my food did me no good, and I was always tired and weak. I tried several doctors, but found no relief.

"Finally I took two bottles of Peruna and felt like a different woman. However, I did not stop there, but kept on with it until I had taken several bottles, when I felt completely cured, and have remained so ever since. I can eat and sleep now."

A Good Word for Pe-ru-na.

Mrs. S. L. Jewell, R. F. D. 1, Freeport, Pa., writes:

"Having used Peruna myself for many years with beneficial effects, and observing the good it has done others of my acquaintance, I cannot but say a good word in behalf of Peruna."

Keeps Pe-ru-na in the House.

Mrs. Maria Goerts, Orienta, Oklahoma, writes: "My husband, children and myself have used your medicines, and we always keep them in the house in case of necessity. I was restored to health by this medicine, and Dr. Hartman's invaluable advice and books. People ask about me from different places, and are surprised that I can do all of my housework alone, and that I was cured by the doctor of chronic catarrh. My husband was cured of asthma, my daughter of earache and catarrh of the stomach, and my son of catarrh of the throat. When I was sick I weighed 100 pounds; now I weigh 140.

"Dr. Hartman's remedies have proven to be reliable and wonderful. Their effect upon the system is remarkable. Peruna quiets the nerves, and is a great specific for all forms of chronic catarrh.

"I am very glad to say that I can write you that I am cured in every way of catarrh, with which I had suffered terribly for ten years. I cannot thank you enough for your advice."

Constipation, Kidney Trouble.

Mrs. Mahala Reid, Corbyville, Ont., Canada, writes:

"Your celebrated remedies have been a wonderful boon to me in my old age. I have not been in so good health for several years as now.

"I was troubled with constipation, rheumatism and kidney trouble. A little over two years ago I completely lost my health, becoming almost helpless, when a dear friend sent me your remedies, Peruna and Manalin.

"I began to take them, following the directions on the bottles. I very soon began to feel benefited by their use, and continued to take them.

"I am now completely recovered from the above ailments, in fact, better than I have been for years past.

"I cannot praise the remedies too highly and will always recommend them to others."

A Well-Known Remedy.

Peruna is a catarrh remedy that has been in the field for many years. Other catarrh remedies have come and gone, but the reputation of Peruna has outlived them all.

Peruna is a combination of efficient herbal remedies that wields a powerful influence on all the mucous membranes of the body, and hence reaches catarrh wherever it is located.

LEARN DRESS CUTTING and MAKING

Class to Commence] at Y. W.C.A., March 8th

Wanted, ladies to learn dress cutting, dress making and coat making. No accomplishment you can acquire will prove to you of such everyday life-long value as a practical knowledge of dress making. We teach you everything from the plainest shirt waist to the most elaborate toilet, and guarantee perfect satisfaction. We stand prepared to forfeit $25 to any lady, who, after taking our course can show us an article in dress making she cannot cut, fit and put together. Not only the lining, but all the outer goods in coats, skirts, waists, sleeves, wrappers, girdles, children's clothes, etc.

Charge for full course is now only $10, including one of the most perfect systems in use. A few days' trial are given. If the student then finds the course not all we have advertised it to be, she has the privilege to stop, as there is no pay in advance.

A day and also an evening class will be taught.

All wishing to learn or for full particulars, be sure to meet me on Saturday, March 6th, at the Y.W.C.A., Peterborough

MISS VALENS

Instructor, Hamilton, Ont. P.O. Box 381

This course is also successfully taught by mail. Write for full particulars.

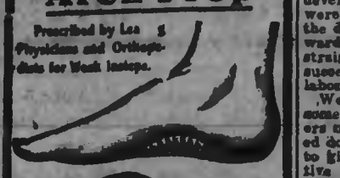
Shut Out Your Foot Troubles by wearing the

Arrowsmith Arch Prop

Prescribed by Leading Physicians and Orthopaedists for Weak Instep.



Made of German Silver

The prop will not rust. It is easy and springy to the foot. A pleasure to wear. It can be gradually heightened as the condition of the foot improves. The fingers of the Prop can be brought against the side of the arch with the desired pressure. Unlike the ordinary rigid steel insole, it does not occupy the entire inner sole of the shoe, but extends only to the ball of the foot, being held in place by the pressure of the heel.

"BEGINNINGS IN MEDICINE"

nothing more and medicine had to wait on chemistry, physiology, bacteriology had physics for its full development. Not the foundations were laid fair and square, and from the date of the issue of his work onward anatomy pursued an unbroken straightforward course being made successively fuller, and thereby the labors of those who came after.

We have given a short account of some of the work of the early fathers of medicine and the views handed down. We come to a period where to give any continuous and consecutive history of medicine would be more laborious and so we will confine ourselves to a few of the great discoveries and their bearing on medicine. Of these one of the greatest and earliest is the discovery of the circulation of the blood by Harvey. Many of Harvey's time considered that he had no basis on which to work, but, as a matter of fact, many had come very near a solution of the mystery previous to Harvey. Primitive man when he snapped an artery with a stone axe must have regarded it more as a fountain than a pool. Indeed the Egyptians in their Papyrus, the oldest medical document known, note that shortness of breath occurs because the blood does not circulate. Of course this word circulate has no further meaning than move. Plato said: "The blood is carried round to all parts of the body." Hippocrates affirmed, "Where it begins or where it ends I protest I know not, for in a circle there is neither beginning nor end." Aristotle distinguishes between arteries and veins but taught that the arteries contained air which was conveyed to the heart by means of the windpipe. Then Erasistratus claimed that the veins conveyed blood and the arteries contained a spirituous principle and that there was communication between them, so that when an artery was cut the blood that escaped was from a vein. Galen, as an experimental physiologist was opposed to these on the ground of logic and experiment, and proved that an artery contained blood and blood only, but it was different from the blood in the vein in that it contained a greater proportion of pneuma and that these provided the various parts of the body with the nutriment most necessary. He proved a communication between the arteries and veins but never dreamed of a systematic circulation, though the pulmonary circulation was almost discovered by him. When Vasalius wrote his book 1500 years later, Galen's views still prevailed, and, though he recognized that the doctrines of Galen led to paradoxes, yet he accounted his statement to the dogma of Galen, because in a new work he hesitated to swerve from the doctrines of the Prince of Medicine. Winter, one of the Vesalius teachers, taught that the blood passed through the lungs from the right to the left ventricle, and in its passage was elaborated into a pure, subtle, vaporous, and proper ailment of the heart and arteries. The honor of discovery of the lesser circulation is usually ascribed to Servetus, a pupil of Winter's. He was a Theologian as well as a great doctor and was burnt by Calvin because he refused to believe in the Calvanistic doctrines and had published an heretical work. Though an acute thinker and a courageous one, he was still so much under the dominion of superstition as to believe that the devil could pass up the nostrils with the air of the chambers of the brain and thus lay seige to the soul. In 1559 Matthew Collumbus, in his anatomical work, made a definite statement on the pulmonary circulation. So these observers, Galen, Winter, Servetus and Columbus had produced the idea of a communication between the right ventricle and the left auricle through the lungs, but none had learned by what force this was brought about. In 1571 Caesalpinus of Pisa gave a full account of the circulation, with the exception of the communication between the arteries and veins in the greater or systematic circulation.

Thus were matters prepared for Harvey by generations of men and he had much to lead and mislead him. His logic shattered the Galenic doctrines of the working of the heart, and then he started to find out how the heart did work. He dissected and vivisected numerous animals and I shall not here detail the course of his discoveries of the mechanism of the heart and the circulation of the blood, but, suffice to say, that he made a complete demonstration of the course of the blood with the exception of the connecting link between the arteries and veins. Regarding this he made many theories which were cleared up a few years after his death by Malpighi, an Italian microscopist discovering a newwork of fine termination of arteries, and fine beginnings of veins in the lung of a frog. The effect of Harvey's discovery was to cause a great reaction against treatment based on spirits and liquors, and that mechanical school arose, which was in many cases carried to extravagance and exaggeration. Despite this Harvey's doctrine eventually became the basis of a large part of modern scientific therapeutics. Modern doctrines of heart disease—its effects and treatment—treatment by transfusion of blood, hypodermic injection, the principle of the tourniquet, tying of arteries for hemmorrhage and aneurism, our knowledge of the nature of suppuration of respiration and digestion are all fruits of Harvey's work. Sir Thomas Browne considers Harvey's discovery of the circulation of the blood greater than Columbus' discovery of America. Hunter thought the three great discoveries of modern times were the western hemisphere by Columbus, that of the Solar system by Copernicus, and the circulation of the blood by Harvey.

In spite of Harvey's work and the impetus given to clear thinking medicine still wandered, in the 18th century in the midst of metaphysics. A few great thinkers and workers foreshadowed great worms are made of.

This conception of man as a cellular colony and conception of disease as a cellular disorder quickly bore fruit. It was soon seen that many tumors, including cancer, were caused simply by the multiplication of normal tissue cells, and that many diseases were due to specific misdemeanors on the part of cells in certain regions when irritated in various ways. While with the discovery of bacteria of disease a few years later the nature of many diseases as a combat between cell and cell became apparent. To recognize that disease was the chemical inco-ordination and insubordination of cells, to recognise in many cases it was a fight between certain cells of the body and marauding invaders, was to recognise at once new methods of treatment. On the one hand it was possible to correct the chemical discords of the cells—on the other hand it was found possible to exclude distants which have since been proven but on the whole there were vast speculations, as to the ultimate constitution of the body. Observation had begun with the body as a mysterious metaphysical whole, had narrowed down to the body as an aggregate of organs, then to the organs as a patchwork of tissues and with the advent of 1830 of the compound microscope as a weapon of scientific truth it became focused on the ultimate structural elements, the cells. Virchow, in 1855, published his great work on cellular pathology and showed that the cell was the true pathological unit, and all diseases were prefigured and accompanied by cellular changes. Man was man teased out into a tesselated multiplicity of cells and like all great analyses it led to great syntheses. Man, who had dared to consider himself a little lower than the angels, now might venture to consider himself a little higher than the amoeba. He might now say to the worm, "Thou are my brother and my sister," and to the Tubercle Bacillus, "Thou art my brother Cain." All living material whether roses or reptiles, microbes or men, were shown to be either single cells or colonies of cells and all cells were shown to be composed of the same material — protoplasm. Shakespeare said we are of such stuff as dreams are made of, Virchow proved we are also of such stuff as ease cells (microbes) by simple defensive devices or to assay them in situ by suitable poisons. It was found that in some cases the cells of the body could be gradually educated to resist most powerful disease germs and that one of the best ways to assist the cells of the body to combat disease was by giving good air and food. Medicine in fact, was at once put on a much more scientific basis and great victories became possible.

To the ordinary individual a microbe suggests only mumps or measles, yet its discovery is one of the most romantic events of the history of medicine. In the seventeenth century, great discoveries were made. Galileo put his eye to the telescope and discovered suns, Leeuwenhoek put his eye to the microscope and discovered microbes —the arsenal of life and death. He discovered animalcules in the saliva, the tartar from the teeth and the rain in the gutter. He shrewdly guessed that these did not originate spontaneously or by the putrefaction of decaying substances, and though he recognized the great fact that all life must arise from some preceding thing it was not till one hundred years later that it was brought forward that germs are the cause of disease. In 1762 Plenciz of Vienna, maintained that every disease had its own particular micro-organism but this was only theory and it was 70 years later before Bassi proved this prophecy by demonstrating that silk worms disease was due to a minute cryptogamic plant and expressed the opinion that smallpox and all cutaneous diseases were due to a similar cause. But again he had stated more than he could prove and it was only in 1863 that Davaine captured the Anthrax bacillus the first bacterium of human disease. Since then proofs of the propositions advocated by Plenciz and Bassi have come in quick succession. The bacteria of suppuration were found in 1866, in 1873 the spirilla of relapsing fever, in 1880 the typhoid bacillus, in 1882 the tuberole bacillus, in 1884 the cholera bacillus, and now millions of microscopes are investigating the world opened up by Leeuwenhoek.

For ages the origin of living matter had been a subject of momentous and interesting controversy, and on no war has so many lives depended involving as it does the practical question of the origin and treatment of disease. Not until 1862 was the question settled, when Pasteur gave final and conclusive evidence that spontaneous generation never occurs, and with this discovery bacteriology acquired a practical importance, for it was at once obvious that if germs did not arise spontaneously, then germ diseases might be prevented by preventing the entrance of microbes or cured by destroying the microbes after entrance.

As has been said, the first bacterium convicted of homicide was the anthrax bacillus, the microbes causing a disease called anthrax, carbuncle, malignant pustule or wool sorters disease or splenic fever. It is comparatively speaking, large, yet 150,000,000 might find elbow room on a postage stamp. It invades the skin, or may be inhaled into the lungs. In France the disease amounted to a plague. In Russia, in one district, during three years, 56000 cattle, sheep and horses, and 528 men died of Anthrax, and though the cause was known, and a certain degree of prevention could be carried out, it was not till 1881 that Pasteur succeeded in obtaining a vaccine as a protective against the disease. Since that time, vaccination of animals against Anthrax has been carried out in those districts and its value can be seen when we say that since vaccination ten per cent of sheep and five per cent of cattle died and before .94 per cent of sheep and .34 per cent of cattle. Other microbes that have been the subject of much study an dinvestigation are those of tetanus, hydrophobia, malaria, tuberculosis, yellow fever. The method of carry out these experiments by investigators, has often been romantic in the determination and heroism displayed by them in exposing themselves to infection, which, in case their theories were not well-founded, would have proven fatal.

The fact that microbes are the cause of disease having been established, the question naturally arose as to why every individual affected by the disease did not succumb. The tetanus bacillus secretes a poison so potent that 3-100 part of a grain is sufficient to kill a man, and the poison of anthrax bacillus is still more virulent. How do the cells of the body resist such poisons? and how can their resistance be increased? Is is a matter of Greek meeting Greek, of thief catching thief, of poison antagonizing poison. If the bacteria form poisons fatal to the cells of the body, the cells of the body in turn form poisons fatal to the bacteria cells. They have the power of neutralizing the bacteria toxines by means of substances known as antitoxins, alexins and opsonins.

The workings of the bacteria were first discovered through the action of the fermentation of the yeast in the production of beer. Just as this yeast cell feeds and multiplies in beer so the anthrax bacillus feeds and multiplies in the blood, so changing the blood with its excretions that it poisons the cells instead of nourishing them. It finds the blood a good nourishing food, and it multiplies. They why should it not continue to multiply until it causes the body to die. Various theories were put forward, but to Metchnikoff belongs the honor of ascribing the true reason of the phagocytosis of these bacteria by the white blood cells of the body. By a series of brilliant experiments he has been able to show that when foreign material appears, in the system, these scavangers of the body are mobilized to surround it and repel the invasion. The white blood cells are the army and navy of the body—a vast multitude of free cells maintained by the State, that they repel invasion by any unicellular organism. They have minds of their own, tastes and distastes, and it was shown that the immunity of an individual depended on a gradual education of the phagocytes to acquire tastes, and their failure to conquer an infective disease depended on their inadequacy or ineducatibility. There is added to the opsonin produced by the serum of the blood which does much towards overcoming the bacteria by digesting or cooking them, making them palatable for the phagocytes thus producing an immunity for the individual. This has been made use of by scientists in generating an artificial immunity by the injection of the serum of an animal which has overcome the disease, in the form of antitoxin.

The first scientific victory arising out of the knowledge of the nature of disease and the manner in which it attacked was, antisepsis. From earliest ages it had been practised by the embalmers, who preserved the dead bodies of animals and men. Their methods were rough, but effectual, and their preservatives were pitch, palm oil, myrrh, cassia, cedar oil and sometimes wax and honey. Wine and vinegar were laid upon wounds. The good Samaritan pound up the wounds of the man, pouring in oil and wine. But throughout these and the middle ages no relationship between germs and suppuration was conceived.

Semmelweiss, an Austrian physician, in 1856, improved the statistics in his department of a maternity hospital, by having all students who attended patients, wash their hands with liquid chlorine, but his discovery was not made much of.

Lister, in 1865, began his work, having the experience of all his predecessors at his command. He noted that all mischief arose from the life contained in the atmospheric particles and declared the requisite precautions to be to dress the wound with some substance capable of killing the septic germs, yet not sufficiently caustic to destroy the tissues. He advocated carbolic acid and in his first three years he reduced the mortality from amputation from 46 per cent had to fight its way. It was received joyfully by some, but others scoffed at it. The step from antiseptic surgery to aseptic was quickly taken and was a natural outgrowth of Lister's first practical application. Listers antiseptic surgery has probably saved more lives than have been lost on the battlefields of the world since its discovery, and so long as the world lasts his name must be immortal. The discovery of aseptic surgery has placed it within the power of the surgeon to attempt operations which previously would have meant certain death, and here we have part of the answer of the oft repeated question as to the prevalence of appendicitis and similar diseases at the present time. Thousands died previous to twenty years ago with a diagonis of congestion or inflamation of the bowels, which, in my opinion, was in nearly all cases due to a perforating appendicites. Today we would endeavor to prevent such by timely operation for removal of the offending organ.

The origin of anaesthesis is another interesting theme. Its benefits are known to us, but not appreciated as it would be had we once witnessed the brutality that had to be resorted to restrain the terror-stricken patient to enable the operation to be proceeded with. The overcoming of hydrophobia by the investigation of Pasteur,—the development of preventive medicine,—of diphtheria antitoxin, and other defensive serums advances of modern surgery in the excision of the stomach, stitching of the heart, operations on the brain, making of noses, transplanting of skin, the advances in medicine a making use of the extracts of certain organs of the body, and the advances made in diagnosis by the use of instruments of precision for examination of the body and its secretions. All these would make material for a paper much longer than I have inflicted upon you. But have no fear I congratulate that I have already transgressed sufficiently by trying your patience to this extent. The subject has been so large that in my condensation I have been able to touch very hurriedly on the outskirts of most and must be satisfied though I have given you only an outline.

WOMEN AND OUT OF DOORS

Too Few Receive Benefit of the Fresh Winter Air.

Why is it as soon as cold weather comes so many women get out so little? They stay in the house day in and day out, week after week, getting out possibly to church on Sunday, but almost none during the week. It is absolutely necessary to get into the fresh, live air a little while every day to preserve health, pretty complexions and sunny dispositions. It is far more necessary to get outdoors in winter, when our windows are, for most part, closed than in summer, when doors and windows are open. What if the thermometer does go down? Wrap up well, take long, deep breaths and exercise briskly for an hour each day, and, in a month's time, you will feel like a different person.

SEEING IS BELIEVING!

A United States agency that is selling books has a man who ought to write folders. Here is a sample:

"A tour of the world! What a fascinating prospect these magic words conjure up! A tour of the world! The first enchanting glimpse into the lands that lie beyond our doors; the mingling with entirely new neoples, the viewing of strange scenes and customs; the phenomenal mind broadening it effects; the liberal education it conveys. Perhaps you have longed many times to make this marvellous trip yourself; only to be obliged to dispel the idea because of business, health, family ties, or the question of finances. Is this so?"

Our answer to the question is, call upon Mr. W. McElroy, city passenger agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway, get the tickets, and see the the things as they are, instead of staying at home and thinking how they may be. One thing is certain, wherever you want to go, whatever part of the continent or of the world, no company con take you as far or look after you as well as the C. P. R.

Complete Showing of New Spring Wash Goods

TO catch the first glimpse of Spring, come and make acquaintance of the beautiful new Cotton goods that we have just unpacked.

There never were such exquisite weaves and colourings. There are Scotch and American Ginghams—sturdy, serviceable stuffs, whose features of colour and long wearing qualities we strongly recommend; there are the new Percales, the most desirable of cotton for lawn dresses, children's frocks, etc. Spring colours and patterns in these were never so pleasing.

Our buyer went direct to the maker, saving the middleman's profits. Our enormous business in Wash Fabrics justified him in placing a tremendous order, the exceptional size of which gave us a big price concession.

We are confident, therefore, that you can't find as low prices, as high qualities or as good assortments as ours anywhere else in town.

Be convinced by paying us a visit.
